At this season many cows are "dried" of their milk. Circumstances have been so unfavorable for milch cows during the present summer that cows which usually "hold out" through the winter, already give indications of a disposition to withold the usual supply. There is a great difference in cows in this respect. Some will "dry up" in eight or nine months from the time of calving, under the most favorable circumstaces, while others continue to give a good mess up to the time they come in. This is owing partly to habit as well as to a difference in milkers. We have seen cows that continue in full milk for four years without intermission. It is a very severe tax on the system of a cow to milk her up to the time they come in. This is owing partly to habit as well as to a difference in as milkers. We have seen cows that continue in full milk for four years without intermission. It is very severe tax on the system of a cow to milk her up to the time or within a short time of calving. She ought to have at least two months in which to rest, and to build up the bony structure of the calf. If not allowed such respite the constitution and general health will suffer. The calves would be smaller and longer in attaining their growth.

The cow which has two months or more to recuperate during winter is in better condition for the next season, and though she may not give quite as may pounds of milk during the year, its quality will be richer, and it will be more nourishing and healthful as an article of food. It is doubtful if the production of milk for the year is not worth more if the cow goes dry two months than if she is milked as long as a drop can be got.

Farmers are sometimes not sufficiently careful to look after the udder. It is thought that as long as the cow is to be dried the milking is of very little account, and if some milk is left in the udder it does not harm. This is a great mistake. The proper way is to allow a longer interval between milkings, but to draw it clean every time, and this should be continued until no more can be obtained. If a small quanity is allowed to remain in the udder it is soon changed into a foul and offensive matter, and engenders disease.—Vermont Record and Farmer.

A DARING HUNTER.—Louis Kelley is perhaps the most daring and successful hunter in the great west. He travels alone, fights alone, wears a complete suit of buck skin, and wears a turban around his head when out on the prairie. He is said to be a graduate of a college, and hails from Virginia or South Carolina. It is thought he was a confederate officer. He is about twenty-two years of age, handsome, well formed and muscular. The Indians dread him as much as they ever did Kit Carson or Daniel Bone. He never misses his mark An Indian is as good as dead the moment he draws sight on him. He will, travel weeks at a time through hostile Indians and never express a thought of danger. Kelley is now on a trip to the head-waters of the Yellowstone, a country never yet visited by any white man. He is alone. He has been known to dare a dozen Indians on the open prairie to fight him in a body. No Indian will ever get within reach of his deadly rifle.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—We take this method of informing the public and our patrons that other clothing houses are painting the fronts of their stores red in order to dupe and deceive the public.

They are aware that the genuine Red Front Clothing House, at No. 5 Keystone Block, have succeeded in establishing by their fair and honorable dealing and low prices the largest trade in the city of Fort Wayne.

Those who are counterfeiting our signs and advertisements do so only to deceive the public. All persons should be on their guard and look well for the right number, which will be found only at No. 5 Keystone Bloc. It being in the finest and most public block in the city, where there are seven large stores all built alike it will be no trouble to find it.

The public will always find it very much to their interest to call at the popular and established Red Front Clothing Hall, at No. 5 Keystone Block.

Look out for the largest stock of clothing ever brought to one house in Fort Wayne this fall. Most goods and lowest prices.

VINEGAR BITTERS

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

The Auburn Courier

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

A nice rain fell this morning.

Concert next Tuesday night.

Several of our citizens went to Columbia City, to day.

Go to the Concert, next Tuesday evening and hear the Lang Brothers.

Two Important Cows—one kicked over the kerosene lamp, and t'other jumped over the moon.

We are in receipt of the daily Times, a live Democratic paper published at Toledo

Remember the grand Musical Concert, next Tuesday night, at the Court House, for the benefit of everybody

We have received several communications this week, but as the writers have failed to give us their real name, we omit them.

W. B. Vickers, Esq., has sold his paper the Indianapolis Mirror, to Messrs. Mullikin & Hill, and the Indianapolitan has been consolidated with the above.

Cigars.—The famous "Partigas," Josh Billing' great solace, are to be had at Smith & Hare's. Also the "Red Bird" brand which has no equal.

Reub. Williams and Tom Taylor fraternize again. Tom says Reub, is "bully," and Reub says Tom was at home once, or words to that effect.

T. B. Totten is receiving new goods every week, and his present stock of Groceries is No. 1. A large lot of crockery just received.

Ten cents will buy a great big slate at Davenport & Co's. While for fifteen cents you can get one smaller than a town lot. Call on them and see.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Clem, indicted for murder, failed to agree, six being for and six against conviction. A motion was made to have her admitted again to bail

Ladies visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

Going Down.—The first bridge east of the 'Eagle Mills', is dying of old age, and is succumbing to the assuaging power of time. Let her succumb. A new one will have to be erected soon.

We are greatly obliged to Messrs Steele & Cullaton, of the Fort Wayne Republican for late courtesies. The Republican is rapidly gaining favor in that city, and the proprietors are meeting with great success. And well they deserve it.

F. E. Davenport & Co., are making great improvements in their drug store, and adding largely to their already extensive stock. They are bound to keep the best quality of everything and sell at the lowest prices.

The summer is ended, the harvest is past, the winter is upon us, and—had'nt you better subscribe for the Courier?—You will find it entertaining and instructive—just the thing you need during the long winter evenings.

The free excursion to Detroit, tendered to all those who have given the right of way and paid their stock subscription to the D. E. R. & I. R. R., will soon take place. Pay up, all you delinquents, and be able to take part in the excursion.—Col. City Post.

Horse Frighteners.—It would be interesting to know how many runaways are caused by the paper carelessly thrown on the street, and blown by the wind under horses' feet. Nothing more certainly frightens a timid horse.

Cisterns.—Work has at last commenced on the public cisterns and three are now under way of construction. Now, we should have a good hook and ladder organization, and a number of rubber buckets, and then we would be possessed of some little means of resistance to fire.—Why should not the citizens individually contribute to this enterprise? We hope one will be organized immediately.

Newville.—The fire in this vicinity has taken possession of woods and fields, and great exertions have been necessary to prevent its devastating the whole country around. The all engrossing subject is fire

Mill Burned.—Last Thursday morning about 3 o'clock the fine steam saw mill, owned by S. H. Bartlett was destroyed by fire. Messrs. Moody, Rodimer & Gunsonhouser, had the mill rented, and getting behind with their work, were forced to run it at night, so as to keep up with the demands made upon them. They ran it sometimes until midnight, and it is thought that the fire originated by carelessness.—Several buildings adjoining caught fire, but were saved by prompt action of the citizens. This will prove a severe loss to the community

Time.—A goodly number of our subscribers have come up promptly and paid us for the first year. But there are a number yet who have not availed themselves of this privilege. We hope they will do it immediately. We must have our pay for the paper. Our material and labor costs us money and it must be paid regularly every week. If you will pay us we can do this, without the least inconvenience. Come and see us.

The Phrenological Journal.—This is one of the very few Magazines which are published at the present day for the radical benefit of readers,—is represented on our table by its November number. The contents should interest every live member of our community. The following are particularly interesting. James McCosh, President of Princeton College; A Man among Men; Spiritual Presence; The Educated Man in American Society; Alex'r H. Stephens; Thoughts on Phrenology; The Tagals and Visayans; Healthy or Diseased Children; "Fill up the (Mental) Measure;" Pre-historic Man; The Boa Constrictor; Consumption; His Recommendations, or the Boy who got a Situation; etc. The publisher offers the last three numbers of 1871 free as a premium to subscribers for 1872. Terms $3 a year Single numbers 30 cts. S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, N. Y.

Sedan Brevities.

We noticed in your last week's paper an inquiry about an egg merchant, who has recently left our place. We do not know whether he has gone to New York or elsewhere, but presume he has gone in search of the great natural orator, who ran away last spring, during the night, leaving an odd boot unpaid.

Be Careful.—Several of our farmers south of town complain that the woods have been set on fire very carelessly, by hunters from this place, with gun wads. In several instances a fire has originated in this way, and a great deal of trouble has been necessary to extinguish it. Be careful, gentlemen. Our farmers have lost enough in this county from this source already. If this cannot be avoided, stay at home. We doubt whether squirrels are good anyhow, until it rains. We wouldn't eat 'em unless they were soaked in water first!

The three prisoners in the county jail at Albion, broke out of the old coop last Friday evening, and took a little recreation by leisurely surveying the surrounding country. Two of the parties were overtaken just as they were coming into this city, one with a goose swung over his shoulder, indicating that everything was lovely and the goose hung high. The third was captured in Goshen, and the trio were returned to their old quarters in the Gross Bar Exchange.—Kendallville Standard.

Fire at Waterloo.—John Hamil's house, just east of the Eagle Hotel caught fire last Thursday noon, and was only saved by great exertion. The tank at Winslow's proved to be too far off in this case to be of great benefit, and the tank at Kinsey's gave out. By carrying water to the engine and to the building, it was at last saved. The roof and part of the siding were destroyed and the interior damaged by water. The Aetna paid a loss of $375 on the building.

Concert.—A concert will be given at the Court House, next Tuesday evening, and it is desired to make it a benefit for those who have suffered from losses by fire both at Chicago and elsewhere. As this place has not yet contributed anything to this object, it is hoped that they will do so in this way. The Concert will embrace some excellent selections, and our home talent will be greatly assisted by Prof. Yoost, the great German Pianist, and the famous Lang Brothers, vocalists, of Fort Wayne.

One of the most pleasant features connected with the convention of editors held in this place last week, was the supper given the fraternity by Mr. and Mrs. Milikan, of the Republican. Everything in connection with the supper was of the most enjoyable kind no less from the modest, unobtrusive manner in which the repast was presided over by the worthy host and his estimable lady, than by the excellent of the repast itself. Mr. Millikan and his family are worthy of a cordial greeting from our older citizens; and we shall be glad if they find their residence among us agreeable.—Plymouth Democrat.

Cheap Music.—It is seldom that cheapness is associated with merit and real value, but we must make an exception in favor of Petersons' Mucical Monthly. This valuable work comes to us regularly each month, overflowing with choice new Music,—some fifteen pieces in every number It is printed from 36 full-size music-plates nearly bound, and sells for the modest sum of 30 cents. The publisher offers to send six back numbers, containing from 80 to 90 peices of choice new music for $1. Address, J. L. Peters, 599 Broadway, N. Y. Think of it! 90 to 100 pieces of the best music (234 pages) for $1.

State Prison Life.—This is the title of a very interesting book, just published by C. F. Bent, at Cincinnati, and sold by subscription. It is written by a convict—one who has experienced the horrors of a prison life himself, and consequently knows how it is himself. The book will gain the attention of the most indifferent reader, and its graphic discriptions of life in the penitentiary of our own State, if read by all classes would certainly deter a great many from the commission of those crimes that make this institution a necessity. Our agreeable postmaster, S. L. Yindes, is agent for it, and those desiring to obtain a copy should call on him without delay.

A friend at our elbow, who resides a few miles in the country, says that his community is afflicted with a terrible disease in a triple form—self-importance, evil-disposed, and ignorance. This exists, to a certain extent, everywhere. In fact every body that don't take their county paper, may be put down as sufferers in this malady. It has caused more bloodshed since the fall of Adam than all other curses put together. Take your county paper and have peace.

Eel River Road.—There was to be a meeting held at the Court House, last Saturday, to see what could be done on the Eel River road between here and Butler. Mr. Collins did not arrive until about 3 o'clock and nothing definite was arrived at. A demand has been made for the payment of the capital stock, and from what we can learn, there seems to be no disposition upon the part of those who subscribed to pay it, unless there are good assurance given that the road will be completed to Butler. As it is at present no benefit will be derived by the stockholders of this place and vicinity, and we think they do right to refuse aid to any enterprise that does them no good.

Teachers' Institute.

The DeKalb County Teachers' Institute for 1871, will be held at Corunna, commencing on Monday, November 13th, and continuing five days. Ample preparations have been made by the citizens of Corunna and vicinity for the accommodation of all.

Those teachers wishing to obtain license should be present the entire week, as it will be necessary to examine in one or more branches each day, so that the work may be complete by Saturday noon, in time for return trains.

It is to be hoped that as many as possible, will avail themselves of this opportunity for improvement.

Upon each Dog, more than one, owned, kept or harbored by the same person,	$2.00

Notice is hereby given that I will attend at my office in Auburn, from the 15th of October until the third Monday in April, 1872, for the purpose of collecting the above Taxes.

On all taxes remaining unpaid on the third Monday in April, 1872, the law requires ten per cent. penalty, and six per cent. interest, besides cost of collection to be added. Each tax-payer will, therefore, find it to his or her advantage to call and pay their taxes before they become delinquent, as by so doing they will save themselves the penalty and costs, and me an unpleasant duty.

On the 15th of December I am required by law to advertise real estate for sale for all unpaid delinquencies for 1870 and former years, and all persons interested are requested to call and pay their delinquent tax before that date, and save expenses.

Tax-payers will please remember the Third Monday in April is the extent of time that can be given for receiving taxes without the penalty, as my settlement must be completed at a time fixed by law, and cannot be delayed a single day.

FRANCIS D. RYAN.

Treasurer's Office, Auburn. Oct. 14, '71. Treasurer of DeKalb Co., Ind.

Judge Dykeman, Vice President of the Logansport, Crawfordsville and Southwestern Railroad, and W. G. Nash, local editor of the Logansport Pharos, called at our office this morning. They come over the D. E. R. & I. R. R., to take a look at the country and make the acquaintance of our citizens. They expressed themselves highly pleased with our town and people.

The classes of St. Joseph North-western Synod, of the Reform Church of the United States, will meet in annual session in the St. Johns Reform Church, in the town of Auburn, October the 26th, at seven and a half o'clock in the evening, and will continue in session over Sabbath.—Services every evening.

W. B. Sandoe, Pastor.

It is amusing to see some of the Democratic papers rare and curse Senator Morton. They call him a thief, a swindler and a scoundrel, but, at last accounts the Senator was alive, and did'dt seem to have been injured in the least, by any of the villinous attacks of his enemies.—Fort Wayne Republican.

He may not have been injured by these "villainous attacks" but he's been fearfully injured by a "villainous" habit. For particulars, see Buchu.

Autumn.—It has come. One feels the breath of autumn in the air. Weird voices wake the night with autumal music. The tints of red and brown and yellow touch the forests with melancholy beauty There is the feeling—it gets into one's blood and life and thought—of a great dying all around you. And there is a dying. Forms that beat with life a while ago are dropping into decay and death.—The leaves of all the trees—the wonderful leaves so cunning and so curious in their structure—the flowers with all their hues and fragrances, the angels of nature—the grass of all the fields and meadows—all is dying. And then how the full great days of summer have grown less. The far-reaching morning and evening twilight is gone. The sun's rays slant down into the earth from a southern sky. The winds whisper elegies through the woodlands, and the stars look down on us from their distant spheres with sad and pitying eyes. Whose soul is not always touched by these things?

Railroad.—We publish to-day J. Dutton Steele's report of the Defiance line of the proposed Baltimore and Ohio Extension to Chicago, of facts elicited by him in the recent exploration and survey of that line. It will be seen that these facts are shown by this report to be as favorable as has ever been claimed by the advocates of this line. We think our committee has pursued a wise course in seeking the survey and exploration that has been made. It is true, it has been somewhat expensive, costing something over $4000; but it has been money well expended, and should we secure by it the road, as we think we are pretty likely to the money will be returned to us in stock which will be worth all it costs us, saying nothing of the other advantages to accrue. In this connection we will suggest whether it would not be discreet at least for all to bear their proper share of these expenses, and pay up, not leaving the whole risk and burden on others.

We understand a report, with an accompanying map, has also been made to the Napoleon line, and that Mr. Steele and his assistants are now engaged upon a map to contain both lines, for the Baltimore Company. That this will be accompanied with a report by him, giving them his views in full in refference to these lines. This report is expected to be ready by the first of November. We cannot look for a decision as to which line the Baltimore Company will adopt until they have before them this report.

But we have every reason to trust and hope that that decision, when made, will be for 'the best line that can be found.'—In this faith we have always been, and it is a continuing and abiding faith with us. Defiance Democrat.

A Great Publishing Enterprise.

Though it may, at first glance, seem almost incredulous, it is a fact that one of the largest publishing enterprises ever conceived of, is being carried on with the greatest success, by Messrs. E. C. Allen & Co., Augusta, Maine. It is held by them that they can conduct business more economically at that place than from a larger city, and surely these words are proved by the subscription prices of their publications, which are really thirty-three and one-third per cent. cheaper than those charged by other publishers for similar papers. Messrs. Allen & Co. have, from the very start, showed the greatest energy in starting and pushing their papers. It is only two years since they launched forth their first publication, The People's Literary Companion, and of the first number they printed three hundred thousand copies, for gratuitous circulation, and also spent nearly $100,000 in advertising it through newspapers. The result was immediate and grand, subscriptions flowing in through the agents, who were employed in all parts of the country, by the thousand, daily. The people every where seemed to appreciate the real merits of the paper and the low subscription price, and thousands, thinking they could not afford two literary papers, discontinued those that they were taking, and subscribed for The Champion. For two years The People's Literary Companion was continued as a monthly publication, and at one time attained the enormous circulation of eight hundred and fifty thousand copies. It is now published weekly, and is meeting with greater success than ever. Though its illustrations are finer and more tasty than than those of the three dollar weeklies, and its reading matter of the greatest interest in all its departments, the subscription price is only two dollars per year.—Messrs. Allen & Co. have just started a paper for young folks, called "Our Young Folks' Illustrated Paper." It is published semi-monthly—subscription price one dollar per year. It is very handsomely illustrated with appropriate engravings, and cannot fail to interest and benefit all the boys and girls, and the old folks, too, who have preserved young hearts in their breasts.

Messrs. Allen & Co. have just moved into their new publishing house, which they have built during the past summer. It is an elegant structure of brick, with granite and freestone trimmings. All the fittings inside are superb. The first story is used for storage room, and here may be seen, at any time, tons upon tons of paper, waiting for for the printing presses. The second story is the pressroom, where, on an average, one hundred thousand papers per day are printed and folded. The third story is the mailing department, and included in the furnishing of this room, are thirty tons of type, which is required for printing the names of subscribers on the papers. The names of subscribers are printed on the papers at the rate of sixty per minute, by wonderful little machines. The fourth and fifth stories are devoted to the compositors' department, and the business and private offices of the establishment, which are fitted up and furnished with the greatest elegance. The sixth story is devoted to an electrotype foundry and a department for folding pamphlets, circulars, &c. The entire building is warmed by steam, and pure water runs to every department and room. The cost of the building exceeds one hundred thousand dollars, and is a standing witness to the energy of the enterprising publishers. We congratulate Messrs. Allen & Co. on their great success, and as long as their liberal prices are continued, and their publications kept up to their present standard of merit, may their prosperity continue and constantly increase.—Maine Farmer.

MARRAGES.

STONER—KNOER—At the residence of the bride's parents, in Auburn, Ind., Thursday evening Oct. 19th, by Rev. A. W. Lamport, Henry M. Stoner, of Cedarville, and Mary E. Knoer, of this place.

BAYLESS—KNEELAND—On Sabbath evening Oct. 22d, at the residence of Nathan Tarney by Rev A. W. Lamport, Robert W. Bayless, and Mary Kneeland, all of this place.

Edgerton.—Our place has again received an attack of the railroad fever. Our citizens are now in hopes of the building of the Detroit & Eel River Railway through this place. A better time to canvass for a road could not be had. The grain depot at this station has been closed up nearly half of the time since the first of September, necessitated by the want of transportation facilities, and large quantities of produce, that would have been marketed here, have sought the Wabash and Saginaw roads; farmers having to haul further and take less prices than they would have done, had our shipping facilities been adequate for the demands of this section of the country. Fifty cars for produce are now wanted at this station for immediate use. The present shipping facilities were enough five years ago, but if our farmers would realize good prices and cheap rates of transportation, they must see that we need another outlet. This section of the country is improving very fast, and it can better support two roads now than it did one six years ago.—Bryan Press.

E. R[illegible]HRADER & CO.

The winter travel of the Kamtchadals is accomplished entirely upon dog-sledges and in no other pursuit of their lives do they spend more time, and exhibit their native skill and ingenuity to better advantage. They may even be said to have made dogs [illegible] in the first place; for the present Liberian animal is nothing more than a half domesticated Arctic wolf and still retains all his wolfish instincts and peculiarities. There, is, probbly,no more hardy, enduring animal in the world. You can compel him to sleep out in the snow in a temperature of 70 degrees below zero, drive him with heavy loads until his feet crack open and [illegible] the snow with blood, or starve him until he eats harness, but his strength and his spirit seem alike unconquerable. I have traveled with a team of nine dogs more than a hundred miles in a day and night, and have frequently worked them hard for forty-eight hours without being able to give them a particle of food. In general, they are fed once a day, their allowance being a single dried fish weighing, perhaps, a pound and a half, or two pounds. This is given to them at night, so that they begin another day's work with empty stomachs.

The sledge to which they are harnessed is about ten feet in length and two in width, made of [illegible] and combines, to a surprising degree, the two most desirable qualities of strength and lightness. It is simply a skeleton framework, fastened together with lashings of dried sealskin, and mounted on broad, curved runners. No iron whatever is used in its construction, and it does not weigh more than twenty pounds, and endures the severest shocks of rough mountain travel. The number of dogs harnessed to this sledge varies from seven to fifteen, according to the nature of the country to be traversed, and the weight of the load.— Under favorable circumstances, eleven dogs will make from forty to fifty miles a day, with a man and a load of four hundred pounds. They are harnessed to the sledge in successive couples, by a long central thong of seal-skin, to which each individual dog is attached by a collar and a short trace. They are guided and controlled entirely by the voice, and by a lead dog who is especially trained for the purpose. The driver carries no whip but has instead a thick stick about four feet in length, and two inches in diameter, called 'oerstel.' This is armed at one end with a long iron spike, and is used to stop the speed of the sledge in descending hills and to stop the dogs when they leave the road, as they frequently do, in pursuit of reindeer and foxes. The spiked end is then thrust down in front of one of the knees or uprights of the runners, and dragged in that position through the snow the other end being firmly held by the driver. It is a powerful lever, and when skilfully used, breaks up a sledge very promptly and effectively.

Miscellaneous Items.

A Savannah man was cured of rheumatism by the active movements he made to get out of way of a mad steer.

A savings bank in New Bedford, Mass., holds deposits to the amount of six million dollars—a sum larger than the aggregate banking capital of the city.

The Pittsfield (Mass.) Times says that, fifty years ago, a man David Hilliard disappeared from that town, and no trace of him could be found. A few days ago he returned. He had been in Maine, and had never seen a railroad until within a year. He left a little girl but she is now a grand mother.

A full-bearded young grandfather recently had his hirsute appendage shaved off, showing a clean face for the first time for a number of years. At the dinner table his three year old granddaughter noticed it, Gazed long with wondering eye, and finally exclaimed: 'Grandfather, whose head you got on?'

When the Emperors of Germany and Austria met at Wels, Francis Joseph introduced to William I. his adjutant, a Hungarian count with only one arm.—'Where did you lose your arm, count?' asked the German emperor. 'At Sadowa, your majesty,' replied the count, 'at the charge of your cavalry which you led yourself.' This reply affected the emperor so much that he took the iron cross from his breast and attached it to that of the count.

Mr Morris Philips writes to the Home Journal from Paris; 'Those who go to Paris with the idea they can live cheaply will be sadly mistaken. Before the war this may have been true; but a change has taken place. War is a costly game, and the looser must pay the price. To help pay the Prussian demand everything has been taxed—provisions with other commodities; per consequence, hotel charges are high. True, a good dinner table d'hote, is served with wine for five [illegible] is reasonable, but attendance is charged separately, as are candles; and when the [illegible] gets his bill, he is amazed [illegible] items and extras he never before dreamed of.'

A Boston gentleman, traveling in Europe, had his watch stolen from him in Vienna, and offered a reward equal to fifty [illegible]. The watch did not appear, and when returning toward America, he left his name and address and the number of his watch. A year has since gone, and [illegible] ever seeing it, [illegible] his watch came to him in Boston, the only charge upon it being one dollar and fifty cents for the express charges from New York. The thief had been arrested in Vienna, the watch found upon him, and forwarded by the city government of Vienna free of charge to New York. This shows a desire upon the part of the authorities there to secure the good wishes of travelers, to say the least.

Too Lucky.—'Hans, where you get that knife?'

'I finds him, fader.'

'No, Hans; I believes you tells one big falsehood.'

'No, fader, dat is true; I is the luckiest boy you never see.'

'Vell, Hans, I has to vip you.'

'Not 'cause I steals, fader?'

'No, Hans, I vip you 'cause you so very lucky.'

Sixty-four new cases of small-pox, five deaths, were reported in Lowell, Mass., last week.

CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Michigan Fires.

The following brief recital in relation to the frightful work of fires of Michigan, from the pen of a correspondent of the Cleveland Leader, is more suggestive of misery and wretchedness, if possible, than that of the burned squares of business blocks:

'Beginning below Port Austin, Huron county. Grindstone City, a place of three hundred inhabitants, is half destroyed; then followed New River, three buildings burned; Huron City, five hundred inhabitants, totally destroyed; Port Hope, six hundred inhabitants, half gone; Forest Bay, two hundred inhabitants, every house gone; Sandbeach, four hundred inhabitants, all destroyed; Centre Hope, one hundred and fifty inhabitants, everything all gone; Rock Falls, three hundred inhabitants, half of the town burned; Elm Creek one hundred and fifty inhabitants, totally destroyed; White Rock, six hundred inhabitants, every house consumed; Verona Mills, three hundred inhabitants, every house in the place gone except the minister's. Thus we e the little villages of this region scourged. The destruction in the country was proportionately great, the farming townships of Sheridan, Bingham, Paris, Verona, Sherman and Sandbeach were traversed by the flames, which lapped up everything in the shape of houses and barns, stock, and farming implement etc.'

FIVE-AND-TWENTY YEARS.

Sitting upon our cottage stoop,
By autumn maples shaded,
I call the gentle visions up
That time had nearly faded.
The evening light comes from the west,
In streams of golden glory;
So fold your head, love, on my breast,
And hear my olden story.

'Tis five-and-twenty years, my dear,
Since hearts and hands together,
We launch'd our bark, the ocean clear
And all serene the weather,
With simple trust in Providence,
We set the sails upon her;
My fortune, hope and common sense,
Your dowry, love and honor.

For five-and-twenty years, my dear,
The billows lightly skimming,
One day the skies grew murk and drear,
Our eyes and spirits dimming.
How dark that night frown'd overhead,
When hope forsaw no morrow,
And we beside our firstling dead
Drank our first cup of sorrow.

'Tis five-and-twenty years, my dear,
Yet music's in our dwelling,
The children's prattle that we hear
About our hearthstone swelling,
God bless them all, the loving band
So glad to call you mother;
With heart to heart and hand to hand
Clinging to one another.

Through five-and-twenty years, my dear,
Whene'er my arm was weary,
And scarce I knew the way to steer,
Your words were ever cheery.
When mid the tempest and the night,
With courage sorely shrinking,
Then on our way God gave us light
That kept our faith from sinking.

'Tis five-and-twenty years, my dear,
Slight change in you revealing;
But o'er my brow—you see them here—
The silver hairs are stealing.
Yet let them come, while still thy breast
Retains the fond emotion
That nerved my arm when first we prest
Our way out on life's ocean.

Destruction of Peshtigo.

Direct accounts from Peshtigo inform us that the great number of lives lost there occured thus:

"Fire had been raging around the village some days before; had become subdued, and the people felt secure; when on Sunday night, all of a sudden, when the wind was blowing a tornado, it again broke out from the fires of the camps of the hands at work on the railroad, and immediately overwhelmed the village, inmates of houses having only time to escape as they rose from their beds. The village could not have contained more than five or six hundred or a thousand at the most, of residents; but it is estimated that one thousand transient men were in the place—lumbermen mainly. The river runs directly through the village and there was but one beside. The people in the main portion of the village were driven by the rushing flames directly towards the river, and, horrible to contemplate, cattle had preceded them and blockaded up the passage to the bridge; consequently human beings had to take the water, when a large portion was either burned to death or drowned.

One man who escaped reports that he sank his entire body in the water, occasionally raising a portion of his head to get breath, and that he saw several women perish right along side of him. When rescued his eyes were completely blind, but are now partially restored.

Some 150 men, finding escape cut off, took to a large barn belonging to the Peshtigo Company, and they were burned up in it.

A lady had her hair and one side of her face burt to a crisp. She says there was no smoke from the burning buildings, but it was one complete glare of glowing blaze awful to behold. Not a vestige of anything wooden was left of the place. Those that came through have scattered through out the State wherever they have friends. The wounded have been moved to Oconto mainly, as being the nearest village, which is south of Peshtigo. The villages of Marinette and Menomonee, six miles north, being themselves partly on fire, offered no chance for help or protection to the sufferers from that quarter.

All the towns north of Fond du Lac to Green Bay have responded nobly to the imploring call for help.

Menomonee has suffered to a considerable extent, but how much cannot be told at once.

On Sunday night about 7 o'clock, a fire broke out in the south part of the Belgian settlement at Brussels, Door county, destroying 180 houses, and leaving nothing of the large and flourishing settlement but five houses. Nine persons are missing; they are supposed to have perished.

Two hundred people are camping on their land, and seem struck dumb by the great losses. Their houses, barns, implements of farming, household furniture and cattle are burned and destroyed. The roads are filled with carcasses of horses cattle, sheep and hogs, dying from the smoke and heat.

The inhabitants, during the conflagration, only saved their lives by throwing themselves upon the ground and covering their heads. The most pitiable state of things exists all through the district visited by the fire, and hunger and starvation are staring the wretched inhabitants in the face.

A dispatch says three hundred and twenty-five bodies had been found and buried at Peshtigo up to last night.

Let Us Rebuild the Temple.

[From the Fort Wayne Republican]

Almost every Mason in the West knows something about Masonic Temple of Chicago. Years ago it was considered one of the finest structures of its kind in the North west, but the few and elegant blocks in later days seem to dwarf its fine proportions by comparison with the more costly edifices surrounding it. However, it may have appeared externally, none who have ever visited it can forget the courteous receptions, the warm greetings, the affectionate welcomes, the cheerful words and pleasant hours spent in the hallowed halls of the Temple, among the beloved brethern who dwelt there together in unity. Where now is the Temple, with its sacred relics? It lies a heap of rubbish—of stone and mortar—a black and desolate ruin. The brothers who laid aside the cares of the outside world, and went there to learn to subdue their passions, to dwell together in harmony, to cultivate fraternal love and kindness, to open their hearts and hands in charity to those in distress, and to draw nearer to the Grand Master of the Universe, and praise Him with songs of praise—where are they now? Scattered, groping along the highways and brick-strewn streets of the ruined city, bowing in submission to the stroke, and contented in their adversity if they can procure the necessities of life, and the common comforts of home for their wives and children.

These thoughts are suggested as we ask how can we brighten the skies for our brothers? How can we testify our appreciation and sorrow at their great calamity? Let us rebuild the temple! Our unfortunate brothers cannot do it themselves; let us do it for them. The workman are plenty, and the Grand Master will smile upon the craftsmen who assist in polishing the rough ashess for a place in a new and magnificent temple.

We make this proposition with all the zeal and earnestness of our heart, and with a confidence that cannot be shaken. We call upon every Masonic publication in the country to unite in the work. Let every Lodge in the land contribute its mite, and prepare a stone suitably inscribed to place within its walls. There are in the United States about 500,000 Masons We can, 'without injury, to ourselves or families," each contribute $1. If this is done, our brothers in Chicago can rear an edifice that will be the pride of the whole country, and that will reflect credit upon our noble and glorious order throughout the world.

Will Grand Master Rice open the ball and promulgate an official address to the craft in his jurisdiction, so that Indiana may be the first to help in this great and good work.

Let the movement rise!

Heroism and Cruelty.

A most touching instance of heroism, and one of the most atrocious acts of cruelty, the truth of which is vouched for by the most respectable authority, occured during the Columbia struggle for independence.

The Spanish General Morrillo, the most blood thirsty and treacherous tool of the Spanish King, was created Count of Carthagena and Marquis de la Peoria for services which rather entitled him to the butcher or hangman. While seated in his tent one day, he saw a young boy before him in tears. The chief demanded of him for what purpose he was there.

The child replied that he come to beg the life of his father, then a prisoner in Morrillo's camp.

'What can you do to save your father?' asked the General.

'I can do but little, but what I can shall be done.'

Morrillo seized the little fellow's ear and said:

'Would you suffer your ear to be taken off to procure the release of your father?'

'I certainly would,' was the undaunted reply.

A soldier was accordingly called and ordered to cut off the ear with a single stroke of the knife.

The boy wept, but did not resist while the barbarous order was being executed.

'Would you lose your other ear rather than fail in you purpose?' was the next question.

'I have suffered much, but for my father I can still suffer,' was the ready answer of the boy.

The other ear was taken off by piecemeal without flinching on the part of the noble boy,

'And now, go!' exclaimed Morrillo, untouched by his sublime courage: 'The father of such a son must die.'

In the presence of his agonized and vainly suffering son, the patriot was executed.

HOW MONEY IS MADE BY FARMING.—Much labor is done on farms that is not farming in its right sense By such labor no money is ever made. A man may support himself and family keep out of dept, and have a few dollars in his pocket by practicing the most stringent economy. If he is otherwise than industrious and sober, he is on the down grade with loose baker and the end is a profession equal study mental capacity and intelligence directed labor to command success in it. The principles which underlie the practice of the true farmer must be well understood, and and a steady, consistent course of operations must be followed. Having thoroughly learned the nature of the soil he posesses, and capacity of the soil he posesses, and chosen the rotation most suitable and the most profitably kept on it, he does not swerve from his chosen course, but in good markets and bad raises his reglar crops, and keeps his hand in regularly increasing fertility. No special cry tempts or affrights him. He does not talk daily this season of crops the next, but doubtless, if any particular product be in demand and being a good price he has some of it to sell and reaps his share of the advantage. He saves as much money as some men make by care and economy in purchasing and preserving tools, seed manures and machines, and his business habits and constant readiness for all occasions give him reasonable security against the effects of adverse seasons and bad weather. Always prepared he is never too late and always calm he is never too soon, and thus, 'taking Time by the forelock,' he has the stern old tyrant at his command, and turns him at his will. He has no losses and his gains are steady.

The coming Man—Jack Frost.

"RUNNING WILD."

The train drew up to the station with a rattle, and jar, and the hissing of steam. It was the pay-train.

Workmen came pouring out of the shops and depots, and laborers from the track hurried up to the car, all eager for their monthly wages; while troops of urchins flocked up to the engine, looking it over for the hundreth time, perhaps, yet loosing none of their admiration for their favorite engine, the Hercules.

Aleck Carson, the engineer, stepped down from the cab, oil can in hand, and went forward to oil his engine. He glanced casually up the street, but immediately took a second look at the trim, graceful figure of a young lady who was coming toward him.

'Carrie Davis!' he exclaimed in pleased surprise. 'I wonder why she is here alone. I hope she does not want to go back with us, for——'

He did not utter the reason, but, after casting an uneasy look at the car, as if the danger might be there, he went on with his oiling. He did not forget Carrie, however, and when she came tripping across the street, her face all smiles at the thought of the surprise she would give the great, brave, cool-headed engineer, Aleck Carson, he looked up in the quietest way, and said:

'Good morning, Carrie.'

'Now that is too bad!' exclaimed Carrie, with a look of smiling vexation. I was going to surprise you, and you meet me as if you knew all the time that I was coming.'

'So I did,' replied Aleck, putting a few drops of oil on the eccentrics. 'I saw you when I first got out of the cap. When did you come up?'

'On the morning train; and I want to go back with you. I have been hurrying so to get ready. When do you start?'

Aleck pulled out his watch.

'We cannot leave here until the freight comes in, Carrie. She is due in twenty minutes. But hadn't you better wait for the express? We are running wild, you know, and you will not gain over two hours time.'

'Oh, I can't wait two whole hours!' said Carrie. 'I am going back on this train—that is, if I can.'

A look of annoyance passed over Aleck's face, but he replied pleasantly enough:

'I don't suppose there will be any objection; yet I do wish you would stop over for the express.'

Fearing that he had said too much, Aleck now went around to the other side of his engine, without waiting for a reply from Carrie. She was about to follow him when Tom Emmons, the conductor, came out of the car.

Carrie smiled to herself.

'Aleck need not be so jealous', she thought. 'I'm not bound to him yet. And I never shall be, if he can't trust me.'

But for all this, when Emmons asked her if she was going down with them, she waited for Aleck to speak. But Aleck did not speak, and she answered:

'I want to, Mr. Emmons. I suppose I can ride on the engine?'

'Do not think of it, Miss Davis,' said Emmons. Let me help you into the car.'

And Aleck Carson, on the other side of the Hercules, heard all. A cloud passed over his face, but it was one of pain rather than anger.

'I wish she hadn't,' he said to himself. 'Emmons was right to thank him; but I wish Carrie had waited.'

He finished his oiling and went back to the cab.

'Ten minutes, Johnny,' he said to the fireman, as he handed the oil can up to him. 'I'll step back into the coach, and I guess you had better open your door. Steam is pretty well up now.'

Emmons was chatting gaily with Carrie; but when Aleck entered, he said, rather brusquely:

'All ready, Carson, go ahead!'

Aleck looked at his watch to make sure that he was right.

'Do you mean to go ahead?' he asked, in some surprise.

'Yes; go ahead!' said Emmons, quite sharply.

There was several of the head men of the road in the car, and Aleck lookde toward them for instructions, well knowing the hazard of starting out on another train's time. They took no notice of his look, however.

'Of course, you know that we are running wild!' he said to Emmons, loud enough for all to hear.

'I know my business,' replied Emmons. 'Go ahead, I say!'

Again Aleck looked back to the other end of the car, but more particularly to Mr. Harvey, the manager of the road. That gentleman said nothing, and once more Aleck turned to Emmons.

'Go ahead!' screamed Emmons, white with rage. 'And give her all the steam you've got. If you are too much of a coward——'

'Stop!' said Aleck, his face pale and determined. 'If you say go a head, I will go, if I strip my engine to strings; but it is the last time you can ever run the train I am coupled with.'

Aleck now turned to Carrie.

'You must not go on this train,' said he. 'Come.'

And before Carrie had time to exercise a will of her own she bent to his stronger one, and went out of the car with him.

'Good bye, Carrie, if I never see you again,' said Aleck, as he turned away to his engine.

He sprang into the cab, and giving the bell-cord one pull he open the throttle, and the engine started.

'I'm afraid there's death to some of us, Johnny,' said he glancing back to where Carrie stood watching the train out of sight. 'The freight is due in four minutes, and we shall meet it But Emmons ordered us out and we must go.'

On sped the noble engine, but Aleck was not using half the steam.

'Help me to keep a lookout, Johnny,' he said to his fireman. 'If we are cautious, it may amount to nothing more than a run back to the station. If we can pass the curve, we can see miles—God have mercy!'

The exclamation was caused by the sight of the approaching freight train. There was a short, sharp whistle from each engine, an instantaneous closing of two throttles; then followed a grinding crash and a shock which made the very ground tremble. Then, for one brief moment, an awful stillness, broken at last by the rushing steam—by the cries and shouts of men, as they crawled from beneath the debris of the wrecked trains, and by the groans of others less fortunate.

* * * * *

Carrie Davis watched the train out of sight, and then went into a waiting room to remain until the express arrived. Aleck's last words—Good bye, Carrie, if I never meet you again—had fallen with crushing weight upon her ears. A foreboding of some terrible danger to Aleck too possession of her, and she paced uneasily up and down the waiting room, going every moment to the window and looking down the track. After a half hour of this suspense, she saw a man running toward the depot She recognized Aleck's fireman, Johnny She threw up the window just in time to speak to him.

'Aleck—what of Aleck?' she cried.

'I can't tell—I don't know!' answered, Johnny, without stopping. 'Both trains are stove to slivers!'

Down dropped the heavy window, and down dropped Carrie into a seat; but she rallied instantly, and calmly witnessed the prearations for relief to the unfortunate men.

Another hour of the most horrible suspense and the relief train came back.

One by one the men filed out of the two coaches, some of them slightly bruised, but all of them wearing a cheerful aspect, that ought to have given Carrie hope. But it did not. She was looking for Aleck, and saw nothing, only that he was not there.

'Was any one killed?' she timidly asked, yet dreading to be answered.

'No one, thank God!' was the answer. 'But one man was seriously hurt.'

'His name?' she asked, breathlessly.

'I'm sure I cannot say,' the man replied. 'He was the engineer, or—mercy, she has fainted.'

The men caught her before she fell, and carried her into the depot.

Carrie lay in the swoon a long time; but she awoke to happiness for Aleck stood over her.

'Oh, Aleck! are you safe?' she exclaimed. 'They told me you was seriously injured.'

'It was Emmons,' replied Aleck.—'He will lose an arm, poor fellow.'

Worse than that,' said Mr. Harvey the manger who stood dear. 'He will lose a situation and a reputation. And I must beg your pardon, Aleck, for not heeding your silent appeal to me. I put implicit trust in Emmons, or I should have consulted the timecard. I exonerate you from all blame and give you a month's vacation with full pay.'

He did more that. When a few weeks later, there was a quiet wedding at Carrie Davis' home, and Aleck and Carrie were the bridegroom and bride, Mr. Harvey, the manager, in behalf of the employees of the road presented to Aleck the deed of a little nest of a cottage, furnished throughout prefacing the gift with a short speech in which he expressed a hope that every 'wild run' would terminate as happily as the last.

Aleck still runs an engine, and he has carried many 'wild' trains through without an accident; but carries a written order, which is renewed monthly. It reads: 'Obey no order which you know is wrong.' It is signed by the highest authority of the company, and is never questioned.

AUBURN, IND., NOV. 2, 1871

Death of Ewing.—Hon. Thomas Ewing, of Ohio who has been prominently before the public for nearly the last half century, died at his home in Lancaster, on last Thursday.

Grant is once more greatly exercised about the Ku Klux, and is beginning to take millitary possession of the South. He no doubt calculates that that result of the recent elections warrents him in throwing off his disguise and assuming a dictatorship.

The Washington Patriot. says the only thing "constitutional" about this Aministration is a sort of kleptmoania or "constitutional" tendency toward defalcation, swindling and embezzelment—a sort of "moral insanity" that seems to have assumed an epidemic from among Republican office-holders.

The New York Tribune furnishes a table showing the real estate purchases of Tweed and others, and how rich they have become in a few years. Now let it show how Grant has emerged from poverty to affluence in a few years, and give us a list of his transactions, if it wishes to be considered consistent.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says General Noyes is elected Governor of Ohio by about 20,000 majority. The vote was light, the Democratic vote falling short some 20,000 of that given for Judge Thurman. The failure to bring out the Democratic vote was not confined to particular localities, but extended nearly over the entire State.

Hon. Joshua Vansant, the Democratic candidate, was elected Mayor of Baltimore at the election held last week, by a sweeping majority. A large number of colored men voted, no objection being made to their votes or difficulty put in the way of their approaching the polls. The Councilmen elected comprise the entire Democratic Conservative ticket except one member of the first branch elected over a member of the last Council.

One disaster always follows another. No sooner do we read of the fires at Chicago destroying hundreds of lives, hundreds of millions of property, and making more than a hundred thousand peope homeless and penniless, than the news comes that other great fires have burned to death two thousand seven hundred people in Wisconsin and Michigan, and destroying unreckoned millions of dollars of personal property.

The Albany Argus says: "Our information from different parts of the State confirms the assurance given by Democratic State Committee that the aspect of affairs is, in the highest degree, encouraging to the Democratic cause. The Rochester Convention at once elevated and united the party. The platform pledged it to great measures of reform. The nominantions were, without exception, unanimous. There is hardly a murmur of dissent heard against them.'

Democrats denounce corruption where-ever found, whether in the Federal Administration affecting the whole people, or in the City of New York, affecting a locality. The Republicans hug to their bosoms with peculiar tender ness such National corruptionists as Cameron, Murphy, Butler, and the like, and then boast that they "array themselves agiast the profligacy and corruption of Tammany Hall!" What hypocrisy!

When the war commenced, U. S. Grant was as poor as a snake. He is now said to be worth a million dollars. His salary as General in the army was way $7,500 per year. The expenses of a President cannot fall short of him salary. How did he become worth a million? Could it have been done honestly and fairly? Is not the fortune he possesses really that which honestly belongs to the people? Out upon such a man to execute laws—one who is of its one worst transgressors.

One of the most wonderful flights of science is the projected tunnel under the English Channel, from Dover to Calais. This is declared by the engineers to be entirely practicable, at no greater expense than $50,000 000. It is reported that the French Government has chartered a company that will enter upon the gigantic enterprise and complete it in four years. When done, the journey from France to England will take but half an hour, and so save the very disagreeable trip of the present Cannel passage.

Two politicians—one a Locofoco and the other a Black Republican—were engaged last night in an animated conversation over the situation of their respective parties. "Ha! ha!" said the Black Republican. "Hoo! hoo!" said the Locofoco. "Look at Ohio and Pennsylvania," said the Black Republican. This caused the Locofoco to cast his eyes towards a locality that has a greater fire-works than ever known in Chicago, and then, straightening himself up to the full stature of injured manhood, exclaimed, "Well, who cares for Ohio and Pennsylvania, haven't we got Texas?" Talley one for the Locofoco. Both passed around an obscure corner into a gentle saloon and liquidised their grief.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

The Ohio Election.

The majority for Noyes for Governor will be about 20,500; last year the Radical majority was 17,194. The Columbus Statesman in commenting upon the result, remarks:

The total vote on Governor will be 457,555, against 429,087 last year. Thus the Republicans have an increase in their majority of 3,172 in a total vote increased by 28,468. More than half this increase in the Republican majority (3,314) was in Cuyahoga county, where a powerful office-holding pressure was brought to bear. Taking the increased vote into consideration, the Republicans can not be said to have made a substantial gain in the State.

While the Democratic party (as well as the others) has increased its vote over that of 1870, its strength was not brought out. Had the Democratic party polled, at the late election, as large a vote as they did for Judge Thurman in 1867, Colonel McCook would have been elected Governor, and the Legislature would have been Democratic. Judge Thurman received 240,622 votes, about three thousand more than General Noyes' probable vote this year.

This election can by no means be regarded as deciding the politics of Ohio for next year, when the great Presidential contest comes on, for while there are between 550,000 and 560,000 voters in the State, only 457,555 ballots were deposited this year. This great reserve body of voters decides the votes next year for President, and the action of the Democratic party at its National and State Conventions will decide whether it will gravitate towards the Democracy or the administration party.

Considering the unforseen difficulties encountered in the canvass, the Democratic organization has no cause to be discouraged. Under the circumstances, we have done well; certainly better than last year. The great efforts of the Republicans to carry doubtful districts, the money extorted from clerks and lavishly contributed, the outlay of John Sherman, and illegal voting among the negroes, furnish the explanation why the majority for Noyes is larger than that for Sherwood.

The Mormons.

The N. Y. Herald has a special dispatch from Salt Lake, which says the great Mormon leader threatens that, in case there be any more convictions of Mormons by the United States authorties, the Saints will burn their property and make another exodus. Howsoever the fenatics may be regarded on the score of morality they certainly are no fools, as they would show them-selves to be by acting as above suggested. Brigham Young, sharp and shrewd as he is, seems not to be aware, that he and his followers are in altogether a different situation now then when they made their exodus form Nau voo thirty years ago. A generation of children has sprung up among them since that time, each one. no doubt, claiming some share in the property of his parents and having a common interest in saving it from destruction. Opposition to burning and destroying many naturally be expected from this quarter. Moreover, if the Mormons determine to make another exodus, where will they go? There are not may more wildernesses to conquer on this Continent; for since the Saints first settled in Utah the railroad and telegraph have brought all sections of our county together, and made, as it were, one family of the whole American people. One railroad already crosses the Continent; others are under way, and before many years a grand longitudinal railway well constitute the iron back bone of the Continent from Hudson Bay to the Isthmus of Darien. The Mormons will, therefore, find themselves hemmed in on all sides by the vast improvement of the age, and finally be oblidged to sucumb or be dispersed like the lost tribes of Israel. The Mormons cannot afford to make another exodus. Their grown up children, to say nothing of their many wives will not consent to it, and none but a few old superannuated elders, who are of no particular use anywhere, will form the grand caravan that will start for the new Promised Land. Affairs look peculiar in Utah. If it be the determination of the Government to abolish Polygamy, and it succeeds in the movement, what is to be done with the odd wives and the multitude of polygamous children? And then, who will be responsible for the bloody domestic broils, when the time comes for each Mormon to select from a number of wives, one only to share the joys and sorrows of his bosom Ugh!—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

FIRE EVERYWHERE.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle of the 25th inst., notes the fearful conflagration in the forests of Western New York, as follows:

"The heavens, yesterday, were hung in black. The sun was obscured by smoke which grew more palpable as the day advanced, and was strong enough to be apparent to the sense of smell. This state of the atmosphere prepared everyone for the news that soon came that extensive forest fires were raging in the counties about us. Many of these fires had been smouldering for days in swamps and clearings without exciting remark or causing apprehensions But on Sunday a gale sprang up which fanned the flames into extensive conflagrations, destroying acres of woodland, and in some places barns and dwellings.

"The nearest point to this city from which fire was reported yesterday is Gates. Our reporter visited this locality and ascertained the position of affairs. In several places of woods fires have been raging for the past week or two. They were simply such as are common during the dry season along the line of the railroads. The extreme parched condition of the woods and fields at this time make such fires extremely dangerously, and the dreadful result in Michigan and Wisconsin have been sufficient warning for people against the dangerous element. On last Sunday a piece of woods belonging to a farmer in the above named town caught fire and spread very rapidly, every inch of ground over which it passed furnishing fuel for the flames. The prospect was alarming, and the farmer with his family had to turn out and work for some time before the progress of the flames could be stayed. McArdless swamp. which is about fifteen or twenty acres in extent, covered with a second growth of timber and laying on the east side of the Central railroad track, is on fire in three or four places The bed of the swamp is peat or muck, which had become powder dry and which burns as readily as charcoal. This fire now covers nearly an acre of this swamp, the roots of the trees are burning and some have already fallen. A small wind would soon fan the smouldering embers into flames and sweep the swamp of its timber in a short time, and the lands adjacent would no doubt suffer greatly by such an event. An effort had been made to keep the fire from spreading by digging a trench about fifteen inches wide and a foot and a half deep, around the portion of the swamp which is on fire. Such a trench would avail but little if a gust of wind strong enough to carry a few sparks a half dozen yards should arise. Trees bordering on the railroad embankment and which are liable to fall on the telegraph wires when their roots were destroyed, were chopped down.

"There is a difference of opinion among the people in this locality about the vigilance of the railroad employes in respect to fires along the tract. Some assest that the railroad men are watchful and do the utmost to extinguish all fires they discover, while the contrary is asserted by others.

"The next point from which fire is reported is in the large cedar swamps owned by Dennis Church on the town line between Riga and Chili. Twelve acres of the swamp were burned all over yesterday and the flames threatened to sweep over the whole of the track.

"In the town of Parma, the damage done is far more serious. The fire broke out Thursday in a fifty acre wood lot not far from Parma Centre, and Sunday extended to the heavy woods of the Leonard and Grank Brush: On the lake shore and woods and swamps were also on fire. The woods of Messrs. Fowler & McCabe near the gulf mills, north of the ridge also took fire on Sunday.

"Fires have raged in the woods of the town of Hamlin since Thursday. on the Barto tract, Mr. Chase's woods and in the centre of the town, those of Messrs. Madden and Sigler were destroyed. Towards the lake the woods of Peter Barrett and William Thayer have also been burned over. The people have worked for days in the attempt to stop the spread of the flames. In Sweeden, considerable forest fires are also reported. The woods of Messrs. White, and the black ash swamp of Mr. Borrichave suffered."

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

As promised, we this day publish the report of J. Dutton Steele to the Defiance line, of facts elicited in his recent exploration and survey of this line. The accompanying map. about ten feet in length, exhibiting the line and country on either side of it, is put up in the Defiance County Bank, where any person wishing, may see the name.

We understand Napoleon also, has a map and report from Mr. Steele; and that his map and report for the Baltimore company, will be ready about the first of November. We do not expect the announcement of a decision as to which line wins, until a reasonable time after this last name report is made; but we frankly admit that we except to win.

Many have been much puzzled at the apparent anxiety of Napoleon to secure another road immediately alongside of their Mansfield and Coldwater, to run in constant competition, and thus spoil the value of stock. It is said, the head of their committee, well known as one of the shrewdest financiers, ever ready to have a hand where it pays, fearing lest he could not have a chance, has sought the incurring of the heavy expense of the survey of their line, that they may get stock for it in ours at par. It is a most shrewd move, the gist of which, consists in the clear perception of two prominent facts, for which we give that gentleman full credit.

1st. That we have the best possible line to connect Chicago with Northern and Central Ohio, and the leading cities of the Atlantic

2d. That it is to be built upon by an able company, one that has "dutch pluck and honesty."

These facts, well comprehended by their committee, are enough to account for all the commotion and sweat of our spunky little rival. They justify the whole of it. If we were situated like her, we would feel so too; in as much as the period is to be very brief after this road is in operation, when every dollar of stock put in will be worth two.

It is not entirely from the immense though business that this is to come; the local traffic is to be very great. Ten North and South roads, west of Tiffin, now in operation, will at once feed it. Others will be added to rush fabulous treasures of business on our route; and the least in importance of these new roads, are not to be the two in process of construction from the cities of Toledo and Napoleon.

We congratulate our enterprising neighbors on their haste to connect themselves with our route, so they may with ourselves, have its enjoyment for an Eastern outlet. And whilst we congratulate, we will not forget to be grate ful for the continuous flow of business they will give us, which with others, is to make our R. R. stock the best in the United States of America.—Defiance Express.

A writer at Peshtigo mentions the case of a little girl, 12 years old, who was advised by many to desist from the attempt lest she herself should perish. She heeded them not, however, but by the most heroic efferts she succeeded in rescuing her little sister from the merciless flames. Her father, mother, brothers, and other sisters perished by the devouring element. And after the fire had abated somewhat, she worked her way back over hot ashes and burnin coals and dragged the dead bodies of her relatives out into an open space, and then stood watching their charred remains all day and though that long desolate night that followed. That is child heroism the like of which was never recorded.

Andersonville—Grant Responsible for Its Horrors.

A letter from Thomas [illegible] appears in the Albany Argus, which charges squarely home upon Ulysses S. Grant the responsibility for the horrors of Andersonville. The confederate commissioners of exchange of prisoners repeatedly urged the authorities at Washington to permit an exchange. But Grant refused to allow it. He testified that more lives were lost by Grant's telegrams, "than all the British soldiers killed in the wars of Napoleon," and "these lives were spent as a part of the system of attack upon the rebellion designed by the wisdom of the general-in-chief of the armies, to destroy it by depletion."

At an early day Grant forbade Butler to receive any more prisoners on exchange. Our poor boys in prison were characterized by Meredith as being "thousands of loathsome skeletons," and our commander refused to exchange them that they might live.

From the time Grant refused to exchange in April, 1864, Butler says he sought to accomplish an exchange. Butler said exchange; the rebel authorities said exchange; but Grant said no; there should be no exchange.

His policy was to let them starve as a measure to prevent the liberty of rebel prisoners in our own well-provisioned prisons. The final fatal order of Grant, which was a death warrant to thousands of our soldiers, was on the 18th of August, 1864, which closed the door of hope to all prisoners.

Our boys had become so reduced by starvation and filth as to be deemed ruined for future service, and therefore were cast beyond the pale of humanity in the estimation of an aspiring general, who considered them as dead, and they were deemed fit only to be left in the grave at Andersonville. We will let the telegram of Grant speak for itself.

"On the subject of exchange I differ from Gen. Hitchcock; it is hard on our men held in southern prisons not to exchange them, but it is humanity to those left in the ranks to fight our battles. Every man released on parole or otherwise, becomes an active soldier at once, either directly or indirectly. If we commence a system of exchange which liberates all prisoners taken, we will have to fight until the south is exterminated. If we hold those caught, they amount to [illegible] than dead men. At this particular time to release all rebel prisoners north would compromise our safety here.

"U. S. Grant, Lieut. Gen."

This inhuman order caused the death of at least 20,000 men. Butler puts the figures higher.

The Next General Assembly of Ohio.

The following appears to be the political complexion of the next General Assembly of Ohio: Senate—Democrats, 18; Republicans, 18. House of Representatives—Republican, 57; Democrats, 47; tie, 1. On joint ballot there will be a Republican majority of ten. If all the members had been Democrats form this county, the Legislatue would have been Democratic by two majority. If we had not lost the Democratic counties of Vinton, Belmont and Hardin, the Republicans in any event would have had but five majority. We lost several doubtful counties by close contests. such as Scioto and Highland, and it is safe to say that five hundred votes placed in particular counties would have given us the Legislature and a Democratic United States Senator. In any event, the contest will be interesting for Senator. If there are half a dozen Republicans who will stand out for some fair and independent Republican against John Sherman, he can be defeated.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Much in Brief—'The Alphabet..'

Burglar Killed.—A burglar tried his hand at robbing on an old man by the name of Stever, at Delphos, Ohio, last Sat urday night. He drew a revolver on the old man, and called for a match, when the old man opened his pocket knife, and going up to the robber, as if to give him the match, stabbed him. The robber clinched him but the old man kept up the stabbing. In the struggle which ensued, fortunately, robber had no opportunity to use his revolver. He at one time got the old man upon the table, but in this trying position he did not cease to use the knife, cutting here and there at random, one or two of the stabs reaching in the vicinity of the heart. From the severity of the cuts and loss of blood, the scoundrel grew faint and relaxed his hold, but the old gentleman, as stated at the inquest, 'applied the knife as long as he could hear the fellow grunt,' making short work of the miscreant, who a few minutes before, was so defiant in in brandishing a deadly weapon.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

J. Walker, Proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists & Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce Street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

CLOCKS.—Just received a new and entire assortment, at Abright's Jewelry store Main-st.

THE Lang Bros will positively appear at the Concert, next Tuesday evening, if the weather is at all favorable.

JEROME BROOKS was hung at Delphi, last Friday, for the murder of A. W. Slater at Logansport last April.

NOVEMBER.—The month wherein Thanksgiving proclamations do abound, and turkeys their quietus make.

THE citizens of the neighboring towns and the country, generally, should all attend the concert next Tuesday evening.

A BUCKET company is to be formed in Goshen, for service at fires. We ought to have one here.

THE Fort Wayne Paper Mills, owned by Freeman & Barnett, were destroyed by fire last Sunday morning. Loss 25,000.

THE Court House bell will ring at 7 o'clock precisely, at the opening of the doors to the Concert, next Tuesday evening.

THE BLESSED RAIN.—A bounteous, steady rain fell on Tuesday, from early morn 'till late at night, and its presence was refreshing, after so long a dry spell.

IF there were any smouldering fires in the woods previous to last Tuesday, it is hoped that the thorough rain on that day completely quenched them.

AN old farmer, by the name of Walter Davis, residing in St. Joe township, Allen county, fell dead from an apoplectic fit while going home from Fort Wayne, last Saturday.

LADIES visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

THERE is some talk of constructing a new channel for Cedar Creek, through the east part of town. This would be one of the greatest public benefits that could be accomplished. Let it be done by all means.

HAIR OIL.—The best hair oil for the hair is made of hickory nut oil, which can be procurred at Davenport & Co's Drug Store. They keep a pure article, nicely perfumed, to any taste. Try a bottle.

The finest and best stock of Beaver and Children's Over-coats to be found in the city, is at the Original Red Front, No. 5, Key Stone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind. Remember the number and do not be 'beat' by small concerns.

PERSONAL.—Our popular contractor, Francis Picker, Esq., returned last week from the completion of an ensive contract at La Grange, being a large hotel and store containing 530,000 which was erected in 58 days. That is the way our energetic fellow citizen does business.

OUR clever friend, Mr. Wartenslaben, is adding valuable improvements to his property in the south part of town. He is now constructing one of the finest cellars in the place. He has introduced a new feature in the way of ventilation that is admirable.

TOYS.—We see a large display of beautiful toys, at the grocery store of T. B. Totten. This is a very fine assortment from which to select, and contains nothing but what will please the little folks. As the holidays are fast approaching selections better be made now while the stock is full Purchasers will make a note of this.

MERCHANTS, generally, are crying Clothing is going up, but the popular Red Front clothing say they are cheaper than ever. We advise all in need of Clothing to call in and see the mammoth stock, and see their low prices. No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana, is the only Original Red Front.

ELECTION.—The following gentlemen were elected Directors of the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, at Columbia City, last Thursday:

James S. Collins, C. W. Edwards, John L. Davis, Geo. E. Adams, O. Holderman C. H. Buhl, D. L. Quirk, H. P. Baldwin, James F. Fay, Allen Sheldon, Elijah Smith.

THE FOLIO for November is interesting as ever, with three pieces of music and thirty columns of spicy reading matter, all for ten cents. The Folio has a larger circulation than any other musical journal in America. Now is the time to send for a specimen copy. Address White, Smith & Perry, Publishers, Boston.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask is to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne Ind.

ROTHCHILD BROS

RETURNING.—Sheriff Plum has made two trips to Indianapolis within the last week to bring back two of the insane women taken there some time ago, for treatment and now pronounced sound in mind. Mrs McClosky, of Smithfield township, was returned to her home last week, and this week Mrs. Bohler was joined to her family It is thought that still another will be brought back in a few days.

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying everything before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

CONCERT POSTPONED.

Owing to the terrible inclement weather, last Tuesday evening the Concert announced for that night, was postponed one week. Though it caused some little disappointment, this was more than overballanced by the great amount of good the rain did. There will be no postponment next time, unless the weather should prove terribly stormy, or some unforseen accident occur in the mean time. We trust there will be a large turn out, as we think every one will be highly pleased with the entertainment.

INDUSTRIOUS.—There is not another institution in our town that gives forth the evidence of unceasing industry as our steam saw mill. In doors or out, not a moment of the working hours but what that ominous puffing can be heard. The fact is, it has become a chronic disease with that institution and that disease is the worst of all maladies—consumption. See the immense logs it consumes daily, under the skillful hands of our excellent friend, Mr. Hollopeter, and then ask whether it is a curable case or not. But the puffing has become music in the ear of our citizens, and there seems to be some break in the order of things when the Sabbath comes and it takes a rest. A few more of such institutions would be of great benefit to our place.

WILL BE IN AUBURN.—Dr Bort, of No. 92 Columbia-st., Ft. Wayne, Ind., one of the most successful physicians now living, will be in Auburn at the Weaver House, on next Monday, Nov. 6th, and in Waterloo Tuesday Nov. 7th, at the Lent House, at each of which places he can be consulted for the successful treatment of all curable cases of deafness, noises and discharges from the ear, blindness from cataract, sore and inflamed eyes, cancer scrofula and all diseases of the blood, heart, throat, lungs, liver, kideys, and urinary organs—all chronic and confidential diseases treated with unparalled success.—References to some of the most prominent persons residing in Fort Wayne can be given at Dr. Bort's room. Consultation free. Dr. Bort will visit the above places once a month hearafter.

Sedan Brevities.

QUITE a sensation was created from an article written by us and and appearing in week before last's issue. The article was written in a 'joke' and was not intended to reflect discredit upon the person referred to. We are prepared to meet and rebut all charges brought to bear against us, but defer for this reason: We appreciate the COURIER to highly, to make it an organ of personalities and abuse. Hearafter we will be on our guard and endeavor not to offend in the least.

WE regret to learn that the young people of this place will probably not resume their usual popular socials, this winter.—If they do not need the proceeds for the church, can they not keep up the social gathering, on a 'cheaper rate,' for the social character alone.

LAST week we witnessed the extracting of a Fungus Hematodes, or Rose Cancer located on the superior Maxillary, or Jaw bone. Mrs. Miller of Concord was the sufferer, and the operation was performed by Drs. Mason and Dunn, without the use of the knife.

From Iowa.

DANVILLE, IOWA, October 23d, 1871.

MR. EDITOR—SIR:—After an absence of some eight months I will try and interest your readers with some of the facts connected with my travels. We have had a fine summer for farmers and our crops are, generally, good. There are some complaints of the scarcety of money, as corn, pork, and beef is dull sale. Winter wheat is worth from $1,00 to $1,15, in Burlington, and spring wheat, from 85c to $100. I never saw fruit more plenty in Indiana than here, though good apples are worth 40 cents per bushel, to ship. Orchards are very numerous here, in fact this portion of the State is better adapted to the raising of fruit than the more central part as the country is more level and better timbered than any other part of Iowa.—Farmers, as a general thing are more independent here than farther west and the lands here are worth as much as land is the same distance from Fort Wayne. Burlington is getting to be quite a railroad centre having at present six. Two projected via Burlington S. W. and Burlington N. W. R. R. Burlington has a population of 18,000. I attended the Fair at that place, and the show of stock was good, though I saw better cattle, hogs, etc., at the Oskaloosa Fair. Horse racing and gambling was the order of business. The stealing game of Three Card Monte was played in public and there were other games played equally as bad.

The lull of business caused by the great fire at Chicago has subsided and teams are running again as lively as ever. The Burlington & Missouri Railroad has got to be the great thoroughfare of the west.—There are six regular passenger trains. In fact this is a fast country, I saw on a farm a pair of four year old stears that weighed 4,400, they were not quite as large as that ox at the State Fair of which an account appeared in the Auburn COURIER, that weighed 27,000, or the cow that weighed 23,000 but they were nice animals for any country. We have had a very dry time here this fall though it is most wet enough at present, and fall wheat looks well, and there is a great amount sown here. It does better in this locality than spring wheat.

Upon each Female Dog owned, kept or harbored within the county,	$2.00

Notice is hereby given that I will attend at my office in Auburn, from the 15th of October until the third Monday in April, 1872, for the purpose of collecting the above Taxes.

On all taxes remaining unpaid on the third Monday in April, 1872, the law requires ten per cent. penalty, and six per cent. interest, besides cost of collection to be added. Each tax-payer will, therefore, find it to his or her advantage to call and pay their taxes before they become delinquent, as by so doing they will save themselves the penalty and costs, and me an unpleasant duty.

On the 15th of December I am required by law to advertise real estate for sale for all unpaid delinquencies for 1870 and former years, and all persons interested are requested to call and pay their delinquent tax before that date, and save expenses.

Tax-payers will please remember the Third Monday in April is the extent of time that can be given for receiving taxes without the penalty, as my settlement must be completed at a time fixed by law, and cannot be delayed a single day.

A Synopsis of the Transaction of the St. Joseph Classes While in Session at Auburn, Indiana.

BY REV. H. H. SANDOE.

OPENING SESSION.

On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock the Ministerial Brethern with one of their Elders, from the different charges, within the jurisdiction of St. Joseph Classes, met at the St. Johns Church. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Schlosser, from Plymouth. After services the body was called to order by the electing of Bro. Schlosser, President, pro-tem, The roll was called—the time fixed for meeting and adjourning was 8½ A. M. 11½, 1½ P. M. and 4½ o'clock P. M. Adjourned with benediction.

MORNING SESSION.

Friday morning met pursuant to adjournment—was called to order and opened by singing, and prayer by Rev. H. F. Muller, from Fort Wayne. Roll was then called after which we proceeded to the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

Rev. J. Schlosser, Pres., Plymouth, Ind.
F. Hullhorst, Stated Clerk, Vera Cruz.
Elder Earnest Votermark, Treas. Fort Wayne, Ind.
Rev. F. R. Schweodes, Sec'y.

The next in order was the appointment of the committee on religious exercises.

Pastor loci. Rev. W. B. Sandoe, Auburn, Ind., Rev. J. G. Kissel, Auburn, Ind., and Elder C. Grube, Plymouth, Ind.

The next in order, the reading of the parocial reports and statistics by the Brethern separately. This was a period of marked interest. Every report showed a steady and healthy increase in the church. Her borders are slowly, yet steadily being extended, congregations are being planted and large numbers are being added. Yet while this is true, and a great source of encouragement and the prospects before us bright and fair, yet have we things to lament and mourn. That terrible monster, death, has been in our midst, or rather in our circle. He has cut down the aged, the young, and the infant.

But most left such evidence that we are assured that they are now enjoying realities for which they lived in faith. Heresies—fanaticisms and the emisaries of the evil one also have been busy, and lead [illegible] others also have fell, victims to the intoxicating cup. Suffice it to say, upon these points, all the Brethern showed a spirit of decision of charcter, a fervent and determined disposition to discountenance and discourage by prayer, by preaching, by influence and by example these soul destroying elements, and by firm reliance and confidence in the grace that is in Christ to carry forward the work of the Lord. Adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

Services in the evening, in the German language, by Rev. H. F. Muller, from Fort Wayne, assisted by Rev. P. H Dipple, of Huntington—subject, Acts 5, 1–14. What a pity that not the entire church was present to hear this subject so ably handled—setting forth so forcible the fearful, yes, the terrible results of hypocrisy, of deceit and sining against our better judgement wisdom, and understanding, against the Holy Ghost. Let all who have heard it ever hear it in mind, and seek by the grace of God to be preserved and profited thereby.

MORNING SESSION.

Assembled at 8½ o'clock. Session opened in regular order. The finishing up of parodial reports. Reports of standing committees. Committee on Religious exercises, Committee on correspondence. Each report full of interest.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Preparatory services to the Lords supper, German, Rev. P. Kohl from, Ai., Fulton Co., O., assisted by Rev. Wm. Speio, Decatur, Ind. Liturgical services, at the alter, by Rev. W. B. Sandoe, was largely attended, good attention, and full of interest.

EVENING SESSION.

In the evening, English services by Rev H. H. Sandoe, from Winnamac, Ind., assisted by Rev. D. H. Reiter, Berrien Springs Mich., subject, Rev. 3–20.

MORNING SESSION.

Services Sabbath morning were in German, the discourse delivered by Rev. P. Baumgardner, of Detroit, Mich., English discourse by Rev. L. M. Kershner, Wakeshma, Mich., Liturgical services at the altar and consecration of the elements, Rev W. B. Sandoe. The communion was largely attended.

EVENING SESSION.

Sabbath evening was devoted to the Missionary cause, at Immanuels church, St. Johns Reformed church, German, M. E. Church, English, at St. Peters. The results $30,00 in cash and $80,00 subscribed

MORNING SESSION.

Monday morning at 8½ o'clock classis opened in regular order. The important feature of the day was the permission given to Rev. W. B. Sandoe, to resign the German St. Johns congregation, located at Auburn, and organizing an English one A resolution was also passed, unanimously, not to ordain or install into office, as Elder or Deacon, any person opposed to infant baptism.

The following resolution were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we tender our hearty thanks to the members of the Auburn charge and the citizens of Auburn and vicinity for their kind hospitality towards us, as members of St. Joseph Classes during our session in their midst, and that it be made the duty of the Pastor to publish this action in his pulpit, and the Auburn COURIER.

The classes adjourned to meet next October in Detroit. Closing prayer and benediction by the President.

SAD DEATH.—We are called upon to chronicle the death of one of the most promising young men of this city. On Tuesday, the 16th inst., D. R. Pratt went from this city as a delegate to attend the Session of The Grand Lodge of Good Templars at Indianapolis. He was returning home on Friday by the I. C. & L. railroad, and at Culver Station Mr. Pratt alighted from the train. He crossed a switch track and walked a short distace, but being notified that the train was leaving, he hasten[illegible] By this time he noticed an engine approaching the station from the north, and being anxious to catch the train he had but a moment before left, he attempted to cross the track. As he reached the track, his progress was detained by a mistep, and the pilot of the engine struck him, when the unfortunate man was dragged under the train about 75 feet, mangling him in a horrible manner. His remains were brought to this city, Friday evening. The funeral services were conducted by the Odd Fellows and Good Templars of this city, from the M. E. Church, last Sabbath, and the attendance was large. The deceased was 22 years of age, and highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves a widowed mother to mourn the loss of one who was ever kind and affectionate.—Laporte Argus.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—An accident occurred on last Tuesday afternoon, that should be a warning to all youngsters who have been in the habit of jumping on railroad trains as they pass through town We have often wondered that not more accident occured, and that not more life was lost in this dangerous way of getting a free ride. A son of Mrs. Freese, widow of Dr. Freese, a lad about forteen years of age, while engaged in one of these rides, was thrown violently to the ground, striking with his head a plank on the sidewalk from which effect he died in about three hours. Mrs. F. has been making her residence at Plymouth for some time past, but is on a visit here to her friends. This is indeed a sudden and sad bereavement, and the afflicted mother has the sympathy of many friends.—Warsaw Union.

Teachers' Institute.

The DeKalb County Teachers' Institute for 1871, will be held at Corunna, commencing on Monday, November 13th, and continuing five days. Ample preparations have been made by the citizens of Corunna and vicinity for the accommodation of all.

Those teachers wishing to obtain license should be present the entire week, as it will be necessary to examine in one or more branches each day, so that the work may be complete by Saturday noon, in time for return trains.

It is to be hoped that as many as possible, will avail themselves of this opportunity for improvement.

MARRIAGES.

THOMPSON—YANDES—To-day at the residence of the brides father, in this place, by Rev. W. B. Sandoe, Mr. A. T. THOMPSON, of Wabash, Ind., and Miss. KATE YANDES, of this place.

The above affair will take all by surprise, as it was one of those sudden consumations that always [illegible] friend Kate a world of pleasure and happiness, nevertheless, and trust that the twain, whose hearts now beat as one, may never have occasion to regret the voyage, now just begun, away out on the sea of matrimony.

DEATHS.

HOOPINGARNER—In Butler, DeKalb County, Ind., Oct. 28th 1871, Miss FLORENCE HOOPINGARNER daughter of Dr. J. J. and E. B. Hoopingarner, in the 8th year of her age.

After an illness of thirteen days little Florence passed away to live in that land where there is no death. She leaves a Father, Mother and three Brothers to mourn their loss.

The funeral was largely attended. Her schoolmates formed in possession, and marched to the church, and if we can judge by the feeling manifested, Florence was loved by all.

Rev. J. Shaffer, Pastor of the E. V. Lutheran church, improved the occasion with a discourse founded on Math. 19th and 14th, "Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

J. SHAFFER.

MARKLEY, SHRADER & CO

"CAMANCHE BILL."

The Man who has Killed One Hundred and Eighty-Three Indians.

The Davenport (Iowa) Gazette has this account of a singular character:

There has been stopping in this city for a couple of days past one of those characters who have made for themselves a celebrity for their bravery and daring on the plains of the far West among the Indians and the buffalo, in recounting whose deeds, hair-breadth escapes and peculiar life the pages of romances are filled. The person to whom we refer is no less a character than 'Camanche Bill," who is reported to be the slayer of no less than one hundred and eighty-there Indians. He has been nine years on the plains, part of which time he has been in the employ of the government as scout. He hunted and killed Indians for the pleasures and sweets of revenge, and hunted and trapped of necessity. He is now on his return to his old life in the West, having been on a visit to his early home in Minnesota, He is about twenty-eight years of age, of slender built, sandy complexioned, with a profusion of hair that he wears long on the neck. His dress in a pair of buckskin pantaloons, ornamented from the outer seams with a row of steel buttons, a course shirt, and old coat and a broad-rimmed hat. His eye is piercing keen, and he has a grip like a dozen blacksmiths. In response to our questions he said:

'My name is George W. Porter. I have been on the plains since '62. I was in the Minnesota massacre, near New Ulm, the 8th of August, of that year. All my folks were killed except me and my little sister. three years old whom they took prisoner.'

'Where were you?'

'I was away at the military station one business; went the day before. The first I knew of the massacre I was coming along the road on my way home, when I saw a little ways ahead of me a wagon filled with women and children that the settlers had sent to the station for protection Just then I saw the Indians pounce upon them, and I doged into the woods. I could hear the h t ets crashing into their heads. They killed 'em, every one.'

'What did you do?'

'They scalped 'em, and when the coast was clear I got out, and pretty soon along came a company of cavalry, and we burried them.'

'Why didn't you follow after the Indians?'

'I had no horse, the captain didn't want his men to go. You see that was '62, and everything was topsy-turvy.'

'Did you visit the scence of the massacre at New Ulm.'

'Yes. I went there the next day, and saw my father and mother all scalped and and cut up. and my sister was gone. I swore by the eternal God I would never rest - until I had revenge.'

A BLOODY REVENGE

'Did you get any trace of your sister?'

'Why, yes; they was the Yankton, Swanee and Sioux Indians, and I knowed them pretty well. I learned that they had her. I knowed what they'd do with her.'

'You have not been successful in your efforts to secure her?'

'No, you see, single-handed and alone, a man don't stand much chance. That's what I had been doing all the time. Once, in Arizona, I was right in sight of her. The way I knowed it was her was, I had been on the trail of the band of Sioux that had her a long time, and she was the only white person they had. This was in '65. and then she looked just like mother. I waited and watched, and picked an Indian off every litte while, when he'd get amile or two form camp, but 'twas no use. They kept a good watch over her,'

'Were you ever captured?'

'Yes, The Blackfeet captured me and Jim Branden in '64, when we were out hunting. They came on us with a rush, but didn't get us though until I had killed one young buck.'

'What did they do with you?'

'They marched about twenty-five miles to their camp, and there they stripped us of everything we had, and tied us up to a stake and let the women pound us with clubs. They did this every day for eight days. We were tied with bukskin throngs, and one night it rained and we slipped out of 'em when they got wet. Jim got away all right, but just as I was gittin' my things an old squaw woke up and gave the alarm. There were but four Indians in camp; the rest had gone on a hunt. I ran with only a knife. They came up to me and I had a desperate fight. One shot had hit in the left arm' [exhibiting a scar]. 'I cut and slashed the buck that had got hold of me, and finally gave him one under the ribs, so that he can't tie any more throngs. And he cut me, too, here, and here' [showing scars on his arm, neck and breast]. 'The other buck's gun afore he'd reached us.'

The rest of 'Camanche Bill's' story, how he followed his sister among the Camanches, and had a fight with the white chief of that nation, and other equally interesting accounts, we shall have to omit. But if our readers wish to see a genuine frontiersman they should call upon the 'Indian fighter' himself.

A litte son of Mr. S. Potter, about eleven years of age, living on Turkey Branch, in Milton township, Jefferson county, had his right hand terribly lacerated in a cane mill last Friday afternoon.

Thomas H. Larrimer, near Everton, Fayette count, while digging a well recently, found at the depth of twenty-five feet a pair of elk horns and various kinds of wood in a good state of peservation.

Two rival insurance agents in Lafayette are indulging in the luxury of a newspaper controversy. One of them publishes a defiant and denunciatory column and a half paragraph, set in bold-faced type, in the last issue of the Courier.

Peter Lux's luck was against him last Friday, when he had his hand badly smash while repairing a turn-table on the O. and M. railroad at Seymour.

CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Wit is never so frequent and painful and free as in campaign times. One of the Savannah papers makes fun of the Democrats because they hold their meetings in front of a jail. Another one of them retorts that the Republicans hold theirs inside of a jail. This is very funny in all probability, in Savannah.

Over the Hill to the Poor-house.

BY WILL M. CARLTON.

Over the hill to the poor-house I'm trudgin' my weary way—
I, a woman of seventy, and only a trifle gray—
I, who am smart an' chipper, for all the years I've told.
As many another woman that's only half as old,

Over the hill to the poor-house—I can't quite make it clear!
Over the hill to the poor-house—it seems so horrid queer!
Many a step I've taken a toili'n to and fro,
But this is a sort of journey I never thought to go?

What is the use of heapin' on me a pauper's shame
Am I lazy or crazy? am I blind or lame?
True, I'm not so supple, nor yet so awful stout;
But charity ain't no favor, if one can live without

I am willin' and anxious and ready any day
To work for a decent livin', an' pay my honest way
For I can earn my victuals, an' more too, I'll be bound,
If anybody only is willin' to have me round.

Once I was young and han'some—I was, upon my soul—
Once my cheeks was roses, my eyes as black as coal;
And I can't remember, in them days, of hearin' people say
For any kind of reason, that I was in their way.

'Taint no use of boastin' or talkin' over free,
But many a house and home was open then to me;
Many a han'some offer I had from likely men,
And nobody ever hinted that I was a burden then

And when to John I was married, sure he was good and smart,
But he and all the neighbors would own I done my part,
For life was all before me, an' I was young an' strong,
And I worked the best that I could in tryin' to get along.

And so we worked together; and life was hard but gay,
With now and then a baby to cheer us on our way;
Till we had half a dozen, an' all grown clean and neat.
An' went to school like others, an' had enough to eat.

So we worked for the children, and raised them
Worked for 'em summer and winter, just as we ought to've done;
Only perhaps we humored 'em, which some good folks condemn.
But every couple's childr'n's aheap the best to them

Strange how much we think of our blessed little ones!
I'd have died for my daughters, I'd have died for my sons;
And God he made that rule of love; but when we're old gray,
I've noticed it sometimes somehow fails to work the other way.

Strange, another thing; When our girls an' boys was grown,
And when, exceptin' Charley, they'd left us there alone;
When John he nearer and nearer come, an' dearer seemed to be,
The Lord of Hosts he come one day an' took him away from me.

Still I was bound to struggle, an' never to cringe or fall—
Still I worked for Charley, for Charley was now my all;
And Charley was pretty good to me, with scarce a word or frown,
Till at last he went a courtin', and brought a wife from town.

She was somewhat dressy, and hadn't a pleasant smile—
She was quite conceity, and carried a heap o' style
But if ever I tried to be friends, I did with her, I know;
But she was hard and proud, and I couldn't make it go.

She had an edication, an' that was good for her;
But when she twitted me on mine, 'twas carrin' things too fur;
An' I told her once, 'fore company (and it almost made her sick),
That I never swallowed a grammar, or et a 'rithmetic.

So 'twas only a few days before the thing was done
They was a family of themselves, and I another one
And a very little cottage for one family will do,
But I never have seen a house that was big enough for two.

And I never could speak to suit her, never could please her eye,
An' it made me independent, and then I didn't try
But I was terribly staggered, an' felt it like a blow,
When Charley turned agin me, an' told me I could go.

I went to live with Susan, but her house was very small,
And she was always a hintin' how snug it was for us all;
And what with her husban's sisters, and what with children three,
'Twas easy to discover there wasn't room for me.

An' then I went to Thomas's, the oldest son I've got,
For Thomas's buildings'd cover the half of an acre lot;
But all the children was on me—I could'nt stand their sauce,
And Thomas said I need'nt think I was coming there to boss.

And then I wrote to Rebecca, my girl that lives out West,
And to Isaac, not far from her—some twenty miles at best;
And one of 'em said 'twas too warm there for any one so old,
And t'other had the opinion the climate was too cold.

So they have shirked and slighted me, an' shifted me about,
So they have well-nigh soured me, an' wore my old heart out;
But still I've borne up pretty well, 'an wasn't much put down,
Till Charley went to the poor-master and put me on the town.

Over the hill to the poor-house my children dear, good-by!
Many a night I've watched you when only God was nigh;
And God'll judge between us; but I will always pray
That you shall never suffer the half I do to-day.—

Harper's weekly.

Bound to do a Full Day's Work.

Mr. M., of Oxford, don't object to having a hired man do a full day's work, at least so we should judge from the following story: A short time ago a man went to his place for work. Mr. M. set him a plowing around a ted acre field. After he had plowed faithful all day, until the sun was about a half an hour high, he expressed his opinion that it was about time to quit work.

'Oh, no,' said Mr. M., 'you can plow six or eight times more around just as well as not.'

So the hired man plowed around around six or eight times, then went to the house, took care of his team, milked nine cows, ate his supper, and found 10 o'clock staring him the face from the old time piece on the shelf.

Said the hired man to Mrs. M, 'Where is Mr. M.?'

The good woman answered, 'He has retired, do you wish to see him?

He replied that he did. After being conducted to the bed-room, he said, 'Mr. M., where is the axe?'

'Why,' said Mr. M., what do you want to do with the axe?'

'Well,' said the hired man, 'I thought you might like me to split wood till breakfast is ready.'

THE STONE VAULT.

I have been with Morris and Grinby five and thirty years, come the first of next month. I was forty when I came here, and so I have a habit of being exact about dates; am now within a few weeks of seventy-five. But as for being old, I am younger than the youngest clerk, Tom Codgers, who, what with late suppers and hard drinking, has a hand that shakes like those old ledger leaves blowing in the wind by the open window yonder.

Cold water, early hours, and temperance in everything, keeps a man hale his life through. If you don't believe that look at me; I am an example, sir. Yes, I've seen changes here. The firm was "Morris, Grinby & Bloom,' when I came, though young Bloom died three months after, and young Grinby was taken into partnership. We had a fire here, too and the offices have been rebuilt on a different plan. Ah, yes—changes enough, sad and pleasant; but the strangest and saddest of all was what happened to poor Ben Wade.

Ah, dear me. It did seem hard, very hard, looking at it with human eyes, and forgetting, as we are apt to, that God does everything for the best.

Perhaps you don't know how this house is built. It is an old place, although the front and offices are new. Those great balustrades were only put up last year. Down below you can judge, how very old it is. Such a cellar, sir,—such massive walls, and paved with stone; and below the cellar a small stone vault, which Codgers, who laughs at serious things, says the old firm built to be buried in. My own opinion is, it was intended to conceal valuables, for it has a great and plated door and three locks, each fastened with a different key—that is, if they were ever fastened at all. The vault was disused long before my time. Well, sir, if I hadn't been here six months, when one day, or rather one evening, for it was nearly six—merchants kept later hours in these days—I had occasion to go down into the cellar before going home, to give directions to the porter about some bales to be sent up in the early morning next day.

Mike and I were at the north end of the cellar, where the bales were, and I was giving him my orders, when at my elbow, as it seemed, I heard an odd sound—a kind of wheezing cough smothered in a moment.

I looked around, there was nobody there—not a soul, and I thought, how our ears deceive us to be sure, and went on talking. But I give to you my word. I hadn't spoke three words when there was that sound again. It quite startled me.

'Mike,' says I, 'did you cough?'

'No, sir,' said Mike, 'I thought yer honor did.'

'Is must be imagination, or some sound from the office overhead,' I said, but just then, cough—cough. We both heard it.

'It's no good, yer' honor, said Mike.

'There's some one hiding in the cellar,' says I.

So with Mike's lantern we went over the great stone-paved place, looking behind boxes and bales, and under steps, and up the coal slide. But not a soul did we find until passing the door of the vault, I heard it, this time very strange and faint, and calling out to Mike:

'Whoever it is, is hidden in the vault.'

And with that we both turned stairward, and bolted into Mr. Grinby's office together The old Gentleman, Grinby Senior, does not come to the office but once a year now, for he's past ninety. Old Mr. Grimby was just locking his desk and buttoning his overcoat. He stared at us through his glasses, and ejaculated:

'Bless me, Humphries! is the house on fire?'

'No sir,' said I, 'but there is some one hidden in the stone vault.'

'Bah!' said Mr. Grinby, 'I thought you had more sense, Mr. Humprhies. No one could exist ten minutes in the stone vault. It is next thing to air-tight.'

'It is my belief, sir, that whoever it is may be chocking to death, sir,' I said; 'but there is some one there. Mike heard a cough as well as I.'

'Very well,' said Mr. Grinby; 'call the nearest constable, Mike, and—Mr. Morris are you in your office, sir. Perhaps you'll come down with us and assist in the capture of a burgular Mr. Humphries has discovered in the air-tight stone vault below the cellar.'

He was very satirical; so was Mr. Morris. But we all went down together, the constable with us, and stopped before the stone vault. The door was shut so tight that took all Mike's strength to force it open. And Mr. Grinby, looking straight before him, shouted:

'Ha, ha, nobody, as I told you.'

But the next moment he saw what the rest had already seen—a bundle of rags in one corner of the vault, down on the floor. And amidst the rags was the white face and a thin hand, and a bare, bruised, bleeding foot. And we dragged out into such air as there was in the cellar a miserable wretch of a little boy who seemed quite dead.

Up in the office, however, we brought him to life, and got the story from him He lived, it seems amongst theives, and they had planned to rob us that night, and he, poor little midge, had slipped in somehow, and hidden in the cellar, to open the door for them, never thinking any one would come there that night.

But when Mike and I went down to the vault, and there would have smothered but for my hearing him. I don't care to tell you how we kept him and filled the place with constables who, when the burglars came prounced out upon them and took them into custody. You can guess all that. It's the boy I have to tell you abount—Ben Wade. It came out during the investigation consequent upon the arrest, that the poor child was kept among the thieves by force, and that they used him cruelly. Once a ruffian of the gang had broken his leg in a drunken fury, and he limped yet from the injury. He was such a pale, worn, miserable thing, that everey one felt merciful to him, and it was decided to pardon him and send dim to the poor house.

But that very morning Grinby, junior—a young man—came into the office where his father sat, and put his hand upon his arm.

'Father,' says he, 'I want to ask you a favor. I want my own way in one thing.'

'Well,' said the old gentleman,' let me hear you.'

'I want to take Ben Wade into this house as an errand boy.' said young Mr. Grinby.

'Hey!' said the old genleman, 'what! a young housebreaker as errand boy! Bless my soul.'

'Father,' said young Grinby, 'the boy is naturally a good boy. I like him; I want to save him. Perhaps if I had not so good a father to guide me and care for me, I might have been worse than he. I dont ask you to trust him, sir, I only ask leave to trust him myself. I am sure he will prove deserving of confidence.'

Old Mr. Grinby took out his snuff-box and looked at Mr. Morris.

'I've noticed the lad's eye; it's a good one,' said Mr. Morris.

'It's a risk,' said Mr. Grinby, 'but we'll consider.'

And I suppose the result was what young Grinby wanted, for little Ben Wade came to us new next Monday.

In a month or so people stopped predicting that young Grinby would repent some day, and in a year I don't think there was one in the office who didn't love that boy. So grateful, so trustworthy, and so ready to do anything for every one. Young Mr. Grinby had him taught, and well taught, too. The lightning calculator might beat him, but I doubt it; and I never knew that lad to forget to dot his i's or his t's, in all my acquaintance with him after he had learned to write at all.

At twenty he was one of the best clerks in our establishment, besides being as fine a looking young fellow as one would wise to see. On the whole, I did not wonder that Miss Lucy Evans took a fancy to him—a sister, sir, of one the young fellows at our place, and a girl who looked like a queen, and was as good as she was handsome.

I used to meet them walking on the battery where lovers used to walk in those days. He was so fond and proud of her, and she had such a tender way of looking at him, that they made my old heart young again, as I often told Mr. Humphires, to whom I always confied everything. And how he reverenced her; why a ribbon, or a faded flower, that she had worn, were cherished by him as a miser cherishes his gold.

At last he told me in confidence—for her name was sacred and not to be spoken before everyone—that they were to be married.

'And when I look back, sir,' said he, 'and remember the miserable years of my childhood, and think how friendless and forlorn I was, and how there was nothing before me but the prison and gallows, and think that now I have everything to make man's life blessed—the power to win a respectable livelihood by reputable labor, the respect of honest men, and the love of such a girl as Lucy—I can never be too grateful to the kind friend who saved me from a life I dare not contemplate God bless Mr. Grinby!' said he lifting his hat reverently as he might in church, and there was a prayer in his dark eyes as he looked upward.

Those were the last words I ever heard him speak, except 'Good night.' Ah, dear me, it should have been good-bye. Ten minutes after he went one one way and I the other. I took my way home, and he, as it seemed afterward, walked just two blocks, and then came back here. At twelve, o'clock that night I awoke Mrs. Humphries.

'My dear,' said I, 'I must have had the night mare or something.'

'Goodness,' said she, 'it seems so. Your hands are like ice. What give it to you, love? The lobster, I'll be bound.'

'Perhaps,' said I. I admit I ate a a hearty supper. And nothing else could make me fancy young Wade at my bedside, white as a ghost, with both hands on my breast.'

'Ah, but the night-mare is always black, not white,' said my wife. And then she went to a cupboard and brought me a glass of wine. After that I went sleep again,

I did not rise early, and was quite behind my usual time. But when I reached our place I found it in great commotion. Clerks running hither and thither, the heads of the firm standing about in the most unbusiness-like manner, and three constables on the premises.

'What is the matter, sir?' said I addressing Mr. Grinby.

'Matter enough,' said he, 'we've been very heavily robbed.'

'I fancied that couldn't happen here,' said I; really believed it would be impossible for burglars to break into Morris, Grinby & Son's, sir.'

'Ah,' said he, 'they did not break in. The door has been quitely opened from the inside.'

'And I believe—,' began Mr. Morris.

'Sir,' cried young Mr. Grinby, out of breath, 'I beg, as a gentleman, a man of principle, you will not give utterance to your unfounded suspicion—totally unfounded and unworthy of you.'

'Prove them so, sir,' said Mr. Morris coolly, 'and I'll apologize.'

I looked an inquiry.

'Don't ask explanations, I beg, Mr. Humphries,' said Mr. Grinby. 'Some thing has been said, which the speaker will regret. Ah, there comes my messenger.'

'And in ran one of our boys.

'Well, Tom?' said Mr. Grinby.

'Mr. Wade ain't been home all night, sir,' said Tom.

'I told you so,' said Mr. Morris.

'And I tell you even yet I will not hear my dear friend's—yes, my very dear friend's—character aspersed,' said young Grinby. 'Humphries, I know you love Ben Wade as I do. Fancy imagining him connected with this robbery. As well suspect my father, or myself, or you.'

'He is missing,' said M. Morris, 'shutting the door upon us three. He was seen to return late in the evening. He was one of a gang of house-breakers when we took him in, and many declare the character to be formed at six years old. He was nine. I believe he has been won back to his old ways.'

'You will not express your belief to others,' said Mr. Grinby.

'Not as yet, most certainly,' said Mr. Morris.

Well, sir, that was a bitter day to me—a bitter day. We could learn nothing of Young Wade after eight o'clock on the previous night. Then several had seen him.

He had taken tea at a little coffee house, as he sometimes did when he did not intend to return home until quite late, and had said to some one there, 'I must go back to the office, I have forgotten something.'

Half an hour afterwards Mike, the porter had passed him in the street, and young Wade had said:

'What time, Mike?'

The porter told him.

'I shall be too late,' he said. 'I have an engagement, and I must go back to our place for a parcel I've forgotten.'

An apple woman on the corner had had seen him enter. He often bought fruit from her for lunch, and she knew him well by sight.

There the news ended, until Mike, going into light the fires, found the place a scene of confusion—desks and safes rifled, papers strewn about and every mark of systematic burglary.

Later in the day Lucy Evans came down. Her brother had sent her word of what had occured. She believed some trrible accident had happened to Ben, and begged the firm to spare no efforts to discover him. She was almost distracted, and who can wonder. They had been going together, it seemed, to see some play the night before, and she had been sufficiently alarmed by his failing to keep the appointment to be in a measure prepared for the worst. She knew he intended bringing her a book. He had spoken of it. That must have been the parcel he went back for. Of course she never doubted him, and no one had dared to hint at what had been whispered in her presence.

For weeks, sir, the authorities were at work. Immense rewards were offered for the burglars, and for the recovery, alive or dead, of young Benjamin Wade, but without the least effect.

We were notified of every-body washed ashore, and of every unknown man man found dead for months, and at last there were few who did not laugh at poor Ben's friends for their credulity.

It seemed plain to them—and may heaven not judge them as they judged their brother—Ben Wade was guilty.

Poor Lucy never looked up. It was easy enough to see that her heart was broken, and in a year she died, just a week too soon to hear what I shall tell you.

'One morning I was very busy at my desk in the office, when a gentleman came in and asked for Mr. Morris or Mr. Grinby. Old Mr. Grinby was home with the gout, but Mr. Morris and the young gentleman were in. I saw the young gentleman was a clergyman, and fancied he had called to solicit subscription for some mission to the heathen, or Sunday School, or new church. But his first words made me start. They were these:

'You remember, of course, a burglary committed here a year ago or more.'

I could not keep my seat then, but went forward trembling had turned quite faint, and was leaning against the the wall for support.

'You are agitated,' said the clergyman; 'I fear you will be still more affected by what you must hear. A person now in custody, condemned to execution, has a confession to make to you in regard to that affair—a very horrible one, I fear.'

He took a card from his pocket and wrote a few lines.

'If you will call at the prison any time to-day you will not be too late. To-morrow is Friday and he is to suffer execution at dawn. Present this, if you please and I implore no questions now.'

'Before they could say much he was gone, afraid, I think, to be the first to tell the story, and our gentlemen called a cab and took me with them at my request. They seemed to expect us at the prison. and we were admitted. But in the narrow corridor Morris stopped us.

'Gentlemen,' he said, 'you must nerve yourselves. Have you reflected that you may see Benjamin Wade when yonder door is opened?'

Young Grinby put his hand on his heart, and seemed turning faint again. It was the first time the thought had staggered me.

The next minute the turnkey flung the door open, and we were in the cell. On the floor lay a man—a broad-shouldered fellow, in rough garments—who seemed to have cast himself down in grief or terror. At first I thought I had never seen the face he lifted as he arose. In a moment it came to me. It was the leader of the gang who had been arrested for that old attempt at robbery, when we had found little Ben in the stone vault.

'You've come, have you?' said he, sitting down on the stone seat, 'and I see you know me. They've caught me again, and it's murder this time, and I've got to swing. If it wasn't for that no person 'ud have got this out of me, But I've promised, and I always keep my word, I do. You remember a young man called Ben Wade?'

'What of him?' we said in a breath.

'Not much—he didn't rob your place, that's all. We done it—Dick Burch, Slippery Tom and me. Tell you how it was: You know that boy informed on us, and I was locked up for hard labor for more years than most men live. I didn't stay though; I cut off and came home. And the first thing I did was to vow vengeance on that boy. Why, there he was a gay young buck, in fine togs, with the handling of money, and thought of and trusted just for having done for us in the street. Threatened to give information if he ever saw one of us prowling about. I heard it all. I swore I'd fix him; and it seemed to come to me.

'One night I was agoin' to Slapper's shades to have a drink. Burch was with me; and in a quiet sort of street we came up to Ben, in mighty hurry.

'I'd have knocked him on the head, but Burch stopped me.

'See what he's up to,' says he. And we followed. He went down to your place, and went in. He left the door ajar, and we made the best of it. He was coming out with a book or something in his had hand, and we met him. He was plucky, I tell you One of us wouldn't have got off so easy; but we went to one. We gagged and tied his, and made a clear sweep of the place that night.'

'And Ben—my God did Ben think we would not believe him?' cried Mr. Grinby. 'He had but one to come to us—to tell the truth. Where is he? Do you know? Speak!'

The robber was turning the hue of ashes. His words came slowly. His eyes glanced over his shoulder and he backed up againced the wall.

'We locked him up in the stone vault,' he said, 'and took the keys with us. If you look you'll find him there.'

And Mr. Grinby fainted outright in my arms.

Well, sir, the robber's words were true. The stone vaut was opened that day, and there—no matter. It was eaiser to know the ring he wore, and the keys and the purse in his pocket, than poor Ben Wade.

The first thing Mr. Humphries said, was, 'Thank Heaven, Lucy cannot know it.' And the next he sobbed, 'Oh, but the certainty would have been better for her after all! And then to how his name was clear.'

And so that is the story of our stone vault; and strange as it is, it is quite true. You may see his grave close besides Lucy's any day. And Mrs Humphries—she's a romantic woman, sir—says she thinks the violets and roses grow there of their own accord under the white monument.

Learn a Trade.

Stephen Girard had a favorite clerk, and he always said he intended to do well by Ben Lippincott.' So when Ben got to be twenty-one, he expected to hear the 'guvenor' say some thing of his future prospects, and perhaps lend a helping hand in starting him in the world. But the old fox carefully avoided the subject. Ben. mustard courage:

'I suppose I am now free, sir,' said he, 'and I thought I would say something to you as to my course. What do you think I had better do?'

'Yes, yes, I know you are,' said the millionaire; 'and my advice is that you go and learn the cooper's trade.

The young man was astonished, but recovering his equilibrium he said that if Mr. Girard was in earnest he would do so.

'I am in earnest.' And Ben forthwith sought the best cooper in Spring Garden, became an apprentice, and in due time could make as good a barrel as any of the rest.

He announced to old Stephen that he had graduated, and was ready to set up in business. The old man seemed gratified, and forthwith ordered three of the best barrels he could turn out. Ben did his prettiest, and wheeled them up to his counting room. Mr. Giard pronounced them first-class and demanded the price.

'One dollar,' said Ben, 'is as cheap as I can live by.'

'Cheap enough! Make out your bill if you please.'

The bill was made you, and old Stephen settled it with a check for $20,000, which he accompanied with this little moral to the story:

'There, take that, and invest it in the best possible manner; if you are unfortunate and loose it, you have a good trade to fall back upon, which will afford you a good living.'

We have incomplete returns from the elections held last Tuesday in several States. The corrupt Tammany Ring in New York has been defeated, a result that will be hailed with pleasure by all honest men. The Democrats greatly assisted in its defeat, and thus practically enunciated one of the great principles of the party—an uncompromising hostility to fraud and corruption. Now, let the Radical party follow the example of reform and political honesty, and route the rings of corruptionist and swindlers, of which their party seems to be so largely composed. Let us have an honest administration of the affairs of government and we are satisfied.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

To Wm. Sheffield Esq. Chairman of Committee of the Ohio, Indiana and Illinois Division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad:

DEAR SIR:—With this you will receive a map and profile of the survey which has been made in the interest of a portion of the route for the extension of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad from Pittsburg to Chicago, known as the Napoleon line.

Starting from Tiffin, Ohio, it extends in nearly a direct line to Fostoria, Napoleon and Bryan in Ohio, and passing south of Angola, and near the towns of LaGrange, Goshen, Elkhart, Mishawaka, South Bend, Laporte and Westville in Indiana, to Lake Station on the Michigan Central Railroad, and near the southern extremity of Lake Michigan, whence it may be extended to the city of Chicago in any direction that may hereafter be determined upon.

The general position of the line is upon the northern border of the plateau which divides the waters running northward into the Lakes and southward into the Mississippi, and it is chiefly on the head waters of streams which are tributary to Lake Erie and Michigan.

From Fostoria to Napoleon it is chiefly in what is locally known as the Hunting Ground, an expanse of flat land heavily timbered and every fertile, which is drained by the Portage river At Bryan, where it intersects the Michigan Southern Railroad, we are in a region of artesian wells, which furnish that flourishing town with an ample supply of pure water, and in Northeastern Indiana we cross the glacial deposit, which is the topographical feature of chief interest in its bearings up on the location of railways. It consists of a series of small lakes and gravel hills, giving to the counties of Steuben and LaGrange a somewhat rugged character, and indicating that we must look to the courses of the streams for a way to pass them on the most favorable terms.

At Goshen we reach the valley of the Great St Joseph River, again cross the Michigan Southern Railroad, and continue nearly parallel with it to South Bend. The inhabitants of this region are justly proud of their flourishing towns which are mainly the fruits of their own enterprise in improving and developing their ample water powers, and using them in manufacturing the products of the forest and the farm.

At Laporte we are upon the prairie country, having already passed through, or in the vicinity of several smaller and highly cultivated districts of this character, upon the Pigeon and Elkhart Rivers; thence we reach Westville by a sweep over the Door Prairie. and thence descend to the Grand Prairie, upon which stands the city of Chicago.

Entering upon a more detailed description of the line, I think it will be best to occupy a position to the north of the town of Tiffin, cross the Sandusky river about a mile below the present railroad bridge, and pass thence directly to Fostoria, and from Fostoria directly to Napoleon, over the region of the flat forest land above referred to; which rolls slightly between the heads of the Portage River and fall toward the Maumee. From Tiffin to Napoleon the line is in the immediate vicinity of and parallel to, the Mansfield & Coldwater Railroad, an enterprise recently started under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. After crossing the Maumee on the southern borders of the town of Napoleon, we pass over favorable ground to Bryan, capital of Williams county, and reach the heads of Pigeon River near Pleasant Lake, three miles south of Angola, the county town of Steuben county, where we diverge to the north, along the valley of the stream, to Flint, at which point we are enabled to turn with it to the westward, and thence follow a nearly due west course along the southern borders of its valley to LaGrange.

A glance at the map will show that Steuben is a county of lakes; ten per cent. of its surface is said to be covered with water. It is also a county of hills, but Pigeon River drains a beautifuly and highly cultivated prairie country, which attains a width of as much as twenty miles, and affords a most favorable passage through the glacial deposits already referred to. A modification of this line has been surveyed, passing nearer to the town of Angola, but its meanderings among the hills and lakes is objectionable, and its gradients, compared with the Pleasant Lake line, are unfavorable; a third line has been proposed, passing north of the town, but it has not been examined.

At LaGrange we cross the ridge dividing the waters of Pigeon River and the Little Elkhart, and find favorable ground, among the heads of the latter stream, for making the decent to the Great Elkhert, which is crossed near the town of Goshen, the capital of Elkhart county, near which place we again cross the Michigan Southern Railroad, and thence follow the valley of the Elkhart river toward its junction with the Great St. Joseph at the town of Elkhart, which town we leave two miles to the north of our line.

A modification of this portion of the line has been proposed, by running directly from LaGrange to Elkhart, which may be worthy of a survey. It would save 1 9-10 miles of distance, but would substitute for the important and flourishing town of Goshen the less important town of Middlebury, and would probably be found less favorable in grades.

From Elkhart we follow the Valley of St. Joseph river, nearly parallel with and near to the Michigan Southern Railroad to South Bend; and thence taking the direction of the Kankakee cross that stream above the mouth of of Grapevine Creek, and reach the town of Laporte.

Several lines had been surveyed for other railway enterprises for a direct connection from South Bend to Laporte, and some doubt existed as to our ability to find ground that would sustain a grade of 25 feet per mile after crossing the Kankakee, but it has proved entirely practicable.

The towns of Goshen, Elkhart, Mishawaka, South Bend and Laporte are manufacturing centers of large present importance, and larger future prospects. The railroad may be located as near them as thought desirable; but the people have taken an enlarged view of this subject, prefering it near their town limits in order that they may have room for growth; and it will indeed be found better for the interests of any through road, and also for the properity of the towns, that branches should be located to the manufactories, rather than that the main line should occupy the streets or closely built districts.

A question has been raised as to the expediency of locating the road on a nearly direct line from Goshen to LaPorte; I have no reason to believe such a line is not practicabe; if it prove so, it would save two miles of distance but it would take from this northern route a large portion of its strength, by depriving it of the wealth, business and influence of Elkhart, South Bend and Mishawaka.

From LaPorte we reach a point one mile north of Westville, a position which is taken to obtain a more favorable descent thence to the crossing of Coffee Creek, and to that expanse of level country known as the Grand Prairie, over which railways are located in any direction. The descent from Westville must be located with care. We have effected it with grades of 25 feet per mile. The engineers on the surveys for the extension of the Canada Southern Railway claim to have obtained even more favorable grades on nearly the same ground that we occupy; and there is no doubt but a good line can be obtained.

Lake Station, which was selected as the western terminus of the survey, is a point of no special interest, except that it is a suitable from which to compute distances and grades, either to the east or to the west of it.

The distance from Tiffin to Lake Station is 220¼ miles. It crosses the Air Line Division of the Michigan Southern Railroad twice, and intersects eight north and north and south railroads, the most important of which is the Toledo, Wabash and Western, which is crossed at Napoleon on account of its westward extension and its large freight business. The rivers crossed the Sandusky, Maumee, Tiffin, St. Joseph of the Maumee, Pigeon, Great Elkhart and the Kankakee; and the aggregate length of bridging they will require is 1,800 feet. All other streams crossed are of minor importance. The maximum radius of curvature of 350¼ degrees and a sum of the ascents and descents of 2,317 feet, the maximum grade is not likely to be reduced on the final location, but there may be some reduction in the sum of the ascents and descents.

Of the country passed through, 56 per cent. is cultivated land, 40 per cent. is timber land, and 4 per cent. marsh; and the towns upon the line, and in proximity to it, with their population, are as follows:

Tiffin, with	a	population of	6,000
Fostoria,	"	"	2,000
Napoleon,	"	"	2,300
Bryan,	"	"	2,500
Angola,	"	"	1,100
Flint,	"	"	300
LaGrange	"	"	1,000
Lima,	"	"	1,000
Goshen,	"	"	3,500
Elkhart,	"	"	5,000
Mishawaka,	"	"	4,000
South Bend	"	"	7,500
Laporte,	"	"	7,000
Westville,	"	"	900

All these towns are growing rapidly, particularly those in the valley of the Great St. Joseph, which is the favorite locality for manufactories in Northern Indiana. At Goshen, Elkhart, Mishawaka and South Bend, expensive dams and canals have been constructed by hydraulic companies to create water powers, which are at present only partially employed and which in the aggregate are estimated to be equal to 30,000 horse power, aggregate which is said to be four times as great as that of Lowell, Mass.

It is unnecessary in this report to give a detailed statement of the extent to which manufacturing is at present carried on in these towns. Large quantities of grain, wool and lumber are annually converted into shapes for ultimate use; flour, blankets, furniture, agricultural machinery, wagons, &c., are the productions, and they will probably furnish to the Michigan Southern railroad, during the present year, freights to the amount of $250,000.

The estimate cost of construction is as follows:

Grading minor bridging on 220¼ miles at $5,000 per mile	$1,102,500
1,800 feet of majority bridging at $50 per foot	90,000
220¼ miles of track, at $10,000 per mile	2,265,000
Land damages at $2,500 per mile	551,250
Contingencies and engineers, 10 per ct.	264,750
Total	$4,343,500
Or, per mile	$19,698

I have thus described a railroad line and the country traversed by it, or more than usually favorable features in grades, curvatures and cost.

The Defiance line, which is immediately upon the dividing plateau, has some advantages over it in these respects.

It is a better line than any of the existing roads from Chicago east can boast of; and while, if built, it must divide the large local traffic which exists upon the western portion of it with the Michigan Southern Road. I think the amount of through traffic which will be ready for a third through line, when finished is not yet fully appreciated The existing lines from Chicago east are crowded with business to the extent of their present means of transport, and their through business is doubling every four or five years.

It will be readily seen, therefore, that doubts as to the sufficiency of traffic should not debar the early opening of a third avenue, and particularly when viewed in in connection with the rapidly expanding regions of the West, and the necessary passage of the largest portion of their spare productions around the southern extremity of Lake Michigan, for all time to come

Very truly yours,

J. DUTTON STEELE, C. E.

A "LOST RIVER."—A leading article in a late number of the St. Paul Press, gave the following account of the 'head of navigation':"

"The Mississipi has almost dried up. The majestic river whose magnificent volume two thousand miles from its outlet has been the theme of the tourist's admiration; so broad and deep that it seemed some grand estuary of the sea on which the natives of the world might ride; has shrunk to a mere ridiculous creek, and its thin and attenuated current crawls lazily, as if ashamed of its shrunk shanks, among low, red, bare submarine ridges and beaches of sand that have never seen the sun before, so far as human knowledge goes since God separated the water from dry land. The water has never been so low within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Herds of cattle bask in the sunshine on the dry bed of the great river ten or fifteen feet under the level of the waters, where a few months ago great fleets of steamboats rode at will. Boys with their trousers rolled up to their knees, sound with their feet the grand mysterious depths which have engulphed so many wayward boys and hapless men, whom accidents or rashness has entangled in the strong, swift undertow."

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co., Druggists, Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agents, San Francisco, California, and 32 and 34 Commerce Street, New York.

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

GAME still plenty.

Thanksgiving on the 30th.

Subscribe for the Courier.

We had a slight taste of winter, last Monday night.

☞ Go to the Pioneer Drug Store for School Books, at cost.

THE marshal is still putting in a number of crossings.

DR. BOST, of Fort Wayne gave us a call last Monday.

☞ School Books at cost, at Davenport & Co.'s., Pioneer Drug Store.

BRING us some good wood, on subscription.

GET your turkeys ready for the 30th.—Thanksgiving day.

DRESSED pork is already making its appearance in our market.

THE Teachers Institute meets next week at Corunna.

THE Concert, last Tuesday evening, was quite largely attended.

☞ School Books, at cost, at Davenport & Co.'s. Pioneer Drug Store.

☞ Slates cheap as ever, at Davenport & Co.'s. Twenty cents will buy a whopper.

THE President has issued his proclamation appointing Nov. 30th, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

PIKE BROS., at Fort Wayne, offer extra inducements in the fur trade. See advertisement.

WOOD WANTED.—We should like to have a lot of Wood brought in while the roads are good. Bring us good wood.

REV. E. M BAKER, of Waterloo, and Rev. A. W. Lamport, of this place have exchanged pulpits for next Sabbath, morning and evening.

WM. WADINGTON, for a long time master mechanic of the P. Ft. W., & C. Railroad shop, at Fort Wayne, and one of the prominent men of that city, died last Monday at 12 o'clock, of typhoid fever.

AN embankment fell upon three men the other morning, who were constructing a lager beer vault at Brooklyn, N. Y. One was killed and the other two severely injured.

The Radicals of the Long Island Senatorial district have nominated a well known Albany lobbyist for Senator. This is the way they follow up their plea of honesty. By their deeds shall ye know them.

ENORMOUS.—Our enterprising famer Wm. L. Smith, has placed on our table, a radish 26 inches in circumference, and weighing ten pounds. He also made us a hand some present of other vegetables for which we are much obliged.

LADIES visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

LOOK OUT.—When the cold wind blows, take care of your nose, that it dosen't get froze, and wrap up your toes in warm woolen hose. The above, we suppose, was written in prose, by some one who knows the effect of cold snow.

DECEMBER and January, like October, will each have five Sundays. This will be good news, and fully appreciated, by the boys who delight to 'whisper in her ear, something sweet for her to hear,' and to meet 'darling Josie at the gate.'

CHESTNUTS.—We are obliged to that popular grocer, W. F. Smith, of Butler, for a lot of fine Chestnuts. Smith is one of the few that know how to cater to the taste of the public, and keeps a stock of goods accordingly.

ROWDIES.—The pea-nut brigade were in full force the other night, and they were heard all over the house. We would suggest the appointment of several policemen to keep those young men (?) in check.—They don't know how to behave when away from their mothers.

PEOPLE who want carpets should go to reliable establishments, and not to any shoddy concern which has on sale the thread-bare, sun-beaten, as well as motheaten refuse from the rag outs of Bowery and Chatham street. A word to the wise is sufficient.

The finest and best stock of Beaver and Children's Over-coats to be found in the city, is at the Original Red Front, No. 5, Key Stone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind. Remember the number and do not be 'beat by small concerns.

CONCERT.—A grand Concert will be held at the Leutheran Church, in Sedan, on Friday Nov. 17th. Prof. Straub with a convention of fifty singers assisted by Messrs. Reed and Treesh, and other popular singers will appear. All should attend.

PICTURES.—Gordon's is the place to get pictures, but if you intend going to Fort Wayne for that purpose, we would suggest that you give John Shoaf a call. He has the most extensive gallery in the city and is the best artist. Remember the place over the Palace of Fashion.

MANSFIELD.—Our genial friend Mansfield, of the firm of Mansfield & Scanlan, has been honored by the adoption of his name as the designation of a station on the Eel River Road, in this county. If the place ever reaches the size among towns that Mr. M. has among men, won't it be a large place?

MERCHANTS, generally, are crying Clothing is going up, but the popular Red Front clothing say they are cheaper than ever We advise all in need of Clothing to call in and see the mammoth stock, and see their low prices. No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana, is the only Original Red Front.

THE mayor and many of the officials of Lexington, Kentucky, have been arrested on an indictment from the federal court, charged with felony growing out of the disturbances at the August election. General indignation exists at what is consider a gross out rage, instigated by leading radicals of that place.

CHOICE APPLES.—Our aimiable friend, John Potts, Esq., the popular Justice of the Peace, of Fairfield township, made us a present, last Tuesday, of a basket of the finest apples we have seen this season. He has some very choice varieties, all grafted which he obtained in Ohio, and he enjoys the reputation of having the best fruit in the county.

D. I. QUIRK & Co. have paid out three dollars to every one they have received in the construction of the D. E. R. & I. R.R. through this county. The greater part of all the vast sum they have paid out has been left in the county. In additon to this, there has been added to the taxable property of the amount of not less than $50,000 from the beginning.—Col. City Post.

A GOOD IDEA.—It has been suggested that a society be formed to give a series of Concerts, say once a month, the proceeds to go to buying a fire engine. We endorse the movement, and hope it will be taken hold of before it gets cold. Every body would attend them, and several hundred dollars would soon be raised in this way. We will do all we can to this object.

THERE is considerable said now-a-days about good and stylish Boots and Shoes being sold at reasonable figures; and while all this is true, W. W. Humes wishes it distinctly understood that he keeps all of the most strictly fine and substantial to be found in any market, and sells as low as the lowest. Call and see his assortment and prices. Store at old stand, opposite Ehlers' Drug Store, Waggoner's old stand.

AUCTION STORE.—The finest and most complete Auction Store, in Fort Wayne, is that of J. Scheffer & Co., north of the court house, on Main-st. Mr. Scheffer, the senoir partner, is one of the reliable men of that city, while Mr. Stapleford, the junier, is deservedly the most popular auctioneer in the business. They are both pleasant and accommodating, and have by their fair and honest dealings, gained a large trade, which they so well merit.

J. J. GRAFTON, Esq., late General Ticket Agent of the Fort Wayne, Muncie & Cincinnati Railroad, has been appointed Superintendent of the Detroit, Eel River & Ill. Railroad, and has already assumed the duties of that office. Mr. Grafton is one of those live energetic Railroad men, in whom every confideuce can be placed, and, we feel that the road is now in good hands.—He is clever and accomodating, besides being good-looking and is bound to make one of the most popular officials in the country.

There has never in the memory of man, been so lively a time for insurance agents as the present. Each has his little story to tell, and the public sift the wheat from the chaff,—the good from the bad—by their judgment of good standing as shown, by facts and figures. Those that can pay up their Chicago losses, and show clean balance sheets, will hearafter have all the business they want, and property owners will feel satisfied that they are not fooling away their money upon worthless and irresponsible concerns.

A VERY sad affair occurred some four miles north of Alliance, Ohio, on Monday. A man by the name of Morrell was looking after his stock, when a bull owned by him broke through the fence of an adjoining field and gored him to death. The body was horribly mangled. No one witnessed the affair, but from the marks on the animal, and a piece of fence stake lying by the body, is is supposed he made terrible battle for life. Mr. M., was an estimable man, some fifty years of age, and leaves quite a large family to mourn his untimely death—Ex.

THERE has been only one house in this place that has as yet refused to pay us our price for job work. We aim to do work for a reasonable figure, at a living price, and have not come here to work for fun. Of course there is a class of work that can be done in Fort Wayne, cheaper than we can do it. For instance, an order for 10,000 or 20,000 dodgers, can be filled at less expense where steam is used than elsewhere. But where the number is confined from one to five thousand, we we can do it at about the same figures. A new establishment started up at this place a few months ago, and solicited the patronage of the public. They want the people here to patronize them, but when they want a job of work done they go to Fort Wayne. Now, we deprecate this matter, not because of the job, but because its a bad example, especially for those who have recently come before the public for patronage. If our price was exhorbitant, even then the policy would be a bad one. There is another feature we wish to mention at another time.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne Ind.

ROTHCHILD BROS

FOUR cart loads of Clothing received at the popular Red Front, No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind. Store crowded from first to third floor. Largest stock in the State and they must be sold. Greater inducements than ever offered before.—Prices so low that none dare to attempt to compete with us. Everybody acknowledge that the popular Red Front is a success, and are selling goods lower than any house in the State. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

A FINE rain to-day.

The B. & O. R. R. Reports.

We have given the reports of the two lines of the proposed extension of the B. & O. road. The report will be read with interest by nearly every citizen of this county. It will be seen that the South line is somewhat shorter than the North route, and can be constructed at less cost. As it is eight miles the shortest line, it has less bridging and the cost of construction nearly one thousand dollars less on the mile. The great wealth of material which has as yet had no outlet will be developed by this line, yielding more than the local frieght, which is the boast of the other line, can ever do.

A pretty good knowledge of the country on both lines causes us to express an opinion that this must always be the case, and that this line has many advantages and no disadvantages. The towns on the northern line are abundantly able to do a vast amount of blowing, and they will become pretty well inflated by the time subscriptions are asked, and then there'll be a grand explosion, but no fire works. It will be seen that on the north line all the trade of the country is already established and controlled by other lines, while the southern one opens up a new means of transportation to some of the finest towns in Ohio and Indiana, untouched by an east or west road. Both routes have many points to reccommend them and the probabilities are that the shortest line will decide the location.

Sedan Brevities.

A Musical Institute is now in session at this place, under the management of Prof. Straub, of Lansing, Mich. The Professor comes to us well recommended, and we have no doubt the Institute will prove a grand affair.

A GRAND Ball and Oyster Supper, will be given at the Sedan House, to-morrow eve. (Friday). Good music will be in attendance and the invitation is extended to everybody.

G. M. C.

SHOOTING MATCH.—A brilliant Shooting Match took place between two of our citizens last week. Mr. Jacob Grogg, formerly of Stark County, Ohio, and champion gunnist of the two States, a gunner who has never been beaten before, and our common, sober, and unpretentious friend, Enoch Weaver, were the contending parties, and considerable speculation was indulged in as to the result. The first named, started in the contest with an excellent reputation as a marksman, having never been beaten during a long residence in Stark County, while the latter had nothing to back him but a little local celebrity, gained by many hard knocks with the hardy pioneers of the county. This gave the gentleman from Stark County a decided advantage, and the public generally was confident of his success.

The test of marksmanship was to start at a given hour and return the same way, and see which could kill the most squirrels. The gentleman from Stark appointed the day, and the parties started, the one buoyant with the hope of success and the other a "leetle" shaky as to the result.—Many speculations were indulged in during their absence, and bets of two to one were freely offered in favor of the gentleman from Stark.

Finally this gentleman arrived and heads were counted, and fifteen of the frisky creatures, lay Stark-dead, before the critical eye of our friend, Geo. W. Stahl, the Umpire on this occasion. Fifteen! 'twas enough, and the mighty Nimrod was grasped by the hand as the lion of the day.—The fastidious Stahl, however, kept turning the lettle "varmints" over, as if to determine the cause of sundry perforations somewhat behind the ears, but Geo. kept his own counsel. Now speculation ran rife, and a scene of wildest confusion would have ensued had not Stahl gave one of his gentle smiles, that as much as said, "you look a lettle out." The most liberal minded gave the opposing party six to eight as the highest possible number to be attained, and everybody felt confident.

At last the other party "hove" in sight, and hundreds packed to the place of meeting still confident. That little man Enoch with black eyes, got out of the buggy as cool and collected as the game he had secured, but there was someting in that eye that said just the same as Stahl meant when he smiled. The game was deposited upon the sidewalk and instead of there being six or eight, as many had fondly expected, there was only thirty-five! What a fall there was, my countrymen, and the cry of fraud was raised, but it would'nt win. Some whispered that several men had been employed by the victorious party and we think an investigation should be had immediately. We don't wish to be understood that Enoch would do such a thing, but those black eyes mean something. Stahl tried to under-estimate the victory by saying that Enoch's game was all shot in the head, instead of behind.—We trust this matter will be sifted to the bottom, and the true facts arrived at

NEW YORK OBSERVER.—Those who wish to take a religious paper, sound in its principles and fearless in the advocacy of the truth—which at the same time has a Department of Secular News, and expresses freely its views on public affairs, maintaining the right and denouncing corruption wherever it is found—will find it in the New York Observer.

The Publishers announce that it will enter upon its Jubilee Year in 1872, and that the event will be signalized by the issue a New Year-Book, and encyclopedia of information and statistics in regard to the church, and civil and business affairs, such as can be gathered only from an extensive Library. This will be sent free to every subscriber to the paper. Copies of this paper and a prospectus of the Year-Book sent free to every one who will apply. New subscribers will receive the paper free until January 1st.

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them. Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying everything before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

OUR genial friend Mr. Nash, local editor of the Democratic Pharos, of Logansport, gives the following in the last issue of his excellent paper:

"Auburn, the county-seat of DeKalb county, is a pleasant town of ten or twelve hundred inhabitants. It is rapidly increasing, and the improvements are of a substantial character.

T. C. Mays, Esq., formerly of Ft. Wayne is publishing the COURIER, a lively paper with a good advertising patronage. Mr. Mays has a fine job office, and gets all the work he can do. He is a practical printer and knows how to manage a paper.

The Court House is a fine building, and was considered fire-proof previous to the late conflagration at Chicago.

Wm. McIntyre, Esq., County Auditor, is a good officer and a pleasant gentleman. He is houest, capable and obliging, and is highly esteemed by the citizens of DeKalb of both political parties.

J. R. Lanning County Clerk, has held the office for four years. He was triumphantly re-elected last fall, which fact proves his efficiency and popularity. He is a man of sterling qualities and possesses the confidence of the entire community.

F. D. Ryan, Treasurer, Jeremiah Plum, Sheriff, and D. Z. Hoffman, Recorder, are clever gentlemen and competent officers. In short, few counties in the State are so fortunate in the selection of their public servants as DeKalb.

Auburn is surrounded by a rich, fertile country. The farms are well improved, and a large amount of grain is shipped over the Ft. W., J. & S. R. R., which connects with the D., E. & I. road at this point The country along the entire route, from Logansport to Butler, is rich and well improved.

We congratulate our citizens upon the prospects for the speedy completion of this important thoroughfare.

WHITNEY'S MUSICAL GUEST for November is as usual promptly at hand, and we are anticipating a delightful evening's recreation in listening to the excellent new music contained therein.

With a glance through its pages we notice some very interesting articles, editorial &c., and also an announcement of the publisher, offering to send this valuable musical monthly on three months trial for twenty-five cents, giving over four dollars worth of music, and a fine opportunity for all those who subscribe for 1872, before Jan. 1st., will be sent this and the December numbers free. Surely now is the time to subscribe; $1,50 per annum, specimen copy 10cts. Address the publisher, W. W. Whitney, Toledo, O.

Teachers' Institute.

The DeKalb County Teachers' Institute for 1871, will be held at Corunna, commencing on Monday, November 13th, and continuing five days. Ample preparations have been made by the citizens of Corunna and vicinity for the accommodation of all.

Those teachers wishing to obtain license should be present the entire week, as it will be necessary to examine in one or more branches each day, so that the work may be complete by Saturday noon, in time for return trains.

It is to be hoped that as many as possible, will avail themselves of this opportunity for improvement.

JAMES A. BARNS, Exam'r.

THE warm days and cold nights remind us that—

> " It is the Indian summer time,
> With nights of haze and noons of glory,
> When autumn, with her hues sublime,
> Paints, alas! poor summer's story."

WHY is it that the great rush for clothing at the original Red Front No. 5, Keystone block?

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

Store crowded from morning until night with customers, but nevertheless come and see us. We will wait upon you and sell you clothing 20 per cent. lower than any other house and defy any one to compete with us. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, the original Red Front Clothing House.

INSURANCE.—Those desiring insurance from loss by fire, can now be accommodated. We have been appointed agents for the Phœnix of New York, a company representing a capital of $1,800,000. Call at the COURIER office. tf.

Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON,
261 South Third-st., Williamsburg, N. Y.

The Newark (Wayne Co. N. Y) Courier, an independent sheet, places at the head of its columns the Democratic State ticket, and announces its hearty support, for the reason that they are abler men than the Radical nomineess, and that they stand on a better platform.

A Rich Story.

A Parksburg paper says that several members of the Legislature took the cars at Grafton late one evening, for Wheeling and among the number was Mr. G., of somewhat large proportions physically, and Mr. D. of proportions under size.

These two—the stalwart Mr. G. and the smoothed-face little Mr. D.—took a berth together, it seems, in a sleeping car. The little man lay behind, and the good natured, waggish Mr. G. before.

Mr. D, was soon sleeping and snoring furiously. Mr. G. more restless under his legislative burdens, soon rose and was sitting by the stove, when an elderly lady came abord and desired a berth.

'All righ, madam,' said G., 'I took a berth with my son, and you can occupy my place in that berth where my little boy is sleeping.'

Taking Mr. G. at his word, the lady disrobed and lay down with the boy.

After a quiet repose of some time, the boy, Mr. D. got restless from some cause, and began to kick aroun to the annoyance of the old lady, so, in a maternal manner, she patted him on the back and said to him:

'Lie still, sonny, pa said I might sleep with you.'

'Thunder and lightning,' cried the legislator; 'who are you? I am no boy, I am a member of the West Virginia Legislature!'

It is said that the old lady swooned, and could not be brought to till D. promised that G. should be impeached.

D. swears the thing shall not rest at this point.

What action the legislature will take for the purpose of protecting its own dignity remains to be seen.

☞ The Radicals try hard to find fault with the Rochester Convention. They are indignant that there was not a free fight and smashing of heads, as at Syracuse, and a bolt. The Democrats of the state present a united front, and being united, victory is certain.—N. Y. World.

The Courier.

[illegible] 1871

Two hundred colored emigrants arrived at Fortress Monroe on Saturday, from Virginia, and took passage for Liberia.

Three women, V. C. Woodhull, T. Claflin and Mary E. Leland, registered their names to vote in New York, but they were refused.

The United States Government is now paying a pension to the widow of Wm. Tell, a [illegible] descendant of the Swiss hero of that name. He served in the late war.

Seven convicts escaped from Jeffersonville prison last Wednesday, but were recaptured after an exciting race. They were flogged and locked up in their cells.

[illegible], of Bucyrus, Ohio, was accidentally killed by the discharge of his gun as he was thrown from his wagon, while out hunting recently.

Gen. [illegible] Williams of this State, has concluded an engagement with the Japanese Minister, and will go to that country for the purpose of organizing the internal revenue system there, similar to our own.

Judge Laird, of the Vanderburg Circuit Court, has decided that the fee and salery bill so far as it applied to auditors sheriffs and clerks, is inoperative and void, on the ground that it is in violation of the constitutional provision that taxation shall be equal, because this indirectly taxes these officers.

On Monday a little girl, thirteen years old, named Anna Stacy, three miles from New Albany, Indiana, was attacked by a negro as she was returning from school. Her screams alarmed her father, who ran to the rescue, but fell dead before he reached the spot from a paroxysm of heart disease. The negro escaped.

The Michigan State Relief Commission have published a circular, stating that the contributions of clothing from all parts of the country for the relief of the suffers by the fire in that State have been so generous that the stock now on hand and in transit will fully meet the wants of the suffers for the articles of clothing. What is still needed is building material farming utensils, and provisions or money for these purposes.

The captains of the whalers Arctic, Grayhed, Minerva, Eliza, Swift, Reindeer, Engina and Paica, who had arrived at Honolulu, furnish the following details of the loss of a whaling fleet. The vessels commenced arriving at Cape Thadeus the first of May. The first of June the ice opened and let the fleet up to within sight of Cape Navarino. The fleet in working northward found some whales crossing the Sea of Anadyr. In Behring Sea they were more plenty, but there was much trouble from the ice. and when the fleet arrived at Cape Behring and Plover Bay, the whales had passed through into the artic, whither the fleet followed, meeting with fair success until about the the first of September. when ice floes and bergs, to a great extent, commenced drifting down, and by the tenth a number of vessels had been sunk and the bulk of the remainder hemmed in; drifted on, and were driven ashore September 2. The brig Comet was stove and sunk on the seventh. The Roman was drifted bodily out to sea by the floes, and crushed like an egg shell. The crew narrowly escaped. The Florida and Victoria of San Francisco, were crushed. Septembe 13, the Captain of the fleet hemmed in between point Belcher and Wainwright inlet, held a meeting and resolved to abandon the vessel in order to save the lives of the crew, which was done, and twelve hundred sailors took refuge on board the remainder of fleet, which had been fortunate enough to escape outside before the ice closed. All of the abandoned vessels, it is believed, will be a total loss, there being little chance of recovering even the cargo in the spring. The captain of the Florida arrived here by the Moses Taylor. The news created the greatest excitement at Honolulu and here.

The New York Tribune says: "The colored population of Pennsylvania number 65 294, and the colored vote, by the ratio of one to six. is less than 11,000." Correct. But 26,000 negro votes are claimed to have been cast at the late election, and that saved the State to the Radicals. This was a bold, monstrous fraud, even according to the showing of the Tribune, and yet it is on pa ar with all the acts of the Radical party. They rule by "arithmetic, not ballots."—Philadelphia Age.

Here is an item for the advocates of protection to put in their pipes: "The foreign capital now invested in the steamships which ply between New York and European ports is estimated at upwards of $28,000,000 paying a highly profitable and increasing per centage to the owners, which, for the greater part, comes out of our pockets. The American capital invested in the same business is 0, owing to the fostering care of 'protection.'"

We Take the following on the death of Mr. Widington of Fort Wayne, from the Sentinel of that City.

The deceased was born on the 29th of January, 1871 in the town of Acclesbill, England, and emigrated with his father to America, August, 1832, and settled in Erie, Pa. remaining there until 1833, when they removed to Fallston, Beaver Co., Pa. In 1837 they went to Eastbrook, Lawrence Co., Pa., and lived there 1844, when the son was apparenticed to Nicholas McGowan, of New Castle, Pa., to learn the carpenter trade, where he remained at work until the great fire at Pittsburgh, in 1845, when he removed to that city, and was employed by the Ohio & Pennsylvania Railroad. He was the first carpenter that ever done work on that road. He remained with said company, until its consolidation with the Ohio & Indiana and Fort Wayne & Chicago Railways, when he came to this city, in the year 1857, under appointment as Master Car Builder Car Inspector, which position he successfully filled, until his last illness.

Tom Scott for President.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has suddenly about faced on Pendleton, and is now laboring might and main to bring about the nomination of Tom Scott, of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, for President. Its chief reason for this selection is Scott has proved himself a great financier, and given evidence of powerful executive ability. This is about as much to the point as it would be to go for Grant because he has shown greater ability as a present-taker than any man on the western Continent We think that the change in the Enquirer—whatever it may be—went off a little prematurely, and the recoil may prove disastrous. We don't see how we could conscientiously take any of the Pennsylvania Central Rail Road in "ourn." That corporation already has the reputation of controlling sever-State Legislatures and a strong bearing upon the Congress of the United States, and in our opinion, it would not be advisable to put its chief at the head of the General Government. While we are willing to allow railroad corporations all their just rights, we believe it is good policy to guard against their encroachments upon the rights, and liberties of the people. Most certainly it can not be out of order to protect the weak in stead of adding to the strength of the powerful. Even now it is worse than useless for a single individual to attempt to cope with any of these railroad corporations. The powerful corporations are fast swallowing up the weaker ones, and in a short time, unless checked by some means the entire line of Railroads in the United States will be monopolized by them; competition will be out of the question, and they will have full sway, and in reality be the rulers of the country, and we can't be a party to the scheme of foisting upon the shoulders of the people, a man who may be the instrument used to enslave them

It is really suprising to see a paper of as wide a circulation, and for as much influence as the Enquirer embarking in such a course, which is entirely contrary to its former course. We have long regarded the Enquirer as a power in the land, and the organ of the Democratic party of the West, and are indeed astonished at its course in this matter. Mr. Pendleton has been its first choice so long that we considered the matter settled that it would advo cate his claims in preference to all other prospective candidates, and therefore this sudden veering round, and change of tactics is all the more mystifying.

In any event we do not see the wisdom in the selection of Col. Thomas A. Scott as a sutiable Presidential Candidate for the Democracy in the Campaign, and we think the sooner the idea—and all such ideas—are abandoned, the better. 'Policy' is the band to be played, wait until the proper hour arrived for such showing. In the meantime keep a scrutinizing eye upon the skirmish line, where the enemy is in force and study his weak points, and tie to no man, for the one who may seem the strongest to-day, may be utterly unavailable six months hence.

Grant is building a stable for his horses to cost $150,000, to be taken out of the public treasury. Time was when John Quincy Adms was threatened with political damnation for having a billiard table in the White House at a cost of a few hundred dollars.

A late number of the Washington Patriot says: There have been some informal conversations here between prominent Conservative Republicans and Democrats on the subject of the nominating Judge Trumbull for the Presidency, and it stated that the subject will be further seriously discussed at a day not far distant."

DRY GOODS.

The Trade of Fort Wayne—A Business House and Stock of Goods Worthy the Attention of All.

One of the largest and most extensive dry goods establishments in Northern Indiana is now under the management of C. Orff & Co., on Columbia-st Fort Wayne.

Year after year this firm have been increasing their business, adding new clerks, enlarging their rooms, purchasing a larger and more varied stock, until they have at last become one of the leading Dry Goods firms in our State. As arranged since the enlargement last summer, we doubt if there is a in Indiana than the one they now occupy. The first floor consists of an east and west room, 22x110 and 20x110 feet, and connected by three arches so arranged as to make the rooms even more convenient than if one apartment. The counters are of the finest black walnut, fitted with seats for customers; the shelving is capped with a finely finished cornice, and the entire room presents a bright and cheery appearance which few salesrooms, packed to repletion with goods, possess.

As we enter the east room of these capacious apartments, our attention is attracted to the department, presided over by Messrs. McCurdy and Steer, two gentlemen who seem to understand both the demands and wants of their customers. Here, in unlimited quatities, are displayed the richest silks and poplins, velours and satennes, empress cloths and plaids, and the finest black alpacas in the Market of which a specialty is made. More than one hundred feet of counter is occupied in this department, opposite which is nearly the same amount devoted to the

LADIES' FURNISHING GOODS,

presided over by two very fine looking and efficient young ladies, Misses Aggie Muirhead and Mollie Stapleford Here are corsets, ladies' underwear, genuine hair curls and switches which the ladies acknowledge are a novelty in our city, laces, embroideries, collars, velvets and ribbons in endless variety. Immediately in the rear of the Dress Goods and Furnishing Goods Department, are the one of the most attractive divisions of the east room. Show cases are filled with Ostrich feathers, birds of paradise, flowers of every variety, diminutive but knobbily trimmed hats, bonnets for old and young, all of which are arranged much care and taste by Mrs. Noll and the Misses Nycum, Woolsey and Limes, who have charge of this part of the ertablishment. It is worth one's time to visit this department if for nothing more that to observe the richness and fine display of the goods, and study the different and ever varying styles.

MILLINERY GOODS,

But our purse is not long enough to remain looking in this room where are gathered all the luxuries of dress, and we passed through the middle arch to the west and formerly the only room, and seated ourselves at the counter of the department of the substantial over which presides those very worthy and popular gentlemen, Messrs. Klusman and Kanne. But the room is thronged with people from city and country, we are jostled first on one side and then on the other, so beat a hasty retreat, taking time only see an extensive array of prints of every make, ginghams, striped dennins, ticks, &c., Nor are we treated any better in the department of notwithstanding Messrs. Ford and Kellogg and Miss Corcoran would very gladly have shown us an immense stock of ladies' and gentlemens' gloves, Kid, Silk, Berlin, Lisle Thread and Merino. Ladies' Misses' and Childrens' hoisery, gents' underwear, collars, buttons, &c. But they haven't time. Customers must be waited on, and we allow ourselves to be pushed and jammed along to the department, where we find Mr. Lange industriously at work selling beavers, chinchilla cloakings, broadcloths, doeskins, jeans, cassimeres, and many other kinds of cloths whose names we never heard before and shall never be able to recall again. Quantities of Dayton cotton yarns, Kentucky carpet warp, noted for being the best in the country, and cotton-batting were piled up ceiling high, but rapidly disappearing in packages carried away by the numerous customers. The attractions at the rear of the room, however, are too great to detain us long here, and we hurry through Mr. Frank Cornell's department of

NOTIONS,

WOOLEN GOODS

FLANNELS AND HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

taking a glance only at some very fine white Marseilles quilts, ranging from $1.50 to $5.00 each

THE SHAWL DEPARTMENT,

presided over by Mr. John Cornell is one of the nicest and richest in the store. Here are found shawls from the highest to the lowest price, and from the richest to the poorest quantity. Paisley and broche, ranging from $10 to $100, striped ottomans long and square, and plain shawls; also flashy scarfs, balmorals and felt skirts, trimmed with velvet and rich in novel designs, laces for curtains, ranging from 35 cents to $1.25 per yard, and many other articles as attractive to look at as they were fine in texture and reasonable in price. We left them only to visit the still more attractive department of which is presided over by the Messrs Noll themselves. Here is something rich indeed, and not until we had priced many articles were we content to go to the second story. Astrachen cloaks from $35 to $59. Polanaise and velveteen garments, to which particular attention is given, from $15 to $50.

Here is also kept a large stock of furs of every description for children and eveybody else. They have plain childrens' sets at $2.50 White Ermine sets for children of rich and novel designs from $2.50 to $15.00; Six Striped Alaska Mink ladies' furs from $4.50 to $7.00 per set; Black Coney from $1 00 to $4.00 per set; Fitch from $5.00 to $22.00 per set; Mink from $25 to $150; White Ermine from $25 to $35; Russian Sable from $15 to $25. Astrachan and Squirrel sets in all conceivable styles and prices. Their line of furs is very heavy, and as will be seen, comprises everything which can be placed in that category.

Passing to the second floor, we come to the wholesale Millinery Department, in which a mammoth stock is kept on exhibtion consisting in part of rich plumes, elegant laces, (blond, pearl and English) costly silk and tabbly velvets, choice velveteens crapes, in fact everything pertaining to the wholesale millinery trade. We also noticed corsets, velvet ribbons, lace collars, (very elegant) all kinds of ladies' fancy goods, besides soaps, switches, curls, &c, &c. They carry, too, an immense stock of furs, from the highest prices to the cheapest in the market. This room is 42 by 110 feet in size, and is literally crowded with choice goods. The entire department is under the charge of Messrs. Frank J. Noll, John Phillips and J. Selby, and they are kept very busy in attending to this branch of the business, in which the sales foot up an immense aggregate. The wholesale dry goods trade is also an important feature.

The third floor is used for packing goods for shipment, while the fourth floors are used for storage and sleeping department.

One thing we noticed worthy of mention was that throughout the entire building everything has been reduced to the most perfect system. Of the 34 clerks, (21 gentlemen and 13 ladis) not one was absent from his or her special department, all the goods were in the best of order, and the whole establishment showed that excellent management and skill were at the head of affairs. Such business houses are an honor to this city, and while we have them (and there are many of them) no reason exists why Fort Wayne should not be the center of a trade unrivaled by any city in the State.

Jeffersonville has built more houses this season than in any year of her existance, Nearly three hundred houses erected, and still the work goes on.

An eloping couple from Kentucky rode ninety miles in a carriage to Vevay, and received their reward at the hands of a minister of that place.

The Potter estate, involving properly in England to the amount of $60,000,000, is about to be settled. Mrs. Given, and Mrs. Havilon, of Clinton county are the heirs.

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

REMOVED.

We have moved our quarters to the building north of the Court House, on Seventh street, where we will be pleased to see all our frien ds, and especially those who desire to pay their subscriptions.

T. B. TOTTEN keeps the finest brands of cigars, always on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS, of the series now in use can be had at the Pioneer Drug Store.

THE Indianapolis Mirror winds up the Evening Journal of that city in a red hot article. "Give 'em, Hill.

SCHOOL.—The Auburn Public School will open on the 27th inst., with a well known corps of teachers.

COLD, freezing, stern winter made its appearance yesterday, in the shape of piercing winds and frozen mud.

THE ERECTION of a three story brick block in place of the wooden row, now far behind the age, is contemplated next spring.

THE patent pie-lifter is the neatest, handiest contrivance out, only 20cts at Davis' Hardware Store.

J. RAINIER, our popular livery man, returned from an extended visit to Illinois, last week.

SUMMER suits are out of date, but law suits are still fashionable. They generally wear on everybody except the attorneys.

OUR subscription list is steadily on the increase. Reader, do you take a paper? If not subscribe for the COURIER, and be happy.

TOTTEN keeps up with the times by keeping a fresh supply of groceries and provisions which are always of the very best quality.

WITH the first of January, fast approching, comes leap year. Old bachelors beware of the fascinations of the beguling fair damsels.

HALF SHEET.—Owing to our having to move our material last week, to the building we are now occupying, we are unable to issue more than a half sheet this week.

Now comes the season spoken of by Artemus Ward, when he said that, as a slap jackist, his wife Betsey Jane was a grand-successist.

SMITH & HARE have been supplying our citizens with a choice article of fresh fish which seem to be very acceptable, from the way they go.

HOUSE-CLEANING, sausage and buckwheat cakes are now in order, though the first of these is always sure to be followed by dis-order.

THE stave factory of Jones & Colton, at Roanoke, Huntington county, was destroyed by fire. Loss $4,000, nearly covered by insurance.

REV. E. M. BAKER, of Waterloo, filled the pulpit of the M. E. Church, last Sabbath, to large audiences, and to the satisfaction of all present.

Lafayette was enshrouded in a 'London particular," Saturday. The fog was so dense that frequent collisions between pedestrians and vehicles occurred.

WE have been favored with a dollar store during the past week. Business, however, was dull in that line, and the "she-bang" did'nt stay long.

J. J. GRAFTON, Esq., the energetic Superintendent of the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, will establish his headquarters at this place.

WOOD.—We want those who intend to pay their subscription in wood to bring it along immediately. Its getting cold, and we can't very well do without it.

MR. J. SMITH, of the firm of Smith & Hare, started for Ohio last week, and some surmise that he will not return single handed. Who knows?

Two horse theives were shot near Plymouth in Marshall County, about a week ago. One of them, Henry Cook, was slightly killed, and the other instantly wounded.

A FARMER in Whitley County has built a thirty barrel cistern, which he will fill with cider, and place a pump therein so that when his friends visit him, he can pump them a glass of cider.

THE boiler of the engine used in the large blacksmith shop of the P. F. W. & C. Railroad, at Fort Wayne, exploded last Thursday morning, injuring a number f employes. Mr. Welch, the engineer, died of his injuries last Saturday.

MR. MOLLOY has sold the subscription list, material and "good will" of the South Bend Union to J. D. Osborn, of Goshen, and H. S. Fassett, foreman of the Banner office of Ligonier. The transfer to be made on the 25th of next December.

LADIES visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

The finest and best stock of Beaver and Children's Over-coats to be found in the city, is at the Original Red Front, No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind. Remember the number and do not be 'beat by small concerns.

We are not in favor of the honest man that will do the State printing for the least money. We are in favor of an honest man that will do it for a fair reasonable price, no more, no less. A State as well as an individual should pay a fair compensation for services rendered.

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying everything before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

D. L. QUIRK, Esq., was in town last Tuesday, in company with Mr. Grafton, looking up the interests of Eel River road

LAMPS.—The prettiest lamps we have seen yet, are now on exhibition at Davis' Hardware Store. They are handsomely mounted, and are ornamental as well as useful. Those wanting a nice parlar lamp should go and see them.

SIDE WALKS.—Some of our side walks are very bad, and ought to be replaced by new ones without delay. The muddy season is about setting in, and the Marshal should insist upon property holders making the necessary repairs.

MURDER TRIAL.—The trial of Barkdall, for the murder of his wife in Whitley Co., sometime ago, was commenced last Monday at Columbia City. Two days were consumed in taking evidence, and it is thought that the jury will agree to a verdict of murder in the first degree.

MERCHANTS, generally, are crying Clothing is going up, but the popular Red Front Clothing say they are cheaper than ever. We advise all in need of Clothing to call in and see the mammoth stock, and see their low prices. No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana, is the only SHOES.—Our enterprising merchant, C. S. Hare, has just received a very nice assortment of slippers for the little folks, which is unique and novel, and very cheap It is put on and off without the usual trouble of lacing, and will be found very convenient for indoor wear. Go and see them.

OUR popular Dry Goods Merchant. S. Lauferty, is receiving new goods every week—no old goods that has been laying on the shelves at Fort Wayne, for the last five years, but new fresh goods from New York direct. Patronize those you know to be honest and enterprising, and who have accommodated you in the past.

THE good things for winter are coming and the trees are all leafless and bare; so when the cold winds commence booming, you can just bet we'll go for our share. No roving the streets in the evening; no club-rooms to mix up in ours; but we'll join in social home comforts, and thus pass the winter eve hours.

ONE of our citizens went east a short distance, the other day, for a tick full of straw. The first man he asked had several stacks and a barn full of this material, but refused to give the above quantity because he could'nt spare it. Some people would grow rich if they were never asked for anything It ain't right to make such heavy demands as the above.

HERE is a good one on the potatoe bugs Three men were comparing notes. One says: 'There are two bugs to ever stalk.' A second one says: 'They have cut away my early crop, and are sitting on the fence waiting for the late crop to come up.'—'Pshaw!' said the third, 'you don't know anything about it. I passed a seed store the other day, and the bugs were in there looking over the books to see who had purchased potatoes.'

A COLD WINTER.—There isn't any room for doubt that the coming winter is to be an awful cold one. The weather prophets all say so; and the man is insane who disputes the prophets. They have found the moss growing thick on the trees, frogs standing on their heads, sunflowers pointing toward the north pole, grapevines running around poles instead of up them, and there are a thousand other signs to show that every human being will be frozen as stiff as a chip before February.

THE FIRST THREE STORY BUILDING.—Auburn can soon boast of a three story business house. J. W. Case, Esq., the proprietor, is rapidly pushing it to completion. It is almost ready for the roof, and when completed, will make quite a handsome appearance. This will be followed by several other blocks of the same height, next spring. New projects are forming every day for the improvement of our place.

Col. Geo. Humphrey, of this city, stopped a rebel bullet, at the battle of Stone River, during that little 'onpleastness" in 1863, and has carried it under his shoulder blade ever since. Last week the Colonel made up his mind that he could find an easier place to keep it, and called upon Dr. Gregg, who extracted it. It is an ugly looking chunk of lead, and we have no doubt the Colonel is happy that it is no longer in his body.—Ft. Wayne Republican.

THE MEN TO DEAL WITH.—Those who take papers should always read the advertisements. It is a notorious fact that the men who advertise are always liberal and courteous to their customers, and never fail to give the best bargains. Not to advertise is an indication of stinginess and a grasping disposition, which buyers should by all means avoid. Read the advertising columns of the COURIER, and find out where you are likely to obtain the best goods for the least money.

FOUR cart loads of Clothing received at the popular Red Front, No. 5, Keystone Block Fort Wayne, Ind. Store crowded from first to third floor. Largest stock in the State and they must be sold. Greater inducements than ever offered before.—Prices so low that none dare to attempt to compete with us. Everybody acknowledge that the popular Red Front is a success, and are selling goods lower than any house in the State. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

MUSICAL WORLD.—The November No. is at hand, and contains the usual amount of musical literature, and four beautiful new pieces of music—two songs and to piano pieces—all perfect gems. We do not see how any singer, player, musicteacher, or person in any way interested in music can afford to be without the 'Musical World.' Each number contains new music, alone worth the subscription price a year. Although the Publishers have enlarged the 'Musical World' to twenty-four large quarto pages monthly it is furnished at the low price of $1.00 per annum with elegant premiums, such as Pianos, Organs, Music, Sewing Machines, Chromos, Albums, &c., given for clubs, Specimen copies. containing a large amount of choice music, full list of valuable premiums, and all particulars will be sent to any one on receipt of ten cents. Address the Publishers, S. Brainard's & Sons, Cleveland, O.

$100 IN GREENBACKS LOST.—Mr. David T. Smith, left his home in Butler township, last Tuesday morning, and went to Cedar Creek Station, and got aboard the train on the Eel River road, and came to town, returning the same way about noon When he got home he discovered that he had lost a package containing the above amount, which has not yet been found.—Mr. Smith is a worthy, honest farmer and it is hoped that the money will fall in honest hands. Leave word at this office or, address him at Swan Postoffice, Noble County.

> —"The hour's now come;
> The very minute bids thee open thine ear;
> Obey, and be attendance."

The great bard of Avon was gifted with a prophetic mind. He felt that away in the dim vista of the ages, sooner or later, and somewhere the bewitching fragrance of beautiful flowers would come, and laden the air with its magnificence. That time has come. F. E. Davenport & Co. have just received a large assortment of the most excellent perfumery, consisting of some very rich new styles, of which the "Ion," takes the lead. Their large perfumery case is "chuck full," as a call at their popular establishment will soon convince you.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—That handsome Magazine, for forty-two years has been gradually extending its usefullness until now it has become the most popular of this class of publications. It is unnecessary to speak in its praise, as thousands of subscribers all over our great country are its friends and admirers. It always captivates the fair sex because of its beautiful fashion plates, steel engravings poetry stories and its other charming features.

SHODDY.—We understand that the so-called "Fort Wayne Store,' is trying to create an impression that we wanted to charge a third more for the job they took to Fort Wayne, than they paid there.—While at Fort Wayne, this week we called at the Gazette office, to ascertain whether this was correct. The Gazette charged them eight dollars, and claimed that if they had seen the amount of matter to be printed before hand they would have charged two more—making ten dollars. We offered to do the same job for nine, after we had seen the copy. If there is a difference of a third in these prices, it certainly ought to be in our favor. This is the policy they would adopt, as far as their patronage extends, while asking the patronage of the public. When this concern first started, we printed them 275 extra copies of the COURIER for two dollars and seventy-five cents. Had they gone to Fort Wayne, they would have paid three times that amount. Now, what can be the estimate placed upon a business firm that will act with such cringing meanness Their object is evidently money, with not a single interest for the institutions of our place, and yet they ask the public to help them fill their pockets. We leave it with the people whether they shall encourage such an illiberal spirit, or patronize those who are willing to live and let others live.

Teachers' Institute.

CORUNNA, IND. November 10th 1871.

MR. EDITOR:—The Teachers' Institute, at this place commenced on Monday with an attendance unusually large. Owing to the distance many had to travel and the lateness of trains no organization was effected until afternoon. Institute met in M. E. Church, at half past one p. m. called to order by the examiner, Mr. J. A. Barns. The Institute was then formally opened with prayer, by Dr. B. G. Cissel followed by an appropriate song by the Institute Choir composed of young ladies and gentlemen from Waterloo. The examiner then made a few appropriate remarks, and after reading the programme of the Institute exercises, recitations began. First exercise, Grammar, by P. V. Hoffman, followed by J. J. VanAuken in Physiology. After recess, a lecture on "The Use of the Globe," by C. P. Houser. Rev. J. G. Bowersox, then made some spirited and very pointed remarks, followed by Mr. Barns. Mr. Houser was appointed critic for the evening. Teachers were then provided with boarding places, Mr. Conrad having made complete preparations. No. of Teachers enrolled 75

EVENING SESSION.

Opened by a song by the Institute choir The time of the evening session was mostly occupied in replying to questions which had been deposited in the "Query Box" during the afternoon. It was a most spirited and interesting exercise, the more so as a large number of the teachers took part. The remainder of the time was occupied in discussing various questions particularly that relating to corporal punishment. Critic's report read. A beautiful song entitled "Good Night," by the choir. Adjourned.

MORNING SESSION.

The Institute met at 9 o'clock, and was called to order by the Superintendent, opening exercise consisted of a song by the members of the Institute and prayer by Mr. Bowersox. The roll was then called, each member responding by stating some definition or fact connected with the study of Orthography. Mr. Bowersox then occupied a short time by giving a brief but comprehensive lecture on the subject of teaching English Grammar. He referred the Teachers to the errors frequently made by teachers who are prejudiced to certain authors. This exercise was followed by lecture on the subject of teaching Arithmetic, by J. J. VanAuken. Recess.

Mr. Marlow next occupied a few minutes, on the subject of Penmanship, illustrating methods of teaching it to children followed by a practical lesson in Orthography by A. J. Keinoepl, subject Classification of Elementary sounds. The following question was discussed:

"What is the best method of preventing tardiness in schools." Various opinions were given by different teachers and a lively discussion ensued. A song by the choir after which the Institute adjourned until one and a half o'clock.

Three young men were fined at Goshen last week, for violating the fish law.

Hon. G. W. Wood and old, eminent and highly respected citizen of Fort Wayne, died Saturday. He was the first Mayor of the city.

The Rockport Democrat says that the river is so low that steamboats have to have cow-catchers made to throw the cows out of the channel.

ADVERTISING.—One or two of our home advertisers have expressed objections to our inserting Fort Wayne advertisements in our paper. While we know that these objections are not well founded, we wish to treat them with all due respect. If we had the requisite amount of home patronage, we would be content, but this, as everyone can see, is not the case. We have employed three hands during the summer whose time have been engaged principally in setting up reading matter for the paper. Now, if we had excluded foreign advertisements, it would not only deprive us of a revenue from this source, necessary for our existance, but necessitated the employment of another hand and greatly increased our expenses.

We give the usual amount of reading matter, and are enabled by this foreign assistance, to meet every expense in the publication of the paper. There is certainly not enough patronage in a small place like this to meet the usual expenses. Papers published in places several times larger than this, contain an average amount of foreign advertisements, which yield them a revenue almost indispensable. Had we several thousand prompt paying subscribers, we could afford to do less advertising, but there are hundreds in the county that do not take there own paper, and we are compelled to seek elsewhere for the means to live. Then again, the money thus paid for these advertisements is expended right here, for we have made it a rule to buy nothing abroad that can be had of our merchants at home. There are one or two advertisements that we have to take part trade for pay, and with this exception all the rest are cash. We regard this thing of patronizing home as the only true way of building up a town, and we believe we can show a pretty clear record in this respect. Whenever the patronage of the place is sufficient to support us, we are ready to exclude all foreign matter, and until then the public generally are as much interested in the success of the paper, or ought to be, as we individually are.

We have frequently given notices of the business of our advertisers without extra charge, while all notices of our foreign advertisers have been paid for. The notice of C. Orff & Co., in another column, is paid for by the line. We would much prefer to use our local columns exclusively for home business, and will do so as soon as practicable, but at present it requires an economical management to get through as it is.

THEY are considerably worked up down in Goshen concerning the Baltimore Road as will be seen from the following from the Democrat:

"The question will soon be presented to the people of this city whether we shall let the Baltimore railway and the Canada railway both go to the south of us without an effort to prevent it. For our own part we look at the question as one of life or death to the future of the place. Should these two great roads leave us a little distance, build up rival interests, cut off our trade, hem us with diminished trading limits, our future prospects are forever blighted. Let every business man—every property holder in the city—every well wisher of whatever condition in life, ponder well the alterative soon to be presented to us all—life or death!

FOSTER BROTHERS have ordered out all their advertisements in the Sentinel because we would not insert their personal abuse and strictures against honorable and respectable merchants in the city.—Under these circumstances we part from them freely—not only freely, but with pleasure. We have no respect for men who are so low in their instincts, and want nothing further to do with them. From this out, under no circumstances, for love or money, or at any price whatever, shall one line from that New York second-hand concern appear in the Sentinel, so long as we are connected with the establishment either in the Daily or Weekly. We are not to be trifled with by inhabitants from Chatham street.—Sentinel

One by one the papers of Fort Wayne are warning the people of that city and vicinity, of the shoddy concern known as the Foster Bros. That it is a place where the verdant are taken in and swindled there is no doubt, and we advise everybody going to Fort Wayne to give it a wide berth. Buy your goods of Lauferty, Ralston or Clotz, and you will get them cheaper in the end than you can at this shoddy establishment.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. On the reverse side are the words, "We Are One," surrounded by a chain of thirteen links. This is a very rare coin; not more than half a dozen are known to be in existence in this country.

WHY is it that the great rush for clothing at the original Red Front No. 5, Keystone block?

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

There are few intelligent families in which Harper's Magazine would not be an appreciated and highly welcome guest. There is no monthly Magazine an intelligent reading family can less afford to be without. Many Magazines are accumulated. Harper's is edited. There is not a Magazine that is printed which shows more intelligent pains expended on its articles and mechanical execution. There is not a cheaper Magazine published. There is not confessedly, a more popular Magazine in the world—New England Homestead.

A repository of biograpy and history, literature science and art, unequalled by any other American publication.  The volumes are as valuable as a mere work of reference as any cyclopædia we can place in our liberaries. Harper's Magazine is a record of travel every where since the hour of its establishment Livingstone and Gordon Cumming in Africa, Strain among the Andes and Ross Brown in the east, Speke on the Nile and Macgregor on the Jordan—indeed, all recent travellers of note have seen their most important discoveries reproduced in these pages, Most of our younger and many of our older writers find here their literary biography. Our artists see the best evidences of their genius and the most enduring specimens of their work in the Magazine—Standard.

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.
This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.
It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.
To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.
In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

MY FAMILIAR.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

Again I hear that creaking step!
He's rapping at the door!
Too well I know the boding sound
That ushers in a bore,
I do not tremble when I meet
The stoutest of my foes,
But heaven defend me from the friend
That comes—but never goes.

He drops into my easy chair,
And asks about the news;
He peeps into my manuscript,
And gives his candid views;
He tells me where he likes the line,
And where he's forced to grieve.
He takes the strongest liberties—
But never takes his leave!

He reads my daily papers through
Before I've seen a word;
He scans the lyric (that I wrote,)
And thinks it quite absurb,
He calmly smokes my last c'gar,
And cooly asks for more;
He opens everything he sees—
Except the entry door!

He talks about his fragile health,
And tells me of the pains
He suffers from a score of ills,
Of which he ne'er complains,
And how he struggled once with death
To keep the fiend at bay;
On themes like those away he goes—
But never goes away.

He tells me of the carping words
Some shallow critic wrote,
And every critic paragraph
Familirialy can quote,
He thinks the writer did me wrong
He'd like to run him through!
He says a thousand pleasant things—
But never says "adieu!"

When e'er he comes—that dreadful man,
Disguise it as I may,
I know that, like an autumn rain,
He'll last throughout the day,
In vain I speak of urgent tasks,
In vain I scold and pout,
A frown is no extinguisher—
It does not put him out!

I mean to take the knocker off,
Put the crape upon the door,
Or hint to John that I am gone
To stay a month or more,
I do not tremble when I meet
The stoutest of my foes;
But heaven defend me from the friend
Who never, never goes.

Advices to Writers.

We find this advice on writing given by 'Gris,' the Fat Contributor of the Cincinnati Times, and think it especially pertinent. He says:

I received the other day the following note of inquiry:

DEAR SIR:—I think I have got a tallunt into me to write. I want to try it, but do not know to begin. Yu, I know, hev had sperianse. Will yu please write and give me informashun on the following points, to-wit, namely—

What to rite on.
When to rite.
Where to rite.
How to rite.
~~How much to rite.~~
What to rite for.

With any other hint on the subject that may occur to you. Yours truly.

AMBISHUS.

I am gratified always to be able to impart any information in my power to one about to begin to write although he may never begin to write with me. Struggling genius I am prone to encourage. I am not like some in the profession, who keep all they know about writing so closely to themselves that poor people would not suspect they knew anything about it. As far as writing is concerned, chirographic pugilist that I am, I always stand ready to 'let go my write.'

'What I write on.' I generally write on a table or desk. I prefer a desk when I want to desk-ant profoundly. Some of my desk-anties are fearfully and wonderfully made.

Don't try to write on a multiplication table unless you are a complete master of figures, especially figures of speech. I have frequently written on my knees, but I am aware that many people have a repugnance to getting on their knees either to write, or anything else.

There may be occasions when you will be compelled to write on the top of your hat, but it hurts one's (s)tyle to do it habitually.

Literary men often affect eccentricities regarding what they write or. Shelley, I believe, wrote his 'Shell(ie)s of the Ocean' on his thumb nail. Byron wrote on gin, and Edgar A. Poe wrote on a drunk.

'When to write.' Write when you feel like it, but be sure you feel like it. Some people think they feel like it when they don't which produces a good deal of suffering among readers. I would lay down as a general rule for young men of 'ambition' like yours, when you can't find any employment that will pay for your salt, then write.

'Where to write.' That depends a good deal on where she is. If she were in Chicago it would be manifestly absurb to write to Montreal.

'How to write.' Is it possible that in this land of common schools there is any young man who don't know how to write? You should consult a writing master, and not me.

'How much to write.' Better leave that to the editor to whom you send your contributions. He will tell you 'How Much.'

Does Gold Grow?

It has long been thought that nuggets of gold increased in size while lying in the dirt in which they are found. M. C. Wilkinson has lately announced to the Royal Soeity of Victoria that gold, when placed in a solution of chloride of gold, in contact with organic matter, determines the deposit of liberated gold upon itself. Mr. Skey, of the New Zealand Geological Survey, has lately communicated a series of experiments, giving similar results to the Wellington Philosophical Society.

It is told of an old, illiterate resident of Posey county, Ind., that sometimes when asleep he will repeat accurately long sermons that he has heard, and lectures upon scientific subjects, of which he has not the slightest conception or recollection of when awake.

A young lady betrothed says that 'C. O. D,' means call on dad.

A Strange Cat.

Pat Maloney, better know by the name of Father Pat, on returning from work, one evening, was met at the gate by Biddy, his better half, in a high state of excitement.

'Pat,' says she, 'there's a strange cat in the cabin.'

'Cast her out, thin; don't be botherin' me about the baste.'

'Faith an' I've been frin' to do that for the matter of tin minits past, but she is beyant my reach, behind the big red chist in the corner. Will yez be after helpin' me to drive her out?'

'To be sure I will; bad luck to the consate she has for me house. Show her to me, Biddy, till I teach her the respect that is due to a man in his own house—to be takin' posession without, so much as by your lave—the thaif of the world!'

Now Pat had a special antipathy to cats, and never let pass an opportunity to kill one. This he resolved to do in the present case, and instantly formed a plan for the purpose. Perceiving but one way of egress for the animal, he says to Biddy:

'Have yez ever a male-bag in the house me darlint?'

'Divil a one is there, Pat. Ye took it to the mill wid yez to bring home some chips this morning.'

'Faith an' I did, an' there it is yet, thin. An' have you nothin' at all in the house that will tie up like a bag?'

'Troth an' I have, Pat. There's me Sunday petticoat!—ye can draw the strings up close at the top; and sure it will be better for let.in' that cat larin' ye.'

'Biddy, yer'e a jewel; just be after bringin' it to me at wanst.'

Biddy brought the garment, and sure enough it made a good substitute for a bag.

Pat declared at a glance that it was 'illegant.'

So, holding it close against the edge of the chest, he took a look behind and saw a pair of eyes glaring at him.

'A' is it there ye are, ye divil? Be out o' that now, bad luck to yez, ye thaving vagabond. Be dad, an' ye won't lave with perlite axin'—yerself will bate the pigs intirely. Biddy, have yez any hot wather?'

'Sure I've the full o' tay kettle, an' all a boilin', Pat.'

'Be after castin' the matter of a quart, thin, behind the chist, and we'll see how the baste minds [illegible]'

'Hould close, thin; here goes the steam in' hot water.'

So saying, dash went the water, and out came the animal into Pat's trap.

'Arrah, be the holy poker, I have him now, Biddy. It is nine lives ye have, ye baste! Well, now be axin' me pardon for all the thavin' ye've been doin' in my house, or it's nine lives will save ye. Biddy, save hould o' the poker, and whilst I shoulder the bag, jist whack the daylight out o' the baythin' devil.'

Pat threw the bundle over his shoulder and Biddy struck about three blows to the tune of 'St. Patrick's Day in the Morning,' when she suddenly stopped.

'What smells so quair, Pat? Sure it's takes me breath with the power of it.—Oh, murther, Pat! its the divil ye have in the sack!'

Bate him thin—bate the horns off of him!'

'I'm faintin'—cast him off ye, Pat!'

'Och, murther! murther! Biddy Maloney, what have ye done? You've went and mistaken a horible pole-cat for a harmless tame cat!'

'Pat, for the love o' me, if you're convanient to the door, unclose it for I' perisht intirely. Oh, Biddy Ma'oney, that ever ye should have left ould Ireland to be smothered in this way!'

'Faith, the little villian beats the devil himself: he's ruined me house, and kilt Piddy, an' put me out of all consate wid me own self. Oh, ye murtherin' baste!'

By dint of washing, and scouring, and airing, and the burial of Biddy's best petticoat under the ground for a space of time, things were at length set to right again.

But not a little recrimination took place on the occasion, and neither of them ever forgot the expulsion from the cabin of Biddy's strange cat.

A Big Scare.

Mark Twain tells the following story by a fellow passenger, who, bantered about his timidity, said that he never had been scared since the time that he loaded an old Queen Annie's musket for his father, whereupon he related the following:

'You see, the old man was trying to teach me to shoot black birds, and beasts that tore up the young corn and such things, so that I could be of some use about the farm, because I wasn't big enough to do much. My gun was a little single barrel ed shot gun, and the old man carried an old Queen Annie musket that weighed about a ton, making a report like a thunder clap and kicked like a mule. The old man wanted me to shoot the musket some times, but I was afraid. One day, though, I got her down, and taking her to the hired man, asked him how to load her, because the old man was not in the fields.—Hiram said: 'Do you see them marks on the stock—an X and V? Well, that means ten balls and five slugs—that's her load.'

'But how much powder?'

'Oh, he says, 'it don't matter; put in four handsfull.'

So I loaded her up that way, and it was an awful charge—I started out. I levelled her on a good many birds, but every time I went to pull the trigger, I shut my eyes and wicked. I was afraid of her a kicking. Towards sundown I fetched up at the house, and there was the old man a resting on the porch.

'Been out hunting, have you?'

'Yes, sir,' says I.

'Did n't kill anything, sir—didn't shoot her off.'

'I was afraid she'd kick.' (I knew very well that she would.)

'Gimme that gun!' said the old man, mad as sin. 'Do you see that sapling, there?'

I saw it, and began to drop back out of danger. The next moment I heard an earthquake, and saw the Queen whirling end over end in the air, and the old man spinning around on one heel, with one leg up and both hands on his jaw, and the bark flying from that tree. The old man's shoulder was set back four inches and his jaw turned black and blue, and he had to lay up for three days. I haven't been scared since.'

The Ringing Rocks of Pennsylvania.

One of the most interesting and curious places in Eastern Pennsylvania is the locality known as the 'Ringing Rocks' or more popular the 'Ringing Hills,' situated about three miles east of Pottstown, Montgomery county.

The peculiarity of these rocks is that upon being struck with a hammer or stone they ring with such a clear and prolonged sound that the curiosity and interest of the most indifferent visitor is immediately aroused. One sends forth a sound like that produced by a stroke upon an anvil; another one that resembles a clear sounding bell; another the prolonged ring of a dinner-glass; still another the heavier and duller sound of the tinsmith's hammer, while some ring out but little or none at all. It is no difficult matter find several stones giving sounds that will perfectly chord with each other, and a musician night stand among them and by striking different ones probably play an air upon them.

These stones are far heavier than ordinary ones, iron, no doubt, entering largely into their composition and it has been imagined that a short distance under this vast pile a hollow place exists.

On some of the large flat ones curious marks are observed. Some bear the impressions of horses' hoofs, which appear to have sunk in several inches; one, several marks shaded like hearts; and another, a mark that would lead us to suppose that some animal had struck its claws upon it before it had hardened, and slipped back for want of hold.

A peculiar fact is that the rocks scatter ed thickly among the surrounding cedars and oaks, and in large piles on adjacent hills, do not posess this ri ging property, nor do they differ in weight and appearance from ordinary ones.

Pearls and Blackberries.

'No!' said Dr. Darling, slowly—'no, I can't believe the evidence of my own senses!' and as he enunciated the words with impressive distinctness, he looked solemnly at Harry Clifford.

He might have found a worse looking individual to fix his regards upon than this young M. D, who had taken his first lesson in bones, muscles and human anatomy, with the therapeuties belonging thereto, in the little office across the hall, and was just preparing to hang up a shingle of his own; for Harry Clifford was tall and shapely, with red-brown hair and a huge auburn moustache, and merry eyes that laughed like springs of water in the sunshine.

Dr Darling took off his spectacles, folded them and deliberately placed them in their case, still without taking his eyes from his neophyte.

Harry Clifford smiled, but he looked a little embarrassed notwithstanding.

'She would have you in a minute, if you were to propose,' pursued Dr. Darling, dropping great hot splashes of sealing-wax over a sheet of blotting paper, and stamping them with his monogram seal in an aimless sort of a way.

'Yes; but tell you, sir, I don't want to propose,' said Harry, staring at the inter-twined D. J. D.'s as if they were the most interesting things in the world.

'You don't want a pretty girl for a wife?'

'Not that pretty girl in particular, doctor.'

Nor fifty thousand dollars?' added the doctor, pronouncing the three momentous words in a manner that made them sound very weighty indeed.

'I would not object to the fifty thousand dollars itself, sir; but as a mere appendage to Miss Bradbury—'

'I believe the boy is crazy,' ejaculated Dr. Darling. 'Well, well, as the Scotch proverb has it, 'a willful man maun has his way,' and I shall interfere no farther. By-the-way, Harry—'

'Yes, sir.'

'You are going to the city this afternoon?'

'That is my present intention sir.'

'Stop at Depierre's, will you, and leave Mrs. Darling's pearl brooch to be mended. I ought to have done it a week ago; but a man can't think of everything.'

'Certainly, doctor,' and Harry Clifford deposited the pearl brooch—an old fashioned ornament of massive gold, set with tiny seed-pearls, in his waist coat pocket.

Rather a carless way to carry jewelry, young man!' said Dr. Darling, elevating his eyebrows.

'Oh, I never lose anything!' asserted Harry, in an off hand sort of a way.

The morning sun was casting bright, flickering threads of gold across the kitchen floor; the morning-glories and Maderia vines, trained across the casement, stirred softly in the mid-July air; and Ursula Percy, Mrs. Dunning's orphan niece, was busy 'doing up' blackberries.

Fresh as a rose, with dazel eyes softened to intense blackness at times by the shadow of their long lashes, and smilling, scarlet lips, she stood there—her calico dress concealed by the house wifely apron of white dim'ty that was tied round her waist, and her black curls tucked remorsely back of her ears—looking demurely into the bubbling depths of the preserving kettle, like a beautiful parody on one of the witches in 'Macbeth,' while on the whitely scoured pine table beyond a glittering tin vessel was upheaped with the beautiful jet black fruit, each seperate berry flashing like the eye of an Oriental bell.

Ursula!'

The pretty young girl started, very nearly dropping the skimmer into the preserving kettle.

'How you startled me, Harry!'

Harry advanced into the kitchen, with an admiring look at the bright face, flushed with a blush and a good deal of stove heat.

'You are always at work, Ursula!'

'I have got to work, Harry, to earn my own living,' Ursula answered, with a slight uplifting of her exquisite black brows: 'I am not heiress like Bradbury.'

'Confound Miss. Bradbury!' exclaimed our hero. 'I hear nothing but Miss Bradbury the whole time.'

'She is a very sweet young lady, Harry,' said Ursula, in mildly reproving accent.

'I dare say: but—what a lot of blackberries you have here, to be sure, Ursula?'

'Forty quarts,' said Ursula, demurely, 'Aunt Darling always enjoys them so much in the winter.

Harry put a honey-sweet globule of fruit in his mouth.

'Blackberries are a beautiful fruit, Ursula.'

'Very, and Miss Percy skimmed diligently away at the bubbling caldron.

'Especially when you are doing them up,' added the young M. D., with rather a clumsy effort at compliment.

Ursula did answer. Harry walked up to the range and took both hands in his—

'Harry, don't! The berries will burn!'

'Let them burn, then; who cares?'

'But what do you want?' she asked, struggling importantly to escape, and laughing in spited of the grave look she fain would have assumed.

'To see your eyes, Ursula.'

She lifted the soft hazel orbs to his face; then with a sudden shyness.

'Do you know what answer I read in those eyes, dearest?' he whispered. after a moment or two of silence, broken only by the hissing and simmering of the boiling blackberries.

'No.'

'I read yes!'

'Oh, Harry, I dare not. Uncle and aunt are so determined you shall marry Miss. Bradbury.'

'And I am so determined not to marry her. Is a man to be given away as if he were a house and lot, or a bundle of old clothes, I would like to know? Ursula.'

'Harry, they are burning! I am sure of it. I can smell them. Oh, do let go my hands!'

Harry Clifford directly seized up the big iron spoon, and stired the boiling depths vigorously.

'It's all your imagination, Ursula.'

'No, its not; and if they are the least bit scorched they will be spoiled for 'Aunt Darling.'

'But, Ursula—'

The creaking sound of an opening door beyond, suddenly dissolved the 'tete-a-tete.' Ursula almost pushed Harry out of the kitchen.

'You'll be on the piazza to-night, when they'll all go to the concert?' he persisted in asking through the crack in the door.

'Yes, yes, anything—everything; only go!'

And Harry went, beginning to realize that love-making and preserving did not assimilate.

'Your peral brooch, my dear? Oh, I remember now. I gave it to Harry more than a week ago to have mended. I dare say it's done by this time!' and Dr. Darling turned expectantly to our hero.

'I—I'm very sorry,' began Harry; 'but the brooch disappeared in the most unaccountable manner from my vest pocket, I know I put it there.'

'Yes,' dryly interrupted the elder gentleman. 'I remember seeing you put it there, and you assured me at the time that you never lost anything. So the brooch is gone, but Mrs. Darling may rest assured,' Harry added with a glance toward that lady, 'that I will replace it at the very earliest opportunity.'

Oh, it is of no consequence at all!' said Mrs. Darling, with a countenance that said plainly, 'it is of the greatest consequence' 'Perhaps we shall find it somewhere about the house.'

But the days slipped by one by one, and the doom of the pearl brooch remained involved in the deepest mystery. Harry Clifford brought another one and presented it to Mr. Darling, with a little complimentary speech. Mrs. Darling laughed, and pinned it into the folds of her thread lace barb she wore at her throat.

'But it's so strange what can have become of the other!' said Mrs. Darling.

It was the golden month of September that the old doctor and Mrs. Darling made up their minds to visit Miss Bradbury to tea.

'And if Harry don't come to terms now, he never will,' added her husband.

'Get out the best china and the chased silver tea service, Ursula,' said Mrs. Darling.

'And wear your pink French calico, child; it's the only becoming dress you have,' said her uncle, with a glance at the bright little brunette.

And Ursula Percy obeyed both of their mandates.

Miss Bradbury came, a handsome, showy young lady, with a smooth society manner that made Ursula feel herself vey countrified and common indeed.

'Delicious preserves!' said Miss. Bradbury.

'They are of Ursula's making,' said Mrs. Darling. And Harry Clifford passed his plate for a second supply.

'I remember the day they were brewed, baked, or whatever you call it,' said he, with an arch glance at Ursula.

Suddenly old Dr. Darling grew purple in the face, and began to cough violently. Every one started up.

'He,s swallowed the spoon!' cried Miss Branbury.

'Oh, oh, he's got the appoplexy!' scramed Mrs. Darling hysterically.

'Uncle! dearest uncle!' piped up little Ursula, vaguely catching at a glass of water.

But Dr. Darling recovered without any more disastrous symptoms.

'It isn't the spoon, and I don't come of an appoplectic family,' said he. 'But upon my word, this is about the biggest blackberry I ever came perilously near swallowing!' And he held out his wife's pearl brooch, boiled up in the blackberries!

There was a momentary silence around the table; and then it was broken by Mrs. Darling, one of those blessed old ladies who never sees an inch beyond their own spectacle noses.

'My goodness gracious! said Mrs. Darling, how could it ever come into the pressevod blackberries? I don't see—'

'But I do!' said Dr. Darling, looking provokingly knowing. 'Yes, I see a good many things now that I didn't see before.'

And Harry, glancing across the table at Ursula, was somewhat consoled to preceive that her cheek was a shade more scarlet, if that was possible than his own.

He followed the old doctor into his office, when the evening meal was concluded. Ursula did not not know now she even would have lived through it, were it not for Mrs. Darling's obtuseness, and Sophy Bradbury's surface-charm of manner, and plunged bodly into the matter.

'Doctor,' he began, valiantly; but the gentleman interrupted him.

'Ther's no need of any explanation my boy, he said. 'I know why you didn't want to mary Miss Bradbury. And I don't say that I blame you much; only I came nearly choking to death with Ursula's blackberry jam.'

And Dr. Darling laugrehed again until, had his spouse been present, sh would surely have thought a second attack of appoplexy among the inevitables.

'Little Ursula,' he added; 'well, you shall have my blessing.'

The pearls were all discolored, and the gold of the old-fashioned brooch tarnished with the alchemy of cooking; but Ursula keeps that old ornament yet, more tenderly treasured than all the modern nicknacks with which her young husband loads her toilet table. And every year, when she preserves blackberries, Dr. Darling comes to tea, and makes pondrous witicisms, and pretends to search in the crystal preserve dish for a 'boiled brooch!'

But then, jolly old gentlmen will have their jokes.

How Two Honest Men Prospered.

There are two Johns in the Fourth Ward. The last name of one begins with a G and the surname of the other commences with a C. They are chums. They are very smart men, very; but as Mark Anthony said in a particular way, they are both 'honorable men.'

They were not long ago in a very unusual condition, known as 'hard up,' by the industry and integrity they have achieved a little competency. Thus: C. met G. one day in a bar-room, their usual resort. It was a temperance bar, of course. Said C.

'Old boy, we're dreadful hard up but I know how to make a raise; sure thing.'

'No!' said G.; 'honor bright? 'I haven't anything more to my uncle except a paper collar, and my landlord's dunning me. But, really, now?'

'Yes,' replied C., 'this is the plan. I've found a man fool enough to lend me $100. The great race between Longfellow and Hembold comes off next week at Saratoga. We'll go. There'll be the heavest kind of odds bet on Longfellow, of course. I'll black Hembold and you'll be stakeholder. After the first bet you give me the stakes and I'll bet the whole amount; make you holder again, stake them again, bet again, and so on. Then we suddenly leave and divide the whole pile. D'ye see?'

'Well, you are a genius, Johny; we'll try it.'

On the day of the great contest they were on the ground. The plan worked. Soon G., as stake holder, had $5,000 in his possession—they then thought it convenient to leave before the race came off. They went. During the race they were coming to New York at the rate of thirty miles an hour, planning to rusticate until the affair blew over. When they got out of the Hudson River Railroad depot the first news they heard was, that Hembold had won! They were not astonished, perhaps—at least not more than everybody, else. They had fairly won their money! They were honest men, and need not run away. They didn't. Virtue is its own reward. Honesty is the best Policy.—N. Y Standard.

The Great Payment.

The largest sum of money every contracted for in one bargain, is the indemnity to be paid by France to be paid by France to Germany, in consequence of the recent war. It is so large that its payment disturbs the money markets of the whole worlds; and no intelligent forecast of the financial future, even in New York, can be formed without understanding the progress already made in it and that soon to be made.

Reducing the payments in every case to Amrican money, the account, according to the last advices by telegraph, stand thus: France has paid, as a contribution for the city of Paris, $40,000,000; for the maintenance of Germain troops in France, from March to October, 1871, $60,000,000; and for a first payment upon the national indemnity, $235,000,000; besides $65,000,000 allowed as the purchase money for the railroads in Alsace and Lorraine, in all $335,000,000,000. Of this, perhaps $5,000,000, must be deducted, as spent in France by the German troops for supplies, leaving $330,-000,000 for the amount of of specie actually moving to Germany, and causing the present disturbance.

There are due to Germany in the spring of 1872, $100,000,000 to be paid in six installments of $16,000,000, each beginning with January 15, the remander of $4,000,000 to be paid April 1; besides more than $30,000,-000 for interest, at five per cent, per annum, upon the r maining 6000,000,-000. The total amount of money to be transferred from one country to the other for the year ending April 1, 1872, is therefore more than $460,000,000.

Among the most interesting of the 'relics of crime' garnered in New York city is a wire window ladder, the like of which has never before been seen. It is about ten feet long when stretched out, made of steel wire about a quarter of an inch thick, with cross steps of polished wood about six inches long. The burglar gets into the room over the one which he wishes to enter, fastens the hooks to the window sill, drops the ladder outside, and runs down to the window below. Having gone through the appartment, he runs up his ladder, pulls it in, and folds it up into such a compass that he can pack it in a small hand-bag.

A word fitly spoken is like an apple of gold in a frame of silver.

The Courier.

AUBURN, IND., NOV. 23, 1871

The Democrats will have a two-thirds vote in the Virginia Legislature.

The Radicals will have a majority in the new Legislature of Mississippi but the Democrats have made heavy gains in all parts of the State.

We have as dirty a Tammany ring in this city as there is in New York. The difference between the two is that the spoils are smaller here—Cincinnati Commercial.

The great issue which predominates in our politic is well stated in that able and honest journal, the Springfield, Massachusetts, Republican: 'Tammanyism at Washington must be got rid of as well as Tammanyism in New York.'

The rains continue in the North of Shanghai. Within the last fifteen days the water has been higher than at any previous day. Twenty thousand square miles of territory have been inundated one and thousand people distroyed in New Chinag.

The October batch of Raidcal defaulters sum up as follows: The Indian fraud, $180,000; Stokes' pension fraud, $60,000; clerk in the Second Auditor's office, $108,000; Collector at Savannah, $30,000; Pension Agent at Philadelphia, $35,000; total for October, $413,000. And this was not a good month for defaulters.

We have three hundred and fifty-seven millions of legal tenders in circulation, worth in the market eighty-nine cents on the dollar. In less than three years Mr. Boutwell has shipped to England, to buy bonds due in 1881, and locked up in the vaults of the Treasury, over three hundred and eighty-two millions in gold. This is what the Republicans in their State conventions endorse when they commend the Boutwell financial policy.

New York and Philadelphia.

The cry for the last two months has been Tammany and the New York city debt. New York is a Democratic city, and as such held responsible for the acts of bad men of both parties who have not turned its municipal government to individual advantage. Gigantic as have been the frauds in New York, and immeasurably larger the outlays for public improvements, it is yet in better shape than the Radical city of Philadelphia, over which there is not a sound of discord.

New York and Philadelphia have been for years under Democratic and Republican rule—New York under the former and Philadelphia under the latter. New York has a city debt of $50,000,000. Her assets to meet this debt are as follows: The Central Park, containg 11,000 lots at $10,000, at least $100,000,000; twenty smaller parks and places, $33,000,000; ten public markets, $5,000,000; city lots not in public use, $4,000,000; water lots and Brooklyn lots, $1,500,000; seventy piers, North and East Rivers, $5,000,000; Croton Aqueduct property, $100,000,000; Fire Department—land, buildings and apparatus, $3,500,000; Police stations, $1,500,000; Public Education—land and buildings, $6,000,000; courts, prisons and the like, with islands in the East River, $7,500,000. Total, $267,000,000.

These estimates, the New York Post says, do not include any prospective valuation of the islands, nor of the improvements projected by the Department of Docks. But it is confidently expected that plans now before the Department will make the piers, and the new lots in connection with them, almost as important a source of revenue to the city as the Erie Canal ever was of income to the State. The Times, another Radical organ, when considering the same subject, shows that nearly $15,000,000 of the debt was incurred for war expenses in paying bounties, &c., and $20,000,000, for the Croton Water-works and Central Park, thus leaving only about $18,000,000 for the other vast improvements which New York has carried out.

So much for Democratic New York with all its Tammany leaches. Now how does Philadelphia—Republican Philadelphia—stand? This is the condition of affairs there, stated by the Philadelphia Age. It says:

'We have a debt of $50,000,000 at the present time, and $20,000,000 more will be needed in the coming three years. That will make $70,000,000. We have a taxation of $3 40 on the $100, the heavest rate of taxation in the United States. What has the city to show for this vast expenditure Absolutely nothing, when compared with the assets of New York. Our assets are a few million dollars in railroad bonds, municipal buildings, unfinished park, gas and water-works. The whole is contemptible, when viewed in the light of the amount of money expended. This is the condition of Radical Philadelphia, contrasted with that of Democratic New York.'

The fine residence of Hon. Wm. Fielding, Past Grand F. A. M., at Sidney, Ohio, was burned Sunday night, Nov. 5th.

Sunday Nov. 5th, Stone & Stewart's paper mill, located at Brookville, Ind., was destroyed by fire. Loss $75,000.

The November Elections.

On the 7th inst. elections were held in 9 States of the Union. The returns come in unusually slow and no accurrte reports can be given in this issue. Uu to the hour of going to press, we received the following returns:

Illinois elected a Congressman at large, in place of Gen. Logan, and county officers. For the former position, Gen. Beveridge was the republican and S. S. Hayes the democratic candidate. Official abstracts have been received from eighty-one counties, the vote in the aggregate standing as follows: Beveridge, 99,104; Hayes, 88,516 thus giving, in the eighty-one counties, heard from, a majority of 10,588 for Beveridge. A number of the republican counties have not yet made their returns, and it is belived that the majority for Beveridge will not be less than 13,000 in the State. Logan's majority last year was 23,910. The 'Fire Proof' ticket for municipal officers of Chicago, headed by Joseph Medill, received over ten thousand majority.

New York elected the republican State ticket by about 15 221 majority. The Legislature is republican—State, 23 Republicans to 9 Democrats; House 89 Republicans to 39 Democrats. In the city the reform candidates were elected by large majorities over the Tammanyites—Gen. Franz Sigel, for Register, has over 26,000 majority. All the Tammany candidates, except Tweed, were invited to stay at home. We are pleased to note that Ledwith, the Tammany candidate for the Supreme Judge, went under. His contemptible action, in abandoning the reforms and selling out to the thieves, served him right in having been kicked out by both parties. Brooklyn elected the regular democratic ticket by about 10,000 majority.

Mississippi elected a new Legislature and local officers. The latest reports says the election was the most orderly ever held in the State. There is a large democratic gain throughout the State. Sufficient returns have been received to indicate with certainty the political complexion of the Legislature. The House of Representatives will have 67 Repnblicans, 52 Democrats, and 2 Independents. The Senate will have 24 Republicans and 12 Democrats. The Senate stood 26 Republicans and 7 Democrats: the latest House, 85 Republicans, and 22 Democrats. In all the large counties where the Republicans are strong, the Democrats put forth no ticket. The popular vote was not polled by many thousands. Gov. Alcorn will, in a few days, resign and turn the office over to Lieut. Governor Powers—Governor Alcorn goes to the United States Senate in December.

Virginia elected a new Legislature.—The returns indicate large conservative gains. Well informed politicians predict that the complexion of the next Legislature will be Senate, 50 Conservatives and 8 Radicals; House, 72 Conservatives and 24 Radicals.

Maryland elects the Democratic candidates for Governor and other State officers by about 12,000 majority—a loss of 6,000. The Republicans elected a few members of the Legislature; last year they had none.

Kansas. The indication from returns now in are that the Republicans have carried the State by increased majorities The election was for members of the Legislature only.

Massachusetts voted for Governor and other State officers. Washburn, the republican candidate, is elected Governor by about 14,500 over Adams and the two other (Labor Reform and Temperance) candidates. The labor reform and prohibition vote was less than that cast for Wendell Phillips, in 1870.

Minnesota relects Gov. Austin Rep., by a bout 12,500 majority. The Legislature retains its republican ascendancy.

New Jersey did nobly. The noble Joel Parker, Democrat, was elected Governor by over 5,000 majority. The Legislature, however, is republican, viz; Senate, 12 Republicans and 9 Democrats: House, 37 Republicans to 23 Democrats.

Wisconsin. Reports from this State indicate the election of General C, C. Washburn for Governor over James R. Doolittle by a majority of nearly 8,000. The republican State ticket has more than that number, as ex Senators ran far ahead of his ticket The Democrats have elected ten out of the thirty three States Senators, while the Republicans has sixty five out of the hundred Assemblymen. It is believed the recent calamity in the northern part of the State, which turned out hundreds of families and drove thousands from their homes, had much to do with Senator Doolittle's defeat. Prominent Republicans concede that the inhabitants burnt out were Democrats in the proportion of three to one.—Argus.

Who Knows the Most?

It is quite evident that the Napoleon people, judging from the tone of their newspapers are not satisfied with Mr. Steele's report of the survey of their line of the B. & O Railroad. Be this as it may, they criticize very severely his remarks respecting the two lines, and we infer from what they say that they are far from being pleased. As for ourselves, we think Mr. Steele, who has made the survey, ought to know the best line, and as he acts with authority of the company, we are inclined to think he knows better what the company wants than the common folks of Napoleon. It is quite plain from the reports that the engineer favors the Defiance line, and it is as plain from the reports that the Defiance line is the best.—Defiance Express.

Jasper county is in need of from ten to twelve school teachers. They pay two dollars per day.

Terre Haute speculator isn't satisfied with what he knows about farming. His corn crop cost him a dollar a bushel.

The Buntin House property, at Terre Haute, was brought by Mrs. D. C. Stunkard at a Sheriffs' sale, last Saturday, for $6,827.

But for the surgeon's skill, a piece of oyster shell would have chocked Charley Gwin to death at a New Albany hotel, last Saturday night.

Meeting of Congress.

On the first Monday in December the Federal Legislature will assemble at Washington.

Radicals having lost their two thirds vote, no further changes in the Constitution are to be apprehended. The only evils that threaten us arise from a wilful misinterpretation of intent and meaning of the last two Amendments, which, while comparatively harmless, when administered according to their original letter and spirit, have been tortured into weapons of wrong and oppression by unprincipled politicians.

The spirits of convervatism is spreading rapidly in the ranks of the Republicans, and if the Democracy act with proper prudence they may win the support of the liberal men in the opposition party, and thereby defeat the more violent measures of Radicalism.

It has been wisely ordained that there shall always be two great party politics, each acting as a check upon the other; and serving as a preventive of usurpation, corruption and tyranny. Therefore, the Democracy have a mission, although they are not of office,—have an influence on every law that is passed and every step that is taken by the powers that be; and, to increase that influence, they should seek to gain the good-will of the large body of Constitution-loving men in the Republican party.

Now is their opportunity. Allthrough the country a feeling is springing up the minds of the opposition that the rulers at the Federal Capitol have gone in too far,—a feeling born with the Ku Klux bills, and nourished by the late arrests and imprisonments made by the military in the ex-rebl Commonwealths.

Therefor, in the coming session of Congress let the Democracy seek the support of all fair-minded Republicans by adopting the following programme:

I. Compliance with the Constituti as amended since the war.

II, The restoration of brotherly love and good-will between the several sections of the country by the advocacy of impartial legislacion.

III. Universal suffrage, supplemented by universal amnesty.

IV. The payment of the public debt according to contract.

V. A traiff for revenue purposes only.

VI. An immediate return to a specie basis.

VII. A reduction of the existing rates of taxation.

VIII. The reform of the civil service.

IX. Opposition to military supremacy, and recognition of the rights guaranteed to the people by the supreme law of the land.

There is nothing in this platform to which a single objection can be uttered by any one who has the welfare of his country at heart. It sweeps away the false and pernicious doctrines of extremists North and South, and opens a future of incomparable prosperity to the citizens of our Republic.

Reception of the Grand Duke Alexis.

New York, Nov. 21, 2 p. m.—Perhaps no former occasion has Brodway been so crowded with a holiday dressed mass of people as it is this moment. There are about 10,000 troops in line, stretching from battery two miles up Broadway. The display is certainly magnificent. Every one seems to be bent upon cheering. The thousands of flag-poles on Broadway are filled with flags, and the facades and windows of many of the buildings are decorated with American flags. Every available outlook on the streets is occupied by the people of both sexes The Grand Duke landed at 1:30, and after considerable ceremony, and amidst the deafening roar of cannon and shouts of welcome and cheers, he took a seat in a barouche, dressed in the magnificent uniform of a general officer of the Russian army. His staff, American and Russian admirals and other official following in barouches, the procession started, and as the Prince passed up Broadway he is loudly cheered by the people at every step, the military which line Broadway presenting arms, dipping colors, bands playing, handkerchiefs waving from the windows by ladies, the scene is one of the most magnificent and inspiring.

The United States Government is now paying a pension to the widow of William Tell, a lineal decendant of the Swiss hero of that name. The husbanp of the prisoner served in the late war.

'Chawley, will have some of this buttaw?' 'Thank you marm; I belong to the temperance society, and I can't take anything strong.'

'Pa, isn't that man what they call the spring time of life?' Why, my son?' Because he looks so very green.'

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

REMOVED.

We have moved our quarters to the building north of the Court House, on Seventh street, where we will be pleased to see all our friends, and especially those who desire to pay their subscriptions.

Do you owe for the COURIER?

The toy season has opened.

THANKSGIVING next Thursday.

NEW BUCKWHEAT flour at V. A. BEARD'S.

THANKSGIVING is coming and no turkey. Why are we thus?

WALL Paper and Window shades cheap and splendid at the Pioneer Drug Store.

BRING us that would you promised to on subscription.

NICE fresh oysters just received, only 45cts per half can, at V. A. Beards.

THE first installment of snow arrived yesterday, and it was generally a blustery day.

THE Eel River road is now shipping immense quantities of lumber out of the Eel River Valley.

BE sure and attend the railroad meeting to be held next Monday afternoon, in the Court House.

WANTED.—A dry goods clerk. One that can saw wood preferred, as that will be about all he will be required to do.

THANKS.—That capital marksman E. Weaver, Esq., and his adjutant have our thanks for a mess of nice fat squirrels, all shot in the head. Take the belt.

IF we are to judge by the immense loads with which the dray wagons are filled, we would say that our merchants are laying in an immense stock of merchandise for the winter.

WE were glad to see our old friend Isaac Teeters, Esq., of Alliance, Ohio, a brother of Justice Teeters of this county, in our town the other day, looking as large and as healthy as ever.

WOOD.—Wood seems to be in fair demand in this place. The supply falls short, and our farmers would find a good market for it just now. We would like to have several cords immediately.

THERE should be an ordinance passed requiring citizens to keep up their cows during the winter. Our farmers are pestered a great deal with the frequent visits to their wagons.

LADIES visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

WE hear of a lady in this county, recently married, who, after the marriage ceremony was over, stepped gracefully forward and requested the minister to sing, "This is the way I long have sought," &c.

WE want a good live correspondent in every township in the county. Just give us the local news, and we will put it in good shape. It is but little trouble, and will aid us materially in giving our readers a live local paper.

JOHN CRADY & Co., have established a fine restaurant on Main Street, just west of the Exchange, Fort Wayne, where all the delicacies of the season will be served in the best style. That's the place to go to get a good meal.

CHANGE OF TIME.—A change of time has taken place in the running of trains on the Fort Wayne, Jackson & Saginaw Railroad. See corrected time table. There has also been a change o the Air Line and Pittsburg roads which will be given next week.

D. E. R. & I. R. R.—We give this week the time table of the above road. Passengers remain at this point about two hours, giving them plenty of time in which to get their dinners. We have two good hotels, and all can be accomodated.

OYSTERS.—Christ Baker, our popular baker, keeps an excellent article of fresh oysters, which are received every evening by express. He is ready to furnish every one in the vicinity with the delicious bivalves at lowest prices. Those wanting a nice hot stew should call at his bakery.

To Whom It May Concern.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to Drs. Keeslar & Casebeer, either by note or account, will please call and settle the same immediately. The old books must be settled. nov22-1m

HOUSEHOLDERS CALL IN.—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

V. A. BEARD.

Sedan Brevities.

Prof. Straub's Musical Convention, closed last Friday eve, with a grand concert, which was largely attended. The Prof. is a live man and the people of this place have secured his services to teach another term, commencing January 2d, 1872 — Sensible. G. M. C.

Property-owners in Chicago are much exercised over the loss of records, and feel as though dabbling in real estate was just now a ticklish business; and while the poor congratulate themselves upon the fact that they have no warrantee deeds to sign, others are singing "when I can read my title clear," and making the welkin ring with their wailings of woe and misfortune.

November's come and now the breezes
Howl among the lifeless treeses,
Now the boy with ragged trowsers
This'ring homeward drives the cowes
His boots old, and torn his clothes is.
And bless my soul how blue his nose is.'

The person who wrote the above is dead; should have died years since; and in fact it would have been just as well if he had never been born.

WE spent a few hours in Corunna, last Friday. It is an enterprising little village, with a good country surrounding it. The Teachers Institute was in session during the week, and the citizens vied with each other to make it a success. We are obliged to A. Conrad for special favors.

FIRE.—Builders of new houses, ought to provide some way to reach the tops of the houses. A scuttle hole near the extreme top, accessible by ladder or stairs inside, will enable a person to extinguish a fire on the roof, readially. In some villages the law requires that every building shall be provided with such access to the roof. It is an excellent plan.

THE store of G. M. Bainbridge was entered on last Monday night by burglars who attempted to break open the safe with chisels. The thief or thieves stole some tools from the wagon shop of Samuel Gilbreth with which an entrance was effected by boreing a hole in a window shutter in the rear of the store of sufficient size to admit quite a large person.—Columbia city Post.

TAXES.—The time for paying taxes has arrived, and we trust that as our friends call to liquidate their claims they will not overlook the small amount due the COURIER. We do not want any subscribers on two years time, we can't afford it. One whole year of our time an money is all that any reasonable person can ask of us, and now we want you to come up promptly and pay your subscription. Come gentlemen, now's your time.

FRESH ARRIVAL.—Our enterprising druggist, J. H. Ehlers, not content with the already fine display of toys, which has attracted every one, has just received a new cargo of the prettiest toys in the market. Everything that genius can invent to please the little folks, can be found here in great profusion. The assortment is large and varied, and no one can fail to make selections that will gratify the hearts of our juveniles. Go and see them.

Rail Road Meeting.

President Collins of the Eel River Rail Road desires to meet every subscriber to the capital stock of said road, residing in or near Auburn, at the Court House, Monday, Nov. 27th, at 2 o'clock P. M.

The business will be important and all interested in the road should not fail to attend.

J. L. DAVIS, Director.

UNFAIR.—It is not fair to buy your dry goods on trust at our reliable stores, and then pay your ready cash to some new store where no credit is given. Goods can be bought just as cheap at the credit store for cash as any place else. It's a mistake to suppose that these cash stores sell the cheapest. We would rather trust a merchant who sells good goods at a fair price than those cheap places where shoddy is all the rage. Go to those who have stood the test of years and you will receive fair dealing.

The finest and best stock of Beaver and Children's Over-coats to be found in the city, is at the Original Red Front, No. 5

MISTAKE.—The LaGrange Standard is jealous because of what the Engineer's report for the South line of the Baltimore & Ohion Extension. It states that our place has a population of only 450. Why, the census taker gave us 677, and it wasn't a good day for counting either. Come, neighbor, don't try to build yourself up by underestimating others. Auburn of to-day contains nearer a thousand than nine hundred souls. If the location of this road depends upon the population of Auburn, as being nine hundred, we've got a sure thing.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.—A call at the excellent drug store of J. H. Ehlers will impress all with the fact that he is well prepared to meet all demands in his line of trade. Being a fine chemist, equal to the best in the State, he selects and prepares his medicines with an eye solely to their excellence and purchasers can rely implicitly upon his integrity. He keeps the very best of everything, and is always prompt and obliging under all circumstances.

There are some people always looking out for slights. They cannot pay a visit, they cannot receive a friend, they cannot carry on the intercourse of the family, without suspecting some offense is designed. They are as touchy as hair triggers. If they meet an acquaintance on the street who happens to be pre-occupied with business, they attribute his abstraction to some motive personal to themselves, and take umbrage according. They lay on others the fault of their irritability. A fit of indigestion makes them see impertinence in everybody they come in contact with. Innocent persons who never dreamed of giving offense, are astonished to find some unfortunate word or some momentary taciturnity mistaken for insult.

Railroad Items.

The headquarters of the Eel River Railway has been located at Auburn, under the superintendency of Jno. J. Grafton, Esq.—Ft. Wayne Sentinel.

A slight mistake Mr. Sentinel, if we are correctly informed. The "headquarters" are in this place, for convenience at the present, Mr Grafton will have his office at Auburn.—Col. City Post.

No need of contradiction there. The headquarters of the Superintendent, as inferred from the first item, is located at this place. He certainly would not have his office here and his headquarters at Columbia City. Come, Brown, don't get jealous. We ain't a bit.

A BRUTE.—Yesterday a fireman on the Air Line Railroad had a small dog in his possession which the conductor of the train desired to purchase. The fireman refused to sell, when the conductor jocularly remarked that he did not think the dog worth $5, the amount which the latter had offered him. One word brought on another, when the fireman, in a fit of rage growing out the controversy about the dog, opened the furnace door of the locomotive, picked up the poor little animal and cast him into the seething flames.—Two mournful, pitiful howls, and the poor dumb creature was no more. A wretch so heartless as the one mentioned above deserves to be tarred and feathered and rode out of town on a rail.—Fort Wayne Gazette.

RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS, By the benificence of the Great Teacher, we, the teachers of DeKalb county, have been permitted in health and strength to assemble once more in the capacity of an institute,

WHEREAS, The sacred edifice has been freely given for our use, and the citizens have offered their food and shelter without limit. And,

WHEREAS, Our lecturers and worthy Superintendent have worked manfully to prepare our minds for our coming winter's work, be it unanimously

Resolved, That as a body of instructors, we acknowledge God's Providence, and ask His continued blessing upon our future. That our thanks are due the trustees of the church for their kindness shown in giving us the occupation of their beautiful building.—That the families of Corunna, have involved us in a debt of friendly recollections which we hope never to forget—and that our lecturers, singers and examiners have won the respect and appreciation of us all by their cheerful earnest efforts for our pleasure and advancement and are entitled to our hearty wishes for their welfare in life. And,

Resolved, That the noble impulses and determined feelings generated by our pleasing associations shall not die out nor become latent but shall be freely felt to give us power in the days of need within the walks of our several school-rooms.

Respectfully submitted by your committee.

JAMES G. BOWERSOX,
ABRAHAM REINOCHL,
WM. H. MCINTOSH.

The institute adjourned.

Examinations were resumed early Saturday morning, and so perfect were the arrangements for the work, that by a little afternoon, all was completed, and the teachers dispersed to their several homes, feeling well pleased with the institute and every thing connected with it. Total number enrolled, 123.

The Examiner requests the Secretaries to express his indebtedness to Messrs. Bowersox, McIntosh, Conrad and others for their valuable assistance, and also to the editors of the COURIER and Press for their many favors, and to the citizens of Corunna for their hospitality and kindness.

Sad Accident.

Yesterday about noon, a sad accident occurred on the road leading southwest from the city, which came very near depriving a young lady of her life. A man by the name of Opliger, with his daughter Mary, were driving up East Main street in a farmer's wagon to which a double team was attached, when their horses became frightened near the 'Star Bakery,' and ran at a rapid pace some distance beyond this place, and when the man seemed to be getting the horses somewhat under his control, he accidentally dropped the reins and jumped from the wagon to seize them. He was not successful, however, but was fortunate enough to escape unhurt. The horses then went even faster than ever before, until the girl, becoming frightened, jumped from the wagon to the ground, sustaining injuries which it was feared might prove fatal. She laid on the ground sometime, perhaps three hours, until she was found by Mr. Henry Baker, who had her conveyed to a private residence, and afterwards to the St. Joseph Hospital, where she is receiving every attention from the noble Sisters of Charity. It seems that Mr. Baker was coming from his residence to the city in a buggy, when he was met by the frightened team. He jumped to the ground in order to turn his horse aside, and in so doing he accidentally slipped and fell coming near loosing his own life. Noticing the wagon to be empty he searched along the road for the victim with the result above described.—Fort Wayne Gazette.

The family of Miss Oplinger formerly resided in Jackson township, this county, and removed from there to Leo. She lived with several families in this place up to a short time ago. Her injuries proved fatal and she died last sabbath at the Hospital, in Fort Wayne.

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

JUGS.—Somebody has been writing a chapter about jugs. We give an extract. Whole paragraphs "by a jug full" have been published: 'The jug is a most singular utensil. A pail, tumbler or decanter may be rinsed, and you may satisfy yourself by optical proof that the things are clean; but a jug has a little hole in the top, and the interior is all darkness.—No eye penetrates it—no hand can move over its surface. You can clean it only by putting water into it and soaking it up and pouring it out. If the water comes out clean, you judge you have succeeded in purifying the jug, and vice versa. It is so of the human heart. No mortal eye can look into its recess, but you can judge of its purity only by what comes out of it.'

Four cart loads of Clothing received at the popular Red Front, No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind. Store crowded from first to third floor. Largest stock in the State and they must be sold. Greater inducements than ever offered before.—Prices so low that none dare to attempt to compete with us. Everybody acknowledge that the popular Red Front is a success, and are selling goods lower than any house in the State. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. MARRIAGES.

SMITH—SHEPHERD—On Thursday Nov. 10th 1871, by the Rev. Mr. Graham, at the residence of the bride's parents, MR. J. A. SMITH, of this place, and MISS. M. A. SHEPHERD, of Cary, Wyandot County Ohio.

WE wish our friend Smith, and his beautiful Buckeye bride a world of happiness, and a practical realization of those great social comforts, (we don't care how many) as they go hand in hand down the stormy path of life.

SHERLOCK—SHEARER—At the residence of Mr Sherlock, in Richland township, DeKalb County, Indiana, Nov, 18th, 1871, by Rev. W. B. Sandoe, MR. JAMES SHERLOCK, of Richland township, and Miss. SHEARER, of Jackson township, All from DeKalb County.

HYLER—KRUEGER—By Rev. W. B. Sandoe, at the Reform Parsonage, Nov. 16th, 1871, MR. WM. HYLER to MISS SOPHIA KRUEGER, both of Union Tp., DeKalb County, Ind.

PENLAND—RHODEFER—At the M. E. Parsonage Tuesday Nov 21, by Rev. A. W. Lamport MR. ASBURY PENLAND and MISS SUSAN RHODEFER all of Auburn.

DEATHS.

In Union Tp., DeKalb County, Ind., Nov. 3d, 1871 ADA ANN LIKENS, aged 2 years and 2 days.

November 15th, WARREN LIKENS, aged 10 years, 9 months and 18 days.

November 21st, FRANK W. LIKENS, aged 3 years, 8 months and 29 days.

The above were all children of Isaiah A. and Sarah J. Likens, and died with Diphtheria. The fourth and last child is very low with the same complaint. Death is holding high carnival among the children this autumn. While there is a full measure of sadness in the above still there is something lovely in this chain of providences, that which was said of Samuel and Jonathan, may be said of them "Lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided." Mortality side by side lies sleeping, but their spirits bound by the affinities of heaven have found the children' home.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Lying to Children.

I was sitting on the door-step, one warm Sabbath evening last spring, idly watching the passers-by and speculating vaguely regarding their different characters, when my attention became suddenly fixed upon three individuals—two women and a boy. As they came near I heard one woman say to the other, 'I fear it will be chilly when we return. I do wish I had brought my shawl.' 'You will need it,' replied the other, 'and I thought you had it; but don't mind, Charley will run back and get it.' 'No, ma, I don't want to,' said the little boy. 'Yes, you do,' said his mother. 'Now, go right along a good boy. You will find it lying on the bed in the bedroom.' 'But you won't wait for me,' persisted the boy, 'and I don't want to go.' 'Yes, we will,' his mother answered, 'we won't stir one step from where we stand.'

'Well, I'll go, then,' he replied, and off he started on a run. Presently he stopped and looked behind, calling out at the top of his voice, 'You'll be sure to wait for me?' 'Yes, yes, of course we will,' the other answered back. 'Now, hurry, just as fast as you can. I was watching the graceful motion of the boy, almost unmindful of the near proximity of the two women, when I heard the mother say to her companion.' 'Now, when Charley turns the corner so that he can't see us, we will walk on. I only told him we would wait to make him willing to go.'

And they did walk on, and soon the thickening shadows hid them my view.

Still I sat outside, curious to see what Charley would do when he returned. Ten, fifteen minutes passed, and then I heard the patter of his feet along the walk. (It had grown so dark that I could hardly distinguish him.) 'O, mamma,' he called out, when he came to where he had left them; 'you promised to wait for me, and you didn't. You lied to me, and I'll never believe you again as long as I live.'

Then he ran on a little farther, and again stopped, and called out: 'You lied to me, mamma, you did!' Sick at heart, I went inside. I had seen and heard enough for one evening. Methinks, could the mother only realize the awful import of her boy's words, 'You lied to me, and I will never believe you again,' that she would rather have died than decived him.

A child will learn the lesson of distrust very easily, and when once learned, how nearly impossible to be unlearned. To the mother great responsibilities are given. She may mould the character of childern almost as she chooses, and if she fails in her duty she lays up for both herself and them untold misery. If she lies to her children she cannot blame them for lying to her.

It were kinder, I could almost say, in any mother, to thrust a dagger into the heart of her child, than to sow the seeds of distrust there.

Mothers, pause and think: before you receive, even in the merest trifle, the little child Ged has given to your keeping.

Frequent instances of the cure of cancer by means of a tea made from the common red clover have been published of late; as the remedy is certainly a harmless and inexpensive one, the qualities claimed for it should be generally known. The Boston Herald says that a well know sea captain of Newburyport feels certain that he has been cured of a cancer on his nose by using tea made from red clover tops, and using the same preparation as an external application. What was considered a fully developed cancer two years and a half ago has almost disappeared under this treatment.

Tom Murray, a Chicago bootblack 11 years old, bought a $300 lot in Detroit, the other day, which he paid for in script of so small denomination that it took three hours to count it. He claims to have laid up the amount in three years from his business, but it is generally supposed that he did a little well-timed plunder during the fire.

The Chicago Tribune tells about a man named Galvin, a brick layer from Decatur who picked up a safe weighing 4,000 lbs. walked with it ten or twelve feet, and put it on a wagon. He is 5 feet 10 inches high, weighs 290 pounds and he wants to bet $500 that he can lift and carry 3,000 pounds.

A wise gentleman, who knew all about it, on retiring from business gave the following sage advice to his son and successor: Common sense, my son, is valuable in all kinds of business except that infernal love-making.

Human skeletons, with flesh and hair adhering, are quite frequently found in San Francisco, surmounted with piles of cobble stones, and they provoke but little remark. The discoverer commonly exclaims 'Damchinaman!'

An old lady fond of using big words, told a visitor the other day, 'Oh, yes, I enjoyed very poor health, and consoles myself with the reflection that I shall die of consumption some day; it is so herdictory in our family.'

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.
This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.
It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.
To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.
In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

'Keep it Before the People.'

Keep it before the people!
That earth was made for man!
That flowers were strown,
And fruits were grown,
To bless, and never ban—
That sun and rain,
And corn and grain,
Are yours and mine, my brother!
Free gifts from heaven,
And freely given,
To one as well as another!

Keep it before the people!
That man is the image of God!
His limbs or soul
Ye may not control
With shackle, or shame or rod!
We may not be sold
For silver or gold
Neither you nor I, my brother!
For freedom was given
By God, from heaven,
To one as well as another!

Keep it before the people!
That famine and crime and woe
Forever abide,
Still side by side,
With luxury's dazzling show!
That Lazarus crawls
From Dives' halls,
And starves at his gate, my brother!
Yet life was given
By God, from heaven,
To one as well as another!

Keep it before the people!
That the poor man claims his meed—
The right of soil,
And the right of toil,
From spur and bridle freed!
The right to bear,
And the right to share,
With you and me, my brother!
Whatever is given
By God, from heaven,
To one as well as another!

Puzzling a Doctor.

Mr. M., army surgeon, was very fond of a joke (unless perpetrated at his own expense,) and had, moreover a great contempt for citizen officers, who were renowned more for their courage than their scholarship. One day, at mess, after the the decanter had preformed sundry perambulations of the table, Captain S., a brave and accomplished officer, and a great wag, remarked to the doctor, who had been somewhat severe in his remarks on the literary deficencies of some of the new offiers—

'Doctor M., are you acquainted with Captin G?'

'Yes, I know him well,' replied the doctor: 'he is one of the new set. But what of him?'

'Nothing in particular, I have just received a letter from him, and I will wager you a dozen of old port that you cannot guess in six guesses how he spells cat.'

'Done! It's a wager!'

'Well, commence guessing,' said S.

'K, a, double t'

'No'

'K, a' doubl t, e.'

'No.'

'K, a, t, e.'

'No! try again.'

'C, a, double t, e.'

'No, you have missed it again.'

'Well, then,' returned the doctor, 'C, a double t.'

'No, that's not the way; try again—it's your last guess.'

'C, a, g, h, t.'

'No, that's not the way; you've lost your wager,' said the doctor, with much petulance of manner, 'how does he spell it?'

'Why, he spells it c, a, t,' replied S, with, the utmost gravity of manner, amid the roar of the mess, and almost chocking with rage, the doctor sprang to his feet exclaiming—

'Captain S., I am too old a man to be, trifled with in this manner!'

To show how the earth moves at the slightest touch, it is said that in the Pittsburgh Observatory, for instance, the equatorial instrument rests upon an immense granite pier that stands in turn upon the solid rock of the hill below, and with no part of the building touching it; and yet when the eye of the observer looks through the telescope at a constellation so far off for instance, as that of Cygnus, a finger touch upon the solid granite so light that it would not brush the down from the butterfly's wing causes the instrument to vibrate and the star to dance before its aperture.

Remedy for Smallpox.

As a number of cases of this loathsome disease are reported in different parts of Northern Indiana, it is not improbable but it may reach here, hence we give a recipe therfor by a California correspondent, which is said to have been used successful in hundreds of cases. The writer says of the recipe:

It is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It will prevent or cure the smallpox, through the pittings are filling. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also curse scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I have used it, and my children of scarlet fever; here it is as I have used it to cure smallpox when learned physicians said the paitent must die, it cured: Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two tablespoonful of water. When thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water. Take a spoonful every hour. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child, smaller doses, according to the age. If counties would compel their physicians to use this there would be no need of pest houses. If you value advice and experience, use this for that terrible disease.

The Conductor and Checker Player.

During the war, S——, a noted darught player, was on board the —— railroad, en route to his regiment in Tennessee, and, to beguile the time, was having a cozy game of checkers with a friend in the same seat with him, when the conductor, gathering his fare and noteing the game, inquired, 'who was champion?' Being informed it was a 'close thing,' he responded, 'Well, you find out who is the best player, and when I come back I'll beat him,' and so passed on. Shortly afterwards he returned, and, being informed that S—— was ahead, the conductor invited him to a friendly game in the baggage car, to which they adjourned, and making themselves comfortable on a couple of trunks, the board was adjusted between them, and the men set. When the conductor, in that complacent and confident manner which a man is apt to assume when he think a he has got a 'sure thing,' remarked:

'Well, what do we play for?'

'Oh,' said S——, 'I never gamble on the game. It is not a gambling game.'

'I know, let us play for something, just to make the game interesting.'

'I never gamble.' reiterated S——.

'Well, now,' said the persistent conductor, 'I'll tell you what we will do, We will play ten games. If I beat you the most, you are to pay for the dinners at noon, and furnish a bottle of Heidsieck. If you beat me; well, let me see—well you can dead-head on my train whenever you choose.' With an air which plainly said, 'I think I see you doing it.'

'Very well,' said S—, 'I am agreed.'

At it they went, the conductor opening the game 11 to 15, followed by 22 to 18, and so on through the single corner, when S—— moved from 12 to 15. The conductor tumbles into 24 from 27, and S——, with compassion for such lamentable igorance, gives him 16 to 10, 15 to 19, 9 to 14, and opened the conductor's eyes by landing his piece on 25 preparatory to the honors of coronation. Of course this settled the game, and the balance was not played much better, and when the match was finished the score stood:

S——, 10,
Conductor, 0.

'Well, well!' said the conductor, 'I never see the like. What's your name?'

'My name is S——.'

'What! S—— of Buffalo!'

'Even so.'

'Why didn't say so, and I'd have quit long ago.'

'Well said S——, 'I suppose I have your word and honor as a gentlemen that hereafter, if I should chance to be on your train, you will pass me to the end of your route free?'

'That is the agreement, Mr. S——, any one who knows Capt. B—— will tell you he never went back on his word.'

S—— joined his regiment, and three years afterward found himself in Cincinnati, bound homewards. Making some inquiries, he found that Capt. B —— was not only a conductor on that road yet; but took the first train out in the morning. More for the sport of the thing than anything else, S—— concluded to wait over for the captain, which he accordingly did, and neglecting to buy his ticket, he took his seat on the train, and awaited developments.

Soon after the cars had left the depot, Capt. B——'s cheery, sonorous voice was heard at the door.

'Tickets! tickets!'

'Tickets, sir,' punching S—— on the arm, who being out of uniform and somewhat tanned by exposure, was not recognized by the conductor.

S—— merely looked up at his old opponent, and shook his head in a vacant, absent manner.

'Tickets,' shouted B——, who thought he had a deaf passenger on board to deal with.

'Ain't got any,' said S——.

'Where you want to go to?' missionary?'

'Not any.'

'Capt. B——, (drawing himself up, and eying S—— suspiciously,) 'What infernal lunatic asylum did you get out of anyway?' Then as though suddenly impressed with the right idea: You're broke, buted, gone up, of stamps, eh?'

'No', said S——, exhibting a large roll of Uncle Sam's greenbacks; 'nothing of the kind but I have the word and honor of a gentleman, who never goes back on his word, that I can dead-head on this train whenever I choose, and I bet a bottle of wine that I'm right.'

'Now, then, look you here,' said the conductor, who had lost all patience; 'I am going through the train to collect my fares, and when I come back I'll give you three minutes to pay me your fare, and if you don't do it I'll throw you off the train,' and Cap R—, with flushed face and low grumb-

'Cleveland.'

'What for?'

'What for?' What, your fare, fo course.'

'Don't pay any fare, on this road.'

'Got a pass?'

'No.'

'Brakeman?'

'No.'

'Engineer?'

'No.'

'Director.'

'No.'

'Stockholder?'

'No.'

'Well, perhaps you are President of this road, the United States, or some other big corporation?' said the conductor, now getting somewhat wrathy.

'No, neither one or the other, yet I don't pay a cent on this train.'

'I'll bet you will, or off you'll get quicker than chain lightning.'

'Bet you a bottle of wine,' said S——. 'I don't pay, or ain't put off, or don't get off either, unless I choose to until I get to Cleveland.'

'Well,' said Capt. B——, softening his voice, but evidently holding in a burst of wrath, 'perhaps you are a lingo, interspersed now and then with 'tickets!' moved through his train.

In about ten minutes he returned, mad all over, and mind made fully up for the worst.

'Now, then,' (pulling out his watch,) 'are you going to pay that fare?'

'Not for Joseph,' said S——, in his peculiar drawling tones

'All right; one minute gone, two, three. Here, Dick,' calling the brakeman, 'throw this lunatic into the ditch,' reaching to pull the bell cord.

'Previous to my exit from this train,' said ——, 'I would like to ask you a question or two.'

'Well be d—d quick about it,' said B.

'Am I to understand then,' said S——, 'that you are a man of your word, one who would do as he agrees; in short, are you a person that wouldn't go back on his word, although that word had been given years ago?'

'You bet,' said B——, 'as you'll find out if you don't some down with your fare.' (Making hostile demonstrations to wards S——'s coat collar.)

'Just one question more, and I'm done. Do, or did you ever play checkers, or having played them with a stranger, in a baggage car, on this very train, some three years ago, get samefully beaten ten straight games?'

'Well, by Jove, is that you, S——, from Buffalo?'

'It is,' said S——, with a comical smile.

'All right, Dick. Beat at chequers, euchered out of a fat 'knock down' and a bottle of wine, by Jupiter. Tickets!'

Market Scene.

BY SIGNOR BLITZ.

In going through Sixth Street Market one morning I observed a middle aged Dutchman leaning against a lamp-post, with a basket of clean looking eggs before him. He seemed anxious to sell out and constantly kept up the cry,—

"Bure eggs, shentleman and vomans, sheap, sheap sheap!"

"How do you sell your eggs?" I inquired.

"Fourteen cents a tozen."

"Fourteen cents, eh?" Well, now, that is not dear if they are all good.

"Goot!" remarked the Dutchman rather indignantly. "Der isn't a pad egg in all dem vat's in the basket."

"Not a bad egg?" said I. "Now, my good sir if I was convinced of that I would instantly purchase the entire lot at your own price. Good eggs is what I want, and I will not stop at a cent or two on the dozen."

"Shoost look at dat mine frien," said the egg dealer, as, a sort of pride he picked up one of the eggs, and, shading it with his hand, held it between his eye and the sun; "Clear as vassar mit a well-bucket, eh?"

I took the egg and holding it in the same position, declared it was not fresh.

The Dutchman examined it again and then reitterated his former assertion, when, to settle the dispute, it was agreed to break the egg. I broke open one end of the shell with my knife, when lo! a feathered head came peeping through the aperture. The Dutchman started back with affright while much merriment rose from the mixed crowd which had gathered around.

"I thought that chap's eggs wasn't good," muttered one.

"Arrah! and it's chickens he's sellin, and not eggs," chimed in an Irishman with a smile.

"La, me! I was just going to buy some of them," exclaimed an old lady, as she put on her specs to look at the bird.

"And the darling thing is alive," said a young lady, as I caught the unhatched chicken and carefully drew it out.

The Dutchman was to much struck with wonderment to heed the numerous jeers which came from the crowd, and with his hands crammed in his breeches pockets, and his eyes fixed on me he seemed transfixed to a statue.

"Now, my friend, you see you cannot deceive me with your eggs. If they were really as you represented them, I would have taken the lot, but as it is, I can only have the one I broke open. The chicken is worth something—what do you charge me?"

"Two cent," replied the Dutchman, with a heavy sigh.

"Cheap. I will pay you," running my hand into my pocket. "But maybe I can get the money out of another egg."

Picking a sound one out of the basket, I broke it open, and to the amusement of the now large crowd around me, and to the stupefication of the owner of the eggs, I pulled out a ten dollar bill.

"Ah!" said I, "that's better than chicken. I will try another."

I reached down, and was about to select the third egg, when the Dutchman seized his basket, and covering it with his body, shouted:

"Go way mit you! you spile all min goot eggs mit your [illegible] tings."

Laughingly I tossed him a half dime to pay for the two eggs I had used, and pushing my way through the crowd, made off. The eyes of all followed me, for more than one thought I had some connection with the evil spirit; but, on learning who I was, Mynheer said I might come again, If I would only put ten dollar bill, instead of unhatched chickens into his eggs.

Legal Qualifications.

The following racy examination of candidates for admission to the bar is taken from the Western Law "Journal," and is decidedly a good hit:

The examination commenced with—

"Do you smoke sir?"

"I do sir."

"Have you a spare cigar?"

"Yes, sir," (extending a short six.)

"Now sir, what is the first duty of a lawyer?"

"To collect fees."

"Right. What is the second?"

"To increase the number of his clients."

"When does the position towards your clients change?"

"When making out a bill of costs."

"Explain."

"We then copy the antagonistic position—I assume the plaintiff and he becomes the defendant."

"A suit decided, how do you stand with the lawyer conducting the other bill?"

"Cheek by jowl."

"Enough, sir, you promise to become an ornament to your profession, and I wish you success. Now are you aware of the duty you owe me?"

"Perfectly."

"Describe it."

"It is to ask you to drink."

"But suppose I decline?"

"Candidate, (scratching his head) "there is no instance of the kind on record in the books. I cannot answer the question."

"You are right; and the confidence with which you make the assertion snows that you have read law attentively. Let's take a drink and I will sign your certificate."

Uncle Peter who flourished in the the mountains of Vermont, as a horse-dealer, was called the other day, by an amatur of "equine" who was in arch of something fast. The result is told as follows:

[illegible] ing to an animile in the meadow below the house; "there, sir, is a mare who would trot her mile in two minutes and seventeen seconds were it not for one thing."

"Indeed!" cried the companion.

"Yes," continued Uncle Peter, "she is four years old this spring; is in good condition; looks well; is a first-rate mare; and she could go a mile in two seventeen were it not for one thing."

"Well, what is that?"

"That mare," resumed the jockey; "is in every way a good piece of property. She has a heavy mane, a switch tail, trots fair, and yet there is one thing only why she can't go a mile in 2. 17."

"The distance is too great for the time!" was the old wag's reply.

A Wonderful Bridge.

The bridge now in process of erection across the Mississippi at St. Louis is one of the wonders of the age. It is to be a tubular, cast steel, arch bridge, supported by the abutments and two piers; the latter are 515ft. each from its nearest abutment, making three spans as that of the Kuilenberg Bridge over the Lock, an arm of the Rhine, in Holland. Telford's suspension bridge across the Menai Straits has a span of 570ft. The Victorial tubular iron bridge being 6600ft. (1 1 4 miles), but it rests upon twenty-four piers, and its spans are mainly only 275ft. The suspension bridge at Niagara spans 821 ft., and is 245 ft. above the water. The East River Bridge will span 1600 ft., at a height midway of 130 ft.

"Small Pox in the Cars."

The Philadelphia Star relates the following:

A singular scene occurred in one of our railway cars a day or two since. A physician entered the car and after sniffing around exclaimed: 'There's small pox in this car!'

All the passengers immediately vacated, except one lady, who remained seated in a corner.

The physician went to her and asked; 'Haven't you had the small pox?'

'Yes,' replied the woman, with a woe begone look. 'I have. been put out of my boarding house, and cannot find any place to rest myself, and I got into the car in downright desperation, and made up my mind to ride up and down until I could make up my mind what to do.'

The physician took the homeless woman in charge, and, we believe, secured her admission in a hospitable.

WOUNDS ON HORSES.—One of the best washes that we know of for ordinary wounds on horses is to take one quarter of a pound of saltpeter, half a pint of turpentine and put them into a bottle; shake up well before using; apply to the wound three times a day with a feather. This we have heard highly recommended from reliable sources.

Tilton commends Dr. Greeley's general integrity, but wishes he wouldn't swear so.

AUBURN, IND., NOV. 30, 1871.

The Democrats will have a two-thirds vote in the Virginia Legislature.

New York and Philadelphia

Whenever there is any public plunder to be divided, the cry of the President is: 'Let us have a place.'—Ex.

The St. Louis Democrat styles those Democrats who are in favor of making no Presidential nominations, the 'Thumb suckers.'

The Hon. Sanford E. Church says that Grant can be made come out of the next contest the worst beaten man that ever ran for President. So mote it be.

Forty-nine Democratic papers of Missouri, a list of which appears in the St. Louis Republican of Monday, favor the policy of making no Democratic nominations for the Presidency and Vice Presidency in 1872.

Toledo is to have a magnificent hotel. It will be called the 'Boody House' in honor of the President of the T., W. & W. Railway. It is nearly completed, and will be one of the finest hotel in the west.—Logansport Pharos.

Reader, did you ever own a dog? And if so did your dog ever fight? and if he fit; and fout it well, did he allays come right. We saw a dorg the other night pile into another cur, and when that dorg got through the fight, he hadn't any fur, 'twas all'ays way with old dog Tray, when he stayed out late o'nights; to get into bad dog company, and then lots o'fights.

The Hon. William S. Groesbeck of Cincinnati, Ohio, one the purest, best and ablest men of Ohio, or the country has many warm friends in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and the Eastern States, who believe he is the man who can lead the conservative hosts to victory in the Presidential campaign of 1872.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The government 'conscience fund' amounts to $126,147, and not a cent has yet been received from any of the known thieves. Secretary Boutwell says of that twenty millions of dollars have been abstracted by the Collectors of Internal Revenue. Where are their awakened consciences? They do not pay up, nor are they troubled by governmental interference.

General Grant's Washington organ after alluding to the late elections in the Southern States, which resulted adversely to its party, says: 'It will require not less than ten thousand regular troops, judiciously distributed throughout the Southern States, to insure a free and fair election in those States, in 1872. It may be necessary that Congress should increase the army.' Such an announcement as this would stir the people of France at this time, to a perfect frenzy. The use of troops to insure a fair, free election, in a time of profound peace! What effect will it have in the United States?

The Democratic State Central Committee of Ohio held a meeting at Columbus on Friday. Messrs. Pendleton, Morgan, McCook, and other leading Democrats, were present. The committee made an examination of the accounts of the Executive Committee, and discussed the general political situation. It was determined not to name the date or place of holding the next State Convention, and another meeting of the committee will be held on the 22d of Febuary to decide these points. On account of other engagements, Hon. A. G. Thurman felt himself compelled to resign the chairmanship of the committee, and Hon. A. M. Daugherty, of Lancaster Ohio, Senator from the Fairfield and Hocking District, was elected Chairman. The committee report that the Democracy of the State are not conquered, panic-stricken, or demoralized, but are willing in 1872 to make another effort, State and national, to secure the triumph of Democratic and conservative principles.

Ku-Klux in Indiana.

A few days ago a family consisting of five persons were murdered in Jefferson county, in this state. Circumstances pointed to a negro of the name of Johnson, as being one of the murderers, and he was accordingly arrested, whereupon he confessed that he and two other negroes had done the horrible deed. The other two were at once arrested and all three locked up in jail. On Friday night last an armed mob broke down the jail, and taking the prisoners out of the hands of the jailor, proceeded to the woods and hung them to a tree. The mob numbered about fifty persons each of whom wore over his face a white mask. Before hanging one of the murders they took off his clothes and attempted to extort him a confession by sticking knives into him, and searing his body with red hot brands. After finishing this exquisite piece of humanity they unceremoniously strung him up without further delay.

We submit here is a case for Mr. Grant's Ku-Klux investigating committee, and as the chairman of that committee, Hon. D. D. Pratt, of this city, who has returned from his southern trip, where he has been for the past seven weeks, with his committee, investigating the alleged Ku-Klux outrages, ought to turn his attention to Jefferson county, in his own state. Nothing more outrageous and diabolical ever happened in the south, and it is only necessary to substitute localities, and instead of Indiana put it in South Carolina, and we have a first class case of Ku-Klux. Let Grant now declare martial law in Indiana as he has done in South Carolina, and shut up the state courts and our people will have a practical illustration of the workings of the Radical policy towards the southern Indiana as in any of the southern states, and Mr. Grant and his smelling committee should look after the matter.—Logansport Pharos.

One day last week, Benjamin Yo'n, of Boydston's Mills, in this county, brought to town, Samuel Wilson, an old veteran of both the land and naval forces of the country, in the war of 1812-14. Mr. Wilson is ninety-six years old, and is now applying for a pension from the government, under the late act of Congress He was on board the frigate Constitution, in the historic fight of that vessel with the British ship Guerrire. He was also engaged in several of the land fights of that war. Mr. W. also accompained the celebrated Lewis and Clark's expedition to the far west. He is quite feeble, but certainly not more so than one of his extreme age should expect. The old gentleman bears upon his person, honorable wounds received in the service of his country, and we sincerely hope that the reception of his pension money will not be delayed, and that he may live long to enjoy it.—Indianian.

BORROWING YET NOT SORROWING.

BY PROF. J. D. BUTLER.

Burlington, Iowa, Nov. 25, 1871.

When Falstaff sent his page to Master Dumbleton for a satin cloak and offered his Bond and Bardolph's for payment, the answer brought him was that the tailor 'liked not the security.' The Knight enraged at his lack of credit, naturally wished that 'Dumbleton's tongue might be hotter than that of Dives,' called him a rascally knave to stand upon security and cried, 'I would as leif they would put ratsbane in my mouth as stop it with security.' Never did Shakespeare hold the mirror up to Nature more truly than in his picture of the credit seeking Knight. Always and everywhere one who goes a borrowing, goes a sorrowing. Not only Shylocks—and the Bank—which is properly spelled backward as 'the Knab,' but most capitalists are deaf adders to most borrowers, because they, as well as Falstaff's tailor, 'like not the security.' Capitalists will not lend a poor man money. They demand a mortgage or endorsers. As he cannot endorse, others will not endorse for him. He has no lands, or chattles, on which he can give a mortgage.

When he is sanguine that he can double the money he wishes to borrow they say to him, 'you may be robbed or cheated, or your investment may be burned up and your insurance worthless, or you may abscond, or your death may blight the brightest business prospects'—we like not your security.' It is nothing but the moonshine of hope, or a castle in the air.

Again, capitalists shun putting their investment of almost any kind into the hands of his or any poor stranger. They are distrustful of his honesty, where there is a chance for fraud, of his competence, where skill is demanded, of his zeal, where he has no interest at stake, and of his vigilance where there are temptations to negligence. He might carve out his fortune, but no one will trust him with the tools.

Such as these are the relations of capitalists to laborers who are ambitious of obtaining the use of capital, and thus becomig capitalists themselves. These relations must result from prudence on the part of moneyed men. Yet they naturally provoke those aspiring but needy young men, whom they hinder form rising to a higher plane.

But must capital and labor needs be hostiles? Is there no way in which capitalists can be just to themselves and yet generous to borrowers? Yes, they can, by selling them unimproved prairie farms on long credit and low interest. Such prairie is equivalent to a loan of its full value.

The borrower cannot be cheated out of it for it is not deeded to him till he has finished paying for it. He can not run away with it. No fire can burn it up. He cannot lessen its value. The labor and money he lays out on it will increase that value. He can not strip it of timber more than he can pull the hair on a bald head. Nor in such a loan is his honesty, competence, zeal, or vigilance distrusted. He is stimulated to the exercise of the all both by his fear of losing the sum he paid in advance to bind his bargain, together with whatever he lays out to improve his farm, and by his hope of making that farm both pay for itself and support him and his dear ones as soon as possible—Other borrowing dulls the edge of thrift—this sharpens it.

We may not believe railroad corporations to be more benevolent than other capitalists, and yet the policy of some of them in selling their lands is a specimen of just that kind of loans which we have seen to be most generous to borrowers, building for them, as it were, and inclined plane on which they can rise easiest from laborers to landlords.

The Burlington & Missouri River Railroad Co., within eighteen months onward from April, 1870, sold in Iowa and Nebraska 304,847 acres to 2821 purchasers, mostly on ten years credit and at six per cent. interest. A large portion of these purchases had before been only laborers or tenants. Their purchases average one hundred and two acres a piece. Judging by experiment have made no more than five per cent. of them will fail to finish paying for the farms on which they have, at the time of purchase, advanced one year's interest.

'The devil,' says the proverb, 'is not so black as he is painted.' So, when men declaim against railroads, let it be remembered that the B. & M. road has furnished 2821 loans amounting in the aggregate the $3,319,272,00 to men most of whom would have been unable to borrow so much capital from banks, capitalists, or any other source. Its long credit sales will prove to most of those borrowers that 'tide in their affairs which taken at its flood leads on to fortune.' It has given them tools to work with. Thus it has rendered the relation between borrowers and lenders more friendly, affording lenders security and borrowers all the loans they can use, and those such as will in most cases be made to pay for themselves. Of all helpers who is best? Who but he that gives us a chance to help ourselves?

Railroad trains flying like shuttles from far cities to far cities weave them into a web of union, and a railroad policy like that of the B. & M. links together classes often called antagonistic with a bond lighter than air yet stronger than iron.

SURVEY.—Mr. McWilliams, civil engineer, is to commence a survey of the line of the Eel River Road east from this place, during the week. Our friends at Edgerton and Bryon are anxious to have the road touch their places, and if the survey proves favorable this will doubtless be done.

DON'T forget the Auburn Bakery when you want cheap oysters. S. W's. 50 cents per can, and O. K's. only 90 cents per can.

CHURCH NOTICE.—A meeting will be held at the Recorder's Office in this place, next Monday, Dec. 4th, at 10 o'clock p. m., to consider the question of erecting a building in which the Lutheran citizens of this place and vicinity may hold worship — Every one interested in the cause is cordially invited to attend.

MANY FRIENDS.

WE are again in receipt of the Indianian now published in the finest new country printing office in the State. The proprietors Messrs. Williams and Hossler have expended a considerable sum in the erection of a new and commodious building, and they now have a complete establishment of which they may justly feel proud. We want to take a look at it some day.

WE erred last week in the statement that J. J. Grafton, Esq., the General Superintendent of the Detroit and Eel River Railroad, would hereafter make Auburn his headquarters. Such was his original intention, but he has since decided it will be more convenient for him to go to Columbia City.—Fort Wayne Republican.

You did not err, Mr. Republican, for Mr. Grafton is now located in this place, and is now operating the Eel River road, to the satisfaction of everybody.

NEW CHURCHES.—The Baptist denomination will commence the erection of a fine new brick church, in this place next Spring. We are glad to learn that the subscriptions are liberal and that an excellent church is to be built.

THE Lutherans are agitating the question of erecting a church in this place, and from the well known character of those at the head of the movement, we feel assured that they will accomplish their desires.

BALTIMORE & OHIO.—From the tone of the papers on the "other" line, we opine that the enthusiasm which ran "like fire" along is fast oozing away, and becoming beautifully less. Not so with us. Every day adds new encouragements to the feasibility and popularity of "our" line. In fact, public opinion has "sot in," and every body says the Defiance line defies all others and so it does, notwithstanding the flowing capacity of the other line, so broadly boasted of at the begining. Let the "gadded jale wiggs," as our friend William says.

OYSTERS.—Mr. C. Baker, of the well known bakery on 8th street, has completed arrangements with the Oyster dealers in the east, for the best brands of oysters, which he receives every day He is prepared to furnish them to the public in any style desirable. He has also reduced the price of the "S. W's," to 80c per can the "O. K's." to 30c.

DRY GOODS & [illegible] would be the style of sign for the new store, were they liberal enough to patronise a painter in this place. It would not be so high toned, but then, what difference does that make to those after the almighty dollar. Just think of a dry goods store, and one from Fort Wayne, at that, truckling to a few cans of oysters. See those three half cans so beautifully poised against the house, as an evidence of what's within.—They are of a new brand, "J.C." which means "just caught." We assure our readers that this has no reference to the contents but to the purchaser, as one as cerens not long ago.

THANKS.—Giving where it is our duty to give, ought not to be considered any great act of liberality, but to voluntarily contribute where there is no previous claims upon our charity, is an act that should be enshrouded in our hearts as the noblest of all deeds. Such a case has come to our observation. G. McFarland, Esq., has presented us with a large fat turkey with which to enjoy our self to-day. It was an unselfish act upon the part of our clever friend, and as we gather around the social board on the day appointed we shall not forget the donor, nor his magnificent gift. Many thanks, Mac., for your kindness.

OBLIGING.—There is no grace that meets with a more hearty response from the public than that of politeness. We are convinced of the truth of this remark by the great popularity the conductors of of the Fort Wayne, Jackson & Saginaw Railroad have gained by their uniform polite and agreeable manners under all circumstances. There's our accomplished friend Strong, always prompt and faithful, and never more happy than when trying to make others so. And "Curley," the old reliable, always cheerful and lively and never weary in the discharge of his duties. And there is the rest, always at the point of duty, all obliging and gentlemanly fellows. We congratulate the company on the selections which they have made.

☞ Don't forget the Pioneer Drug Store when you want School Books.

The Eel River Road.

Not since its inception has the prospects for the early completion of the entire line of the Eel River road, been more flattering than they are to day. A renewed interest has been awakened, and the fifty-five miles completed during the present year, affords and additional encouragement that is largely felt along the whole line.

Last Monday, a meeting was called in the interest of this road, at the Court House, in this place, and a good representation of its friends along the line east from this place were present, including a delegation from Edgerton and Bryan, Ohio.

The meeting was called to order by J. E Rose, Esq., of Butler, taking the chair. Mr Davis, the Director from this county stated that the object of the meeting was to secure an extension of time on the subscriptions of the capital stock.

Mr. Collins, President of the Indiana Organization, being present, was called upon, and in a few remarks, stated that it was now proposed to ask an extension from the subscribers to the capital stock By a renewal of their subscriptions to Jan. 1st, 1873, making its payment conditional on the road being completed to Butler. He regarded the completion of the entire line a fixed fact, providing its friends would exert themselves toward the accomplishment of this end. The company who had charge of its construction had ample resources within itself to do all that would be required of them, and it only remained for the citizens along the line the small amount asked of them.

On motion a committee of six was appointed; three from Butler, and three from Auburn, to be known as the county committee, to take charge of the work, of securing this extension of time by appointing other committees and individually assisting to this end. Messrs. J. L. Davis, J. P. Widney and Geo. Easley, of Auburn, and Messrs. Maxwell, Young and Bavless, of Auburn, were appointed as said committee.

On motion the committee was authorized to secure the right of way as far as practicable, at the same time.

The committee are to go to work immediately, and complete the work in twenty days, at which time it is to report to Mr. Collins.

As the propositions is all that could be asked of any one, we trust that every man will come forward and renew his obligation for one year longer. This is the only way to give assistance to this enterprize, and if a prompt response is not made in the specified time, we will have let the golden opportunity, and doubtless also the last chance of ever seeing the entire line constructed. If we have any interest in the road we will go to work now, in a united and vigorous effort to secure its success, and with such action upon our part there is no such word as fail. The committee will visit every subscriber for this purpose, and there ought not to be one to refuse aid to this great enterprize. With this road completed to Detroit we have the best and shortest line to St. Louis, and it is determined to become one of the leading roads of the country.

THE Auburn Bakery is selling good oysters for 30 cents per can. How's that for cheap?

THE UNIVERSAL BATH.—This universally popular bath, which has been in extensive use for sometime in the Eastern States, is now being introduced in our city and vicinity, and receives the greatest commendation from all who have used it by various simple adjustments it affords sponge, hip and tult baths—a small one for a child and a large one for an adult, and takes but little water. It may be used in any room in a house without even wetting the carpet, and for storage can be hung against the wall, occupying but little space. It requires no special room. It has recieved the highest praise from physicians, and other distinguished personages, in all parts where it has been used. The following certificate shows its appreciation in Morrison:

MORRISON, Ill., Aug. 23, 1871.

We, the undersigned do hereby certify that we have Knowlton's Universal Bath in use in our families, and for simplicity, convenience, comfort in use. and practical utility, we believe it to be preferable to any other bathing apparatus within our knowledge, and as such cheerfully commend it to the public:

D. N. Linn, Pastor of the M. E. Church; Joseph Shirk, M. D; D. S. Spafford, grocer; Ed. C. Warner, ex-County Treasurer; J. H. Simonson, W. M. Spears, M. Kahn, A. H. Martin, J. M. Baird, Clerk of Circuit Court; R. S. W. Ely, Real Estate Agent; G. T. Crissman, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church; Wm. Lane, Probate Judge, and many others.

The Universal Bath is sold only by canvassing agents, who make a specialty of the bath business, visit the families of the parties interested, give a practical demonstration of its various of its various adjustments, and sell the bath ready for use. The agent, Mr. N. S. Belknap, is now at the Weaver House, and as his sojourn here is uncertain, and may be very short, we advise all to improve the very first opportunity to secure a bath, for cleanliness and health demand a bath in every house. The price is twenty-five dollars, and by many who have used it, it is preferable to an ordinary bath room and fixtures at ten times the cost.

The editor of this paper has purchased one of the Universal Baths, and regards it as one of the best arrangements in the way of bathing now extant. It is much better than the old style of bath rooms, because it can be used in any room, even in the parlor without inconvenience. In cold weather, a few buckets of water will suffice, one can indulge in the luxury without the least waste of time or trouble It gives you the advantage of all kinds of baths combined and it is easily adjusted to whatever style desired. It is desto save thousands of dollars of doctors bills, if properly used. We commend it to the public generally as one of the best contrivances for this purpose that can be ot tained.

I HAVE no hesitence whatever in saying the Universal Bath deserves to be universally commended as the most convenient durable, and luxurious of any hitherto invented, and that it deserves to be introduced in every household.

J. A. COWAN, M. D.

EARLY HISTORY.—A correspondent writing to the Angola Republican, gives the following account of the battle of Hog Back Mountain, in Steuben County, in the days of General Wayne.

About the middle of March, 1318, Mad Anthony having driven the Indians to Hog Back Mountain, made preparations to give the nation a death blow.

He had fought the battle of Spring Lake in Spring Lake township, Williams county, Ohio, about three weeks previous. They had had stubbornly resisted and had sullenly retreated to Hog Back Mountain.

The remains of their Fort at Spring Lake is still plainly visible. It is a sort of a semicircle between two hills. Arrow heads and hatchets are found to the present day scattered around in the woods.

The Indians, as stated, had, under Tippecanoe, retreated to Hog Back Mountain, closely followed by Mad Anthony. In one place the lake runs close up to the mountain, with but a narrow place between. Mad Anthony, with that rare sagacity of of his, had seen how the fight would terminate. The Indians, if beaten, would have to pass directly over this mountain or flee along this narrow pass. Mad Anthony placed men, all under command of trustworthy leaders, at the end of the pass hidden in the bushes. Then he deployed skirmishers which were quickly driven back. He advanced to support them. Then followed one of the most stubborn battles, for the number of men engaged, on record.

The Indians though greatly outnumbering the whites, were not a match for them, on account of the discipline and effectiveness of the arms of the Whites.

The hardy backwoodsmen, under Gen. Wayne, trained to the use of the rifle from boyhood, would drop an Indian nearly every time they fired.

The Indians seeing it was of no use contending against such odds, started towards the pass; but when within a short distance of the end of the pass, they received a volley from the hidden foe. They were panic stricken and fled precipitately up the hill; but the whites followed them, and slaughtered many of them without mercy.

My next will be a short sketch of the battle where Tippecanoe made his last stand.

PERSONALITIES.—If any editor of the two districts ever says anything again about personalities of journalism in the Convention, we propose to to knock him down on the spot. It seems to us that ever since the question has been agitated this personal abuse has been on the increase. Even Deror, whose treatise on this subject was so attentively listened to at the last session, must needs indulge in the article to a certain extent. And our "noble" president, sets a terrible example if his ideas are, i this le it, in harmony with this great theory which has been so extensively preached, and yet so poorly practiced. This thing resolves itself into nothing more than hypocrosy and that is something we can't "guzzle" down with much ease or grace, and we don't want to. We trust that our brethren will see the necessity of practice as well as theory, or abandon both sides of the question as untenable. For our part we abandon, and propose to say just what we please on all occasions.

LECTURES.—Prof. Barrett, the well known lecturer on Phrenology, is in town, with an entirely new and extensive and complete outfit, which he has procured at great expense, in order to supply the popular demand of the day. See the flattering notices of the press on his programme He will give two entirely free lectures, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Oct. 4th and 5th, at which time he desires to receive subscriptions from all those desiring a course of highly illustrated Phrenological Lectures, to commence on the following Wednesday evening, Oct. 6th, and continue four nights. Terms to the school $1,50 per couple; $1,00 for single person; 25cents to one lecture. All children under 14, free, if accompanied by parents or guardians The great Phrenological Wedding will be on the last night. Ten or more couples will be examined and mated. Go and see Marshal's great diagrams of the human body, (expressly prepared for public lectures,) equal in appearance and transcend in beauty six of the largest Manakins. Nine great plates contain over 200 dissected partions and magnifild structures of the human body. These are neither owned nor carried by any other lecturer in the United States, and only the 6th time on exhibition, and will be seen at the free lectures. His great display of portraits of the most distiguished persons, from the days of Socrates and St. Paul to the present, in connection with the physiological apparatus, will afford ample means for a complete course of instruction in Phrenology. Prof. Barrett will be found daily at Reinier's Hotel, where he will examine heads and give a new and improved chart, for one dollar a head.

DR. BORT, of Fort Wayne, will be at the Lent House, Waterloo, on Dec. 7th, and at the Weaver House in Auburn Friday Dec. 8th.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

[illegible] or Cows.

Shall I grow sheep or make butter? That depends upon the nature of our soil, its value and locality. If you are growing sheep with reasonable profit, don't establish a dairy. If you are in dairy business, don't abandon it for sheep. Stick to what you can do with profit. Don't venture upon any dubious experiments. If you are just commencing your work as farmer, then [illegible] your neighbors [illegible] and observe their prospects. Consult them. Take the opinion of one man. If you have a fancy for sheep, visit various neighborhoods, far and near; ascertain who have been successful in the business, and take the opinions of such in reference to the breeds of sheep, their adaptation to your particular locality, their value and the probable returns which the will make for the investment. If you preference be for cows, then counsel some experienced butter or cheese manufacturer. Neither book, nor paper, can give you the requisite knowledge for this business. It is practice, experience, that you need. A beginner might as well expect to become a skillful pianist from merely reading the instruction book, as a farmer to become a successful dairyman from reading an agricultural paper. Consult those who have had experience in the business. They will tell you of their success. Their advice will assist you in making a proper selection of animals and mechanical appliances, and save you much trouble and useless expense.

Stock.

How much stock aught I to keep upon my farm. Just all that your hay, stalks, straw, roots, and other crops can feed. Sell nothing from your farm except stock. If you dispose of any grain, do it for the purpose of buying more feed for your stock. Be sure that every animal is kept in thriving condition. Have no starveling on your premises. Feed liberally of your returns will not be the best possible. Have your stock in such condition that a portion of it will at all times be ready for market. By this means, you may always have a liberal supply of rich manure, which will enable you to keep your land improving year by year, and secure the most desirable results from it.

The Best Grass for Butter.

If you aim at a great flow of milk, feed clover; if you wish rich milk and well flavored butter, feed young timothy and white clover; if you aim at at the best results, both in quantity and quality of butter, feed on fresh pastures of white clover and timothy in summer, and early-cut timothy and wheat bran in winter. The grass must be cut when heading out; or better young aftermath well cured. Avoid roots and garden stuff in general, if you wish a good quality of butter—though it is now held, that those fed while milking or immediately before, will remedy the evil.

Our Agricultural Reports.

The agricultural report for 1870 shows that our cereal products reached the astonishing aggergate of 1,843,802,000 bushels, of which 1,094,155,000 were corn; 235,844,700 wheat; 237,777,400 oats, the balance being rye, barley, and buckwheat. These crops were all raised on 69,254,016 acres, less than the era of Nevada. Over 24,525,090 tons of hay were gathered from 19,861,805 acres, 2,000,000 less than the surface of Indiana. Upon 330,000 acres, less than half of Rhode Island, we raised 250,128,000 pounds of tobacco. Over 4,400,000 bales of cotton were raised upon 8,630,000 acres—about equal to Delaware and Maryland. The total area required for these leading crops was 99,451,608 acres—about five-sixths of the area of California. The States of California and Oregon would probably be sufficient to contain all our fields, orchards and gardens under cultivation during the last year. The total value of the above crops was $1,731,808,406.

SALT AND ASHES FOR HORSES.—Those keeping horses should twice a week throw in a handful of salt and ashes. Mix them by putting in three parts of salt to one of ashes. Horses relish this and it will keep their hair soft and fine. It will prevent bots, colic, etc. A little ground sulphur mixed with salt and ashes and given once in two or three weeks is also beneficial. All domestic animals will be thus benefited.—Turf, Field and Farm.

A California man requested his wife, in a ball room, to hold the baby of another man's wife while he danced with the baby's mother—but she did'nt hold it. Some wives are too disobedient to put up with.

LOST.—A small lady's watch with a white face; also, two ivory young ladies' work-boxes. A mahogany gentleman's dressing case and a an all pony, belonging to a young lady with a silver mane and tail.

A French authoress says, 'A kiss gives more pleasure than anything else in the world.' To this an editor responds, 'That writer evidently never experienced the childish rapture of decending the stairs by sliding down the banisters.'

George Selwyn once affirmed in company that no woman ever wrote a letter without a postscript. 'My next letter refute you.' said Lady G. Selwyn soon after received a letter from his ladyship when after her signature stood:

'P. S.—Who is right, you or I?'

An Indianapolis paper thus sums up the divorce market. 'Brisk competition among the lawers has brought down the price of divorces very low in this market. We quote: Common separation, $15; small alimony, $25; large alimony, $50, to 100 There are but few of the latter in this market. General business good and increasing.'

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

From the Fort Wayne Sentinel.

SOMETHING STARTLING.

Was J. Wilkes Booth in Fort Wayne Yesterday?

Is J. Wilkes Booth alive or dead?

Does the murder of Abraham Lincoln walk the world unpunished or was he shot by Boston Corbett in the blazing barn of a Maryland farmer?

Until yesterday we believed that the felon whose crime will stand in bas relief through the centuries, had been rewarded with his just deserts.

To-day we are in doubt, owing to the assertions of a Chicago actor—a gentleman well known in his profession, and whose word is as good as his bond.

Actor:—'You represent the local department of the Sentinel, I understand?'

Reporter:—'Yes sir.'

Actor:—'Then tell your readers that J. Wilkes Booth, the murderer of Abraham Lincoln, passed through this city today. I saw him myself. I cannot be mistaken in his identity. I knew him intimately for a number of years. I have supported him behind the foot-lights; and I am willing to make my affidavit that he was on board the 2:25 Eastward bound train, on the P. F. W. & C. R. R., this afternoon. I was standing on the platform, waiting for a friend when suddenly my attention was attracted by a pair of eyes looking intently at me through the car window. The sight riveted me to the spot, for I immediately recognized in the person before me the assassin of a President.

Reporter:—'Did he bow or speak to you?'

Actor:—'No; but I saw by his expression that he remembered me. I was too startled at first to do anything but stand and stare at him, and when I recovered myself the train was moving rapidly off.

Reporter:—'Perhaps it was some one who bore a striking resemblance to the criminal.

Actor:—'No, not only was his face the same, but the singular diamond pin on his shirt front, which be designated himself was the same as that always worn by the felon. You will recollect, perhaps, of reading about it at the time when the papers were filled with minute descriptions of his dress and person.'

Reporter:—Was there any change observable in his appearance?

Actor:—'Yes, his remarkably black hair and mustache were dashed with gray, and his complexion once so white [illegible] was tanned and marked with lines of care. But the eyes were the same—wonderfully deep and lustrous, and the remarkably handsome mouth, had lost none of its graceful curves.'

Reporter:—'Hav you notified the authorities?'

Actor:—'Not yet, but I will take steps to have the villian brought to justice.'

In view of this conversation, and of many other circumstances that have transpired since the terrible night of that tragedy in a Washington theatre, we would again ask; Is J. Wilkes Booth alive or dead? and was he in Fort Wayne yesterday?

Monkey Merchant in Michigan.

Monkeys are scarce in Michigan. A saddler in Detroit kept one for a pet, who usually sat on the counter. A workman came in one day, the proprietor being in the back room. The customer seing a saddle that suited him, he asked the price.

Monkey said nothing.

The customer said, 'I'll give you twenty dollars for it,' layingdown the money, which the monkey shoved into the drawer. The man then took the saddle, but monkey mounted him, tore his hair, scratched his face, and the frightened customer screamed for dear life. The proprietor rushed in and wanted to know what was the fuss.

"Fuss?" said the customer, "fuss? I bought a saddle of your son, sitting there and when I went to take it he wouldn't let me have it."

The saddler apologised for the monkey, but assured him that he was no relation.

Wonders.

Lewenbock tells us of an insect seen with a microscope of which twenty one millions would only make a mite.

Insects of various kinds may be seen in the cavities of grains of sand.

Mould is a forest of beautiful trees with branches, leaves and fruit.

Butterflies are fully feathered.

Hairs are hollow tubes.

The surface of our bodies is covered with scales like a fish; a single grain of sand would cover one hundred and fifty of these scales, and yet a scale covers five hundred pores. Through these narrow openings the sweat forces itself like water through a sieve.

The mites makes five hundred steps a second.

Each drop of stagnant water contains a world of animated beings, swimming with as much liberty as whales in the sea.

Each leaf has a colony of insects grazing on it like cows in a meadow.

COLONEL McDANIEL, owner of Harry Bassett, replies to the proposition of Mr. Gretton, owner of the English race horse Sterling, for a mile and and a half race in England, in 1862, for £10,000, that he (McDaniel) can only consent to having the race take place in this country.

CADMIUM has been discovered in Utah. This Cadmium is desirable, being nearly as white as tin and somewhat harder and more tenacious. It is very ductile and maleable, and susceptible of a high polish, and as volatile as mercury. It is said to be more valuable than tin.

Humorous.

LITTLE Jessie had been doing something which her mamma had told her she must'nt do. She had been eating currants, and, of course, got her mouth all stained. That's the way the found out. Her mother said: "You know you were forbidden to eat currants! But, mother, Satan tempted me! Why didn't you say, get the behind me Satan? I did say get thee behind me Satan; and he went behind me and pushed me right into the currant bushes!"

A sophomore has devised a new way of telling bad news. He writes home to his father, "I came very near losing thirty-seven dollars last week." AN Irishman noticing a lady pass down the street, espied two stripes depending from under her mantle. Not knowing that these were styled sashes and were hanging in their right places, he exclaimed, "An' faith, ma'am, yer galluses are loose!"

"My dear," said a husband to his better half, after a quarrel, "you will never be permitted to go to heaven."

"Why not?"

"Because you will be wanted as a torment down below."

THE meanest railroad in the country is thus discribed: "it ballasts with sand it starts with a jerk and stops with a jam and hires the smallest conductors it can find, so as to save carrying weight."

"Indeed you are very handsome," said a gentleman to his lady love. "Pooh," said she, "so you would say if you did not think so." "And so you'd think if I did not say so," he answered.

"My dear doctor," said a lady, "I suffer a great deal with my eyes." "Be patient, madame," he replied, "you would probably suffer a great deal more without them."

POTTLETOP'S PIPE.

'That is a pipe, Sarah,' said Mr. Pottletop, severely. 'It is my oppinion that no human being on the face of this extensive globe but yourself would require the assurance that it is a pipe. It certainly looks like a pipe, and it undoubtly is a pipe!'

'But, sir beggin your parding, I didn't know as misses would allow you to have a pipe,' said Sarah, taking up her brush.

'She does, Sarah; in fact, was she herself who gave it to me yesterday as a birthday present. Before we were married, I was a great smoker; but mediately after that happy event Mrs. P. cut of my tobacco abs lutely. Yesterday my privileges were again restored.

'Had she any object in it, sir?'

'Object! What do you mean by object? I insist upon an instantaneous elucidation of that supicious remark!

Mr. Pottletop replaced his meerschaum on the mantlepiece; folded his arms, and assummed a most indigant expression of countenance.

'Nothing, sir. Only ladies do sometimes have objects with their husbands,' returned Sarah, innocently. 'Are you sure missis didn't ask any favor or promises of you, sir?'

'Mr. Pottletop gasped, and turned pale. Recovering himself immediately, however, he rejoined in a faint voice:

Noting at all, Sarah. You may go about your business, Sarah.'

She moved to the door.

'Stop a minute: Sarah; I want to ask you a question. What does your mistress chiefly do while I am downtown?'

'Well, sir,' answered the housemaid, 'missess is always in her room by herself and I never see her, sir.' With which she went out.

Mr. Pottletop dropped into a chair and put his hand to his head.

'I see it all! False Sophronista, you have deceived me!' he exclaimed. Your restoration of my privileges was a delusion, your pipe was a snare! Tobacco! yes. You allow me plenty of it—cigars and cheroots, too—and even try to throw snuff in my eyes! But it won't do! No madame! When I, confiding and deluded victim, yesterday gave you my promise not to come to dinner any day before two, little did I dream there was anything at the bottom of it! I took your pipe and lit it, and smoked in it peace; to-day, I find I was only putting out my own pipe of happiness place myself on the watch, and discover all. Beware of me, deceitful female! The lamb has become a lion, and will have his vengeance!'

Mr. Pottletop started up, clapped on his hat; and made his way to the street. Was he going down town. Not a bit of it. Mr. Pottletop merely walked to the corner, slipped around it, stole to his back gate, sneaked into his garden, and hid himself behind a goosebury-bush.

Here he remained, horribly cramped, a quarter of an hour. But his patience was rewarded. Glancing upward, he beheld a pair of long legs dangling over his roof, endeavoring to clasp the rain-spout! Next the body and head of a man appeared, who let himself down, and entered at the window. There was but one course for Mr. Pottletop. He arose, and seized his garden-ladder, planted it against the wall, ascended it, and likewise entered at the window. He ducked under the sofa. His movement was just in time, for the door opened, and the stranger with the long legs reappeared.

'All's safe!' he soliloquized, in a husky, rasping voice, breathing throughout the apartment a strong flavor of rum, 'I thought the governor would never go. My ears are corked with soot listening for him down the chimney. Now for the governor's wife!'

'The govenor's wife!' groaned Mr. Pottletop. 'I knew it!'

'She must a knowed as I was coming by leaving the window-bolt open so convenient,' continued the stranger. 'But there's no keeping the movements of fashionable society society secret nowadays.'

'Knew he was coming!' groaned Mr. Pottletop, again. 'Everything is confirmed. Some aristocratic villain who has turned her brain!'

'Well, we now look for the pretty creature. Perhaps she wouldn't be glad to see me just yet, nor I see her too sudden. I'll reck-anoit her a bit.'

He crept cautiously out of the other door, and Mr. Pottletop as cautiously followed him. They crossed the corridor to the library closet, and Mr. P.'s eyes gleamed with joy. At the moment the stranger entered the closet, Mr. P. ran up quickly and locked him in.

'There, atrocious monster! he gloated, rubbing his hands. 'Now to return to the garden by the ladder, and, if possible, obtain a policeman. Mrs. P. must not see me, or she will release her lover from his imprisonment, and he may escape.'

Back to his bedroom he went, but, reentering, he stood rooted with hor-[illegible] to the ground.

A noise could be heard from the wondow, and evidently some one else was coming up the ladder.

Mr. Pottletop ducked under the sofa as befor.

Another stranger appeared It was a stout, elderly person, dressed in a semi-military great coat, wearing a voluminous neckerchief, and topping all off with an immense wig. He put his legs deliberately in, and looked around.

'Not here?' he exclaimed. 'Downstairs, of course!'

'Another one of 'em looking for her!' groaned Mr. P. How many more are there? Oh, perjured woman, little did I suspect this!'

'I hope she may not delay,' continuen the latest arrival. I have waited. Snug-looking room—and, upon honor, a pipe! I'll take a smoke.'

Mr. Pottletop looked on in fresh horror. His pipe—his own private, particular meerschum! The stranger quietly filled it, put it between his lips and sat down.

'Now, this is what I call comfort,' he soliloqized, the smoke curling over his capacious wig; 'and I shouldn't mind staying here altogether!'

'I suppose not,' reflected the agitated spectator under the bed. 'But, your sojourn shall be briefer than you expect.'

'Only I should insist upon the society of some precious little creature, like the lady I am waiting for, to destroy monotony. Her husband isn't the man for her. From what I hear of him, he must be a regular old pump!' said Mr. Pottletop, grinding his teeth.

'I wonder if he would thank me for coming, if he knew what brought me here?'

'Not much!' sighed Mr. P.

The door opened, and Mrs. Pottletop ran in hastily.

'General!' she cried, 'how kind you, are! Is he gone?'

'Gone! He must be, if you haven't seen him down your way. He certainly isn't about here anywhere.'

'How thoughtful it was of you to call at the front door first!' said Mrs. P., a charmingly plump little woman of thirty. 'And how especially thoughtful to next get into' the garden. As neither of us has seen him, I am certain he is gone.'

'Are you?' groaned Pottletop.

'You'll find yourself confoundedly mistaken, presently.'

'I must next relieve Sarah. Poor thing! she has been dreadfully nervous. Sarah!'

That innocent young person entered. 'You needn't be under any further alarm, Sarah. He is gone.'

'Is he mum? How delighted I am to hear!'

'Yes! Now I will take General Wagstaff belong, and insist upon his having a glass of wine.'

'Madame,' said that gallant officer, presented his arm, 'I shall only be too happy.'

At the moment they had disappeared, Mr. P., determined to show himself. He made a movement to get out.

'What's that?' exclaimed the nervous Sarah, rushing to the door.

'It's only——'

But before the poor gentlemen could articulate a syllable futher she darted down the steps, screaming at the top of her voice. Instantly afterward General Wagstaffe come clumping back into the room, red with fury. Mr. Pottletop seized a bootjack, the general snatched up a water pitcher. They stood face to face.

'I'll do for you, ruffian!' exclaimed the general.

'You will? You'll assassinate me? Reckless libertine. I am diminutive, but courageous! I shall throw you out of the window.'

'That's your game is it, cried the military stranger. 'Well, two can play at it; so let us see who'll win.'

With which he rushed upon poor Mr. Pottletop, upset the table in the way, smashed the water pitcher over his heae, carried him bodily to the window, and flung him head foremost into the yard.

'Mrs. Pottletop came running in again, pale as a ghost.

'He's gone this time, madame,' gasped the general, wiping his face 'I don't think you'll be troubled by him again. I have flung him out of the house, and there's not much danger, I fancy, of his reappearance.'

The delicious little woman pressed the warrior's had descended with him to the dining-room. This apartment looked out upon the yard. Had its two occupants glanced at the window, they might have seen a face—the face of the injured Pottletop. With a bloody nose, cheeks covered with mud, and clothes smeared with ashes of dust-heap into which he was tossed on his tip-toes, glaring in at them.

'Now, general, for your wine,' he heard his wife say. 'Excuse me only litte minute. Our sherry is in the library closet'

'The library-closet!' echoed Pottletop. 'Her other lover is there. Treacherous woman, she is not true anybody!'

Mrs. P. went out of the room, and the general chocked his feet comfortably on the mantlepiece. Mr. Pottletop knew by this that he was not likely to leave shortly, so he determined to ascend the ladder once more, get into his room again, and listen to what passed in the closet. This resolve was instantly accomplished. Scarcely, however, had he touched the floor of his chamber when he heard Mrs. Pottletop's screams, and her rapid footsteps clattering down the stairway.

What was the matter now? Was it jealously on the occupant of the cupboard, and had he assaulted her on suspicion of having locked him in? Mr. Pottletop, overcome by his emotions and the terrible experience he was going through, sank to the floor.

He lay there stunned, nearly five minutes.

But his agony was not finished.

As he was a living, breathing man, he heard fresh footsteps on the ladder!

Exhausted as he was, he contriv once more to drag himself under the sofa. Peeping out he saw a form of blue, and a truncheon. It was policeman.

'Is she here?' he heard the guardian of the peace say. 'She certainly told me for to come this way.'

'Still another lover!' shrieked Pottletop, almost aloud. 'An appointment with a policeman! Oh, Sophronista, this is too much!'

The fellow stepped in, and Mr. Pottletop trembled. To be dragged out would ruin everything. He lay mute as a mouse; but to his horror he perceived that the intruder was very particular in his investigations. He glanced in the wardrobe, and examined the cupboards; he even made a show of searching the bureau drawer, and once—what to look for he could not imagine—he uncorked a black bottle. At last, he carelessly threw an eye under the sofa. He discerned something black. He poked his truncheon under and prodded Mr. Pottletop in the stomach. Mr. Pottletop wheezed and lost his breath.

'Hilloa!' cried the policeman. 'You are there, are you? Come out o' that!'

Mr. Pottletop slowly drew himself and stood up, covered with lint and feathers, like a curious and a new fashioned species of bird. Recovering his wind by an effort he spoke.

'My blue brother,' he said, mournfully, "why are you here? Have you come to add more to my cup of misery?'

'Cup o' misery! It's my opinion you've had too many cups already.'

'I have, indeed; each filled to the brim.'

'So I thought,' sighed the blue brother. Well, let me run you in quietly now. Don't let's have no scrimmaging; cos, if you do, I'll have to put you in a vagon.'

'In a wagon' groaned poor Pottletop. 'What have I done to deserve all this? Am I living, breathing, sensible man? Have I my mind and judgment about me, or is this some terrible dream?'

'Vy' how can you expect to have your mind about you, vin you will take in so much at a dose? The jim-jams is coming fast.'

'Jim James! Another one of Mrs. P.'s lovers, I suppose. Oh, whoever suffered such misery as mine?'

The policeman took his arm tenderly, and seated him in a soothing tone. Everybody goes through this, you know.' I knew what it was the moment I spied you. When she spoke—'

'She! She!' shrieked Mr. Pottletop, rising to his feet. 'It is she, indeed! Listen to me yesterday I was a happy man. I had but one thought, and it was her happiness, because I loved her to distraction, and fondly believed she loved me in return. When she gave me that pipe, and made me promise never to come to dinner any day before two, little did I fancy the the motive she had at the bottom. But this morning, by means of a few incautious words dropped by the house maid. I was led to suspect. At the first steps toward investigation, the full and glaring truth dawned upon me. I watched further, All was confirmed. Her lovers I discovered to be numberless. Some entered by the window, some by the front door: Although you, too, are one of them, I tell her. This, my last message, I commit—'

'Commit,' interrupted the guardian of the peace, bounting off the table where he had had been sitting. 'I've listened to your rigmarole; but I von't le you commit nothin' here. Come along, quitely, now!'

'Come along? What do you mean? Come along where?

'Vith me, of course! I'm going to run you in. My pardner's out side vith a vagon, so if you resist, I'll call him to help me. Blast me if I vouldn't be ashamed to valk along the street vith you! Your nose is bloody, your face is smeared to vith mud, your clothes full of ashes and feathers, your eyes is black and you're a regular scarecrow! Come along now!'

Mr. Pottletop picked up a chair.

'If you touch me,' he shouted, I'll murder you! Keep off, ruffian—keep off!'

'Oho! That's you your game, is it? All right, my covey!'

The policeman went over to the desperate man and clutched him by the shoulders.—Then began the struggle, They tusseled about the room, bawling and shrieking, upsetting the furniture, tearing down the curtains, smashing the mirrors, breaking the watter-jar, and deluging the carpet with dirty water.

The door opened, and three persons appeared, looking on with horrified astonishment. They were Mrs. Pottletop, General Wagstaff, and the long-legged individual who had been locked up in the library-closet.

The combatants separated, and stood up, out of breath. Mr. Pottletop beheld his wife.

'Vile female,' he cried, 'it's all over at last!'

'Oh, Pottletop!' screamed Mrs. P., falling into General Wagstaff's arms.

'I go from you for ever.'

'I told you he wasn't a burglar, but a lunatic, ma'am' struck in the man in blue, trumphantly.

'Here is the burglar,' and General Wagstaff. 'I surrounded him, charged upon him, and captured him myself.'

'I see it all!' spoke Mrs. Pottletop, suddenly. 'My poor Petty is the victim of a series of mistakes. Let him explain his share in them.'

'Victim I am, indeed, and of a mistake in you, cruel Sophronista!' returned Mr. P. 'This morning, looking at my pipe, I was seized with a suspicion that you had some object in giving it to me yesterday, and making me promise never to come to dinner before two. I determined to watch. I stole into the garden, and hid behind the gooseberry-bush; and then I perceive a man enter our bedroom window from the roof.'

'That vos me,' said the general's captive. 'I had been behind the chimney all night, vaiting for a chance, to get in and take a look at the valuables.'

'I planted a ladder against the window,' continued Mr. P., 'ascended it, and went in, too. I followed this ruffian to the library-closet, and locked him in.'

'And I,' said General Wagstaffe, 'saw you going up the ladder from my second story portico, opposite, took you for a housebreaker, went around to your front door and told your wife. She sent for a policeman, and I returned to the garden, and likewise ascended the ladder.'

'Well,' put in the blue gentlemen, 'when I arrived I planted my pardner at the front door, and slipped around the back way, and vos the third party as went up the ladder. I must beg this gents pardon for mistaking him but duty's duty! Howsomever there is a burglar in the case, and so I shall not have my trouble for nothing. Come along my friend.'

The general surrendered his prisoner into the grip of the law. Then he approached Mr. Pottlepop and took his hand.

'Sir I am happy to make your acquaintance under such singular circumstances.'

'I should have preferred them not quite so singular,' rejoined Mr. Pottletop, rather ruefully. 'However, I deserve all my misfortunes, for once having doubted my dear little tootsey wootsey Sophronista!'

'How could you?' pouted that charming lady.

'How couldn't I is more to the purpose, when you gave the surprising privilege of smoking, and what's better, a beautiful pipe to smoke with. By-the-way where is it?'

'Where is it?' cried General Wagstaffe, clapping his coat pocket. Bless me, I had quite forgotten it!'

'Shall I take him along for petty larceny?' asked the officer of Mr. Pottletop.

'No we've had enough excitement for one day.'

'And what a rediculous cause for it!' sighed Mrs. P. 'Only a pipe!'

Ever since, that has been her great instrument in managing Mr. Pottletop. Whenever he begins to grow jealous or suspicious, she puts her arms around his neck and kisses him, and says in the archest tone:

'My dear, shall I tell you the story of Pottletop's pipe?'

It always settles him.

The Courier.

AUBURN, IND. DEC. 7, 1871

If the Radicals of the North are to depend upon the colored Radical vote in the South, they will have to advocate repudiation of the debts of the Southern States.

The St Louis Times, in discussing the passive policy, says: 'Would it not be well to insist upon having some hand in the nomination, if we are to furnish the votes to elect?'

The Democratic vote cast for Andrew Jackson in 1828 was 650,028. The Democratic vote cast for Horatio Semore in 1868 was 2,295,710. In a fair election the Democrats undoubtedly have a majority in the popular vote.

An exchange says, (and newspapers never lie,) that a poultice and tea, made from the common field thistle, is an infallible cure for neuralgia. The leaves are macerated and used on the part affected as a poltice, while a small quantity of the leaves are boiled down in the proportion of a quart to a pint, and a small wine glass of the decoction drank before each meal. We wish some one would try it, just to see whether it is possible for a newspaper to fib.

Intelligence comes from Fort Shaw, Montana, that two companies of the Seventh infantry, Major Freman, commander, returning from Fort Browing, were caught in yesterday's fearful storm and are now camped twelve miles from here, with a number of men badly frozen. Some of the frozen men have been brought into the hospital. The worst cases are still out, and are being brought in as fast as possible. They are frozen principally about the feet, and will lose the toes, and in some cases even the feet. The thermometer this morning was 30 degrees below.

The famine in Persia is simply dreadful. Thousands and thousands of people are daily dying for want of food. In districts remote from the frontier no help can reach the people. There are no railroads, canals, or water courses on which to run boats. The only way food can reach them is on the backs of horses or mules. There is no forage along the route. An animal could carry no more than provender enough on which to subsist till the famine district could be reached, when, with no food for the return trip, it must die. The interior of Persia will be entirely depopulated within a few weeks or months.

The recent storm was a very severe one on the plains and Western Kansas. A large number of Texas cattle were frozen, and herds dispersed. Several herds were also frozen to death. Five bodies were brought into Hayes City on Saturday night, frozen stiff, supposed to have been buffalo hunters, as the bodies of a large number of buffaloes were found near them, which had perished in the storm. Great anxiety is felt on account of other parties of buffalo hunters who are out, and have not been heard of since the storm. The Bebee Brothers, of Ellsworth, lost fifty-seven horses and twenty-three cattle. The cold was unprecedented

The Two Great Tunnels.

The following statement of the dimensions, cost, etc., of the two great tunnels of the world is interesting:

Mont Cenis tunnel—length, 12,236, meters, or nearly eight miles; width twenty-six feet and eight inches; height, twenty feet; cost, $13,000,000; time occupied in construction, nine years; number of men employed, about 2,000.

Hoosac tunnel—length, 26,061 feet or about four miles and three-quarters; twenty-four feet wide; twenty-one feet high; cost, about $9,000,000; time of constructin nearly 20 years; number of workmen employed, about 700 at present, but much less during most of the time the work has been prosecuted.

The chief engineering difficulties attending the construction of the Hoosac tunnel have been overcome, and the amount of progress in a given time can now be so accurately predicted that the engineers and the contractors have no doubt that the work will be completed before the 15th of March, 1874, the date named in the contract.

Two Allen county farmers, while hunting stray cattle in the woods one day last week, lost their way, and after much wandering came upon a log hut which looked as if it had been deserted for years. Opening the door, which at first offered a slight resistance, the belated party entered, but immediately stepped back in affright, for there in the center of the room stood a deal table, upon which rested the plain walnut coffin of an adult. Tall candlesticks stood at each corner of the table, and at the head of the coffin was an iron crucifix. They went away. No matter whether they ran, walked, or hopped, skipped and jumped, they went. After spending the night in the woods, they found their way out and told their neighbors their experience. A party has been formed for examining the lone log hut.

THE FRAUDS.

The Attorney General on the War-Path—Treasurer Plunderers Disgorging—The People Getting Back Stolen Money.

By permission of Attorney General Hanna, we are enabled this morning to be publish to the taxpayers of the State the following important transaction concluded by him yesterday at Indianapolis. Thus it will be seen that some of the public money, perverted from its proper channels by corrupt officials, is beginning to flow back into the people's treasury where it rightfully belongs. The following correspondence explains itself:

'To His Excellency Conrad Baker, Governor, and Hon. Bayless Hanna, Attorney General of Indiana:

I hereby propose to pay and return to the State Treasury, the sum of eighteen thousand eight hundred and ninety-six dollars and fifty cents ($18,896 50) in solvent notes, mortgages and obligations well secured and bearing interest, which I so propose in full satisfaction of all my liability to the State of Indiana, on account of any overdraw, or other act by me as State Printer of said State, including any liability of any person, on account of being surety on my official bonds as such State Printer; subject only to this condition, that nothing herein shall be constructed to prevent the State from maintaining the proper action, against any person, or persons, who may, in my name as such State Printer, have improperly obtained money from the Treasury of State; or to recover from any person who may be jointly liable with me as such State Printer, or otherwise, any sum by them illegally obtained from the State, and to that end, when necessary, to interplead me with any such person. The offer thus made is largely in excess of my means and ability to pay, and I am only enabled to make it with the aid and assistance of relatives and friends I do not admit hereby that I am liable to the State for any overdraw of money or otherwise, but make the offer by way of compromise and to avoid litigation.

A. H. CONNER.

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, November 20, 1871.

We recommend the settlement, believing it to be fore the interests of the State.

WM C. WILSON,
S. CLAYPOOL,
N. B. TAYLOR.

We concur in the above recomendation for the reasons assigned by the above Attorneys.

JOHN. C. SHOEMAKER,
Auditor of State.
JAMES B. RYAN,
Treasurer of State.

If the Attorney General is satisfied that the foregoing proposition of Mr. Conner will secure to the State, as much or more than can be made by litigation, I do not hesitate to say that the proposition ought to be accepted. If the Attorney General is, or shall be thus satisfied, I will approve of the compromise when he shall haved made it.

CONRAD BAKER.
Governor of Indiana.

I am satisfied from a thorough examination of the law and a like investigation of the facts in this case, that the above compromise es recommended, ought, in the interest of the State, to be so made—therefore I give it my approvial.

B. W. HANNA,
Attorney General of Indiana.

One Hundred Years Ago.

One hundred and ten years ago, there was not a single white man in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Then, what is the most flourishing part of America was a little known as the country around the mysterious mountains of the moon. It was not until 1767 that Boone left his home in North Carolina to become the first settler in Kentucky. The first pioneers of Ohio did not settle until twenty years after this time. A hundred years ago Canada belonged to France, and the population did not exceed a million and a half of people. A hundred years ago the great Fredrick, of Prussia was performing the great exploits which have made him immortal in military annals, and with his little monarchy was sustaining a single-handed contest with Russia, Austria and France, the three great powers of Europe combined. A hundred years ago Napoleon was not born, and Washington was but a modest Virginia Colonel, and the great events in history of the two words in which there great but dissimular men took leading parts, were then scarcely foreshadowed. A hundred years ago, the United States were the most loyal part of the British Empire, and on the political horizon no speck indicated the struggle which within a score of years thereafter established the great Republic of the world. A hundred years ago there were but four newspapers in America! Steam engines had not been imagined, and telegraphs and railroads had not entered into the remotest conception of man. When we come to look back as it thought the vista of history, we find that to the century just past has been allcted more important events in their bearing upon the happiness of the world, than almost any other which has clasped since the Creation.

Indiana is a fast state on divorces, but Illinois can take the 'dilapidated lines from the shrubbery.' A lawyer in Chicago advertises: 'Parties desiring to avoid the lay of a trip on the cars can send their application by telegraph. Divorce guaranteed in forty-eight hours from the time the application is received.'

Facts to be Considered.

Although the taxes of South Carolina have been raised under carpet-bag rule from $400,000 a year, to more than four times' that amount; though the adventurers in the plundering ring who have had the handling of the state funds have suddenly risen from poverty to great wealth, there is not a dollar at this time in the state treasury. The state officers have robbed the treasury so freely that they are not now able to provide for the ordinary expenses of the government.

Under these circumstances, notice has been given that the taxes for 1871 due in 1872, must be paid before the 15th January next, thus requiring this outraged people to pay within 12 months and 14 days the taxes for two whole years, amounting to $4,005,047.

It is to maintain the power of these plunderers, who are all zealous for Grant's re-nomination, that nine counties in South Carolina have suddenly been placed under martial law on the pretext of suppressing the Ku-Klux, while it is notorious that no disturbance have occurred in any of them for months, and that the civil courts are in uninterrupted operation in all of them.—New York Sun.

A young gentleman, anxious to learn to sing, went up into the garret on Sunday night about his bedtime, and resolutely commenced his exercises with his psalm-book. He had been singing but a short time when his father, a fidgety old gentleman, stole out of bed with his nightcap on, and on reaching the foot of the stairs, mildly inquired:

'James?'

No answer came. James was very busy with his musical excerses.

'James?'

Still no answer.

'James?'

'Sir.'

'Have you heard a very peculiar noise?'

No.'

'—an—I—thought— but never mind. 'And the old gentleman walked back to his room, muttering indistinct ly.

Presently James resumed his exercises, and was getting on famously, as he thought, when his parent, like the ghost of Hamlet's father, again came forth, exclaiming:

'James?'

'Sir.'

'Are you sure that Bose is fastened up.'

'Yes sir, I attended to it myself.'

'Very well, very well; no matter.' And he once more returned to his room:

Wondering what his father meant by inquiring after the house-dog Bose, James was silent for a moment, but soon returned to his exercises more vigorously than ever. Again, however he was interrupted by the voice of his parent, shouting:

'James?'

'Sir.'

'I am sure Bose is loose.'

'It can't be posible, sir.'

'He is, I tell you.'

'What makes you think so, sir.'

Why, for the last half hour I have heard something that sounded very much if the dog was again worrying the poor old cat!'

James never resumed his exercises after that overwhelming compliment.

Grant is very properly denominated the present administration.

THE Marshal is notifying our citizens who have wood on the streets to remove it by the 11th of this month. That's right. We'll not have any by that time.

TAXES are coming in slow, and we might say the same of subscription. Only a few days more of this year, and we want everybody to pay up.

SAY IT, TRY IT.—That best brown coffee found at the store of T. B. Totten.

Geo. Hensler, the Hardware Merchant, of Butler, offers his hardware store together with the buildings and other real estate for sale. See advertisement.

WOOD—We want some wood immediately. If you don't owe us on subscription, bring in some good dry wood, and we will pay you the cash.

N. S. BELKNAP, Esq., the popular agent for Knowlton's Universal bath is doing quite well in this vicinity. We are glad to know that our citizens have a desire to be clean and correspondingly happy.

Have you seen Davenport & Co's stock of Blank Books? They have a fine line and sell them very cheep.

HOUSEHOLDERS CALL IN.—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

To Whom It May Concern.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to Drs. Keeslar & Casebeer, either by note or account, will please call and settle the same immediately. The old books must be settled. nov22-1m

WE have had a hard time getting our paper out this week. Our foreman has been sick and we ourself have been in the same boat, so we know how it is ourself. We hope our readers will excuse the want of the usual amount of matter hoping that all hands will be able to be at their post next week.

FRIEND MAYS of the Auburn Courier thinks we are "jealous" of that town. Just the contrary. We rejoice in the prosperity of that burg.—Col. City Post.

That's right, Brown. We want the friendship of your thriving county seat and hope that the early completion of the Eel River road will bind our interest more firmly together.

A CHILD of Mr. April, residing a short distance from town was terribly scalded by running against and upsetting a pot of boiling water, that its mother had placed on the floor preparatory to scrubbing. Dr. Casebeer was called, and the patient found to be badly injured in the abdomen and on the lower limbs. Hopes are entertained of its recovery. It is about three years old.

A GOOD CHANCE.—A very handsome comfort, of exquisite design and beautiful handiwork can be seen at Abright's jewelry store. It is valued at $30, and chances to possess it will be sold at 50 cent cash each. Also a handsome Hunter case silver watch valued at $20. One hundred numbers, must be sold before they will be put up. Tickets for sale at Abright's store. Go and see them and buy a chance.

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them. Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying everything before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

WE are authorized to state that C. Orff & Co., of Fort Wayne have nothing to do with the so called Fort Wayne store of this place. Some of our citizens have an impression that because this fellow kept books for them, that the store is connected with this enterprising firm. On the same principle a boy may assume to be a man because he can smoke a cigar. When this firm establishes a branch here it will be presided over by an intelligent liberal gentleman.

Notice of Election.

At the next, regular convention Tuesday Eve, Dec 20th 1871, of Dekalb Lodge No 214 F. & A. M. There will be an Election the following officers: Worshipful Master, Senior Wardon, Junior Master, Secretary, Treasury, tyler and three Trustees for the ensuing year. It is hoped that all will be present and come early, by order of the Lodge.

J. L. DAVIS, J. W.

OUR friend Picker has laid upon our table the Lincoln, Rutland and Stamford Mercury, the largest newspaper we ever saw. We take therefrom the following item: A man was ploughing on one of the battle fields near Champigney, France, and the ploughshare struck a shell buried in the ground, when man, horses and plough were blown from the face of the earth by the explosion.

THIS is a splendid time for weddings, and we expect to hear of several, if not more, soon. In the language of the poet—

Cold weather is coming on,
And tedious is the weather;
'Tis too bad to lay alone—
Two ought to lay lay together.

The above is from our gifted friend Sims Major, of the Laporte Herald, who was married a short time ago, to a female woman and he consequently knows how 'tis himself.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne

A CORRESPONDENT writing to the Indianian says:

We were shown a letter recently from J. D. Steele, of Pottstown, Pa., (one of the engineers of of the B. & O. Railroad) in answer to the correspondence of the committee appointed for said purpose, in which he gives it as his opinion, that the route through this place, will meet with favorable consideration by the company, and has forwarded the comunication to W. F. Randolph, their chief engineer. As the engineers are posted with the geography of the country along the proposed route, no survey will be necessary, and shall await the action of the company, hoping that the garden of the west will not be passed by but through.

FOUR cart loads of Clothing received at the popular Red Front, No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind. Store crowded from first to third floor. Largest stock in the State and they must be sold. Greater inducements than ever offered before.—Prices so low that none dare to attempt to compete with us. Everybody acknowledge that the popular Red Front is a success, and are selling goods lower than any house in the State. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

FROM NEW ERA.—Editor COURIER, sir: Though this place has not been represented in your colums for some time, it is still alive, and alive to its best interests I find a spirit manifested among the citizens of New Era, that is not common among our people—the spirit of self-improvement. They have been in the habit of supporting a literary society, for a number of years, and again, early at the approach of winter, a few of the citizens met and aroused the old spirit and have a society now in happy progress, which meets every Monday evening. Among the leaders are Drs. Larimore and Roethers, Bacon, our popular blacksmith, Hoffman, and others. I would now reccommend an association of the teachers and others, who are willing to meet once a week some place in the township, for the improvement in methods of teaching and other important subjects that are too much neglected. This once done and carried on with a will Butler Tp., will have a set of schools not excelled in the county.

"W. H. K."

WHY is it that the great rush for clothing at the original Red Front No. 5, Keystone block?

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

Store crowded from morning until night with customers, but nevertheless come and see us. We will wait upon you and sell you clothing 20 per cent. lower than any other house and defy any one to compete with us. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, the original Red Front Clothing House.

INSURANCE.—Those desiring insurance from loss by fire, can now be accommodated. We have been appointed agent for the Phœnix of New York, a company representing a capital of $1,800,000. Call at the COURIER office. tf.

Correspondence.

AUBURN, IND., December 1, 1871.

REV. A. W. LAMPORT. Dear Sir—Permit me, with feelings of kindness and of the greatest respect for you, personally, to criticize an expression made by you in a recent sermon delivered in our town. The statement I refer to is, as near as I can reccollect, as follows: "That God was as much honored or glorified in the endless damnation of the wicked as in the salvation of the righteous."

Now, I don't understand you in this to state a fact about which there can be no controversy, and as patent to the senses as the existence of the sun or moon, but merely a theory based upon enlightened reason, and one that must stand or fall with the reason upon which it is based. Taking this view we proceed to examine the reasons.

Was the government of God exactly paralleled by family or civil government, the statement would not be true. In parental government the parent is much more honored by the obedience and happiness of his children than in the punishment that results from disobedience. In the latter case, while the child may justly deserve correction, the parent may be, and, indeed, often is, largely implicated in the guilt of the child. The necessity to punish often argues a lack of early training when the mental organization of the child was in a plastic condition; or it may argue a development, in the progeny, of passions and appetites indulged in by the parent. Indeed, there is no parent but who feels, when compelled to punish, that his honor and happiness is lessened by the disagreeable necessity.

Just so with civil government. The rulers of a people, where the laws are so framed and institutions so established as to educate the people in virtue, and to gradually lesson and finally extinguish crime, would be much more highly honored than if their administration would, after a series of years, render it necessary to incarcerate for life half the people in the penitentiary. In all good governments the laws are not framed simply to punish, but to avoid the necessity of punishment. Penalties are attached and inflicted not as an end, but as a means to secure obedience. Any government, civil or otherwise, that would put off the infliction of punishment beyond a period when its restraining power could operate, or would, while inflicting, withhold the power to obey, would be branded as infamous, and would be justly obnoxious to the charge of making the infliction an aimless exhibition of vindictive wrath and power.

But if the statement is not true when applied to family or civil government, how much more palpably untrue is it when applied to the government of God. In civil government, rulers deal with equals. They have not, nor never had control of those mental or moral elements in the subject that develop into disobedience. In the creation of the ruled they had no instrumentality, and if their well meant plans for the happiness of the subject end in failure, the world looks on with charity and honors the intention.—But how is it with the Supreme Ruler? Do I misrepresent you when I state your theory thus: "Time was when nothing existed but the great I AM. Possessed of omniscience, all the past the present and the future is spread out before him. Possessed of infinite wisdom and goodness, and in the exercise of these, he matures the plan of creation. Possessed of infinite power, he organizes all the forces of the universe, physical, mental and moral, sets them in motion, and stamps upon their organism the laws of his own mind. Omnipotence sustains the vast machinery, and carries it down the ages. After a time, in the moral universe, disturbance takes place threatening the success of the grand scheme of universal happiness. To remedy this and secure the success of the original scheme, and in the exercise of infinite wisdom and goodness a plan is devised. The Great Supreme himself engages in the work of securing success and saving an unfortunate part of his creation. Time rolls on. The sublunary affairs of one of the worlds launched out into space closes, and of its numerous inhabitants, notwithstanding the original design and the subsequent "plan," a large number, nay, a large majority find themselves waiting with intense agony in a place described by one of your poets as > "A furnace formidable deep and wide

> O'er boiling with a blue sulphurious tide;
> There clouds of murky smoke and lurid flame
> Burst out in volumes o'er the dark domain."

And of which another of your poets, Dr. Watts, says:

> "The breath of God—His angry breath
> Supplies and fans the fire.
> There sinners taste the second death
> And, would, but can't expire."

Now, my dear friend, I ask you in all candor whether such a theory honors God as much as one that accords to him the complete, final success of all his plans.

But I fancy I hear you say that the above stated defeat of the intentions and purposes of God was man's fault. "He (that is man) might have been saved but he chose not to employ the means offered him." Waiving all considerations of the infinite and controling power of the Deity, and of the falibility of organization, the exposure and liability to temptation, the distractions of care for physical wants, the weak faith in the ideal and the intangible of the creature, your statement would not be sustained by the facts. How many of the race since the morning of creation have passed from earth without the least intimation of the existence of your "plan to save?" or of that endless hell that opens at death to engulph them forever. Is there one in a thousand that has had your "plan" even offered? or ever will have, if you confine its merciful provisions to this life? Stript of its "gittering generalities," your plan of salvation, (not God's plan, as I understand it) presents the appearance of a gigantic scheme to entrap the race in endless ruin, and then furnish a weak excuse for the act.

But we cannot waive the consideration of the character that reason and revelation give to God. We cannot forget "that he doeth his will in the armies of heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth, that none can stay his hand or say to him what doest thou," "that he turneth the hearts of men as the rivers of water are turned;"—neither can we keep out of sight the weakness of poor erring human nature. These are elements that enter overwhelmingly into the consideration of your proposition and the question forcibly thrusts itself upon us: can God, in view of all this, be honored by a theory that charges him with making the agonies of hell an eternal result, that charges him with hanging endless suffering upon the slender thread of human life, nay, upon the decision of a moment and then closing forever the door of mercy. Does it honor the Heavenly Father, whose very essense is love, and "whose tender mercies are over all his works," to charge him with hurling the thunderbolts of his wrath world without end upon the poor, trembling, agonizing victims of his displeasure and of the unfortunate use of their brief moment of time. Thrusting them down, down to the dark abodes of eternal ruin—racking them with unutterable torment, while ages upon ages circle away—tossing them upon the billows of hell's molten sea, while the dark vault of their prison echoing with their groans, reverberates the sentence "eternity of misery is before you."

Oh! my friend, does reason say that such a result would honor God. Does it not rather revolt at the picture, especially when the question is asked "And what is all this for? Does it do God any good? Does it do the saints in heaven any good? No. There is no being in the universe it can benefit. Time has ended, Probation closed, Repentance and prayers are fruitless. No chance for obedience, no door of mercy open. Then why continue the foul blot upon the other wise fair face of the universe. Why shake the confidence of men and angels by holding up to their astonished gaze so sad a spectacle of the wrecked plans and purposes of oimpotence? Why immortalize sin and misery?

But we close for the present. We have ventured to be plain, taking our inspiration from you. If we have used any remark that seems needlessly harsh, we ask your pardon.

Yours in love,
J. P. WIDNEY.

THE UNIVERSAL BATH.—This universally popular bath, which has been in extensive use for sometime in the Eastern States, is now being introduced in our city and vicinity, and receives the greatest commendation from all who have used it by various simple adjustments it affords sponge, hip and full baths—a small one for a child and a large one for an adult, and takes but little water. It may be used in any room in a house without even wetting the carpet, and for storeage can be hung against the wall, occupying but little space. It requires no special room. It has recieved the highest praise from physicians, and other distinguished personages, in all parts where it has been used. The following certificate shows its appreciation in Morrison:

MORRISON, Ill., Aug. 23, 1871

We, the undersigned do hereby certify that we have Knowlton's Universal Bath in use in our families, and for simplicity, convenience, comfort in use, and practical utility, we believe it to be preferable to any other bathing apparatus within our knowledge, and as such cheerfully commend it to the public:

D. N. Linn, Pastor of the M. E. Church; Joseph Shirk, M. D; D. S. Spafford, grocer; Ed. C. Warner, ex-County Treasurer; J. H. Simonson, W. M. Spears, M. Kahn, A. H. Martin, J. M. Baird, Clerk of Circuit Court; R. S. W. Ely, Real Estate Agent; G. T. Crissman, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church; Wm. Lane, Probate Judge, and many others.

The Universal Bath is sold only by canvassing agents, who make a specialty of the bath business, visit the families of the parties interested, give a practical demonstration of its various of its various adjustments, and sell the bath ready for use. The agent, Mr. N. S. Belknap, is now at the Weaver House, and as his sojourn here is uncertain, and may be very short, we advise all to improve the very first opportunity to secure a bath, for cleanliness and health demand a bath in every house. The price is twenty-five dollars, and by many who have used it, it is preferable to an ordinary bath room and fixtures at ten times the cost.

The editor of this paper has purchased one of the Universal Baths, and regards it as one of the best arrangements in the way of bathing now extant. It is much better than the old style of bath rooms, because it can be used in any room, even in the parlor without inconvenience. In cold weather, a few buckets of water will suffice, one can indulge in the luxury without the least waste of time or trouble. It gives you the advantage of all kinds of baths combined and it is easily adjusted to whatever style desired. It is destined to save thousands of dollars of doctors bills, if properly used. We commend it to the public generally as one of the best contrivances for this purpose that can be obtained.

I HAVE no hesitence whatever in saying the Universal Bath deserves to be universally commended as the most convenient durable, and luxurious of any hitherto invented, and that it deserves to be introduced in every household.

J. A. COWAN, M. D.

$25. Twenty-five dollars will be paid for a single case of incurable Catarrh. Dr. Merwin's Vegetable Catarrh Cure is the cheapest, as a package makes one pint of Medicine, and issent by mail on receipt of thirty cents. And is the BEST, because it never fails to cure any case of Catarrh.

We wish to send our phamplet, entitled "Man and Woman as Invalids," to every reader of this paper, and will mail, free, a dozen or more copies to any person who will hand them to their friends. Address St. Louis Medical Association, No 117 6th St. St. Louis, Missouri.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Baptized in Fire.

THE CHICAGO PHENIX!

A UNIVERSAL NEWSPAPER.

READ THE FOLLOWING.

A popular weekly paper for the times, embracing the leading features of those journals destroyed by the terrible conflagration, and combining just such a corps of writers as will give the public all the news of the week, in a condensed compilation of the leading journals of the nation and the world

A TRUTHFUL RECORD.

The Phenix will be the Most truthful and reliable recorder of incidents and facts concerning the great fire, ever published.

ACCOUNTS OF THE FIRE.

It will contain only such accounts as are vouched for by reliable witnesses, and will correct the erroneous and fabricated statements of sensational writers.

CHICAGO AND THE NEWS.

It will, for a time, be devoted especially to the past, present and future of Chicago, besides being the most complete weekly newspaper in the world.

FIRESIDE COMPANION AND NEWSPAPER.

Its columns are devoted to News, Commerce, Science, Literature, Art, Drama, Music, Humor, Pastime, Poetry, Fashion, Society news, and enough of Romance to make it a most desirable fireside companion, as well as the most reliable and complete newspaper for the business man in the counting room.

BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS.

It will be illustrated with engravings taken from photographs of the Chicago Ruins, instead of sketches, 'by our special artist' who was not on the spot;' and thus gives a series of perfect views, not obtainable elsewhere, and the first number will contain the only correct map of the burnt city,

HAPPY HOURS.

That beautiful literary journal; "Happy Hours" whose publisher was the first to issue a paper to meet the public demand, after the awful fire, has been merged into the literary department of the "Phenix," which will embrace the contributions of more than sixty of the most popular writers of the day.

A SPECIAL FEATURE.

The "Phenix will contain, as an especial feature a more complete record of incidents and results of the late terrible fire, than can be found in any book paper, or publication in the country. So numerous and inaccurate have been the accounts sent forth, that something reliable and readable is eagerly sought at this time, and The "Phenix" will fill the bill.

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

The "Phenix is the cheapest paper in America, being an eight page, forty column weekly, at only two dollars a year; in fact it shall be the paper for the people and the times.

THE FIRST NUMBER.

The first number will be issued on Saturday Nov 11th. and will be the paper wanted by everybody, as a record worth preserving or to send away and for its accurate illustrations.

ITS BASIS.

It is a consolidation of other journals, and therefore on a solid foundation, continuing their former circulation.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

To any person who gets us three new subscribers we will send the "Phenix" for one year free, or one of our beautiful prize, steel plate engravings worth $2.50.

PREMIUMS.

For the purpose of rapidly increasing our subscription list before the close of the present year we will give to every person who subscribes for the "Phenix" during the month of November, a beautiful steel engraving, worth $2,00, half a dollar more than the price of subscription. No such opportunity was ever before given, and probably never will be again. Avail yourself of it. Engravings will be promptly and safely sent by mail or delivered at this office, as subscribers may wish.

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

Send in your names and subscriptions at once, and sustain this great, newspaper enterprise.—Price of subscription only two dollars per year.—Single copies 5 cents. Agents wanted everywhere.

FOUTZ'S CELEBRATED Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

IN THE TUNNEL.

Riding up from Bangor
On the Pullman train,
From a six weeks shooting
In the woods of Maine.
Quite extensive whiskers,
Beard, mustache as well,
Sat a "student feller,"
Tall, and fine, and swell.

Empty seat behind him,
No one at his side,
To a pleasant station
Now the train doth glide.
Enter aged couple,
Take the hinder seat,
Enter gentle maiden,
Beautiful, petite.

Blushingly she falters,
"Is this seat engaged?"
See the aged couple,
Properly enraged,
Student, quite ecstatic,
Sees her ticket's "through;"
Thinks of the long tunnel—
Knows what he will do.

So they sit and chatter,
While the cinders fly,
Till that "student feller"
Gets one in his eye;
And the gentle maiden
Quickly turns about—
"May I, if you please, sir,
Try to get it out?"

Happy "student feller"
Feels a dainty touch,
Hears a single whisper,—
"Does it hurt you much?"
Fizz! ding, doing! a moment
In the tunnel quite,
And the glorious darkness
Black as Egypt's night.

* * * *

Out into the daylight
Darts the Pullman train,
Student's beaver ruffled
Just the merest gain
Maiden's hair is tumbled,
And there soon appeared
Cunning little ear-ring
Caught in student's beard.

A Sensational Story.

The papers of central New York give large accounts of an affair which may be styled 'Strange if True.' Some months ago a notorious counterfeit, John H. Sims, confined in the Syracuse jail and sentenced to prison at Auburn, conceived a brilliant idea to effect his escape. In pursuance of his project he applied to a syracuse doctor, who, on the promise of a rich reward if successful, gave the prisoner some potent drugs, which threw him into a trance resembling death. An inquest was held, and a verdict of suicide by poision rendered. The body was then given the friends of the deceased. After the report of his death was circulated, and he had recovered from the trance, he was taken by his confederates to a safe resort, thoroughly disguised, and being put on board the cars he proceeded to Binghamton. At the very time he was leaving Syracuse people were holding funeral services over an empty coffin suppose to contain the body. From Binghampton he went to Pittsburg, and from there to Denver, Colorado, where a startled Syracusan saw him and supposed him to be the ghost of the suicide. Explanations followed, during which Sims related his strange, eventful history, with many embellishments which we omit, and give the story in its i s most simplest form.

Electric Clocks.

A remarkable clock has for some time past been doing public duty in London, forming one of the most conspicious objects to be seen in the city, and exciting very general interest, on account of the peculiar application of electricity to its movement. The object of the company by whom this electric clock was erected, was to make the 'globe' do duty as a clock face some of its convexity has, therefore, been sacrificed, but the result is declared to be a novel and beautiful object, the interest of which is only exceeded by its utility.—The globe is surrounded by gilt stars which indicate the hours, and by the shape of the dial so much light is thrown upon them that they are visable by night and by day, while the pointers contribute greatly to the general effect of the design The clock, constructed on the peculiar principle of electrical action, of course requires no winding up. The dial is illuminated by Schæffer's patent double burners; and by ingenious apparatus the gas is turned off every morning and evening two minutes earlier and two minutes later every day as the days are lengthening or shortening, and it is adjustable as well for the foggy days of November as for the light nights of summer.

A Preacher Mistaken.

A well known New Orleans minister, walking along the street a few days since, met a lady for whom he had recently performed the marriage service. Desiring to renew the acquaintance (for the lady had interested him greatly at the time) he accosted her with the remark:

'Madam, did I not have the pleasure of marrying you a few days since?'

'I was married a few days since, sir.'

'Yes—I thought I was not mistaken. I married you.'

'Indeed! Well, I thought my husband was a much younger man than you are; but I have not seen enough of him to make his acquaintance thorougly. By the way, my dear, my chignon is getting shabby; please give me some money to buy a waterfall.'

Evidently this was more than the minister bargained for, and with a hasty bow, accompained by 'No, you are not the lady—I'm mistaken,' and the preacher took his leave.

How to Become a Millionaire.

John McDonough, the millionaire of New Orleans, has engraved upon his tomb a series of maxims he has prescribed all through life, and to which his success in business is mainly attributed. They contain so much wisdom that we copy them:

RULES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF LIFE, 1804.

Remember always that labor is one of the conditions of existence,

Time is gold; throw not one minute away, but place each one to account.

Do unto all men as ye would be done by.

Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to day.

Never bid another do what you can do yourself.

Never covet what is not your own.

Never think any matter so trifling as not to deserve notice.

Never give out that which does not first come in.

Never spend but to produce.

Let the greatest order regulate the transactions of your life.

Study in your course of life, to the greatest amount of good.

Deprive yourself of nothing necessary to your comfort, but live in an honorable simplicity.

Labor to the last moment of your existence.

Pursue strictly the above rules, and the divine blessing and riches of every kind will flow upon you to your heart's content.

First of all, remember that the chief and great duty of your life should be to tend, by all means in your power, to the honor and glory of our Divine Creator.

The conclusion to which I have arrived is, that without temperance there is no health; without virtue, no order; without religion, no happiness; and that the aim of our being is to live righteously, wisely, and soberly.

IN MORTAL PERIL.

'Good morning, sir; a lovely day?'

I started rather guiltily from the stooping position in which the voice of my unknown colloquist had accosted me. In truth and fact, I was engaged in examining the padlocked moorings of a graceful little boat whose keel lay on the shore, half buried in rushes and low, luxuriant undergrowth, and meditating to myself how very agreeable a row across the crystal clear lake would be through the fragrant silence of the purple August day break!

'Good morning!' I responded, turning to meet the inquiring gaze of a tall, rather gentlemanly looking personage, apparently about thirty-five years of age, who stood leaning against a fanciful little gate of painted wire. He was dark and handsome with piercing eyes, a forehead slightly bald, and a jet black moustache, twisted jauntily away from a small, nervous mouth, and his dress—cool white linen, with a narrow crimson silk tape confining his immaculate colar—was tasteful and faultless in the last degree. He had taken off this light straw hat to greet me, and now stood apparently awaiting some more definite explanation on my part.

'I beg your pardon, sir,' I stammered, rather confused, 'I—I hope I am not trespassing upon private grounds?'

'Why, sir, you are undoubtedly on private grounds' returned the stranger, smiling, 'but I think we won't call it by any such harsh name as trespassing. Your are staying in the neighborhood?'

'I am at the Lake House for the summer,' I explained, 'and I suppose my morning walk has lead me further than I at first intended.'

'You are about six miles from the house, sir,' returned my companion, courteously. 'And, judging from your occupation when I came down to the gate, you would not object to crossing back by water?'

I laughed and acknowledged the fact.

'To tell you the truth, sir I was just thinking how cool and pleasant a short row would be. In fact, if the boat had not been fastened, I should most assuredly have braved all consequences, and boldy ventured the experiment!'

'I think we can overcome that objection,' said the stranger, quietly turning to an old ruined tree whose gnarled trunk overhung the transparent tide, and drawing a key from its hollow depths. 'Suppose we get up an appetite for breakfast together. I am not an experienced oarsman myself, and I suppose you understand the art of propelling a piece of timber on the water?'

'Just give me an opportunity, and see if I don't indicate my education in aquatic matters,' I said, in high good humor, springing into the fairy like little shell, followed by my acquaintance. 'Really, sir, this is an unexpected treat. I scarcely know how to thank you sufficiently for your courtesy.'

'Then do not attempt it,' said the gentleman, inclining his head with a dignified, high-bred politeness which impressed me more and more in his favor. 'I assure you the gratification is entirely mutual. Pull to the right a little; we shall get entangled in yonder floating sheet of water lilies, if we are not careful. Upon my word this is a most perfect morning for the water.'

It was indeed. Across the diamond glitter of the lake, the golden splendors of an August sunrise were just beginning to be reflected; while along the dense, dewy verdure of the shores a perfect orchestra of birds was breaking into melodious tumult and in the distance, a range of dim, misty mountain peaks leaned against the horizon like far off sentinels, almost losing their outline in the blue radiance of the cloudless heavens!

'I wish I were an artist!' broke almost involuntarily from my lips.

'Need a man be an artist, to enjoy the beauties of such a scene as this?' he asked. 'A little more towards yonder point, if you please, sir. Now we are out in the channel, and you can pull as hard or as easy as you please. The boat will almost move of herself, in fact!'

He threw down his oars, and lean'd back in the stern, adjusting his straw hat so as to shield his eyes from the too vivid glare of the morning sunshine.

'One scarcely thinks of civilization in such a secluded spot as this,' he murmured lazily. 'I suppose there isn't a living soul within five miles of us, always excepting birds, fishes and squirrels?'

'I supposes not I asserted.

'But nevertheless the forms and ceremonies of society cannot entirely be cast aside. May I know whom I have had the pleasure of helping to an hour's pleasure?'

I drew my card from my waistcoat pocket, and handed it across, with a smile.

'Vernon Cheveley, eh? A very pretty name, sir. I congratulate myself on making your acquaintance. Will you allow me to reciprocate your frankness?'

He bowed low as he presented me with a crumbled bit of brown paper that he extracted from an old cigar case. Upon it was inscrbed in staring letters of red ink the one word 'Albert.'

'Albert who?' I involuntarily inquired.

'Albert, sir?' returned my companion, starting into a sitting posture, and regarding me with stern dignity, 'Prince Albert, sir?' Albert of England, Sotland and Wales!

I stared at him aghst. Was the man mad, or dreaming?

'To your knees, sir!' he said with a sharp, sudden imperiousness. 'Have you no reverence for royalty?

I obeyed his quick sign, almost before he knew what I was doing. He smiled complancently, at the same time drawing a grandy tinsel star from his pocket, and gravely affixing it to the left brest of his coat.

'Yes my friend,' he went on, impressivly, 'you are now in the presence of the Prince Consort of Great Britain! Men have amused themselves by disseminating the idle tale that I was dead—that's all they know about it. I am not dead; and what is more. I never shall die. I am privileged with the gift of everlasting existence. As long as I wear this jeweled star, death can never come near me!'

I felt the cold perspiration oozing from every pore in my body: I could almost feel myself grow pale, as I became fully convinced that I was out upon the solatary lake alone with a madman! I had heard, when first I came to the mountain retreat, that there was a large 'Maison Sanitaire' somewhere in the vicinity, but I had never given the affair a second thought. Now I was reaping the consequences of my own folly and recklessness.

'I suppose,' went on my strange companion, 'that Victoria misses me; in fact, they say she's on the high road to a lunatic asylum, all on the my account But she shouldn't allow Lord Palmerston to have so much authority. I wouldn't stand a divided rule, and so I told her. It's her own fault,'

His dark, piercing eyes roved restless from object to object, as he wandered on. Suddenly they rested on my appalled countenance.

'You don't believe what I am saying!'

The rememberance of what I had often read and heard about the expediency—nay, the positive necessity, that existed for indulging monomanics to the top of their bent, in whatever whim might possess their minds, occurred to me, and I hastened to reply:

'Of course I believe it! Why shouldn't I!'

Ah!' why shouldn't you, indeed? But people are so skeptical now-a-days Now, when Victor Emanuel was staying at my house, and Pope Pius came down by way of the Mediterranean—Take care! Where are you going?

I had thought to take advantage of the new path into which his troubled mind had wondered, to divert our course a little more shoreward, but his cunning, roaving eye was upon me in an instant.

'It—it is getting very hot here,' I stammered. 'I thought perhaps we should find it cooler on the shore!'

'Ah-h-h!' he hissed, putting his face so close to mine as to glare up into my eyes, under the very shadow of my wide-brimmed Panama hat, 'you're a traitor and a hypocrite, like all the rest of'em! But I'm prepared for you. See!'

And with a burst of laughter so dissonent that the very tides seemed to tremble and quiver, he flashed a long sharp knive, in the air, describing a circle of gleaming light round his head. My blood seemed turned to ice in my veins as it dazzled across my vision.

'Put up the knife, your Royal Highness,' I said, counterfeiting an off hand ease that by no means felt.—'Where's the use of it between friend? Let's talk about Victoria.'

I was the more anxious to secure his attention, as I saw moving figures among the undergrowth on the shore scarcely half a mile away from us, the flutter of a white handkerchief, and then a total disapperance of the figures. Help was at hand, I felt quite sure, if I could only maneuver so as to reach it.

'Well, about Victoria,' agreed the the poor maniac, carefull sheating the knife in an old chamois-skin case, and laying it down besides him. 'She's a good woman, but—but she's so peculiar. Now, do you know,' he said moving close up to me, and speaking in low mysterious voice, she won't let me alone!'

'No!'

'She won't. Sometimes she climbs up among the stars at night, and sits there winking through my bed-room window all night long. Sometimes she comes jumping down from the clouds among the rain drops, and sometimes—— There she is now, with three pair of fins, and a face like a fish's.'

He uttered and eldritch screech, as he looked down into the clear, shining deeps.

'Let's escape from her!' I exclaimed vigorously seizing my oars. 'She can't follow us on dry land, that's certain. Pull away.'

'No. she can't. We might hide among the woods, only, if she should turn into a squirrel, and jump up and down among the trees—she does sometimes!"

'Well, then we'll borrow a gun, and dispose of her in a short order!' I said, still pulling desperately towards the shore, while the perspiration, cold and clammy as midnight dews, streamed down my temples.

'What are you in such a devil of a hurry for?' demanded my companion, rather morosely. 'Hold up a little, can't you?"

I checked my exertions. Evidently he was in no humor to be trifled with.

'No hurry at all,' I said, as calmly as possible; 'only, you see, Victoria is following you pretty closely, and——'

'We're too near the shore.' he interrupted abruptly.

We were within a few rods of the clustering bushes that I knew contained help. Oh, God! could I but have reached their friendly shelter! How like a mass of lead my heart sank in my bosom, as I saw him catch up the oars, and strike once more in a contrary direction.

But as he turned his head away, I caught up the sheated knife and flung it hurling upon the shore.

'What's that?' he demanded, turning quickly round.

'It's Victoria,' I said as unconcernedly as I could. 'Don't you think we ought to go shore and see what has become of her?'

His restless eyes roved restlessly along the green shore.

'I don't know; what do you think?'

'Why, she's your wife, isn't she?'

'Yes, but——

And if you could once bring her to terms, what would prevent you from amussing your proper station among the crowned heads of England?'

'That's true. Here, head her in towards land. I wonder I never thought of that before.!

Poor fever-braned lunatic! Even in the unconsciousness of my own mortal peril, my heart ached for the crazy flights of his fancy.

We were close to the friendly land; the long, long silver-green tresses of the willows almost touched my throbbing forehead, when my strange comrade started to his feet, with a yell that aroused the echoes floating over the peaceful lake.

'Traitor,' Spy? Double-dyed villain, you've been deceiving me, your hirelings lurk among yonder bushes. But it was in vain, the royalty of England shall never fall a prey to base artifices like these.'

He sprang towards me like an infurited tigar. At the same instant the shore seemed to become alive with hurrying figures, and with a last impulse I caught up the rope that lay coiled in the bottom of the boat, with one end affixed to the iron hooks along the edge, and threw it desperately shoreward. I could see a tall form plunging waist deep into the water to grasp at it, and then the clinging arms of my terrible companion were wreathed round me, and I knew no more!

'Are you better, sir?'

'Better? Yes—do—I can't tell. Where am I?'

'Here at the little shore inn, snug in bed; but you've had a stormy time of it. What possessed you to go out in a boat with that poor gentleman?'

'Mad, isn't he?' I questioned, with all the frightful occurences of the morning crowding back upon my mind, as one may remember the hideous phantasies of a troubled dream.

'Mad as a Mach hair, sir; thinks he's Prince Albert. They say he's the worst case in all the asylum, sir—escaped last night, and has been wondering about the shores all the morning.

'Is he safe at last?'

'Yes, sir: they had a deuce of a time getting hold of him though. He threw you overboard as if you had been a willow twig, and then swam like a fish himself. Dick Dayton—that's his keeper,—says he's got the strength of twenty Sampsons in those long arms of his.

So ended that long, frightful morning among the peaceful solitudes of Shadow Lake, but I carry and everlasting memoral of it, in the shape of a single lock of hair that gleams white as silver, among the chestnut luxuriance that curs over my temples.—While I live, and while that lock retains its ghastly whiteness, I shall never remember my perils and deliverance with a shuder.

The Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DEC. 14, 1871

The Democratic State Central Committee has decided not to hold the state convention on the 8th of January, as heretofore but will postpone it until after the National Convention perhaps. It has been suggested that it be held at some other point than Indianapolis. We don't object. Anything to escape "rings" and other bad influences

There seems to be considerable spite work going on among the candidates proposed for different State offices. We are sorry to see this, as it will work to our injury, should any of them succeed in getting the nomination. If any person named has not the qualifications for the position named, a respectful allusion to them would be much more appropriate than some of the vituperations and personalities now in dulged in. In regard to the Auditorship of State, we see an attempt is benig made to prejudice the present incumbent before the people by charging him with being privy to the injunction issued in regard to cermoneys in the hands of the Auditor. This is simply a false accusation, as we are reliably informed, and is only advenced to further the ends of certain aspirants for the same office. For our part we go for Shoemaker by odds, to any other man yet named. We want a life long Democrat to hold that office, if is to be filled by a Democrat, of which we have no doubt, and none of those who imagine that they hold the Democratic party in their hands will get our vote.

Suit Against Defaulters.

The Attorney General is not having as easy a time with all the ex-officials whom he has prosecuted as he had with Mr. A. H. Connor, ex-State Printer, who came down with a compromis of $18,000 to clear his skirts.

The other parties sued stand upon the defensive and are not disposed to let go their hold of the people's money without a fight. Among those sued are T. B. McCarty, John D. Evans, Nathan Kimball and John J. Morrison, all ex-Radical officials, Morrison and Kimball, having each been State Treasurer, and McCarty and Evans State Auditor. It seems, however, as if there were a concert of action among interested men of both parties, to screen the delinquents if possible. The simple question to our mind is to whom does the money claimed rightly belong, and the law seems clear enough on that point. It was the State's money.

Motions were made at Indianapolis, and argued on the 6th and 7th inst., to dismiss the suits on the ground that the Attorney General had no right to bring suit; that the Auditor of State was the proper officer to do that; and that even if the Attorney General had authority, he had not, as required by the joint resolutions of the General Assembly of 1871, sued "with the advice and consent of the Governor." Those objections are plainly technical and not to the merits of the suits. It is of course the right of the impleaded parties, to see that they are not improperly brought into court, and to know, by legal judgement, what their liability is, if there be any reasonable question on that point; but if they have in fact possessed themselves of public funds, for which they in law and conscience are bound to account, they can, if so disposed, very easily settle that question out of court, and find some public officer to whom they can safely pay what is due the State. They may rest assured that the public mind will not be satisfied without perfect fair dealings in all these matters. Official peculation is one of the flagrant crimes of the day, and the time has come to smite it with a strong hand wherever found.

While the motion to dismiss the suits was pending, the Attorney General to settle the question as to "adviceand consent," of the Governor, addressed that officer a letter of inquiry on that point. We must confess surprise at the evasive and pettifogging reply of the Governer. He has writen pages to answer what could have been answered in ten lines. While he admits that he fully consent to the suits being brought, he says he did not advise them, because his advice was not asked. The object of Governor Baker plainly is, to throw the responsibility of these suits on the Attorney General, and not to compromise the interest of the Governor's political friends. by saying that he advised their prosecution. It is, however a very unimportant fact, whether the Governor advised the suits or not, so long as he consented to their being brought, and his petifogging about it is not to his credit. The Constitution of the United States, for example, provides that the President "shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint ambassadors," &c., but no one supposes that the Senate, in confirming an executive nomination, in fact advise the President to it. They ratify his nomination, that is all, and the words "advise and consent," as used in the Constitution and in the joint resolutions of 1871, mean the same thing.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

William Fleming, of Fort Wayne, is spoken of in connection with the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State. Mr. Fleming possesses the necessary qualifications for the position. His nomination would add strength to the general ticket.—Val. Messenger.

What is the job in Gran't proposal to concentrate the Indians into a single Territory. There is a speculation in it, of course, for his message contains hardly any thing else. When he recommends such a thing, there is money in it, of course.

Speaking of civil service appointments, President Grant says: "If bad men have secured places, it is the fault of the system established by law and custom." The appointment of relatives and present-givers to office was neither law nor custom with Washington, Jefferson, or Lincoln.

The Democratic members of Congress are becoming disgusted with the manner in which various newspapers are advising disorganization. They shortly hold a caucus to adopt a programme for the future, and announce in advance that no new departure will be permitted that looks towards a disruption.

Secretary Boutwell, in his Treasury Report, says the interest on the public debt has been reduced $17,000,000. We paid, in 1871, $125,000,000, and during the last year of Johnson's administration, it was $130,000,000.—The Secretary knows, it appears, so little of the science of numbers as to suppose that the reduction of the principal of the public debt is after this fashion.

The Hon. Clarkson N. Potter, of New York, has introduced in the House of Representatives a joint resolution proposing to amend the Constitution so that the President Vice President hereafter elected shall hold office during the term of six years; but no person shall be eligible to the Presidency who has been once elected to that office. This is a sound application of the one term principle, and if it should be adopted by the two Houses of Congress, and ratified by the Legislature of two-thirds of the Union, the country would be relieved from one of the greatest among the political evils that now afflict it.—New York Sun.

A Quarry of Mud Turtles.

A Wood county paper contains the following account of the discovery of a quarry of Mudturtles. Recently two men were engaged in the construction of Ditch No. 183. The ditch leads through a marshy swamp, which has not probably in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant, been as dry as this year, and even with present great drouth, the team of horses mired so badly that in some instances they had to dig and pry them out from among the sunken bogs where they became entangled. In one place while plowing, and about 2½ feet below the surface, they came upon a literal patch of huge mud turtles, some of which were as large on the back as the bottom of a Windsor chairs, and so firmly imbedded were some of these tough customers that they obstructed the plow, and threw it out of the furrow, the same as a stone or root would do. Five or six of these lusty fellows would sometimes be turned out by single furrow. They had probably sought this moist spot from some distance as the best place to go into winter quarters.

Josh Billings on Marriage.

Sum marry for love, without a cent in their pocket nor a drop of a pedigree. This looks desperate, but it is the strength of the game. Sum marry because wimmen may be scarce next year, and live to wonder how the crop holds out. Sum marry to git rid of themselves, and discover that the game was one that two could play at neither win. Sum marry the second time to get even, and find it a gambling game—the more you put down the less you take up. Sum marry to be happy, and not finding it, wonder where all the happiness goes to when it dies. Sum marry they can't tell who, and live they can't tell how. Almost everybody gits married, and it iz a good joke. Sum marry in haste, and sit down and think it all over. Sum think it over carefully first, and then sit down and marry. Both ways are right if they hit the mark. Sum marry coquettes. This is like buying a poor farm, with no good bottom land, heavily mortgaged, and working the rest of your days to clear off the mortgages. But after all, married life is full as certain as the dry goods business. Kno man can swear exactly where he will fetch up when he tetches calico. Calico don't kno herself. Dry goods of all kinds is the child of circumstances. The man who stands on the bank shivering and dassent, is more apt to catch cold than him who pitches hed first into the river. If anybody asks you why you married, if needs be, tell him you don't recollect why.

STATE FINANCES.

We publish this morning the annual report of the Secretary of State, and, although it is free from rhetorical flourishes, it contains matters of fact, and figures that will interest all tax-payers. The custodian of the funds of the state, Hon. James B. Ryan, makes a concise and understandable exhibit of the finances of the state for the fiscal year ending October 31st, 1871, and of the receipts and disbursements in detail during that period. Mr. Ryan and his state officers did not come into office untill January and February last, so that the present reports include the operations of both Republican and Democratic state administrations. According to the Treasurer's statement, the following is the aggregate of the receipts and disbursements of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1871:

Balance November 1. 1870	$ 373,249 95
Receipts ending October 31, 1871	3,105,639 23
Total	$3,668,886 18
Disbursements for the year ending October 31. 1871	$2,943,600 58
Balance in Treasury November 1. 1871	1,0 5,288 60
Total	$3,978,886 f8

The balance in the Treasury on the 1st of November was $,035,288 60. This sum, with the revenue from taxation and other sources during the present fiscal year, it is thought, will be ample to meet all the obligations of the state, and the diminished tax payers.

Mr. Ryan makes a very clear exhibit of the state debt, and the people can understand from his report just what the public indebtedness is. Radical orators, the Radical press, and even the Radical state officials have asserted with positiveness, that the state debt had been paid, that the public indebtedness had been wiped out, just as clean as a sponge wipes out chalk figures from a blackboard, but we learn from Mr. Ryan's report that all these statements are a delusion and snare. Instead of being out of debt, it appears from the Treasurer's report that the total debt of the state, foreign and domestic, on the 31st day of October last was $3,637,821 00, and that we are paying the interest on all that amount, save $53,920 12 of outstanding five and two and a half per cent. stocks, upon which no interest has been paid since September, 1870. Deduct this sum from the amount of the outstanding debt and and it leaves the sum of $3,883,900-88, upon which six per cent. interest is paid, amounting to the sum of $233,034 05, over a quarter of a million of dollars annually. This is quite an item of interest for a state to pay that is out of debt, according to the boastings of Radical politicians.

It appears by a comparison of the Treasurer's reports for 1870 and 1871, that there have been, as promised, retrenchment and economy under a Democratic administration of the state government and the showing in that regard would have been better than it is if Democratic state officials had been in power during the entire fiscal year. We will notice a few items:

There was paid out in 1870 on account of the Military Fund, $2,318-99, in 1871 $543,09 a saving of $1,-575 90.

On account of Contingent Fund in 1870, $1,495 77, and in 1871, $703-09, a saving of 792 08.

On account of Law Library in 1870, $12,273 87, and in 1871, $5,551 55, a saving of $5,721 32, and nearly all of the expenditures of 1871 were made either by, or for the obligations created by the old Supreme Court.

For distribution of laws in 1870, $1,400 00, when no Legislature was in session, and in 1871, when a Legislature was in session, $725 00, a difference of $675 00.

On account of Indiana Reports in 1871, $5.213 94, in 1870, $3,061 68, a difference of $2,152 26.

For expense of office of Agent of State in 1870, $2,978 88, and in 1871, $1,250, a saving of $1,728 88. Of the latter sum the present Agent of State expended only $354 07.

For expenses of the Superintendent of Public Instruction's office, 1870, $1,000; in 1871, $499 99, a difference of $500 01. The present Superintendent expended only $41 66.

For expenses of office of Secretary of State, in 1870, $1,000; in 1871, $475, a difference of 525. The present Secretary has expended only 182-62.

For expenses of Auditor of State in 1870. 2,000; in 1871, 750, a saving of 1250, and the present Auditor has expended only 180 75.

For expenses of Treasurer's office in 1870, 1,000; in 1871, 500, a difference of 500, and the present Treasurer has expended only 138 90.

For expense of office of Attorney General in 1860, 1,000; in 1871, 94-31, a difference of 905 59. The present Attorney General had nothing charged for office expenses.

For expenses of Quartermaster General's office in 1870, 300; in 1871, 150, a saving of 150.

For Adjutant General's pay in 1870, 1850; in 1871, 800, a saving of 1,050.

The Treasurer's report shows that there has been a general reduction of expenses during the past fiscal year, but we have enumerated enough to demonstrate that retrenchment and economy have been practiced; under the present Democratic state administration The public burdens have been lessened by a large reduction in taxation, which the tax payers will appreciate when they settle with the tax gatherers next spring. This retrenchment in the public expenditures and lessening of the public burdens have been accomplished, when the Democracy had only a portion of the State Administration, and no doubt there would have been a better showing if all had been under their control. There was an increase in state taxation, and a large increase, while the state was under Radical rule, from 1861 to 1871, but when the Democrats were even partially restored to power, taxation and expenditures are at once largely reduced. This fact best illustrates the economy of Democratic in comparison with Radical rule.—Ind. Sentinel.

A deaf old gentleman, walking lately in his garden, heard the milkman shout on the other side of the wall. OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

THE wood trade is reviving.

THE Pork business is lively.

Christmas comes one week from next Monday.

Slates cheaper than ever at Davenport & Co's.

THERE don't seem to be much doing in the way of hunting.

WE see that our depot building is being cleared up—a much needed improvement.

They make capital presents for Christmas and New Years, 2t

THE sqeal of the porker is heard all around. The butchering season has "tsot."

JOHN HEBEL killed two hogs last Monday that netted 800 pounds. Who can beat that.

PERSONAL.—Capt. W. H. Meyers and Frank J. Noll, Esq., of Fort Wayne gave us a call last week.

J. J. GRAFTON, Esq., is now located in his new office in the brick block over Smith & Hare's store.

The nicest holiday presents you can make your wife or sweetheart is a bottle of "I. O. N," sold by Davenport & Co.

INDIGESTIBLE.—Long, spiritless sermons in a cold church. When will this incubus to the great cause be exterminated.

A YOUNG lady from the country has commenced a breach of promise suit against one of the editors of the Fort Wayne Journal for 11.75.

BE sure and call at Gordon's Gallery before the holidays. He has the largest assortment of Albums eqer brought to Auburn.

A cow chewed and masticated a pocketbook containing $180, in Brooklyn, the other day. Thus is the National debt gradually being absorbed.

THROUGH trains are now running between Roan, on the Eel River road and Detroit, over the Sagiuaw and Hilsdale roads Passengers are thus carried to Detroit without change of cars.

Prof. Barrett could not get a suitable place in which to lecture, last week and therefore, could not entertain our citizens It does not look well to be without a hall or room for public entertainments,

IT was so cold in Fort Wayne, last week that they could'nt extinguish the gas—the blaze having froze stiff. So says the Sentinel, but a fellow down in Lafayette don't believe it.

DRESS & CLOAK MAKING.—Miss Mary Long, who has been largely engaged for several years past in the above business, announces that she will open a shop in Mrs. Mott's residence on Cedar street where she will be pleased to attend to all calls in this line of business. 2t.

ACCORDING to ancient superstition, Dec. is the most unlucky month in the year.—The man or woman born in this month will be poor and unfaithful, condemned to woe and sorrow. Persons contemplating being born will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

OUR energetic Dry Goods Merchant, J. W. Case, is putting forth every effort to supply our people with an article of goods which for style and cheapness, cannot be excelled by any. He also keeps a fine stock of Groceries, Queensware, &c., and buys produce of every kind. See advertisement in another column. No shoddy.

THE LaGrange Standard don't come worth a cent. What's the matter, Devor? Because we did'nt drop out Dr. Bort's advertisment? We are going to get our money if possible, as there's very little satisfaction in blowing a fellow because he's in your debt. We've taken out his card, and we propose to get our pay first.

I. LAUFERTY & SONS, at Fort Wayne, are doing an immense business in the Clothing line, and have an excellent stock from which to select. They are cleaver, gentlemanly fellows, always obliging and accommodating, and will do the square thing in a trade.

WE agree with the Valparaiso Messenger and Laporte Herald as to Chicago "outsides." We've tried 'em and know that where advertising patronage is small, they are far superior in point of general news and of great advantage to the publisher.—No paper in the country can get up any better outside, notwithstanding the fat takes they may have been enjoying for years past.

OUR SCHOOL.—We were in attendance at our schools, the other week, and found everything moving along in the best possible manner. The attendance is large and consequently the school is an interesting one, even to the visitor. From what we saw we can assure our citizens the proper training and development of the minds of their children is in good hands. Second their efforts by sending your children promptly and regularly, and you can hope for the best results.

To Whom It May Concern.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to Drs. Kesslar & Casebeer, either by note or account, will please call and settle the same immediately. The old books must be settled. nov22-1m

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them. Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying every thing before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone

EEL RIVER ROAD.—The committee appointed to work up the subscriptions on this line, don't seem to be doing very much One or two are ready and willing to do all they can, but unless there is a united effort by the whole committee, their labor will come to naught. They should devote an entire week to working up this interest, and then if they fail no one can charge them with inactivity. Let an effort be made, gentlemen, and we have no doubt but that it will prove successful.

ON Thanksgiving day Mr. Isaac Cornell gave a dinner to his children at his residence. There were present on the occasion 68 persons—eight of whom were his own children, who had grown up to manhood and womanhood, and who, on this occasion, brought to their aged parents thirty-nine grand and twenty-one great grand childern. It is not often that such a gathering takes place, and his joy on beholding so large a family of his children must have been beyond expression.—Valp Messenger.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR STOCK.—The season has arrived when it is positive cruelty to permit a beast to stay out of doors for a single night. A sense of justice to these animals, which exist only for our use, if he does not consult his own interest, should impel every farmer immediately to put every stable and shed on the farm into proper condition, to fasten all loose boards, close all open windowns, and make his stock snug and comfortable.—There's money in it too, as he will find. Even his hens will lay better if they are kept warm.

PROPHETIC.—It will be remembered that Isaiah A. Likens, of this county, lost all his children, four in number, by that fearful disease, diphtheria, last month. When the oldest, a boy of ten years, was about to depart, he calmly turned to his weeping parents and told them not to weep that he was going to a much happier place and that he could see his little sister, Ida who had died a few days before beckoning him on. He told them that they would lose all their children, though the other two were yet untatched with the disease. He died shortly after and in ten days the other two were buried. This is regarded as an unusual occurrence by those who were acquainted with the circumstances, for a boy of his age.

CORRECTION.—We stated last week that C. Orff & Co., of Fort Wayne had authorized us to say that they had no business connection with the store of the same name here. This we did, and in the same connection we made a remark of our own which some might infer, had received the indorsement of this firm. Such is not the case. They have sent us a communication which we decline to publish. If C. Orff & Co., desire a denial of anything in our paper, and will write their communications in gentlumanly terms we will be pleased to publish them. It will be understood that they desire us to say that they had no business connection with this store—only this, and nothing more.

Sedan Brevities.

PERSONAL.—Dr. D. E. Mason, is in the eastern part of New York, paying a visit to his parents.

PERSONS who are in the habit of securing a supply of fuel by treasure troving in other peoples wood piles, are warned to look out for an explosion. An exasperated gentleman whose cognomen and residence shall be nameless here, has loaded a stick of wood with gun powder and placed it where they may break through and steal, and now he waits with bated breath and demonical smiles for the denoument.

ANYONE deriring provocation for whole sale profanity, will please promenade up and down our side walks the next "dark" night.

Amusements.

Under this head we have the pleasure of recording a very entertaining performance at the School House, the only place we have now for such things. It was a minstrel troupe, and the characters were splendid, when a comparison with the managers of the concern is made. They consisted of what is usually denominated poppets, seen through a small opening the drop curtain being raised about a foot from the floor or stage. Some one was regularly imployed to dance the 'minstrels' by bobbing them up and down with a string. This was repeated for a long time when finally some one asked when the show would begin. A miserable sqeak was produced from a violin in the hands of one of the main artists who laughed a good deal more than the little boys on the front seat, at the performance. Finally a change was made and instead stuffed men came men stuffed with idea that they could give a show. One tried to dance and kept excellent time, of his own, there being no music to confine him. The girl who accompanied them would laugh immoderately at their own large efforts, to please. Taken altogether it is the best bore for a show now to be seen. They do their traveling on foot, caring their traps.

HOUSEHOLDERS CALL IN.—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

Interesting Correspondence.

Most everybody from here to the west line of the county, is acquainted with that good humored, genial, witty and liberal gentleman, James P. Mansfield, of the firm of Mansfield & Scanlan, railroad contractors. Why, of course. Any body that don't know him has missed a treat. Well the following has particular refference to him:

FT. WAYNE, IND., Nov. 24, 1871.

James P. Mansfield:

DEAR SIR—I am now engaged in manufacturing a lung syrup and water-proof blacking, which I wish to sell through this State this winter. I contemplate putting a wagon on the road by the first of Dec. I want some man to accompany me, and I have been informed that you in all probability was the man I wanted. I wish a man who can sing or play some instrument, and can sell these goods on the street. Will you please let me know how much you want per day or week, with traveling expenses paid. Please give this your attentson soon, and oblige. I have two offers here, but they are not such as I desire.

Yours very truly,
M. S. MARSHALL.

DETROIT, Dec. 1, 1871.

M. S. Marshall, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—Your welcome favor came duly to hand, but pressing business has prevented an earlier response. I regret to state that I am compelled by my numerous engagements to decline an immediate acceptance of your very flattering proposal. I am now taking an inventory of the Industrial school, preliminary to a grand onslaught upon the pockets of the people in the way of a concert for the benefit of that institution, which will take place within the next thirty days—an entertainment of whice the people demand a repetition, unless they have sadly degenerated, and it is hardly probable that I can be freed from this and similar engagements before spring, when I am your huckleberry, and I feel perfectly sure we will have a good thing. Lung balsam and water-proof blacking are right in my line. The lung is a part of the animal economy to which I have been compelled, by my profession as a vocalist, to devote particular attention, and I have practiced extensively, with the view of expanding that organ, upon the planis of Missouri, as well as upon the storm beaten shores of Batchewanung. Rest assured, Dear Sir, that any thing calculated to benefit that important organ will have my earnest sympathy. As regards the blacking, I feel assured that, so far as that concerned, I am equally well calculated to 'shine,' being a little on the water proof order myself. With respect to instrumental music, I always feel at home when brass is in vouge, but my favorite instrument is a 'horn.' This is an article whose liquid notes I greatly admire, and one with whose excerises I am perfectly familiar. So much for my professional qualifications.

Yours trully,
JAMES P. MANSFIELD.

Winter Evenings.

And now comes the long pleasant evenings, which every man, woman and child in the land can enjoy, if they only know how. Ah, there's the rub. Pure unalloyed enjoyment all comes from the knowing how. The seasons pass away day by day; the sultry hours of summer give place to the biting frosts of winter, and out door sports are abandoned for the pleasures of home, and all the cozy comforts of the fire side. It it the season for calls—not your fashionable drop-in-a-moment calls—where there's a-how'd'ye-do, a shake of the hands, a kiss or two and a good-bye; but a real genuine, glad-to-see-you, and spend-the-evening visit. You call on Jones, not because you owe him one, but because you want a good chat, and you know he'll be glad to see you. You find him poking the lazy fire, perhaps, and getting ready to eat nuts, apples, and popcorn, with a pitcher of cider, or may-be a cigar handy. You sit and chat, and eat and drink, and make yourself at home, and at 10 o'clock you go home feeling good all over, and as though the world was a prety good place to stay in, afterall. Of course your wife was along with you, and she had enjoyed the visit too. She feels refreshed and happier, for having had no cares upon her mind, (and women have too many at all times, as a general thing.) She retires to her own home with a glad heart. No melancholy, no gloom can come to such a household. The occupants know how to enjoy themselves. They know that it is the season to cultivate the social qualities, to visit, to go to sociables and festivals, to mingle with friends, and to profit by life as we are given faculties to improve and enjoy it. So let the winter pass, and while earth is hidden by snow, and hardened by the frost, let us sit beside our well filled garners, unheeding the tempest without.

WHY is it that the great rush for clothing at the original Red Front No. 5, Keystone block?

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

It is valued at $30, and chances to possess it will be sold at 50 cent cash each. Also a handsome Hunter case silver watch valued at $20. One hundred numbers, must be sold before they will be put up. Tickets for sale at Abright's store. Go and see them and buy a chance.

"HOW TO GO WEST"

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go and journeys were made in the legendary 'Prairie Schooner,' but in these days of progress and improvement, the word West has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California' and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago Burlington & Quincy R. R., from Indianapolis over the Indianaplis, Bloomington & Western Short Line, and from Logansport, over the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw R. R., and running through Burlington, reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other rail roads running from those cities.

Always go 'By way of Burlington,' and you will be sure to be right.

The Burlington route has admirable answered the question, 'How to go West?' by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to Time, Convections, Fare, &c., and illustrated by a large map truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing, General Passenger Agent, B M. & R. R. Burlington, Iowa.

Home! Sweet Home!

That wide, open, friendly fireplace, with its lively crackling, or its sweet twilight embers, always appears to me the meet emblem of a contented, great heart, answering back to your own joy, and lighting up your own shadows. And sometimes, surrounded by stranges, the object of dull remark, or cold criticism, or ignorant condemnation, how I have pictured to myself a word of wrath like the great fireplace at home, where every man should be greeted with, "Welcome, welcome! brother!" and a comfortable snug corner of his own, and shining faces over the glowing hearth.

Look kindly on the stranger, gentle friend—thy looks are either so many sweet, sunny beams, that betoken the common fellowship of true humanity, or so many icy rays that chill him to the heart—freeze little by little the fountain of love—that fill him with the distrust of the world and hatred of his species No man knows for how much of other's wickedness and wretchedness he may be held accountable. A look of thine may breed sorrow in thy brother, though a stranger. A look of thine may do a good deed, may shine from thy face to his face, and be reflected, like a ray of the sun, over half the globe.

What is heaven itself but the renewal of the fresh hearts and delightful pleasures of childhood's home? A happy child looks forward to a happy home above.—The hireling, initiated but too early in guilt and misery, or in misery and guilt, seldom hopes for better accommodations at the journey's end; and the shadows of his childhood descends before him to the grave.

A GOAT.—A goat is stronger than a pig. He looks at you so dose the doctor, but a goat has four legs. A boy without a father is an orphan, and if he ain't got a mother he is two orphan. The goat dose not give so much milk as a cow but more than the ox. I saw an ox to the fair one day, with a card tied on his left ear and we all went in on the family tisket. Mother she picks geese in the summer. Goats eat grass and jump on a box. Some folks don't like goats, but as for me give me a mule with a paint brush tail. The goat is a useful animal and smells as sweet as bars oil for the hair. If I had not much hair I would wear a wig as old captain peters does. I will sell all my goats for three dollars, and go to the circus to see the elephant which is bigger than five goats.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne

AGAIN ahead of all! Is the exclamation we make on opening 'Peterson's Magazine' for January. It is imposible to conceive how a lady's book could be handsomer, or more perfect. 'I Wander If I Could Dance' the principal steel plate, is one of the most charming we have ever seen. Another steel plate is 'The New Governess,' illustrating a beautiful tale by the author of 'Kathleen's Love Story." The double size mammoth, colored, steel fashion plate is a gem of loveliness; these colored mammoth steel plates are a specialty with 'Peterson.' Then there is a superb Berlin pattern, in colors, for a chair seat, such as at a store, would cost fifty cents or even more. Address Chas. J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

VINEGAR BITTERS

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Wisdom and Truths.

Tell not your secrets to your servant, for he will then be your master.

If you would have a faithful servant, and one that you like, serve yourself.

Temperance, indeed, is a bridle of gold; and he who uses it rightly, is more like a God than a man.

Politeness is like an air-cushion—there may be nothing in it, but it eases our jolts wonderfully

A good word is an easy obligation; but not to speak ill, requires only our silence, which costs nothing.

Mind this.—It is better to accomplish perfectly a very small amount, than to half-do ten times as much.

Grief knits two hearts in closer bonds than happiness even can; and common suffering is a far stronger link than common joy.

It is with narrow-souled people as with narrow necked bottles; the less they have in them, the more noise they make in pouring out.

Consolation indiscretly pressed upon us when we are suffering under affliction, only serves to increase our pain and to reder our grief more poignant

The talent of turning men into ridicule, and exposing to laughter those one converses with, is the gratification of little minds and ungenerous tempers.

With many readers, brilliancy of style passes for affluence of thought; they mistake buttercups in the grass, for immeasurable gold mines under ground.

When thou makest presents, let them be of such things as will last long; to the end they may be in some sort immortal, and may refresh the memory of the receiver.

Of all passions, jealousy is that which extracts the hardest service, and pays the bitterest wages. Its service is—to watch the success of our enemy; its wages—to be sure of it.

Told the Truth.

Some one was telling me, the other day a new story about the late Dean Richmond, who was known far and wide for his profanity and giddiness of manner.—Richmond was here at the time, and my informant, who was then a boy working in a printing office, wished to get a pass over the Central Railroad. With this purpose in view he enterted the office where the magnate was, fearing that he would be rudely rebuffed when he made his mission known. After a moment's hesitation he said falteringly:

'Mr. Richmond, I believe?'

'Yes, what do you want of me!'

'I should like, sir, to get a pass from Albany to Buffalo, as I can go up on the boat for nothing.'

'On what grounds do you ask for a pass?' (This way a rising and very rough voice)

'On the ground, sir, that I don't want to pay my fare.'

Richmond, without another word, wrote out a pass for the applicant.

The boy took it saying: 'Thank you, Mr. Richmond.

'You need'nt thank me, youngster. I am d—d glad to accommodate you. You are the first person I've ever known, by G—d, to ask for a pass on the right grounds.'

A Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press tells this anecdote of Senator Conkling:

'One day, down the avenue proceeded the dignified gentleman. Opposite the Metropolitan he was met by the Hon. Wm Kellogg, of Louisiana, who thus addressed him:

'Hello! How goes it, Conkling?'

'Sir,' said the blonde, drawing himself up to his full length, 'that is no way to to speak to a United States Senator. I am Senator Conkling.'

'Senator, sir.'

'So am I Senator" answered Kellogg, 'and it's no use putting on any of your d—d frills with me. I'm known as Bill Kellogg,' and the Louisianian left him.'

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

Store crowded from morning until night with customers, but nevertheless come and see us. We will wait upon you and sell you clothing 20 per cent. lower than any other house and defy any one to compete with us. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, the original Red Front Clothing House.

$25. Twenty-five dollars will be paid for a single case of incurable Catarrh. Dr. Merwin's Vegetable Catarrh Cure is the cheapest as a package makes one pint of Medicine, and is sent by mail on receipt of thirty cents. And is the best, because it never fails to cure any case of Catarrh.

The largest double sheet in Indiana, containing Thirty-Six columns filled with news from all parts of the world Choice Original and Selected Tales, Sketches, Poetry, Wit and Humor.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The Weekly Gazette has more interesting and popular specialties than any other Newspaper published in this State. Notice the following:

FULL TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES.

The Weekley Gazette contains full Telegraphic Dispatches of everything that has transpired during the week throughout the country and world.—No other Weekly has this Feature! from the fact that no other paper in this and adjoining districts publishes a daily, in connection with it, and do not get the dispatches until copied from old papers.—Readers of our weekly therefore, can get all the news as well as those who take the Daily Papers.

HUMOROUS LETTERS.

The most popular humerous literature of the ag—read and laughed over by everybody—will be regularly published in the Gazette. Parson Nasby's Letters will be inserted each week, as well as all witty saying of Josh Billings, Mark Twain and others. The Nasby litters are worth the price of paper. The greatest Feature, however, is an

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

POST AND PARSON.—The following fresh trifle from an English party is not bad:

I was one morning overtaken by an active, hale old fellow, who had been a soldier and seen a great deal of service, but was at the time a river bargeman. In our journey we passed a direction and containing full information.

Adirection post, of course.'

'I call it a parson.'

'A parson! Why?'

'Cause'ee tell'th the way but donth't go.'

'Before we seperated we pased a second post, which was very dilapidated, and had lost his arms.

'If the post we saw just now was a person,' said I, 'what's one?'

'Oh, he's a bishop.'

'Explain.'

'He neither tell'th nor go'th.—Harper's Magizene.

Thunderation Samuel, is the name of a western Indian fighter.

There is a great joker living in Iowa, by the name of Ache, and he has named a newly arrived daughter 'Bellie,' the short for 'Belle.' When she gets big enough to wrestle, won't she give it to that old man?

The Boston Journal announces that 'winter has come. The frog pond or the Common is frozen over.'

One of the principal editors of the london Times says thirty days' labo on a daily paper will squeeze the originaly out of the most talented man in the world.

Everybody loves somebody.

Only a Dream.

Only a summer dream,
Sort of an idle day,
A meadow range, a word beside the stream,
A parting and—away.

Only a dream of love,
Of heart inclined to heart—
As clouds that in the blue of heaven meet,
And white clouds cling and part.

We dreamed and awoke;
No more! But ah, for dreams
Engender'd of the sublime light of love,
Bright with its iris gleams!

Again the medow flowers,
The waters' rippling speed,
The wave as in the dream: but I,
Why should I, waking heed?

The summer voices blend,
In music as of yore,
But from the melody has dropped a note;
There will be sung no more.

The glory and the wealth
Of nature all things share,
But in my heart is no responsive throb
That tells me it is fair.

Back on the sunny dream
I turn an aching gaze;
But the clear splendor of its glory throws
A shadow on my days.

A MUTUAL RUNAWAY.

'Your Aunt Carlton and Cousin Jennie will be here on the next train, Russell,' said Mr. Wiluer to his nephew 'You had better bring them from the—'

'Can't. Am going away, myself, sir.'

'The—the dickens you are!' responded the old gentleman, pushing his spectacles up over his forehead, and regarding his nephew with an air of surprise and consternation.

'Yes, sir. Charley Hunt invited me out to his place for a few weeks, and I thought that I might as well go now as any time.'

'I should says that it was a very strange time to be leaving home. Your aunt and cousin will consider it a personal affront, sir.'

'It is not intended as such, sir. Though to be frank, considering the object of Jennie's visit. I prefer not to see her. And I must say that I think she would have shown more sense and delicacy if she had stayed away.'

'Your cousin is a very lovely girl, Mr. Impudence, and won't be likely to go a begging.'

"I don't doubt it in the least. But for all that, she won't suit me for a wife, uncle.'

'How do you know that, you conceited young donkey, when you have never seen her?' inquired the irate old man, bringing his cane down upon the floor with startling emphasis.

'Common sense teaches me, that no, marriage can be a happy one that does not spring from mutual love. And on one thing I am resolved, that I will never marry from mercenary motives.'

'Nobody wants you to marry the girl unless you like her?' roared Mr. Wilder, his face growing purple with rage and vexation at his nephew's pervisity. 'All we that ask is that you will stay and see her. And this is a point I insist upon—yes, sir, I insist upon it.'

'I am sorry to disobey you, uncle, but if I should stay, it will only give rise to confusion that I am anxious to avoid. But I will tell you what I will do. I will relinquish all claim to the property that you are so anxious should not be divided, as that seems to be the main object. I think that ought to be satisfactory to all parties.'

A few minutes later, Russell passed by the window, vails in hand.

He nodded good-humoredly to his uncle, as he glanced in, who glared after him in speechless rage.

'He shan't have a penny—not a penny!' he growled, and sinking back in his chair, he wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

'What's the matter now?' said the gentle voice of his wife, Polly, who had just entered the room.

'Matter enough, I should say. Russell has gone—actually cleared out, so as not to see his cousin. What do you think of that?'

'I think you'll have another attack of the gout, if you get yourself excited,' said the good lady, as she placidly resumed her knitting.

'What's to be done now?'

'Nothing that I can see. If Russell and Jennie had seen each other before they had any notion that you wanted them to marry, ten to one they would have fallen head and ears in love with each other; but as matters are now, I don't believe it would be of the lerst use. From what Ellen writes me, I should think Jennie to be as much opposed to it as Russell. She says she can't bear to hear his name mentioned, and that it was all she could do to get her consent to come when she heard that Russell was at home.'

'They are a couple of simpletons,' said the old gentleman, testilly. 'I've got a mind to make another will, and leave my property to a charitable institution!'

In going to Dighton, whither he was bound, Russell Wilder had to travel part of the way by stage.

There was only one passenger besides himself, for which he was not sorry, the day being very hot and sultry.

This passenger was a lady—there was an air of unmistakable ladyhood about her which told him that. He noticed particularly the daintily gloved hands and the well fiting boots.

Her graceful form indicated that she was both young and pretty, but he could not see her face on account of the envious veil that hid it.

But as soon as she got comfortably settled in the corner, to which Russell assisted her, she threw it back, disclosing a fair, sweet face, lighted by a pair of wondrously black eyes, which shot a swift, bewildering glance in his that were so intensely regarding her.

The sudden startling of the coach, which sent to the floor, gave Russell an opportunity of speaking, as he returned them, of which he was not slow to take advantage.

From this they fell easily into conversation; and It was curious how sociable they became.

They talked of the beautiful scenery through which they were passing; of the newest books and latest magzines, some of which Russell had with him.

The lady inwardly thought her companion to the most entertaining and agreeable man she ever met with—And as for Russell, he often lost the thread of his discourse in admiring the red, dimpled lips, and the perly teeth they disclosed whenever she spoke or smiled.

Certain it is, that his four hours' ride from P——to Dighton, were the shortest four hours he had ever known in his life.

'Where do you want to be left, sir?' inquired the coachman, as he entered the village.

'At Charles Hunt's, Locust Hill. Do you know where that is?' said Russell, putting his head out of the window.

'Certainly, I do, sir. Take you right there in a jiffy.'

'Why, there's where I am going!' said the lady, opening her eyes widely. 'Nellie—Mr. Hunt's wife—is my most particular friend. We used to go to school together.'

'And Charley Hunt is my most particular friend, and one of the finest fellows in the world.

'How very odd!'

'How very fortunate!' exclaimed Russell, with a meaning glance at his fair companion, which made the rosy cheeks still more rosy.

'Might I take the liberty of inquiring——?'

But just at that moment the stage stopped in front of the house, on the portico of which stood Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, enjoyed the evening breeze.

In a moment Russell was shaking hands with the former, while his companion rushed into the arms of the surprised delighted wife.

'Why, what a happy surprise Jennie!' she said, after spiriting her off to her own room. 'I had given up all idea of seeing you this summer.'

'And I had no idea of being able to come until just before I started. You see, mamma—my step-mother, you know—was going to Uncle Wilder's, and she insisted on my going with her to see that hateful, disagreeable counsin of mine, that they are determined to marry me to. So when mamma was busy packing, I just put on my things and slipped off leaving a note for them to tell where I was going. Wasn't that a good joke on them all?'

'I should think it was,' said Nellie, with a burst of merriment, far more than the occasion warranted. 'When I saw who your companion was, I thought you were on your wedding tour.'

'No, indeed; never saw the man until he got into the stage at P———. But, really, he is the finest looking man that I ever saw, and so agreeable. Who is he?'

'Oh, I'll introduce you when you come down stairs. You'll have only time to dress, Mind and look your prettiest.'

And with a rogush shake of her finger at her friend, Nellie ran away to see about supper.

If Jennie did not look her prettiest, she certainly looked very lovely as she entered the suit exchanged for a fresh, soft muslin, whose simplicity and purity were relived only by the violet colored ribbons in the hair and throat.

Russell had also taken great pains with his toilet, as could be seen by his spotless linen and carefully arranged hair.

The pause that followed Jennie's entrance was broken by Mr. Hunt, who, in response to a meaning glance from his wife, said:

'Russell, allow me to introduce you to your cousin Jennie; Miss Carlton, your cousin, Russell Wilder.'

The embarrassment which followed the blank astonishment into which the announcement threw the parties, so unexpectedly made known to each other, was quickly dispelled by the turn that was given to by their host and hostess.

'I suppose you'll wan't to book your self for the next stage?' said Mr. Hunt slyly, to Russell, who had been taken into his friend's confidence.

'And you,' said his wife, turning to Jennie, 'I don't suppose anything could tempt you to remain, now that you have seen that hateful, disagreeable—'

'Nellie!' interrupted Jennie, crimsoning as she remembered her words.

'Well, I won't, then. But you must let me laugh! Just think of you both running in the same direction, and to the same place!'

The laugh that burst from Nellie's lips was too contagious to be resisted, even by those at whose expense it was raised.

This merriment was followed by a general good feeling, and a pleasanter tea party never gathered around the social board.

We need hardly say that Russell did not take the stage the next morning, nor did Jennie seem at all disposed to cut short her visit on account of her cousin's unexpected appearance.

When they did go, they went, as they came, together.

Mr. Wilder's astonishment was only equaled by his delight, on looking out of the window, to see the two walking up the path toward the house, arm in arm and aparently on the best terms.

As for Russell and Jennie, they seemed to regard this unexpected meeting as an indication of their 'manifest destiny,' accepting it as such, much to the joy of their uncle, whose darling wish was accomplish in the marriage of the two, thus made happy in spite of themselves.

The Burning of Moscow.

It was on the 16th of September, 1812. At midnight, Napoleon in utter exhaustion in body and mind, retired to rest. Suddenly the cry of "fire" resounded through the streets. Far off in the east immense volumes of smoke, pierced with flames were rolled up into the storm. Loud explosions of bursting shells and upheaving mines scattered death and dismay in road. Suddenly the thunders as of an earthquake was heard in another direction. A score of buildings were thrown into the air. Flaming projectiles of the most combustible and unquenchable material were scattered in all directions, and a new volcano of smoke and flame commenced its ravages. Earthquake succeeded earthquake, and volcano succeeded volcano. The demon of the storm seemed to exult in his high carnival of distruction The flames were swept in all directions The shower of fire descended upon all the dwellings and in all the streets. Mines were sprung, shells burst, cannons were discharged, wagons of powder and magazines blew up, and in a few hours of indescribable confusion and dismay the whole city was wrapped in one wild ocean of flame. The French soldiers shot the incendiaries, bayoneted them, tossed them into the flames, but still like deamonds, they plied their work. Napoleon arose early in the morning, and looking out upon the flames which were sweeping through all parts of the city. For the first time in his life, he appeared excessively agitated. His far-reaching mind apprehended at a glance, the measurelessness of the calamity which was impending. He hurriedly paced his apartment, dictated hasty orders and from his window anxiously watched the progress of the fire. The Kremlin was surrounded with gardens and shrubbery, and seemed for a time to afford shelter from the flames; but mines of powder were its vaults, with various combustibles arranged to communicate the fire. As Napoleon gaze upon the conflagration, he exclaimed: 'What a frightful spectacle! Such a number Spalaces! The people are genuine cythians.' 'Not even the fiction ofthe burning of Troy,' said Napoleon afterward, 'though hightened by all the powers of poetry, could equalled the reality of the destruction of Moscow.'

During the whole of the 18th, and of the ensuing night, the gale in severity, and the fire raged with unabated violence. The city now seemed the almost boundless crater of an extinguishedable volcano. Various colored flames shot up to an immense height in the air; incessant explosion of gun powder saltpeter and brandy deafened the air; projectiles of iron and stone; and burning rafters; were hurled far off into the surrounded plain, crushing many in their fall. Multitudes, encircled by the flames in the narrow sts were burned to death. The scene of confusion and dismay has probably never been equaled. The soldiers, stifled with smoke, singed with flames, and lost in the streets of the burning city, fled hither and thither before a foe whom they were unable even to attack. They were often seen staggering beneath immense packages of treasure, which the were frequently compelled to abandon to effect their escape. Miserable women were seen carrying one or two children on their shoulders and dragging others by the hand, attempting, often in vain, to flee from the accumulating horrors. Old men with beards singed by fire, crept slowly and feebly along, and in many cases were overtaken and destroyed by the coils of flame that pursued them. Napoleon was indefatigable in his exertions to rescue his soldiers and the remaining inhabitants.

At length it was announced that the Kremlin was on fire. The flames so encircled it that escape seemed almost impossible. The fire was already consuming the gates of the citadel. It was not until after a long search that a postern could be found through which the imperial escort could pass. Blinded by cinders and smothered with heat and smoke, they pressed along on foot, till they came to a roaring sea of fire, which presented apparently an impassable barrier. At last a narrow, crooked, diverging street was found blazing in various parts, and often over arched with flame. It was an outlet which dispair alone could enter Yet into this formidable pass Napoleon and his companions were necessarily impelled. With burning fragments falling around, and blazing cinders showered upon them, they toiled along almost blinded and suffocated with smoke and heat.

At length the guide lost his way, and stopped in utter bewilderment. All now gave themselves up for lost. It was remarked, that, in this terrible hour, Napoleon was perfectly calm and self posessed. Just then they caught a glimpse of Marshal Davoust, who with a company of soldiers was hunting the Emperor. The Marshal had signified his determination to rescue the hope of France or perish in the attempt. Napoleon affectionately embraced the Prince. They soon encountered, in the blazing streets, a convey of gun powder, along which they were compelled to pass while flaming cinders were falling around. The energies of Napoleon's mind were so disciplined for the occasion that not the slightest indication of alarm escaped him. They soon emerged from the walls of the city; and Napoleon retired to the castle of Petrowshowi, about three miles from the burning metropolis. The Emperor, as he looked back on the city, gloomily remarked. "This forbodes no common calamity." "It was," said he years afterwards, "the spectacle of a sea and billows of fire, a sky and cloud of flame mountains of red, rolling flames, like immense waves of the sea, alternately bursting forth and elevating themselves to skies of fire, and then sinking into the ocean of flame below. Ah, it was the most grand, the most sublime, the most terriffic sight the world ever beheld."

The fire began sloyly to decrease on the 9th for want of fuel. "Palaces and temples," says Karmazin, 'monuments of miracles of luxury, remains of ages long since past and the creations of yesterday, the tombs of remote ancestry and the cradles of the children of the rising generation, were indiscriminately destroyed. Nothing was left of Moscow save the remembrance of its former grandeur. The French army was now encamped in the open fields around the smouldering city. Their bivouacs presented the strangest spectacle which had ever been witnessed.

Immense fires, were blazing, fed by fragments of the most costly furniture of satin wood and mahogany. The soldiers were sheltered from the piercing winds by tents reared from the drapery of regal palaces. Supurb arm chairs and sofas, in the richest upholstery of imperial purple and crimson velvet afforded seats and lounges for all. Cashmere shawls, Siberian furs, pearls and gems of Persia and India, were strewed over the ground in wild confusion. In the midst of all these wreck of boundless opulence the soldiers were famishing.

A Tight Squeeze.

The plea of Mr. Whittemore, urged so disastrously to his client by General Butler, that the cadet money all went to the poor, has revived the story of the miller who sometimes had crazy fits, in which he always imagined himself to be the Lord judging the world.

On these occasions he would put on a paper crown, ascend a pile of meal bags with great dignity, and call his neighbors in succession. The same ones were always judged, and these were the millers in his vicinity.

The first summoned was Hans Schmidt.

"Hans Schmidt stant opp!"

'Hans vat ish your pishness in dat der vorldt?'

'I vas a miller, O Lordt.'

'Vas you a yoost man?'

'Vell, ven der water vas low und te pishness vas pad, O Lordt, somedimes I dakes a little extra doles.'

'Vell, Hans, you shall go ofer mit te goats already yet.'

And so in succession all were tried and immediately sentenced to go over to the goats.

Last of all, the miller inevitably tried himself in the following style:

'Yacob, vat ish your pishnes in de oder vorldt?'

'I vas a miller, O Lordt.'

'Vas you always a yoost man, Yacob?'

'Vell, O Lordt, ven de vater vas a leetle low, und pishness ish bad, I somedimes dakes a leetle extra doles; but I all de vile give de extra doles to de poor."

Lorenzo Dow.

One of the best anecdotes of Lorenzo Dow has, I believe, never been in print. In a small town in western New York lived a noted infidel, Col. Root. There was no settled minister in the place, and the people were dependent upon travilling preachers, principally Methodists. In those days Methodist preachers were not apt to be overburdened with learning, and Col. Root, a man of fine education, familiar with Greek and Hebrew, made it a point to engage every new comer in an argument from which he almost invariably came off victorious. So many had been worsted in these encounters, that preachers were beginning to give this place a go by, when Lorenzo Dow appeared. Hearing of the arrival of another Methodist, Col. Root proposed to his intimate friend, Mr. Cush, they should 'go down to the tavern and demolish this one.' After a little preliminary skirmishing, the Colonel dashed into the subject of heaven.

"You believe in a place called heaven, so of course you must know all about it. Tell us what kind of a place it is.'

'Now, I don't pretend to know all about it.'

'Well, you think something about it don't you?'

'Certainly, I have an idea of it.'

'Well, give us your idea; tell us what kind of a place your heaven is.'

The keen, magnetic eyes fastened themselves upon those of the questioner, and in slow deliberate tones, Lorenzo Dow replied:

'Heaven, to my mind, is a broad extended, beautiful plain, lovely and pleasant to the view, and where neither Root nor Bush can ever grow.'

There are but two savings banks operating in Indiana now—one in Terre Haute and one in Lafayette.—Terre Haute Mail.

The Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DEC. 21, 1871

Attorney General Ackerman has resigned, and Senator Wilson of California has been appointed to the position.

The democartic party was never in better heart, nor more confident of victory, than it is at the present time. Just mark this down, ye unheeding gentiles.

The people have just routed the republican Tammany of Pittsburgh, horse, foot and dragoons. It is a great victory. Now for the overthrow of the Tammany Washington city.

'There must be no compounding of the Tammany villainies,' says the Buffalo Courier. 'The administration of Mr. Grant should be left undisturbed in its monopoly of that manner of dealing with official thieves'

The elections in the various States during the years 1870–71 foot up: Republican vote 2,788,377; Democratic vote, 2,747,205! A majority in the entire country of only 41,172 for the Republicans—and yet men say the Democracy is dead!

The Republicans in this place are beginning to see, and to acknowledge that their party is gone up. One of their leaders remarked, the other day, that he believed the Republican party was dead and that the only hope they had was to unite with the Democrats.

The Price of Wales has been lying dangerously ill for the last ten days, and great excitement has prevailed throughout England in consequence. At last accounts the symptoms of the disease, typhoid fever, were much favorable.

It is encouraging to know that the new Committee on Ways and Means dose not suit the protective ideas of the new York Tribune. It says: 'Unless we are misinformed in regard to Mr. Burchard's view the Ways and Means Committee is no longer protectionist, as we think it ought to be.'

In an article upon 'Southern Tweeds, the Ohio Statesman gives a prominent place to Governor Scott, of South Carolina, and adds: 'The only difference betwen Tweed and Scott appears to be that the latter has stolen the greater sum, and stolen it from the people. He is also a favorite with the Grant administration.'

GOV. BAKER is getting frightened about the matter of swindling the people out of the $3,500 which he pockets on rentage. In an examination the other day, he blustered considerably, and in order to give himself time said he was ready to wave service on a direct complaint. Leaf by leaf the roses fall.

The total expense of taking the census in 1870, according to present estimates, will be about eighty-six cents per head, by population. In 1860 it was almost sixty-four cents. No great difference there, apparently—only twenty-two cents a head; but computed in the aggregate, it amounts to $3,287,600 for 1870, and $1,982,000—or $1,395,600 in favor of Democratic over Radical rule.

The Secretary of the Treasury thinks that there is too much money in circulation, and that the amount ought to be curtailed, as he recommended in 1868. He hopes that the increase in population and business will, by-and-by, give us the desired scarcity. What says the people to this? Are they overburdened with money? Is there too much of it? Is it too easy to get? Do they want the contraction screw to be still further applied? It probably will, for such is the demand of the bondholders, and they just now run the Treasury.—Cin. Enq.

The Proctor Murder Trial.

The trial of Sylvester Proctor, of Bristol, for the shooting of his son-in-law, Nicholas Webber, about a year ago, which was taken to Warsaw on a change of venue, was concluded the first of this week. When the jury returned into court, there were eleven of them for conviction and one for acquital. Of those who were for conviction, seven stood for murder in the second degree, and imprisonment for life, and four for manslaughter. Judge Tousley then admitted Mr. Proctor to bail in the sum of ten thousand dollars, over the protests of the prosecution and the advice of the jury, and he passed through Goshen on Tuesday, on his way home. He looks haggard and worn down from his long imprisonment in the county jail, and from the mental suffering through which he has passed since committing the rash act. What the final result will now be can easly be conjectured from past precedents.—Goshen Democrat.

SENATOR Trumbull said in the United States Senate last Thursday, in reply to Senator Morton.

'Well, if there is anywhere in the world a worse civil service than that of the United States, I pray God to deliver that people from it. [Laughter] I feel less disposed than ever to submit my Republicanism to the test of the Senator from Indiana (Morton) after his declaration that we have the best civil service in the world. My Republicanism is not partisan. I care nothing for it, except as a party of great principles, and if it ever comes to be used as a cover for frauds and iniquities, [illegible] of the country will Card from the Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

In consequence of a desire manifested in a certain portion of the State that a meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee be immediately called to appoint a day for a meeting of the State Convention, I hereby announce that a call of that body will be made without delay, whenever any single member may deem it expedient or necessary to consult upon any measures within their province that will tend to beneficial results.

The majority of the committee have been fully consulted, and have expressed themselves in favor of postponing the Convention until a later day than the 8th of January, and many prominent Democrats in different parts of the State, and not members of the Committee, have warmly advised to the same effect.

E. S. ALVORD,
Chairman Dem. State Central Committee.

Few people have and adequate idea of the magnitude of the Texas cattle trade. It is estimated that 600,000 beeves have been driven from Texas into Kansas, Nebraska, and the Western States and territories during the past year. It takes about 20,000 head anually to supply the Indians: for these the Government pays. In all the range of the country between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi as high up as British America, they receive cattle from Texas. They are driven in immense droves through the Indian country without molestation—As a drove travels but six or eight miles a day, when on a journey, the cattle improve and increase in flesh when the grass is good. Many cattle are driven to the Pacific coast, but in this trade few beeves are taken, the principal portion of the droves consisting of heifers intended for stock raisers. It takes two seasons to get a drove through from Texas to Washington Territory on the Pacific: but the prices obtained there yield a heavy profit to the drovers.

Just in Time.

The Warsaw Indianian makes this timely observation: If those persons, who each year, take so much trouble and pains to make up clubs for distant papers, and periodicals, would turn their attention in the direction of home and labor as faithfully for their home paper, many of them would not present the sick half starved appearance they now do, owing to the lack of support from people who should take a deep interest in their welfare. We repeat our request that the home paper, everywhere, should not be neglected, at this season of the year, when distant publishers are making strenuous exertions to procure the names of new subscribers at every post-office in the land. A united home support would make nearly every country paper now published, the equal of most of the city weeklies. Think of this fact, for a moment, and ask yourself the question whether it is not so.

Secretary Boutwell would have made a good minister for Pharaoh in the days of the Egyptian famine. He would have sworn the lean kine were in excellent condition, and their significant ribs a token of unexampled prosperity. In 1860, with a population of 31,000,000, we exported of the six domestic manufactures of boots and shoes, woollens, carriages, candies, manufactured tobacco and gunpowder, goods to the value of $6,554,593. In 1870, with 38,000,000 people, we exported of these same articles only $3,193,709 worth. In the face of a startling and portentous array of facts like this, Mr Boutwell yet says: There is no substantial reason for questioning the truth of the statement that the last five years have been the most prosperous in the history of the country.' Why recommend any abatement whatever of taxation, Mr. Boutwell? Evidently the country don't need it! —Indianapolis Sentinel.

News from Havana.

Another of those celebrated Havana telegrams yesterday announced that in future the forts surrounding that city would be garrisoned by regular troops in lieu of their present defenders, the bloodthirsty volunteers, and that 4,000 men will arrive for this purpose within a month.

The Home Government has already sent 60,000 men from Spain for the purpose of disarming the volunteers. Every man recruited for the last two years in Spain for the Spanish army in Cuba has been distinctly informed that such was the purpose of his enrollment. De Rodes took out 20,000 men, became a volunteer half an hour after he had landed in Havana, exhibited himself in the uniform of the volunteers in balcony of the palace, and then went back to Spain declaring that the Cuban insurrection could never be surpressed by force.

There are over 60,000 volunteers in the various seaports of the island, they are admirably armed, by this time pretty well drilled—not disciplined—and, having at the time of their organization been promised the ownership of the island, they are not likely to surrender to 4,000 men from Spain. Moreover, these new arrivals will be volunteers, that is in the main principle of pilage, long before they reach Cuba. The same veracious telegram announces that Moreno, the new Governor of Havana, has succeeded in closing two gambling houses, a noteworthy act in a city that swarms with hundreds if not thousands of such dens.

Senator Wilson denies that he fav-

Look at the Figures.

We ask those faint hearted persons, calling themselves Democrats, who seems anxious to rush into the election of a Republic nfor President to read the following figures showing the result of last year's Congressional election.

Total Dem. vote for Congress	2,741,860
Total Republican vote	2,685,374
Democrati popular majority	56,486

But for the infamously unjust gerrymandering of the Republican party, the Democracy would have a majority of Congressman at Washington City this year of grace 1871.

A party thus powerful is not around begging the appointment of a guardian. It is able to take care of itself. Neither is it about to die and empower some friend to have its will admitted to Probate. In the language of an eminent writer, 'instead of a winding sheet, it contemplates a boxer's gauntlets and the unencumbering costume of an athlete. It will not skulk out of the arena; and while expecting and preparing to take blows, it has also blows to give.' A vigorous, active courageous, and aggressive policy against Radical man and measures is what the Democratic party wants to make it successful.—Bucyrus Forum.

Around the World.

'Through tickets' around the world are now issued, the price being $1,145 in gold, and the running time eighty-one days. The line route, going westward, is from New York to San Francisco, says 3,300 miles; San Francisco to Yokohama, 4,700 miles; thence to Hong Kong, 1,600 miles; thence to Calcutta, 3,500 miles: thence to Bombay, 1,400 miles: Bombay to Suez, 3,600 miles; from Suez, via Alexandria and Brindisi, to London, say 2,300 miles, and from London to New York, 2,200 miles. When we remember the voyage of the Mayflower, and earlier still that of Columbus, such trips as this strike the mind with astonishment. Still is is clear that the 'round trip,' as outlined above, is far from being perfect in any particular. It is devious, that is to say, and yet does not take in all the places of most interest that such a journey should. When the projected improvements of the Indian route are carried into effect across Europe, and a great continental railroad is established with proper branches and connections through Asia, the trip around the world will be shorter in duration and space, and at the same time much more interesting.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

The Auburn Courier

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

NO PAPER NEXT WEEK.

In honor of the custom usually indulged in during the festivities of the Holidays there will be no COURIER issued next week. Our boys have labored incessantly for one long, weary year, building up one day and tearing down the next, and repeating week in and week out until the monotony has become irksome, and now, that every body else is going to have their good time they will certainly give the printer a chance for a like indulgence.—Our next paper will not be issued until the 4th of the New Year. To our patrons one and all, we say a merry Christmas, and happy New Year.

Good sleighing.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

FORT WAYNE is building a street Rail road.

PERFUMERY for the holidays, at Davenport & Co's.

YESTERDAY was a cold blustery day, the champion of the season.

FOR anything in the Candy line, go to Smith & Hare's.

THE thermometer stood at 18 degrees below zero this morning.

FORT WAYNE is not happy because she has no Board of Trade.

FOR choice Family Groceries, at low prices go to Smith & Hare's.

OUR better half is under obligation to Mrs. Laufferty for special favors.

SMITH & HARE have the finest assortment of Candies and Holiday goods in town.—Drop in and see them.

WE dreamed that some one of our neighbors brought a turkey for New Years.—Singular how one's dreams will run.

ANOTHER MAIL.— Arrangements have been made for the carrying of the mail over the Eel River road commencing Jan. 1st 1872.

PERSONAL.—We were pleased to meet, at our office last Tuesday, Mr. Van Sickles, the gentlemanly traveling agent, of the Fort Wayne Gazette.

THE Sentinel, at Fort Wayne, is giving biographical sketches of the stockholders of the new German paper. From its account there is only one Yankee connected with it, and he's a Dutchman.

THIS is the time of year when ungodly young people delight to shake their pedal extremities to the music produced by drawing the hairs of a horse's tail over the bowels of a cat. Naughty young people.

LADIES visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

People who advertise for holiday trade will do well to remember that by continued and judicious advertising the brisk trade of the holidays can be kept up all the year round.

OUR capital friend Craig, of the Bluffton Banner, has got up and dusted, or in other words, has renounced his single blessedness, and gone into the married-stativeness. That's right, Craig. Hit him again.

BE SURE and call at Gordon's Gallery before the holidays. He has the largest assortment of Albums ever brought to Auburn. They make capital presents for Christmas and New Years, 2t

TO-DAY is the shortest of the year. The sun is exactly poised over the Tropic of Capricorn, the light of which only reaches to the Arctic Circle. If Capt. Hall has advanced beyond this circle he is in total darkness.

THE many persons who have applied to Dr. Casebeer for Vacination, can now be accommodated, as he has just received some fresh "virus" from those he knows to be healthy subject. Call at office as the small pox is approaching.

THE season for kindling fires with non-explosive coal oil and burning fluids is at hand. Before using the kindling material you should always say your prayers. It will be found advisable to omit the former but rigidly practice the latter at all convenient seasons.

NOTICE.—Notice is hereby given that there will be an election held in the E. V Lutheran Church in Spencerville, DeKalb County, Ind., on the 13th day of January 1872, at two o'clock P. M. for the purpose of electing Trustees for said church.

E. W. ERICK, Pastor.

DRESS & CLOAK MAKING.—Miss Mary Long, who has been largely engaged for several years past in the above business, announces that she will open a shop in Mrs. Mott's residence on Cedar street where she will be pleased to attend to all calls in this line of business. 2t.

HANDSOME.—We see that our enterprising dentist, R. Elson, Esq., has furnished his office with a beautiful new dental chair. It is of the latest design, and is provided with every convenience for the ease and comfort of patients, who appreciate good teeth by having them properly cared for.

A gentleman is now stopping in this city, who lives within two and a half miles of the scene of the murder of the Park family, in Clark County, Indiana, on the night of the 11th of Nov last. He thinks the "niggers" who were lynched for the crime, were guilty—tho' there is now a growing opinion in the minds of very many that the colored men were innocent.—Laporte Herald.

FOUR cart loads of Clothing received at the popular Red Front, No. 5, Keystone Block Fort Wayne, Ind. Store crowded from first to third floor. Largest stock in the State and they must be sold. Greater inducements than ever offered before.—Prices so low that none dare to attempt to compete with us. Everybody acknowledge that the popular Red Front is a success, and are selling goods lower than any house in the State. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Sedan Brevities.

Rev. J. C. Brigham, of Ill., gave two very interesting lectures, last week.

Marriages have been almost of daily occurence in our village for several weeks past. So rapidly have our young associates been paired together in the bonds of wedlock, that our old bach is ready to be found.

G. M. C.

WE are in receipt of the Indiana Volksfreund, a German Republican paper published at Fort Wayne. We looked it all over, and found it very pleasant and agreeable 'till we came the words "Senator Morton," and not seeing advertisement for Buchu we concluded that there was yet an unwritten chapter relative to Indiana's greatest annihilator of this attrative mixture, yet to be explained by this Grant or no Grant paper. We wait the denouement. In the meantime we wish this paper success financially, but may it be sunk to the lowest depths of misery, politically, is our most generous wish.

TO NEWSPAPER BORROWERS.—After you have gone to a neighbor's store and picked up this paper, or borrowed it of a neighbor, and after you have read this paragraph, after you have taken an article of great personal interest to yourself, to have the editor spend some time in getting ready for the printer, think how much longer you would have lived, how much better health you would have enjoyed, how much happier you would have been, how much greater your chances would be of getting to heaven, if you had only paid a year's subscription, and thereby helped support a paper you were perfectly willing to make use of for your own selfish interest, instead of sponging upon a neighbor. Think of these things and take them home to yourself.

SPIRITISM EXPOSED.—Prof. McQueen, the celebrated Medium, during several years belief in the spiritualistic doctrine, lectured at the M E. Church, last Tuesday evening on this subject, and on the following evening exposed the tricks and illusions practised to establish this dogma We must, however, remember that the Prof. was a spiritist, that he believed in the doctrine, that he practised these tricks for the furtherance of this cause in the possession of all his faculties for a number of years, and then turned around and discarded the whole thing as a fraud, and now asks the people to credit his statements. We don't believe in Spirits but conviction has not come from such authority as this. However, the Prof. may be earnest and sincere in his present profession, not withstanding any doubts as to its genuiness.

LIST OF JURORS.—The following gentlemen have been selected as Petit Jurors for the January term, of the Common Pleas Court.

Geo Ensley,	Geo. W. Rowe.
Chas. Wannemaker,	Samuel Swihart,
Samuel Learned,	Philip Mann,
Samuel F. Hill	Adam Deetz,
Frank Reynolds,	Chas Comaskey.
F. S. Crocker,	Fred Ensley.

The following have been selected as Jurors for the Circuit Court, Febuary Term.

Reuben J. Daniels,	John Camp,
Benj. Moffett,	John Gill.
Jas. M. Gœtschius,	Jas. Rhodes
Jacob Ginder,	J. W. Boyle.
H. Gansenhouser,	A. W. Allen,
Joseph Weller	H. Bundage.

B. AND O.—We have more late news from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad via the Kendallville Standard. Whenever we want late, reliable news we always go to the Standard. The last issue says:

"It will be seen by our Albion Local, that Albion gets the road; whilst it is equally visible to the naked eye by reading our Brimfield Local, that Albion don't get the road. It is also evident that the road is to be built through Huntington, 'sure;' whilst arrangements have positively been made with the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago road to run from Ft. Wayne to Chicago along side of their track. So you see the "little joker" is right there; now you see him and now you don't. You can have the road for so much—no more no less—now vot you gifs.'

Anybody that would doubt the above is not fit to live in a civilized community.—Give us some more, Meyers.

"The Village Cows."

The farmers who bring wood and produce to town to sell, generally bring along with them a quantity of hay, &c., with which to feed their horses The cows which are wont to wander about the streets, assemble around the wagons and the moment a farmer leaves his "load" the hungry bovines forthwith make a charge for the unattended wagon, and seize the hay, the bag of corn, or any other food which may be found and carry it off in their mouths. This condition of affairs has caused considerable complaint among the farmers, and all who have been troubled in that way will doubtless sympathize with the following lines of rural poetry, written by one who knows how 'tis himself:

THE VILLAGE COWS.

I wish I had a whopping barn,
All full of hay and meal,
That I might keep the village cows,
From running round to steal.

For all the hay and stalks I bring,
(When I have wood to sell)
Will jump at every cow they see;
They like their mouths so well.

I cannot stir a single step.
I cannot leave my "load,"
But all my hay, my stalks, and bags,
Are dancing in the road.

DWELLING HOUSES.—Many of our citizens contemplate the erection of dwellings, next spring, and we may do them a favor to print them the following rules which we find in an exchange. The writer says:—Avoid such lots as will require your house to face north. Always have your sitting room face the south, if possible. Put your hall on the north side of the house. Don't spoil your sunny windows by streching a piazza out side which will keep the sun away. Live in your pleasantest room.—build no parlors to shut up; what is good enough for you is good enough for visitors. Have a bow window in your living room Make your windows large, and enough of them. Have plenty of closets. A good pantry and a closet should be connected with the kitchen. Build a fire-place in your living room. The height of your rooms should be one third the sum of the width and length of your living room.

Go to Smith & Hare's for cheap holiday goods.

EEL RIVER ROAD.

Contemplated Change in the Line.

We do not know how much the Committee appointed to secure a renewal of subscriptions has accomplished, or whether they have done anything at all or not.—One thing we do know, however, and that is, that there is a lack of energy in this enterprise, not only by the Committee, but by a number of the citizens of this vicinity, and we don't hesitate a moment to tell them so. 'Impecuneosity is claimed on all sides, when it is a known fact that our farmers of this vicinity generally, are in easy circumstances, with money at interest, and in the enjoyment of every comfort. There are a few, thank fortune, that can take hold of and appreciate the importance of this project, men that can comprehend its value and influence, upon the future of our county. What is proposed? A line of railroad that is, beyond a shadow of a doubt, destined to be a trunk line forming an important throughfare between the east and west. What is asked? A renewal of the subscriptions already signed, a further extension of time to the subscribers—the money which they agreed to pay now is to be given them a year longer. Who could ask anything more fair or liberal? And yet what has been done since the proposition has been made. We ask because we believe a majority of our citizens want to know, for they are interested in the success of this enterprise. Never before has this final success been so near, and never before has so little been asked to gain the desired end. Yet there is a wilfull indifference manifested by those who should take a bold stand in the consumation so devoutly to be wished.

Has the Committee done all that could be done in the promises? Have they laid aside their individual enterprises for a short time, and visited in person those whose names appear upon the subcription list? This is what was expected of them, when they were appointed, and its the only plan upon which this result can be reached.

We hope now, for the sake of our good name, for the sake of the fairness and liberality that has been offered, that something will be done, that this old fogy spirit of sitting down and sucking our thumbs, and talking will be abandoned for that live and go ahead principle, that makes its mark in every locality. We make charges against no one, but we do say that there has not been a sufficient amount of work done and that we can blame no one but ourselves if we fail to reap the benefit of the overtures now made us for the final completion of this road. If we fail now, our failure will be final and irrevocable as far as this road is concerned.

We learn upon good authority that engineers were here this week ready to start out on the survey, but that owing to lack of interest manifested in this vicinity, the company did not feel like incurring further expense, with so little encouragement, and a survey may never be commenced, unless we show by our actions that we want it.

We also are reliably informed that a new line is proposed and now contemplated to pass through New Era, Newville, Bryan, and thence on eastward. This is regarded as a favorable line, and large subscriptions are offered for its construction While it would be of great advantage to this portion of the county, it would be equally disastrous to our interests here.—But we have this matter in our control if we but do the easy task asked of us. Delays are dangerous, and unless we act promptly, we may fail of our prospects.

WHY is it that the great rush for clothing at the original Red Front No. 5, Keystone block?

It is because they are selling goods at such extensively low prices.

Store crowded from morning until night with customers, but nevertheless come and see us. We will wait upon you and sell you clothing 20 per cent. lower than any other house and defy any one to compete with us. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block, the original Red Front Clothing House.

SCARLET FEVER AND SMALL POX.—We published a few weeks ago the following cure for the above diseases, and have been requested to do so again, in order that all may have it at hand in case of either of these diseases, which are now epidemic in some parts of the State, reaching our county, we give it in the language of a correspondent who seems to have an abiding faith in it:

"I herewith append a recipe which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent or cure the small pox, though the pittings are filling. When Jenner discovered cow pox in England, the world of science hurled an avalanche of fame upon his head; but when the most scientific schools of medicine in the world—that of Paris—published this recipe as a panacea for small pox, it passed unheeded; it is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I have used it, and cured my children of scarlet fever; here it is as I have used it to cure the small pox, when learned physicians said the patient must die, it cured; Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove, (digitalis) one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two teaspoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed, add four ounces of water. Take a teaspoonful every hour Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child, smaller doses, according to age. If counties would compel physicians to use this, there would be no need of pest houses. If you value advice and experience, use this for that terrible disease.

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them. Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying everything before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

HOUSEHOLDERS CALL IN—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

Correspondence.

J. P. WIDNEY,

Dear Sir:—In justice to myself and the Church I represent I am compelled to answer your article in the COURIER. You have indeed placed me in a bad light before an intelligent public. You will remember that my text for the occasion, to which you refer was a single word, viz: "Amen." After defining the term I took this ground for argument: "All the works of God in Heaven, Earth or Hell, among angels, men or devils, should be received by those to whom they are administered with the spirit of the text, which is approval." After dwelling upon the beauties and scenery of Heaven, at length I made a quotation from Revelations XIX 4th, to show that the economy of God was approved in Heaven. Then I introduced the subject on the other extreme, viz: "Hell and the punishment of the wicked." Now, sir, I will make an exact quotation from the original manuscript which I have carefully preserved. Now I don't wish the public to whose scrutiny this article must come to infer that I use manuscript in the pulpit. This I have never done, but it is my custom to write my sermons in detail before practising. And now I make the quotation exact and appeal to my congregation for testimony:

"With the camp of the gospel in one hand and the camp of history in the other I draw nigh the door and venture the recognition of some of those horried countenances: I think I see beyond doubt a certain rich man who was clothed in purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day, but this rich man died and was buried, and now in Hell he lifts up his eyes and is in torment. I see one called Belshazzar whom the Almighty weighed in the balance and finding him wanting, sent him from the glory and magnificence of the Babylonian Empire down to this kingdom of darkness and woe. A dying thief who refused salvation when he saw the redeeming fountain open before him. The lamp of history introduces me to Wm Poke, of England, whose dying words were: "I will not have salvation at the hands of God." Wretched Altamont, bleeding Paine, the apostate Julian, and oh! how many other history brings to my view beings of every grade of vice and sin; highway robbers, cold-blooded murderers, French persecutors, and many that the world once called good, almost persuaded to be christians, but they never made the start, never made the consecration and now eternal justice demands their presence here. But now with all this suffering and anguish before us in thought do we hear a single murmer against God? do we witness any revolt against the economy of god? No! according to my apprehension none! In all their bitter anguish they can climb no higher than the acceptation of that awful saying: "Ye knew your duty but ye did it not."—I accept and believe the theology of the 398th hymn of the Methodist hymn book:

> "Lord, should thy judgement grow severe,
> I am condemned, but though art clear."
>
> Should sudden vengance seize my breath
> I must pronounce Thee just in death;
> And if my soul were sent to hell
> Thy righteous law approves it well."

It is just as necessary that the justice of God stand unimpeached, and without flaw, as that His mercy be revealed in the brighter glories of the "better land." God is just as much to be honored in the damnation of the wicked as he is in the salvation of the righteous. Now, sir, with this plan exposition of my belief, how could you have understood me as represented by your 'friendly criticism.' I sought in a plan and pointed manner to establish the purity of God's character as an admistrator of justice, not to prove "the endless damnation of the wicked glorified God," consequently you have shot wide of the mark, and if I were to attempt to answer your curious arguments I should be thrown into the negative with the power of choice to accept or decline, I choose the latter since I am of the same opinion with you in that one thing. The endless damnation of the wicked does not glorify or honor God, such a thought never entered my head, much less escaped my mouth. Yet I do not flinch in the least from my position so decidedly taken; That if sinners will sin away the day of grace, die in sin, and wake up in Hell where the "fire shall never be quenched," God upon his part is to be "honored" in the administration of justice. The truth is, Mr. Widney, facts are stubborn things, and it is useless to try to evade the plain declarations of God's word. Mortals need no longer debate the question of the great foundry in which the moral elements of man's nature were moulded; it is sufficient to know that sin in all its gigantic forms is abroad in the earth, and the unbending fiats of Jehovah have gone forth. "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Now God has opened a single gate by which sinners may escape and seeking to enter by that gate (Christ) "If we repent of our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins." But if we reject the terms offered, live and die unforgiven how shall God "be honored" most, by making good His word and sendieg us to Hell "where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched," or by backing down and saving us sinners, rebels, devils and all? In spinning out your elaboration upon eternal death you have wandered through mists and fogs, through wilds of extravagrant theolgy and yet all the adjectives and adverbs you have used add no force to the simple statement made by the Savior and thrice repeated in Mark IX chap., "worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched." This much I deem sufficient to vindicate my position and will say to you now, that if you desire such thoughts and notions as you entertain of the economy, will, and purpose of God in the human race, to be called into publicity, please direct them to some one else. I am too busy at my master's work to pause and answer your curious and ingenious arguments. Looking once more carefully over your article to see that nothing is left in array with the real position I have taken, I am persuaded that the following little story may benefit you—certainly a man of your mental calibre ought to have a comprehension as ready and wise as that of the Dutchman:

A Universalist preacher was on his way to an evening appointment. Being overtaken by a storm, he turned in with a Dutchman, and began an acquaintance by saying: 'I am a Universalist preacher.'

'Universalist preacher, vot ish dat?

'O my doctrine is "great tidings of great joy to all men. God is no respecter of persons. He is now willing that any should perish, therefore He intends the salvation and happiness of all men.'

'And you pelief dat?'

'Yes I certainly do.'

'And you bin breachin' dat?

'Yes, and on the way to-night to preach it again'

'Vell! vell! now I ish berry glat, sure! but now you keep dat petween you and me.'

'No indeed! this is glad tidings to all men and all men should know it forthwith.'

'No, no, said the Dutchman, 'you keep dat still.'

'Why?' said the preacher.

'Vell, I tell you vy. Dere ish ole Mike Smith over de creek, und last Friday night he comes over to my farm und steals four de best vedder sheep I got, und now you let him know dey no hell, dey no punishment, und dat he gets to heaven any vay den he ish sure to steel every vedder sheep I got.'

In conclusion, Mr. Widney, permit me to assure you that I respect your honor, your ability, your influence, your friendship, but I have no respect for some of the hollow notions advanced in your article While I live I hope to entertain pleasant recollections of you, and dying I hope to meet you at the right hand of the Judge for the blessed master who spake as never man spake, hath said: "Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels.'

Yours for Christ,

A. W. LAMPORT.

"HOW TO GO WEST"

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go and journeys were made in the legendary 'Prairie Schooner,' but in these days of progress and improvement, the word West has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago Burlington & Quincy R. R., from Indianapolis over the Indianapolis, Bloomington & Western Short Line, and from Logansport, over the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw R. R., and running through Burlington, reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other railroads running from those cities.

Always go 'By way of Burlington,' and you will be sure to be right.

The Burlington route has admirably answered the question, 'How to go West?' by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to Time, Connections, Fare, &c., and illustrated by a large map, truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing, General Passenger Agent, B. M. & R. R. Burlington, Iowa.

$25. Twenty-five dollars will be paid for a single case of incurable Catarrh. Dr. Merwin's Vegetable Catarrh Cure is the cheapest as a package makes one pint of Medicine, and is sent by mail on receipt of thirty cents. And is the best, because it never fails to cure any case of Catarrh.

We wish to send our phamplet, entitled "Man and Woman as Invalids," to every reader of this paper, and will mail, free, a dozen or more copies to any person who will hand them to their friends. Address St. Louis Medical Association, No 117 6th St. St. Louis, Missouri.

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.
This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.
It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.
To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.
In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

"HOW TO GO WEST"

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go and journeys were made in the legendary 'Prairie Schooner,' but in these days of progress and improvement, the word West has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago Burlington & Quincy R. R. from Indianapolis over the Indianapolis, Bloomington & Western Short Line, and from Logansport over the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw R. R., and running through Burlington, reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other rail roads running from those cities.

Always go 'By way of Burlington,' and you will be sure to be right.

The Burlington route has admirably answered the question, 'How to go West?' by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to Time, Connections, Fare, &c., and illustrated by a large map, truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing, General Passenger Agent, B. M. & R. R. Burlington, Iowa.

THE CHEMIST'S STORY.

BY DR. ROSS WILSON.

I'm a chemist. Many, doubtless, would find it difficult to define what the duties of a chemist are, if asked. To sum, I say a chemist is a collector of facts. It is the business of his life to aid in unmaking; for the world's benefit, the good and evil hovering even in the air we breathe, burrowing in the ground we tread, mingling with the food we eat, and swimming in what we drink.

Then again the law waits on the chemist. A human being has passed suddenly away. Somebody thinks there has been foul play. The chemist examines the body of the supposed victim. The law listens hat in hand, to science. The suspected party trembles in anticipation. The occult lips of the chemist move; he names out one of the fearful lists of poisons. It is either strychine, prussic acid, or that deadly oil of bitter almonds. The law then puts on his hat, takes the decision into court, and hangs the prisoner.

In short, the chemist must know the ways and wherefores of everything in the phenomena of life, as far as feeble man can know. The composition of the ocean he must be familiar with; he must be able to name the gases of the air, and capable of resolving the human body itself into visible vapors. I am the occupant of this responsible and important position in the Medical College of P———.

It was about eleven o'clock on a stormy evening, that I bade a good night to my student, Tom Richards, at the door of my labratory, at the south end of the college building.

'Good night, Professor,' said Tom; 'We are going to have a fall of hydrogen, oxygin—in our nomenclature, H. O.—is water.

'I hope,' I said in answer to Tom's playful words, 'that it will not fall before I get home.'

'Oh, no, it won't for an hour yet,' said Tom.

'Then,' I said with a sigh, noticing the mercury in my barometer was rapidly falling, a sign of a violent storm, 'I shall certainly get wet.'

Tom was very anxious to know what would keep me up after twelve o'clock; so I told him I was about to commence analyzing the stomach of a Mrs. Johnson, whose husband now lay in P. jail, just across the road from the college, on suspicion that he was the murderer. Tom said I had worked hard enough that day, and deserved the night to myself. He spoke the truth. Still, I had delayed examining the woman's stomach so long and the trial was so near at hand, that I could not in conscious put off the examination further, although I had heard several classes recite at the different public schools in the morning, had delivered a lecture in the college proper that afternoon and one in the labratory that evening, besides attending to my several duties as police surgeon during the day.

As Tom was passing out of the college yard, through the gate, his head turned bidding me good night; he burshed against a man standing with his back to the college and his face towards the prison. The street lamp showed me that the man was clad in police uniform.

Re-entering my labratory, I took down a glassjar from the shelf, and sat down before my sink to examine it. The jar which contained Mrs. Johnson's stomach was covered by a cloth, dutly tied with strings, and properly sealed with my official seal in red wax. Breaking through the cloth and seal, I lifted the stomach out with a desecting hook, and laid it on a white platter before me, then became busily engaged in applying those tests to its contests by which we detect the presecuce of injurious substances.

An hour had passed since the departure of young Richards. I had carefully emptied the contents of the stomach into a number of bowls and basins. I had labored hard to discover traces of poison in all this, but had been unsuccessful. Joe Johnson the suspected man, had been a student of mine a few years before. I thought him a good hearted, intelligent fellow, only a little wild, and really began to hope that he might prove innocent; when among the macerated food, I came upon a small infinitesimal white grain. By careful manipulation, and with the use of my magnifying glass, I managed to get this upon a smoked glass, and examined it.

I was then certain that I had discovered arsenic; but to make assurance doubly sure I derternined to make a well known test of the poison. Accordingly, I placed in the woman's stomach the usual acids, and then turned on the blow pipe flame, and presently there appeared that brilliant metalic mark, worthy of Cains brow, which is the signet of the Poison Friend.

'Yes,' I exclaimed, as I saw that fatal blazon, 'Joe Johnson is the murderer of his wife! With the evidence of that mark to back me, no power can save him from the rope.'

'Do you realy think so?' said a calm, squeaking voice behind me.

I turned quickly, and discovered a tall, thin policeman, having red weak and watery eyes, and standing at my office door, a standing in. His body looked as if it had been rolled out long between his hands, like a molasses candy stick. His nose was merely an elongated, fleshy plug, and his forehead was decorated with two red streaks instead of eyebrows. He had no expression at all in his face, and his policeman's cap was so large that it appeared to settle down on his shoulders.

His uniform re-assured me and I addressed hmi with some impatience.

'My friend, I suppose I am wanted to attend an inquest—or what is your purpose?'

'No, doctor; the man ain't dead yet.'

'Anything in the surgical way?'

'I was police surgeon as well as coroner.'

'No.'

'Well why am I sent for this time of night?'

'Don't brother, Professor; the man ain't dead yet, but they say he will be before morning.'

'Are doctors attending him?'

'Oh, he's in good hands, Professor.'

'What's the matter with him?'

'Well,' said the official, some folks say he's got so much knowledge into him that he can't live under it.'

'Cerebral disorder, eh?'

'What?' asked the man.

'Brain disorder, I mean; something wrong here.'

I touched my forehead, and so did he, as he said:

'Aye, and I thought I'd drop in and tell you if you was going to the station to-morrow to take a look and see if it's post mortem or not. Besides I wanted to see where I could always find you in case of need.'

I bowed, and attributed his feeling of curiosity. He sat on the sink and rubbered foot thrown over the other, and wiped his nose on a dirty pocket handkerchief, several times while his eyes wandered about like Christopher Columbus, after discovercies. Finally he spoke like one who thought himself called upon to say something.

'Professor, there has been an accident this afternoon; terrible too.'

'Ah!' said I.

'Awful!' said he.

'What was it?'

'Nitro-glycerine explosion up in the iron mills—a hundred fellow mortals busted!'

'Sad!'

'Affecting very.' He rubbed his mouth with the back on his hand.

'Professor, what is nitro-glycerine?'

'It is a very dangerous article.' I answerd, happy to display my knowledge. 'It is nearly twice the destructiveness of gunpowder, but unlike it does not explode on the application of heat. A red hot coal dropped into it will not explode it. It will freeze. It is yellow and greasy. It's syllables in our nomenclature are Co, H^5, (No. 3.) 3. O^5.'

'You don't mean to say so!' said the officer, interrupting me in disagreeable tones, in the middle of a choice extract from one of my lectures. 'Why, but you ain't told me how it does go off. If fire wont burst it, what in—(hem)—will?'

'I told him if it were pressed, or anything fell on it, it would explode.

'Place it under the crusher of a tider mill, strike it with a hammer, let a weight fall on fell it from a height—'

'Yes,' said my man, 'and that causes its volcaner, does it? How does it come Professor?'

'In little cans—why like these,' can of it on the marble sink; which I carelessly neglected to place in the cellar. I then took a little glycerine and placed it on an anvil, and struck it with a hammer. A slight explosion and a flame burst from the paper.

'No, really,' said the policeman, starting back; 'I suppose Professor, that there can would make a mighty noise if allowed to explode in here all at once?'

'It would blow the entire building into atoms,' said I, resuming the analysis of Mrs. Johnson's stomach.

'No!' I heard the policeman remark, in deliberate Yankee tones; 'You don't say so?'

The next moment I lay on my back, a gag in my mouth, terribly frightened and sick at heart. Over me stood the policeman, and the first thing that functuary did was—looking me straight in the face—to take of his nose! He then rid himself of his eyebrows, cap, and became a determined, looking fellow, the eys of a fiend, and the nose of a Roman.

'So you think,' said the metamorphoed, in the tone of a gentleman, 'that nothing can save Joe Johnson from the rope? Poor fellow! It does not look like it. But my dear Professor, Joe Johnson is fortunate enough to have in me a devoted friend, as well as brother, I have undertaken to save him and he shall be saved! In order to gain this end, it will be necessary to remove from the face of the earth, not only the stomach of his miserable wife, yonder, but also my dear Professor—I am sorry to be obliged to say it, for I believe you were my brother's teacher and friend—yourself as well.'

I saw that he was in earnest.

'Your death must apparently result from accident—at least, so it must seems to the authorities. My brother is in jail and they will not suspect me.'

What terrible deeds was on his brain hatching? Was he a going to murder me? The hard earned knowledge of a score of years I would have given for power to utter a single cry.

He took me in his arms and placed me in a chair and bound me in it, and then from a side pocket he produced another rope.

Was it myself who was to be hang instead of Johnson.

No, yes. He placed the line pully like, over an arm of the hanging chandelier. This was altogether too slight a support even for one of my slender frame. It was not to be hanging then?

To one end of the rope he attached a weight, and raised it by pulling the other six or eight feet from the floor, the loose end he secured to the sink. Was he mad?' Did he mean to draw me under his weight, and send me out of the world in a novel way by letting it fall and dashing my brains out?

To the sink he attached a long yellow string.

Under the weight on the floor he placed the can of nitro glycerine! I recognized the yellow string; it was a fuse and would burn sixty minutes. It would burn across the marble slab—there was no hopes it igniting any substance that would warn my friends.

'Do you begin to see through it?' asked Johnson's brother.

I believe I cursted him with my eyes. I could only breath through my nostrils, and great veins were swelling and growing hot in my forehead.

Drawing a match from his pocket he lighted and applied it to the, fuse, that little tyrant that gave a man an hour to live, and killed him at the end of it—the little irresponcible that less than merciful Providence, told a man the second he was going to die, if fright and horror spared it to himself!

Slowly the flame crept slowly snakelike around the twine.

'In an hour,' said the prisoner's brother, 'you will be in heaven or hell; I will watch with you for half an hour, and the other half you will spend alone.'

He sat some ten minutes in a chair watching the flame. Then he arose and took the piece of porcelain, with the murders mark thereon from the table and shook his head gloomily.

'I am chemist enough to know it is arsenic, he said. 'Yes those bright metallic eyes, a betrayer, of the guilty! Science thou would kill my brother! Thou shalt save him, but use me in whose hands thou art powerful. Here is a man who by thy aid, bids the poisonous spirst uprise and write in brilliant characters as foul a confession on this place of porcelain. But behold O, science!—It is no sooner written than by thy aid, the whole confession and thy chosen servant are annihilated. Let the good professor use his chemicals, the bad brother only asks—a little can of nitro glycerine.

I heard this speech, indeed; but great heaven! it was my eyes and busiest not my ears that were then! From beneath the table covered by the crimson cloth, of which I have spoken, and which I faced appeared the head of a child. The hair was rumpled and the blue eyes were just opening from sleep. The intelligent forehead was wrinkled strangely. It was my boy Billy. I was afraid he would cry 'papa.' If he did, the implacable man would add the murder of the child to the murder of the father.

But my boy did none of this. He had I suppose, crept under the table unknown to me, and fallen asleep there. I tried to tell the little fellow to hide again, and wait for the final half hour, when my tormentor would be gone Whether he understood me or not aided by what he had heard, I did know; but he quickly withdrew his head, first kissing his hand lightly at me, and then shaking his fist at the schemer watching so beligerently his dumb fire agents.

The half hour wore slowly away. O, heavens! what agony did I suffer? not for myself—but for my child. A little noise might discover his presence; the match might run its tether sooner than was expected. He might be murdered or blown to atoms.

The fuse burned on—on the half hour is up!

The brother of the murderer rises to go! Joy!

'Commit your soul to God's keeping,' he said. 'You hold the evidence of my brother's guilt—nothing can save you now!'

With that he turned to take his hat from off the table covered with the crimson cloth, beneath which hid my priceless boy. Something attracted his attention. He held out hands and leaned forward. I thought he had discovered my boy! No! he was lifting something in either hand—the wires of the electric battery! In another instant my boy leaped from under the table and turned the crank fast and furiously.

The murderer's brother was in the power of my boy. He could not drop the wires; he was helpless and motionless. How my boy cried for help. The prisoner's brother added his voice to my boy's in his agony. He begged, he beseeched—all his nerves were racked—great waves of galvanism leaped, surged and trembled, and jarred over every sensitive nerve and fibre. Still my boy was inflexible, and shouted and turned faster. Unpreceived upon the marble, in the track of the burning fuse, was a pool of inflammable oil. In an instant, a great length burned away. It would last five minutes more.

'Father!' shouted my boy, 'if no assistance comes, this villian must die with us. I shall not let him free. Help! help! help!'

Alas I could not answer him.

But some one else did! Thank God! The fuse is burnt! The rope is on fire, the weight trembles another minute it falls upon the nitro-glycerine! The door opens; Tom Richards, on his midnight visit to the sick has heard the cry. He comprehends all, seizes the can in his hand; the weight descends, indeed but not on the dead-dealing oil. No, down it goes through the office floor, down, down, like an oil spirit, to give back a dull metallic sound on the stones of the cellar beneath.

We are saved!

Joe Johnson, the prisoner, was hanged, but his brother remains unpunished by the law, for he stabbed himself with a knife, and thus escaped the hangman's rope.

Senator Nye's Last.

Scene in a far Western State. A village composed mostly of rude mining huts called 'houses,' etc., though really they were but 'shanties.' An old stick on his bed. A friend, Gov. J. W. Nye, seeing that this his end was close at hand, showed him many kind attentions, and endeavored to ease his sufferings in every posible way.—One day, when it was quite evident that the poor patient could last only a few hours the Govenor said to him:

'Davis, it is undoubtedly best that you should know the truth; you are a very sick man, and will in all probability, live but a short time. Are your affairs in the condition that you would wish to have them? I should be glad to do any thing for you, you know.'

'Yes; they're all right.

'Well would you like me to write to any of your folks East?'

'No, not now—after it is over.'

'Would you like me to call in a minister?'

The sick man, by a great effort of will, over a weak and shattered body, drew him self up in bed, so as to be in a sitting posture, and sternly, most soberly and earnestly said: 'Why, Govenor, what should I want a minister for? I never voted any thing but the Democratic ticket in all my life.'

What was his Other Name?

As Artamus Ward was once traveling in the cars, dreading to be bored, and feeling miserable, a man approached him, sat down and said:

'Did you hear the last thing on Horace Greeley?'

'Greeley?' said Artamus, 'Horace Greeley? Who is he?'

The man was quiet about five minutes. Pretty soon he said:

'George Francis Train is kicking up a good deal of a row over in England, do you think they will put him in a bastile?'

'Train, George Francis Train,' said Artamus solemnly, 'I never heard of the gentleman.'

This ignorance kept the man quiet for fifteen minutes, then he said.

'What do you think about General Grant's chances for the Presidency. Do you think they will run him?'

'Grant, hang it, man,' said Artamus, 'you appear to know more strangers than any man I ever saw.'

The man was furious; he walked up the car, but at last came back and then said:

'You confounded ignoramus, did you ever hear of Adam?'

Artemus looked up and said:

'What was his other name?'

Rules for the Care of Sheep.

We copy the following suggestions from a circulation issued by F. C. D. McKay, the General Agent of the American Emigrant Company. The company have alread over 10,000 sheep scattered among the farmers who purchase land of them, in flocks ranging in size from fifty to two hundred head.

Keep sheep dry under foot with litter. This even more necessary than to stand or lie in mud or roofing them.

'Take up lamb backs early in the summar and keep them up until December 1st following, when they may be turned out.

Drop or take out the lowest bars as the sheep enter or leave a yard thus saving broken limbs.

Count every day.

Begin graining with the greatest care and use the smallest quantity first.

'If an ewe loses her lamb, milk her daily for a few days and mix a little alum with her salt.

Let no hogs eat with the sheep by any means, in the spring.

Give the lambs a little mill feed in time of weaning.

'Never frighten sheep, if possible to avoid it.

Sow rye for weak ones in cold weather, if you can.

Seperate all the weak, thin or sick, from those strong, in the fall, and give them special care.

'If any sheep is hurt, catch it at once and wash the wound, and if it is fly time, apply something healing. If a limb is broken, bind with splinters tightly, loosening as the limb swells.

Keep a number of good bells on the sheep.

Do not let sheep spoil wool with chaff or burs.

Cut tag locks early in the spring.

For scours, give pulverized alum in wheat bran; prevent by taking great care in changing dry for green feed.

If one is lame, examine the foot, clean out between the hoofs, and if unsound apply tobacco with blue vitriol boiled in a little watter.

A patent has been issued for a 'creeping doll.' An exchange says it is to be hoped that this device will wholly supercede the lubberly and offensive baby now in use.

Through ropes, pistols, razors, and poisons sometimes disappoint anxious suicides, the Louisville Courier reminds them that in the bright lexicon of non-explosive coal oil there is no such word as fail.

Vincennes vandal took a matrass which had been used in a small-pox case, and threw it into the grounds of the Orphans Asylum. If the citizens could find him they would be pretty apt to give him something worse than smallpox.

Seeing But Not Believing.

The erudite and accomplished editor of the Ligonier Banner, Honorable John B. Stoll, (our readers will please excuse our style of prefixes,) says he does not recognize our right to pass judgment upon him. Well, there is a good many things this honorable gentleman does not recognize, the truth being among the most prominent. He says our columns have, in several instances, been devoted to the vile slanders emenating from the Columbia City Post. Johnny, if you wasn't sick, we would like to polish you down until we got somewhere near the truth. Not that we would regret copying anything from this paper, as we regard the Post as the compeer of the most brilliant efforts of the "Infant." Not a single article, not a single line of that interesting episode has been published in the COURIER from either paper. We deprecated tho controversy in which our excellent friend, Johnny, came out second best, and, therefore, kept silent. We have no ill feeling treasured up against the Honorable, and have never expressed any. Even now, when we have just cause for hurling thunderbolts of vituperation upon his precious head, we are calm and dignified, very. Don't get growlish, Johnny. Keep down that consuming ambition—walk as you are directed by us, from time to tim—keep your nose clean, and if you do not become Auditor under this regime, we'll try and have you elected supervisor of your own district, a position you can eminently fill with ability.

A reverend gentleman from New York, while holding forth in Baltimore on the subject, 'put money in thy purse,' said: 'If fifty thousand dollars had been expended on a certain paper in New York City, the recent great frauds of Tammany would never have come to light.' In 1870 the shipyards of Great Britain turned out 794 vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 342,706 tons. Of these, 445 vessels, averaging 610 tons each, were built for foreigners. The United States, in the in the same time built one iron steamship; sold none, and was prohibted from buying any by the legislation of a protective Congress.

While a large portion of the United States has been suffering all the evils of an unparalleled drouth, the people of other countries have been afflicted with the other extreme. On the night of the 15th of September last, the river of Gurrite, in India overflowed its banks so rapidly and to such an extent that about three thousand houses in the city of Juanpora and vicinity, were carried away by the flood; and ten thousand persons were rendered homeless. The flood lasted three days.

The report of the South Carolina Legislative Investigating Committee brings to light a number of minor swindles, as well as the big steal of six millions. Among others is that of the Radical negro militia system imposed on the State for party purposes. According to the report this cost, including the purchase and alternations of arms, the State constabulary and other branches of expenditure properly coming under one head $421,153-71, equal to a per capita tax of $2 75 on the whole voting population of the State; and this costly militia is now disorganized and virtually disbanded. The committee were not long in discovering that the militia system was principally designed to provide good pay and no work for the Governor's personal friends; also, that the State election in 1870 was carried in part by funds diverted from the militia appropriations.

The Prince of Wales continues to improve.

The Last Year,

The year 1871 will hardly be considered in history a year fo grace. In point of fatatliy to human life and destruction to material values, by extraordinary natural cause, no year in the history of the world can equal it. The retrospect, is a terrible one. War, famine, pestilence fire, water and ice, have been let loose and done their worst and with such appalling results, and with such remarkble phenomena accompanying them, that it is not to be wondered at men have sometimes thought the end of the world had come We have seen Chicago laid in ashes, throughout almost its entire business limits, and seventy thousand people left homeless. On that same night, the conflagration swept through Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, sweeping village after village with horrible loss of life, and ruining thousands of acres of timber. the cutting and milling of which formed the main industry of that region. Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, New York, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Missouri and california, the Alleghenies, the Sierra, and the Rocky Mountains have been ravaged by fire, destroying immense amounts of property and entailing wide spread sufferings. Chicago is not the only city which has suffered. Peshtigo, Manistee, Cacheville and Vallejo, Cal., Urbana, Darmstadt, and Geneva, under the Alps, have all been visited by terrible fires; and the torch of the incendiary has been applied successively to Louisville, St. Louis, Toronto; Montreal, and Syracuse.

The pestilence has walked at noonday. The cholera has steadily traveled from Asia westward through Europe and despatches a month ago announced its arrival at New York quarantine. One of the most appalling plagues of modern times, arising from yellow fever, has swept over portions of South America, and in Buenos Ayres alone, 28,000 bodies were buried in one cemetry. Persia has been almost depopulated by the plague, which has been rendered all the more terrible by the added horrors of famine; and now, in our own country, small pox has appeared as an epidemic in nearly every large city.

Storms, in their various manif stations, have never been so destructive before. In one night, a river in India suddenly arises, swollen by a storm and swept away an entire city, destroying 3,000 houses, and utterly prostrating the crops. The little French seaport town of Pornic has been almost utterly destroyed by a tidal wave. The iceburgs of the Arctic have caught and imprisoned within their impassible walls thirty-three whalers, inflicting a million and a half of dollars loss upon the city of New Bedford, and seriously crippling an important branchof industry. St. Thomas has been devastated by a hurricane which left 6,000 people homeless and strewed its coasts with wrecks. A typhoon of terrible power has swept along the Chinese coast, destroying everything in its course,—towns, shipping, and life. A hurricane at Halifax has inflicted a severe blow upon English shipping. The storm on the English coast have never been so severe before, nor so fruitful in martime disasters. A tidal wave at Galveston swept off all the shipping in port. A tornado has swept through Canada, doing serious damage in Toronto, Montreal, and Quebec. The island of Formosa has been nearly destroyed by an earthquake.

Add to these the unusual crop of murders and suicides in this country, the alarming increase of railroad and steamboat disasters, the monstrous villains which have been brought to light a public offices and private corporations the Franco German war with its attendant horrors, and the statement of the astronomers that there has been an explosion in the sun, and that two or three comets are just now in danger of loosing their tails by their proximity to that orb,—and we may be satisfied by assuming that the year 1871 will be known in future callendars as the Black Year.

Schenck's Silver Mine—European Opinion.

The Continental papers of Europe contain many articles about the relations of the American Ambassador in London to the Emma Silver Mine.—The New York Evening Post says.

'The extent to which the name of our country is brought into disgrace in Europe by retaining in office a speculative Minister at the court of St. James is doubtless not known to our government or to our people.'

There is no difference of opinion on the subject in Europe. The Post makes the following translations;

'The Paris Presse, which is edited by M. de Cucheval Clavigny, a diplomatist of experience, saying 'The distinguished officer who at present represents the United States at the court of St. James has allowed or authorized the use of his name for the purpose of recommending to the people of Great, Britain the the purchase of certain mining stocks in which he is personally interested. This is a gross and unpardonable violation of the first principles of diplomatic etiquette, and should subject the delinquent, whether he sinned knowingly or not, to such punishment at the at the hands of his government as would satisfy the world that America does not intrust her most important diplomatic positions to men who are shameless or stupid enough to coin money out of them.

'The Gaulois thinks that Gen. Schenck has added an important and entirely novel feature to the diplomatic code. It says: 'If such mercenary conduct is tolerated on the part of foreign Ambassadors, and if the present case is to become a precedent, we suppose the German Ambassador here (in Paris) will act as agent for the sale of bock beer, the representative of the King of Italy will combine with his diplomatic functions the sale of Parmesan cheese and olives, and the Russian Legation will become a depot for leather and tallow.

'The Berlin Kreuz Zeitung is equally severe upon Gen. Schenck. Even if the mining stock puffed up by Gen. Schenck were as good as he and his friends represent it to be, the fact that his name figures in the flaby advertisement of the Emma Mine would be none the less shocking.'

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co. Druggists Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

The Auburn Courier

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

Pay for your paper.

Victor Benguot, agent of the Ft. Wayne Journal, gave us a call yesterday.

The Indianapolis Sentinel had a head put on it on New Years—a new head, and we think it is much improved.

Mr. King, of Fort Wayne, will visit our place next week, for the purpose of getting up a directory of Auburn, for his Fort Wayne directory.

Notice is hereby given to the officers and members of Way Lodge, No. 238, I O. G. T., there will be an election held on the evening of the 15th of January, 1872, to elect three trustees to serve for one year.

C. M. Brown, Sec'y.

One of our most attractive dry goods clerks, who parts his hair in the middle, writes home to his "gal:" "Can't marry you this winter. Our firm don't advertise; business is awful dull, and I will get my wages cut down, if the firm don't bust up altogether. So let us postpone till '72.

Thanks.—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation from Messrs Williams & Hossler, of the Warsaw Indianian, to be present with them at the "warming" of their magnificent new building. Absence alone prevented us from attending, but we trust that everything went off as merry as a marriage bell.

Have you paid for the Courier for 1871? If not, why not? Quite a number of our subscribers have paid us, and this has encouraged us. There is quite a number that has not paid us and that ain't quite so encouraging. Now, we must have our pay, and no honest man will refuse to give it.

The fact of a man being responsible, does us no good, if he does not pay up promptly. We thank those that have paid us, and hope that the rest will follow suit

We went holidaying way down in old "Molly Stark," in the Buckeye State. We have met quite a number in DeKalb Co. that have been residents of this fine county, and we can say for a whole-souled, hospital people, she stands pre-eminent. Everything looks lovely, except politics, she has went astray after strange Gods.—We went down in Sandy township to reconstruct it, and hopes, are now entertained that the Democracy will soon realize a glorious victory.

DeDalb County Temperance Association met in Convention at Auburn, on Saturday, Dec., 23 1871, and elected the following officers for the year 1872, Rev. Sanford Basset, President, James Griswould, Vice Pres., John Hogue Treas., and D. D. Moody Secy. Arrangements were also made to procure temperance lecturers to deliver lectures and form temperance associations auxilary to the County Temperance Association.

D. D. Moody, Secy.

Delinquent Taxes.—We present our readers this week with the Auditor's message to those who are in arrears for taxes.—Last year there were over 800 descriptions and by reference to this year's report, it will be seen that a considerable reduction has been made, all through the efficency of our energetic Treasurer, F. D. Dyan, Esq We hope to see a gradual reduction on the the present number. It will add to our good name abroad, and be looked upon with satisfaction at home. Too much credit cannot be give to the Treasurer for his zealous exertions in achieving this result.

Wm. Sheffield, chairman of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad extension committees, has published a card in the Napoleon (O.) Signal in which he says: "It will take two years to complete that part of the road which lies between Pittsburgh and the Sandusky road. The part between the Sandusky road and Chicago can be built in one year. The first is now receiving energetic attention, and the second is postponed until the early spring, when the company will select either the Defiance or Napoleon line, and proceed with the work. The causes of delay have no bearing on the question of route. I am assured of this by Vice President Keyser. We therefore say to our friends, along the line, that they need not loose confidence by this delay."

Sedan Brevities.

We was glad to see so many of our auburn friends preasent at the ball Christmas eve, and thanks are due to our gentlemanly friend Mr. Al. Harris for special favors.

Since Prof. Straub came to our town the musical talent of Sedan has developed at such a rate that the demand from neighboring towns to hear some of the Sedan singers is quite flattering to the Prof., as well as those whohave been under his training

A drunken man created a good deal of amusement Christmas, who owing to the slippery condition of the side walk tumbled around in an unpleasant manner. How ever he blamed the side walk and not the large amount of whisky in him for his pedestrial troubles.

G. M. C.

Waterloo Items.—Capt. Buck has connected the drug business with his already popular grocery establishment. The Capt has had experience in this line, and cannot fail to meet with success.

The burnt district will be rebuilt during the coming year.

The new school house is progressing favorably.

The material for several fine new building is already on the ground.

S. W. Dickinson, retires this month from the management of the Waterloo House.

Messrs Booser & Blattner have a very large assortment of dry goods and are doing a large business. They are deservedly popular as business men and we are glad to note their success.

The furniture establishment of Lockhart & Vanfleet is receiving a large invoice of new styles from New York, and all can now be accommodated with first-class goods.

Our Public Schools.

It is with pleasure that we submit to the public a few facts connected with the educational interests of our town. The order maintained in the different rooms is good but in the first primary, taught by Miss Hull, is excellent.

A good interest is manifested by all ages and the teachers feel encouraged in the disposition to try to do right.

The number in attendance is about 230. These are nearly equally divided among the four teachers,

The teachers have cordially invited the visits and inspection of the parents but with doubtful success. If the parents will help us by seeing that their children are started for school in time and that they do not absent themselves causelessly, we will promise that our efforts, to instruct, will not be fruitless.

George Hobnich, a former pupil in O. P Houser's room, left the school to avoid a merited punishment and we regret that there is no power to take him from the street, and compel his good behavior.

We place before the public the names of Joshua Miller, Francis Stahl, Luna Hall and Julia Plum as members of the High School who were not absent, nor tardy, this month and have been dilligent and praiseworthy.

A number of others have been kept out by sickness, or for work by parents, who have lost time through no fault of their own.

Should the coming months exhibit as much to be commended as the past, parents, pupils and teachers will be gratified with their mutual efforts to advance our schools and add them to the number of inducements for the settlement with us of the sobermended and enterprising.

From New Era.

New Era, January 1st, 1872.

Mr. Editor:—A merry Christmas and a happy New Years to you. It has been some time since New Era has been spoken of through the columns of your valuable paper, and we think it should be heard from as well as the other miner towns in the county, and we claim that New Era is still in a flourishing condition. Our day school is going on finely under the instruction of our accomplished teacher, Wm Keeran, and we are informed throughout the district that we have a No. 1 school, which of course makes no discount upon the teacher.

There is at present a great excitement prevailing at New Era upon the proposed change of the E. R. R. The company, as we are informed, proposes to change the route, commencing at the gravelpitt, two miles west of this place, then running in a north-easternly direction. Through New Era and Newville of this county, and thence to Bryan, O., Adrain, Mich., and from the latter place to Detroit Mich., the terminus of the road which we are told makes nearly an air line to Detroit, and through a very rich country, and we are now soliciting subscription and have already raised a considerable amount and propose raising a subscription here of five or ten thousand dollars and more if we can. Newville is in co operation with us and they propose raising fifty thousand and rather than lose the road will raise eighty thousand dollars. Bryan we are told will raise a subscription of one hundred thousand dollars, and other towns along the line in proportion. We feel flattered that we are going to get the road.

I will give a brief business directory of New Era. Perhaps there are some of your subscribers that are not aware of any business being done here. We have a dry goods & grocery store, H. & A. Gettel, prop's., post office, Henry Gettle, postmaster, and he is a good one. Our mail matter has increased one half since the office came in his hands, which is only about one year ago. We have one circular saw mill, John P. Wyant, prop., two physicians, J. H. Larimore and D. B. Roth er, both being good, the latter rather jovial and always full of fun, and by the way of a compliment, the ladies say is rather good looking. We have a No. 1 blacksmith shop, F. M. Bacon prop., and he is considered a first-class workman, we have one good broom maker, and J. P. Wyant & Geo. H. Hoffman intends starting a new shop to manufacture wagons, sleighs, &c., and we think the people would do well to call on our village for business of any kind. There is a very good debating society going on here.

The holidays were spent very pleasantly to both young and old in the village and country. Turkeys and chickens had to suffer to a considerable extent. We had the pleasure of partaking of some very fine roasted turkey with our neighbors (which did not go bad, as editors generally understand), especially one circumstance in the line of roasted fowls that we was called upon to help devour, at H. H. Houser's our township trustee. We were invited to meet at his house on last Thursday to have a friendly rehearsal &c., and upon our arrival was astonished at the numerous friends that were already there, and still more a coming. The house was filled to an over flowing, we had a very pleasant time, and heard some very interesting stories and past recollections. At the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. we were invited, by Mrs. Houser, to come in the dining room and have dinner, of course we din'nt hesitate long. In the evening the young folks had an oyster supper and we are told that they also had a good time, as young folks generally do.

Professor Straub taught a large number of scholars, at the Hopewell Church, during the holidays, in the line of music, culture of the voices, &c., and closed last Friday evening with a concert which proved to be a success,

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask is to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne

Ladies visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

Correspondence.

Auburn, Indiana, Dec 25th, 1871.

Rev. A. W. Lamport,

Dear Brother:—You will pardon me for troubling you with another letter. I am aware that your time is just now so much occupied by your ministral labors, that you cannot in justice to yourself write controversial letters for the press. When I wrote my previous letter I was not aware of the continual demands upon your time that then existed, and hence owe an apology. My purpose in writing was to correct what I regard as an error and to defend opinions that I cherish against the frequent misrepresentations and unprovoked public attacks made, not so much by your self as by those in fellowship with you. But as circumstances make it distastful for you to continue, I will drop the subject—unless you find time to continue it—by simply noticing a few things in your letter to put myself right.

You set out by saying that I place you in a bad light—a false position—before an intelligent public. This is a serious charge How is it sustained? by denying that you used the word endless in the sentence attributed to you. Upon your testimony I am corrected; that was my recollection at the time of writing. Really, however, I do not see what injustice that does you. Your proposition you say was this: "God is just as much to be honored in the damnation of the wicked as in the salvation of the righteous." You believe that the damnation of the wicked is endless, do you not? Then where is the wrong? I simply supplied a word that gave clearness to your meaning. But you say, further on in your letter, "The endless damnation of the wicked does not gloryfy or honor God, such a thought never entered your head." Assuming that you believe the damnation of the wicked is endless; You contradict your own position.

You say your object, in the sermon alluded to, was to establish the purity of God's character as an administrator of justice. How was this done? by painting in vivid colors a scene of terror. A large class "embracing many that the world called good" are discerned in a place of torment; "suffering and bitter anguish is depicted on their horrid countenances." "No revolt, no not a single murmer against God is heard;" really exhibiting a patience and meekness in suffering that would move the hardest heart with pity, and yet the only sympathy they receive from a being who is said "not to chide, nor keep his anger forever," "whose goodness endureth continually" and "whose mercy is without end," is the withering taunt "ye knew your duty but ye did it not." The dark cloud of repentance has no silver lining of mercy, of pardon. Oh! my dear brother, is this establishing the purity of the government of the Heavenly Father.

You next give several quotations from scripture. I now discover clearly which side of the question of endless punishment you are on, not by the texts themselves but by the evident interpretation you give to them: You say that my "elaboration upon eternal death," where I give a picture of an orthodox hell, is "extravagant theology," and yet you say "it adds no force to the statement of the Savior in Mark 9, which do not mean to say, that the Savior taught "extravagant theology? or, that the picture I gave was not overdrawn?

But to the meaning of the texts. You quote "The soul that sinneth it shall die.' This is good theology but no better than 'To be carnally minded is death' "And you hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins,' "That as sin has reigned into death even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life, all having reference to the present spiritual condition of the sinner

We next notice Mark 9, 44. "Where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched.' This you evidently quote to prove endless punishment; but you are certainly "wide of the mark." This language of the Savior is a quotation from the prophets. See Isa. 66:24, Jer. 7:31, 17:27, 19:6, Lam. 4:11 to 14, Ezek. 20:45, 22:19 to 22. These texts do not all contain the exact words quoted, but they all serve to show clearly that the prophets used the figure to represent temporal limited punishment, and inasmuch as Christ was speaking to Jews who were familiar with the manner in which the figure was used by the prophets, he would, without explanation be understood as using it in the same manner.

It is hardly necessary to state that the figure here used originated in the desecration by Josiah of the valley of the son of Hinnom, to be used as a resptacle for the carcasses of the city of Jerusalem and where a fire was kept constantly burning to consume them.

Your last text, Matt. 25:41 must fail you also. The whole connnection in which this text is found embracing chapter 24 & 25 is understood by very many eminent commentators as having reference to the terrible punishment about to fall on the Jews in the destruction of their city and nation. Dr. Clark gives Chap. 24 this meaning. Biship Pearce, Dr. Hammond, Bishop Newcomb and many other orthodox writers think this meaning is carried to Chap. 25 but make both chapters emblematic of the future judgement. The question asked in chap. 24 3v, and to which as an answer the latter part chap. 25 applies—has much to do in giving us a proper understanding. This is rendered by Dr. Clark, and a host of others as 'end of the age,' meaning the end of the Jewish age. With these facts before us can any unprejudiced mind dissent from the conclusion that both chapters relate to the same event, namely, the destruction of the Jewish nation and polity.

But waiving all this, which we think settles the point in our favor, we proceed to examine the word "everlasting" the only one in the text that seems to give you support. This word, as you are undoubtedly aware, is frequently used in the scriptures to denote limited duration. See Gen. 17: 8, 48:4, Exod. 40:15 Lev. 16:34, Num. 25: 13, Hab. 3:6, with many other texts that might be quoted. The learned tell us that the Greek word in this chapter translated 'everlasting' is 'aionion,' an adjective derived from the noun 'aion,' the meaning of which as given by lexicographers is 'age' 'long duration' now as an abjective cannot mean more than the noun from which it is derived we conclude that the word cannot mean endless duration.

As to the phrase 'devil and his angels,' the learned tell us that the word in the original here rendered 'devil' signifies an adversary in general, and is often applied to human beings. In Tim. 3:11 the word is translated 'slanderers.' In Titus 2:3, 'false accusers.' In [illegible] the same word is used, meaning the authorities or civil rulers.

In reply to your remarks about the 'day of grace, saving sinners, devils &c.' I have only space to say that the day of grace is the reign of Christ, to end with the subjection of all things to God, including the destruction of the devil and all his works. See 1st. Cor. 15:28 Heb. 2:14, 1st John 3: 8. Your day of grace, considering the very unequal oppertunities it would offer to individuals of the race for salvation, would simply be a mockery of justice.

We now come to the story of the Dutchman. You say 'I ought to have his comprehension.' I confess I do not. I know what Universalists believe, he poor ignorant soul, did not. Universalists believe that 'though hand join in hand, yet the wicked shall not be unpunished.' 'That every disobedience and transgression receives a just recompense of reward; indeed so pronounced are they on this point that the renowned opponent of Universalism, Powers called it a 'cruel theology.' It is true they do not believe it is endless, nor do they believe it will be delayed until all chance of reformation is past, with the opportunity up to that point of dodging it all by an hours mental exercise; but they do believe it will be speedy and sure. As an offset to your story let me tell you one.

A certain pious old lady was awakened one morning by a noise in her back yard; opening the window and looking out she discovered an Irishman just emerging from the door of the smoke house bearing a ham of meat. Thrusting her head out of the window, she cried out:—'Sirrah! you'll pay for that at the judgment day.' Taking a moment for thought the Irishman looking up, replied with consoling coolness, 'an faith, madam, if you'll trust that long I'll take another."

You say you cannot respect the 'hollow notions' of my letter. In it I make three affirmative points, and these I regard as essential to the vindication of the wisdom and goodness of God.

1st. That the mission of Christ to save the race will prove a glorious success; 'tha the will see the travail of his soul and be satisfied;" that the last prodigal will at some time come to himself and return to his father's house

2nd. That the door of mercy will never be closed against the repentant sinner; that the father will see him even when afar off, will have compassion on him and haste to welcome him home.

3d. That the object of punishment is to awaken reflection and induce the sinner, by repentance, to place himself within the persuasive influence of that great, central power of the gospel; love. These I regard as cardinal principles and not 'hollow notions.'

In closing permit me to say by way of encouragement—not flattery—that with your natural ability your career, as a minister, ouhht to be a bright one. The only danger lies in your being led to indulge your fine poetic imagniation at the expense of sound reasoning. With you opposition will give strength. You will review your theories; cast away unsound dogmas and fortifiy yourself with argument to support the sound.

Yours fraternally,

J. P. Widney.

New Firm.—J. W. Riekel and D. D. Moody, Esqs., have gone together for the purpose of practising law. Office in the Court House.

Mr. Editor:—There is a class of people, limited in number, of which Auburn has a fair representation, who are continually sticking their noses into other people's business, to the neglect of their own. They generally assume the cloak of morality and make themselves offensive as well as officious. They gather together all the mean gossip they can get hold of, and then re-hash it until it becomes thoroughly disgusting. They imagine themselves to be great moral reformers, and in this garb do infinately more injury than our very worst cases. When, however you come to analyze their characters you will always find them uncouth in their manners, bigoted in their views, and away below par for varacity and honesty. Over-grown and ungainly they loaf about seeking whose reputation they may blast by their foul suspicions, not having the courage to confront those they would malign. They are also known by their super abundance of advice and suggestions, always fifty years behind the age. They are the very parasites of the human family, and clog the wheels of progress and refinement, until they stand out like great blasted trees upon a barren hearth. One or two of them have been particularly busy in their peculir avocation. within the last few weeks, and I shall try and give you a few instances of their mean and contemptible doings, embodying the spirit of the Pharisee, when he prayed

We thank the Lord for meat and bread,
For water and for tea,
And for giving us a head,
So full of advice; and free.

STATE OF INDIANA, } s. s.
DeKalb County. }

I, William McIntyre, Auditor in and for said county of DeKalb do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full and complete list of all the Lands and Town Lots in said county, returned delinquent for the tax of the year 1870 with the Delinquent Tax Penalty and Interest, and also the Taxes of the current year, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given that so much of the foregoing lands and town lots as may be necessary to discharge the taxes, interest, penalty and charges due thereon, or due from the owner thereof, at the time of sale will be sold at Public Auction, at the Court House, in the town of Auburn, in said County, on the first Monday of February A. D. 1872, (the same being the fifth day of said month,) unless such Taxes, Penalty, Interest and Charges are previously paid. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock a. m., on said day.

Wm. McINTYRE, Auditor.

Auditor's Office, Auburn, Indiana, December 15th, 1871.

Sinking Fund Distribution.

On the first instant the following petition was filed in the Supreme Court:

John C. Shoemaker, James B. Ryan and Norman Eddy vs. Joseph K. Sharpe, Alexander Shortridge and Francis Smith.

To the motion submitted herein by the Attorney General, upon the calling of the docket, we wish to add our personal requests that this case be advanced upon the docket. This petition is submitted upon the ground that there is involved herein a matter of public interest and of great importance to the State, and we respectfully ask the Court to give it an early consideration.

John C. Shoemaker,
Auditor of State.
James B. Ryan,
Treasury of State.
Norman Eddy,
Secretary of Sate.

I concur in the above recommendation.

Milton B. Hopkins.
Superintendent of Public Instruction.

At this urgent solicitation of the State officers, the Court has advanced the case upon the docket and consented to take it up and consider it immediately after the holidays.

As a matter of justice to the State officers we can not refrain from condemning the harsh criticisms and abuse indulged in by certain journals in discussing the Distribution act the injunction case growing out of it. We are in a position to know whereof we speak and having watched all the proceedings closely from the very day of the passage of the act down to the present time, have no hesitation in saying that the Auditor and the State officers connected therwith, have from first to last done all that it was possible for them to do towards carrying this law into effect, by distributing the fund as contemplating in the act.

In the brief filed by the appellant's attorneys, Hon. D. B. W. Voorhees, S. Claypool and W. R. Harrison, they take occasion to say:

'This act was promptly responded to by the present State Auditor, Treasurer and Secretary of State, who immediately upon its approval, set abou preparing for the distribution of the fund in accordance with its provisions.'

No one of the fault-finders, or all of them together, could have done more than has been done, and we very much doubt if any one of them under like circumstances whould have done as much. Which of them having the fund during an entire term of two years would have promptly appealed from a decision leaving it in his hands, and have followed the appeal by a personal petition to the higher court for a speedy hearing of the case? It is our motto that justice should be done to all men, even to political opponents, and a sense of fairness requires us to say that the obstacles and obstructions thrown in the way of carrying into affect the Sinking Fund act are not, in our opinion, properly chargeable to the State officers or to any one of them—Indianapolis News.

The largest double sheet in Indiana, containing Thirty-Six columns filled with news from all parts of the world Choice Original and Selected Tales, Sketches, Poetry, Wit and Humor.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The Weekly Gazette has more interesting and popular specialties than any other Newspaper published in this State. Notice the following:

FULL TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES.

The Weekley Gazette contains full Telegraphic Dispatches of everything that has transpired during the week throughout the country and world.—No other Weekly has this Feature! from the fact that no other paper in this and adjoining districts publishes a daily, in connection with it, and do not get the dispatches until copied from old papers.—Readers of our weekly therefore, can get all the news as well as those who take the Daily Papers.

HUMOROUS LETTERS.

The most popular humorous literature of the ag—read and laughed over by everybody—will be regularly published in the Gazette. Parson Nasby's Letters will be inserted each week, as well as all witty saying of Josh Billings, Mark Twain and others. The Nasby litters are worth the price of paper. The greatest feature, however, is an

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

"HOW TO GO WEST"

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go and journeys were made in the legendary 'Prairie Schooner,' but in these days of progress and improvement, the word West has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago Burlington & Quincy R. R., from Indianapolis over the Indianap'lis, Bloomington & Western Short Line, and from Logansport, over the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw R. R., and running through Burlington, reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other rail roads running from those cities.

Always go 'By way of Burlington,' and you will be sure to be right.

The Burlington route has admirablo answered the question, 'How to go West?' by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to Time, Connections, Fare, &c., and illustrated by a large map truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing. General Passenger Agent, B. M. & R. R. Burlington, Iowa.

Salt Lake city dispatches say that there is ten feet of snow on a level in Little Cottonwood mining district and it is still snowing. Freighting ore from the mines is wholly suspended. The sun has not been seen for a week.

THE CITY ON THE HILL.

BY EBEN E. REXFORD.

I know a fair, white city,
A quiet peaceful city,
A beautiful, strange city,
Upon a sun-touched hill;
A place where daisies blossom
Upon the green earth's bosom,
And grasses grow and rustle,
Along the streets so still.

The streets are long and narrow
And the brown thrush and the sparrow,
Their little homes have builded
Among the flower-flecked grass.
You will hear the song of linnet,
And the robbin's carol in it,
Whenever this strange city
Your footsteps chance to pass.

The houses in this city—
This strange and quiet city,
Where never human pity
The dwellers ask, nor need,
Are long and low, and over
Each roof the grasses cover
Their green leaves, each a lover
Of haunts where sparrows breed.

There is no sound of sorrow—
Of longing for to-morrow—
Of pain to bear, or borrow,
Within the silent streets;
But always peace and quiet,
Untouched by earthly riot,
As days go drifting by it,
Among its cool retreats.

Thither dear ones, grow weary,
Grow—oh! so tried and weary
Of treading pathways dreary,
Have often turned for rest;
And in this fair, white city,
This beautiful, strange city,
No thoughts of pain nor pity,
Can henceforth stir their breast.

Oh, thought most sweet and tender!
That peace, whose perfect splendor
Of rest we comprehend not,
Shall crown each low-lain head!
In the streets so green and narrow,
Where the robbin and the sparrow,
And the thrush, their nests have builded
In the city of the dead.

A Racy Advertisement.

Wm. Wilson is a genius who keeps a horse restaurant at White Pine, Nevada, and he issues the following musical advertisement. We give him the benefit of our large circulation:

Wm. M. Wilson's livery stable and horse restaurant. Live stock faster than anybody's and all trained to respect woman's rights—also children's—yet warranted to get away from any thing else on the road. Buggies, hacks, &c., for slow or fast travel—with horses to correspond. Funeral turnouts cheerfully furnished, and guaranteed to make the proper impression.—Bloated aristocrats from abroad taken on to any road, and warranted ahead of any stage or any other conveyance—for money. No complaint is ever heard from the stock fed in this stable. More hilarity than ever was known in any other collection of dumb animals since the procession from Noah's landing. No hay ropes about this establishment—everything is turned loose, the key to the barley sacks hangs dangling within reach of the humblest horse in the stable and no pains are spared to make the guests of the establishment distinguishing the difference between this and the desert waste.

ONLY A TELEGRAM.

Jennie Johnson went flying down stairs at the ring of a door-bell. 'It's a telegram,' she said to Melissa, on returning. 'I knew Hooper's ring—Hoppor's the messenger.'

'Not a telegram for me, I hope,' said Melissa, looking up from her work 'I do hate the sight of one; they always set my teeth on edge, and make the hair of my flesh stand up. You don't think that any thing has happened to—to Ledyard?'

'Certainly not; it's addressed to Ledyard!'

'And you are opening it?'

'He gives me permision to read his telegrams when he's out of town, so that I may forward them if they are important. You'll have that pleasure when you are married, I suppose.' And then Jennie relapsed into utter silence for full ten minutes, while Melissa fidgeted and coughed, and wondered what it was about, too proud to ask till anxiety constrained her.

'Something must have happened to Ledyard, I know,' she cried. 'Why don't you speak, Jennie?' Why do you look so—so distracted?' Let me read it. I insist; it is my right, Jennie!'

'Yes,' said Jennie, slowly, 'it is your right; but I wouldn't read it, if I were you.'

'Not read it! Do you think I am selfish enough to spare myself so weakly? If he suffers, is it too much for me to know? Give it to me this minute, Jennie!'

'Oh, don't belive you have any idea what it is. It's worse than death! Here, read it, if you will. I hope I am not doing wrong to allow it!' And Melissa read:

'To Dr. Ledyard Johson:

'DEAREST,—My parents consent at last. Come to me before my heart breaks, if you still love

'EMILIE.'

Melissa put it down without a tremor. Jennie dared not look at her.

'I must go home,' said she, with a voice as hollow as the whispers of a sea-shell, 'of course. When does the next train leave, Jennie do you know?' And then her assummed calmness melted into a torrent of tears.

'Now I feel more composed,' she said: 'a good cry is equal to a tonic. I might have known that it couldn't last. Only if he had tolk me himself! I think it would have been easier to bear if he had not deceived me. And yet he seemed in earnest. He once told me that he never loved but ano woman, and I was fool enough to think that one was myself: though he did not say so, his eyes swore to it. Oh, I have been too happy! but this ends it all. Jennie, for what are you crying? Tell him I hope he will be happy with—with Emilie.

You know, I can not bring myself to like her just yet—'

'Oh, I detest her, the huzzy!' cried Jennie.

'Tell him I mean to forgive him; but I never, never wish to see his face again! Oh! oh! oh!' and another heavy dose of the aforesaid tonic; and the girls kissed and parted.

Dr. Ledyard had been expected home that night, but after Melissa had departed Jennie received a note saying that he should be detained for a week or more, and not mentioning Melissa, as her visit had been kept a secret from him, Jennie intending a suprise. When they heard his ring, Melissa was to step behind the statute of Ariadne, and while Ledyard warmed his hands at the blaze on the hearth, and dilated on the pleasures of home, hintidg that there was but one delight, in the shape of Melissa, was to step from out the shadow of Ariadne, into the warmth of fire-light and embracing arms. So the little drama that Jennie had planned failed of performance, and when Ledyard's note arrived, she inclosed Emilie's telegram to his address, having written on the other side of the sheet:

'Melissa has been visiting here. We intended a pleasant surprise for you, instead of which there was an ugly contre-temps. She left instantly.—This horrid telegram will explain. Your sorrowful sister,

'JENNIE.'

But in her agitation, Miss Jennie, who was always just a bit careless, though kind-hearted enough, directed her letter to East instead of ninety, and therefore—it being prior to the present postal arrangements, which returns a miscarried letter to the original writer at the expiration of a few weeks—Dr. Ledyard Johnsn never received it Judge of his suprise, then, when, having written to Melissa in his usual vein, his love-letter was returned to him unopened!

'I should like just to know what he says about it,' Melissa had pleaded; 'how he excuses himself.' Having utterly resigned him, she was just dying for one word of affectionate apology and appreciation. In her own heart she had already excused him: she had pieced up a sentimental story for his apology. He had loved Emilie first, but a cruel father had interfered; then he had met Melissa herself, and had fancied she could fill Emilie's place; but oh! when she stepped aside what happiness she had been capable of giving him!—the more costly since it was also her own happiness which she threw into the scales. Therefore she would fain have opened his letter, in order to verify her romance; but her mother, who understood human nature and the ways of the world better—to whom romance was a dead letter—said, 'No, dear; it will only probe the wound; it will do no good—better return it unopened, as he deserves: there is no excuse possible.' And being a high-handed woman, who always carried her point, down the letter was returned. Dr. Ledyard posted down to Doverby instantly to inquire into the affair, and was told that Melissa had left town, and her mother was indisdosed—she having sent Melissa away on a visit to divert her mind. At his wit's end, Ledyard wrote on his card, 'Will Mrs. Vaughn give it to me Melissa's address?' To which she replied.

'Under the circumstances, Mrs. Vaughn thinks it wise to whithhold her daughter's address from Dr. Johnson, and she is greatly surprised at his importunity—after all.'

'Fairly puzzled, and not a little angry, Dr Ledyard returned to town and to his patients. He had no heart or spirits for any thing, but it was his duty to see that people did not die needlessly, though he were dying, by inches himself. He knew that it was not a grief to kill outright, but it threatened to be a life-long anguish.—He had long known that the ambitious Mrs. Vaughn did not regard him as a brilliant match for her beautiful daughter; but that Melissa should disown her love was incomprehensible.

'How are you, doctor? Been down to see your sweetheart?' asked one of his college friends, a few days later. 'How do love and cliques agree? When are you going to marry?'

'Never,' answered the the doctor, gruffly.

'Eh! business bad? Dont, get discouraged. This is the healthy season eh? or is it a lovers' quarrel? March spoke of danceing with Miss Vaughn down at Grandelaw last night.'

'At Grandelaw!' cried the doctor, as if a snake had stung him. Melissa returning his letters and daneing with March looked black indeed. March and he had been rival suitors from the beginning, and Grandelaw was his uncle's homestead, where March's mother and sisters spent their holidays in dancing and merrymaking, and which would descend to March on the death of the old gentleman.

'Oh yes,' answered the doctor, with a grim attempt at composure; 'Miss Vaughn is making a visit at Grandelaw there is some connection between the two families;' said then he took the next train for Grandelaw hiself—he not going to give Melissa up without an effort,

As he walked up the avenue toward the March homestead, at dusk, he could see the blazing wood fires shedding a glow on the low, antiquated ceilings, and filling the rooms with phantoms—and was not that Melissa at the old upright piano? Now she rises to greet March, who enters, and takes her hand in both of his, unresisted, and carries it to his lips, then leads her back again to the old upright piano, and their voices blend in some love-song, which almost freezes the heart's blood of Dr. Ledyard, standin dazed and dazzled in the avenue outside. Is Melissa happy at Grandelaw, he wonders, singing with March? Is it of her own choosing? Was she afraid of love in a cottage? Amidst all his misery he recognizes the picturesque effect of the scene, and has half a mind not to interfere. All the elements of happiness are there; but are they well mixed? Melissa comes now and leans her head against the window-frame, and looks out across the waste of snow-heap fields, at the neighboring orchard trees tasseled with clinging flakes, at the evening-star, like a disembodied spirit dividing the shadows: the fire-light paints a back-ground for her such as Fra Angelico loved, lights up the bronzebrown curls, ring falling from a low brow, scintillates in the wide eyes, touches the pale cheek with color—only an instant, then the vision dissolved; she started and turned away. Had she seen him waiting there in the cold outside? had she turned from him to March? Ledyard walked boldly to the door then, and asked for Miss Vaughn. A rustle of silks on the stairways, a chorus of merry voices echoing from room to room, reached him as the door opened.

'Miss Vaughn is engaged,' said the servant.

'But will you tell Miss Vaughn that Dr. Ledyard Johnson particularly requests and interview?' he persisted, in desperation.

'I give your card to the young lady, and she says, says she 'Tell the gentleman I'm engaged.' Them's her own blessed words, if I was ter die for it!'

Dr. Ledyard turned away, quiet broken-hearted. He had a friend in the place, at whose house he made himself at home occasionally, and to whom he repaired after this rebuff of fortune.

'So you have come to escort me to the ball have you? Just in time,' said Mrs. Martin. 'Hugh is so cross; he prefers caucus to balls. And as for you, you need something cheering but not inebriating; you have been too much of your vitality to your sick folks. A galop is good for the circulation. Come, will you go?'

'With all my heart,' said the doctor. It was so comfortable to have somebody think of his pleasure.

'And with all your heels too, I hope.'

All the gentry of the place went to such frolics with there guest: who could say but he might meet Meliss there, and make it all clear between them? So they went. The dancing had already begun when they arrived; the lights, like great wreaths of flame, swung overhead. the lancers swung beneath on the tide of harmony. It seemed as if the wind, blowing through some garden, had set all the flower petals in fantastic motion—such a fluttering of gossamer, like a shining mist; such coruscations of color: such faces, gleaming one instant from out the brilliant chaos, and vanishing as suddenly. such perfumes, transporting the imagination across seas on their spicy wings into the heart of tropical valleys and Arabian nights—all floating 'in time to flute, violin, basson.' Presently the dazzling nebul resolved into groups, and Miss Vaughn passed so near, leaning upon the arm of Lennox March that her drapery swept across Ledyard, at which she half turned her head, and seeing him, shrank away like a frightened bird

'Come, you don't know any one here,' said the young host, half an hour later, useeing Ledyard standing idle. 'Let me introduce you to some partners. Here are hosts of ladies on the ascending scale from pretty to beautiful. here's Miss Vaughn, for instance. Miss Vaughn, allow me to introduce Dr. Johnson.'

Miss Vaughn bowed, her lips moved without articulating. The doctor saw his opportunity—the violins were interluding.

'Will you galop, Miss Vaughn?' He took her hand as he spoke; she neither demurred nor consented. The music gave wings to their feet, drew them into the maelstrom; they seemed like leaves blown before its breath—in and out, up and down the long hall, they swung in everrepeated circles, interesting other orbits. Not a word was spoken between them; her curls blew out against his cheek; his arm held her. The music was the only speech heard; it interpreted every heart-beat—wave after wave. till the galop was at an end.

'Shall we go into the conservatory?' he asked then; 'or will you have an ice?' and they were walking securely away from the crowd, when Mr. March overtook them.

'Miss Vaughn,' he said, 'your mother sends me to fetch you. We are going home.'

'I will take Miss Vaughn to her mother,' said Ledyard, with some hauteur.

'But I am Mrs. Vaughn's embassador, and can not delegate the pleasant duty to you,' laughed March.

'Miss Vaughn, I protest against this. I must speak out. Somebody has been doing me an injury. I wish to set myself right with you. Please to choose who shall conduct you to your mother—Mr. March or myself.'

'After all—that has passed,' murmured Melissa, 'I think it would be less embarrassing for mamma if I should go with Mr. March.'

'For Heaven's sake, what do you mean? What has 'passed?'' But Lennox March had swept her beyond hearing before the words were well uttered.

Her mother had warned her that Dr. Johnson would say such things, and shift the blame upon some one else, if she gave him the blame upon some one else, if she gave him the chance.

'I am astonished, Melissa, at such unprecedented conduct!' said Mrs Vaughn, when they were at last a lone.

'When I saw you in that man's arms I could hardly believe my eyes! What did he say to you?'

'He seemed to wish to explain, but there was no time.'

'No time when you were galoping half an hour or more!'

'But, mama, it takes all one's breath to galop; But he did say that somebody had injuried him.'

'Of course he would insinuate such things.'

'But may they not be true, mamma?'

'True! Where are your wits Melissa? I believe that man could pursuade you that the moon is made of green cheese!'

Dr. Ledyard returned to the city next morning, having previously called a second time at Mr. March's, and been informed that Miss Vaughn had gone over the Grandelaw hills on horseback in company with his rival. It was plain to him that she had gone in order to avoid him. He did not guess that it was Mrs. Vaughn who had excepted Lennox March's invitation for Melissa and that she had no choice but to obey. So the doctor returned to his duty, conseling himself with the poet's wisdom,

'If she be not fair for me,
What care I how fair she be?'

It would be a sorry Christmas for him, indeed, in spite of the poet, but he thought it best to leave his patients in the hands of his assistant, and run down to Haven to keep it with Jennie. When one has lost a sweetheart, a sister is, perhaps, the next best thing; not that he intended to talk over his grief with her, but because it is pleasant to have some one about who flatters you with small attentions, and regards you as a superior being, especially when your vanity or affection has received a shock. But he found Jennie somewhat changed too; she was by no means in her usual sprightly vein; she had nothing for him but half smiles. He wondered, secretly, if she had ever experienced a like dissatisfaction with life, of which he had never dreamed before. They were an uncommunicative family, he knew; and sisters and brothers much more readily repose sentimental confidences go strangers than in each other. To be sure, Jennie had hung the Christmas wreaths in the windows, the holly over Copley's picture of their grandmother. There was a goodly store of danties in the prntry, too—frosted cakes surmounted by garlands of flowers done in confectionery; jellies like pyramids of rubies and crystal; grapes grown in their own vineyard, whose globes of amethyst hoarded something of summer's sweetness and perfume; apples, russet as the autumn hills, red with the life-blood of the year. But there was little of Chrismas cheer besides through the frost was on the pane, the old church-bells saluted the Christmas-eve with cracked but jubilant voices, end the moon was rising overhead, as if rose over Palestine when first the song of 'Peace on earth, good-will to-men' was heard, whose echo still vibrates across the dusty centuries.

Dr. Ledyard stood before the blazing hearth, thinking what a different night it might have been had Melissa continued true; wondering what she was doing—if the fire-light still flushed her cheek in the low parlor at Grandelaw; if she and Lennox March still sunk together sweet Christmas choruses He was thinking thus bitterly, when a sharpring at the door started both brother and sister from their reveries.

'Hopper's ring,' said Jennie. She had never exchanged a word with Ledyard about the fatal telegram. If he did not choose to mention it and explain, why should she? How could she? She had not the courage. But, sitting there, it had struck her that he was looking worn and depressed, and it was on her lips to say something comforting, when the little servant entered with a yellow envelope.

'A telgraph, doctor,' said she.

'I hope they haven't called me back to the city—no urgent case, I trust. Humph; poor thing, poor thing!' and he tossed the telgram upon the table.

'Is any one ill?' said Jennie. 'Must you go?'

'Oh no; it's the same old story.—Read it, if wish.'

Jennie took it and read—

'To Dr. Ledyard Johnson:

'Dearest,—My parents consent at last. Come to me before my heart breaks, if you still love

'EMILIE.'

Then she looked up at Ledyard, who seemed to have forgotten all about it. He was still standing before the fire, looking at the picture of the 'Sleeping Palace,' hanging over the mantel.

'That's a capital thing, Jennie, do you know it? One would think the artist had visited the sleep-shops. It's the genuine blue sleep. See this old senescal, who was about to blow his trumphet when the enchantment seized him, with his two cheeks distended! And there comes the fairy prince across the hills. 'The many fail, succeeds.' Ah! I say, Jennie, why do they always paint fairy princes with a feather in their hats?'

'But—but the telegram?' grasped Jenny.

'The telegram? Oh yes. Sad, isn't it?'

'Oh, it's the same—the very same.'

'Then you have seen it before, I thought it was probable. I've had a dozen, or less, word for word. She's as mad as a March here, you see, but quite harmless. She's one of my hospital patients, you know. She had a lover, they say, whom her father dismissed, and it affected her reason. She took the greatest fancy to me from the first, imagines I am the young man in question—it's plain she has forgotten his name—and so every little while she gives the keepers the slip and telegraphs to me. Poor child! she must be fifty years old at the least. There's a heart-wound for you. Jennie, what's the matter, dear? It isn't a nice story for christmas-eve.

'Oh, it is the best story I ever heard—the very best!' she cried, rising and stretching out her arms to a charming apparation in the door-way—or could it be Mellisa Vaughn, wrapped in ermine and crowned with smiles?

'I heard every word of it,' said the phantom of Melissa. 'so much for everdropping; but then, to be sure, it was an old story. I had heard it before. You see. I could not stay down at Grandelaw for christmas—I felt in prison—so I begged mamma to come home; and there we found old Dr. Rightabout, who is my goodfather you know. Goodfathers always bring gifts in the fairy-books. So this morning at breakfast we happen to be talking of insanity, and 'By-the-way, Melissa,' said he, 'there's a rival of yours at the Guinness Hospital. There's an Emilie St. Raymond in love with your Dr. Johnson—sends him telegrams by the armful of the lovingest sort. It's lucky you aren't jealous; but, bless me, she's as mad as Hamlet—been so this twenty years—perfectly harmless, though. Do you know, Ledyard,' she pursued, coming toward him and putting out her hands, 'I couldn't speak a word. The tears just filled my eyes, thinking how I had sentenced you without a hearing. Don't they look terribly red?'

'They look terribly beautiful,' he said, kissing the bent brow. It seemed to him that he was beginning to see through the fog.

'And mamma,' continued Melissa, 'who is hard upon evil-doers, but kind-hearted withal, said I must run right down this Christmas-eve and make it straight through Jennie—for we thought you were at Babylon Street still—and she is waiting in the hall hoping you will forgive us.'

'I will go and help her take off her wraps,' said Jennie, leaving the lovers alone. And so the curtain falls? Nay, rises, revealing a happy Christmas-eve in store for Dr. Johnson and Miss Vaughn.—Harpers Weekly.

The Mont Cenis tunnel has been forestalled by a half forgotten subway, made about 300 years ago across the Mont Viso (Mont Visulus), at the foot of which the river Perisse. More than 2150 yards in length is cut in a straight line through the solid rock, in the very heart of the Alpine chain. The subway was commenced in or about the year 1497, but nothing is known as to the cost of the undertaking, or the time required for all of its accomplishments

AUBURN, IND., JAN. 11, 1871

The new Minnesota Legislature has eighteen Scandinavian members.

The Washington Chronicle and New York Standard are inclined to read Greeley out of the party.

Under the Democratic administration, the expenses of Yorktown, Virginia, Custom House were from $600 to $800 per year. Now they are $3,000, and less revenue collected than before.

The Radical Executive Committe at Washington sent off under the rank of various members of Congress 956,000 'documents,' specially prepared for campaign purposes, during the six months ending December 1.

The National Standard says: 'We have such advices as lead us most seriously to distrust the wisdom, on the score of temperance, of entrusting the Presidential office for another term in the keeping of Gen. Grant.'

The Minnesota Scandinavians are contemplating a new political departure, not relishing the scandalous and knavish treatment which they have long and over patiently borne from the Radical party of that State.

The Rev. Mr. Brady, a Methodist minister who edits a paper at Indianola, Iowa, thinks that Harlan is too good a financier for himself, and not quiet good enough for the government, to be reelected to the Senate.

The Radicals in New Hampshire have chosen a man of straw as the Gubernatorial leader, and the Tribune says they 'will have a hard canvass before them.' It seems not at all unlikely that Weston will again walk over the course.

In his speech at the reception made to him at Sanfrancisco, A. A. Sargent, the new California Senator, denounced the extravagance that permitted the Custom House lot in that city to remain vacant, while $58,000 a year was paid for rent of offices.

The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser thinks that for the sake of modesty and decency, Bowen, the bigamist, ought to leave Washington for a while.' We trust that he won't go. If the various Bowens around Washington should get that idea, and commence a stampede, the wheels of government might come to a full stop.

'A crew of national vampires' is the mild term by which Carl Schurz (Radical) characterizes the present Administration. He moreover adds that 'the popular deluge is coming, and the thieves had better prepare to escape to the mountains.' This is the best advice the Administration has had for a long time.

--It is stated in certain Radical quarters that COLFAX has long since come to the conclusion that GRANT would prefer an Eastern man to himself for this position. Blaine who is an expectant, is regarded as good at the White House, and GRANT'S preferences are undoubtedly for the old-time Hannibal Hamlin.

Killing of James Fisk, jr.

Col. James Fisk, jr., a prominent citizen and capitalist of New York, was brutally murdered at the Central Hotel by a man named Stokes, a well-known speculator of that city. Fisk will be remembered by the sobriquet of "Erie Jim," he having been one of the principle characters in the Erie Railroad farce sometime ago.

In New Orleans a nest of radical robbers, who have been working on the Tammany principle, has been raided upon. Meetings have been held, and a statement of the city debt has appeared in response. It appears that the debt shows an increase of six million dollars in the past four years. This statement has still further incited the citizens, and they propose to exterpate the thieves who have incressed the debt, and to turn over a new leaf.

A newly invented ballot box, in use by the Radicals of Georgia, was recently discovered at Augusta, in that State. It had two bottoms, one of mahogony, the other of pine. Neither was secured with nails or screws, the outer one being fastened with a little glue. The lock on the top of the box was no protection, as there was another entrance at the bottom. At the last election in Augusta, the Radical managers offered the Democrats the charge of the key before the counting, they keeping the box. The result can easily be imagined.

One hundred and twenty-seven millions of dollars in the Treasury on the 1st inst. is an accumulation against which we shall miss no fair opportunity to protest, however unavailing. We do not believe it right for the Government to assume the trouble and risk of keeping private citizens' coin, yet getting no good of it. We wish Mr. Boutwell would ask them to take it away and keep it themselves. We wish he had bought fifty millions' worth of bonds in 1869, and thus saved several millions of in terest, since paid to no good purpose; we wish he would do it now. We think we see him move—but O! so slowly!—New York Tribune.

—The New Orleans Times looks upon the various conflicting elements of Republicanism as becoming more strongly consolidated every day, excepting only that honest antagonism to the Grant administration, which will be forced into the Democratic opposition. Such is the view now generally obtaining. The policy of inactivity or 'passivism' on the part of the Democracy is parting with its ephemeral notoriety, and few are found to do it reverence. The two great national parties of the country are to be squarely arrayed for the contest, and third party men will go either where their interests or their principles incline them.

According to information from Harrisburg, the Republican members of the State Legislature are just now discusing more or less earnestly the question of the Vice Presidency. All the eminent patriots there assembled favor Colfax, but as they do not exactly know where that gentleman stands—whether he is a candidate or not—whether he has withdrawn his last letter or has a fresh letter of acceptance ready written in his pocket. They purpose to solve the difficulty and satisfy their perturbed spirits by sending a committee of one to ask the Vice President just how he feels about it. Grant wants Coalfax to run, and the latter is reported to hesitate to reiterate his declination.

Democratic State Central Committee—

The Democratic State Central Committee, a large representation of the Democratic press and leading Democrats, from various sections of the State, were in session monday evening, at the Senate Chamber, discussing the political situation generally. The meeting was harmonious throughout, and the most hopeful feeling in regard to the political prospects was expressed. Speeches and suggestions were made by Messrs. S. W. Holmes, J. B. Edmonds, Joseph E. McDonald, John S. Williams, W. S Shirly, Cal. Taylor, Wm. Mack, B. W. Hanna, D. W. Voorhees, T. A. Hendricks, John Kirk, and others.

The action of the State Central Committee was sustained, and the opinion was generally expressed in favor of postponing the State Convention until after the National Convention had met. It was, also, proposed that each Congressional District should select its delegates to the National Convention.

It was an old fashion Democratic love feast, auguring well for the future. We wish every Democrat in the State could have been present to have enjoyed the feast, for it was a meeting that could not fail to inspire hope, courage and zeal in the good cause. State Sentinel.

Cuban Policy—War Prospects.

Notwithstauding the statements industriously circulated in regard to the pacific intentions of General Sickles and that the object of his return is to take charge of political affairs in the State of New York in the interests of the President, there are indications that a positive and belligerent policy if need be, will be adopted in regard to Cuban affairs. In fact the administration rather wish for a brush with Spain, in the belief that war will be a popular idea with the people; that it will divert attention from the corruption almost universal among Radical officials and consolidate the party in favor of Grant for re-election to the Presidency. It is hardly probable that a man like Sickles would be called home to arrange difficulties in the Republican party, or that he is a proper person to act as pacificator in the conflict between the Conkling and Fenton or Greeley wings of the Republican party in New York. More likely the administration had other motives in recalling General Sickles just at this juncture in Cuban affairs.

It is reported from Washington that on the reassembling of Congress it is the purpose of General Banks and others to force the Administration to take such action in regard to Cuban affairs that will precipitate a conflict or else compel Spain to respect our Government, and promptly ful-fill its violated pledges, to which its attention has been directed during the past two years.—The Cuban Government must be taught to respect the rights of Americans. However averse Secretary Fish may have been in regard to an outbreak with Spain, telegraphic advices from Washington report that he has changed his position. He is to remain in the Cabinet, and that the Administration will surrender its passive policy in our relations with Spain appears to be well authenticated. It is reported, notwithstanding the adverse rumors, that General Sickles had a consultation with Mr. Fish yesterday in regard to our complications with Spain. Additional vessels of war have been ordered to Havana and vicinity, which certainly has a warlike look.

The leading idea with Administration and the office holders is the continuance of the Radical party in powere, and it seems, as one of the means to secure that end, it has been determined by those who rule over us to incite a controversy with Spain, to the extreme of war if it be necessary so as to get up an excitement that will stop the discussions and investigations now going on in regard to the Administration's management of public affairs, and the abuse that have grown out of it. This confirms the impression that we shall have war with Spain, to keep out of sight and out of discussion, during the Presidential canvass this year, the short comings of Grant and the-henchmen by whom he is surrounded. They are bound to do something to relieve themselves from the belief that is fast becoming a conviction even among the most intense Republicans, that 'there is corruption, deep, damaging and festering allthough this administration of ours,' as Mr. Tipton, minister of the gospel and republican United States Senator from Nebraska expresses it. But we do not believe that even war with Spain will shut out the consideration of the crimes of the party in power, or the growing belief that a change of administration is necessary for the good of the country.

Correspondence.

BUTLER CENTER, IND., Jan. 8th, 1872.

MR. EDITOR:—In perusing the columns of your valuable paper, my eyes caught a glimpse of a piece which said something about a class of people, (which the author said was well represented in Auburn,) that never attended to their own business, but are always busy attending to that of others. This reminds me very much of a class of people that live in the vicinity of Mt. Olivet church. They purport to be great moral reformers but the reformation must always come through the penalty of the cival law. They cover their malicious actions with a cloak of religion, and may well be compared to 'wolves in sheep's clothing.' About four years ago a band of them under a well known and accomplished leader (whose name I need not mention) went forth to seek whom they might devour. At last they got a hold, as they thought, and arranged a few subjects before the tribunals at Auburn. After the witnesses were all sworn but one, this being the the leader, they had as yet failed to make a case on the grounds that no person was identified. His practised eye soon saw where they failed, and he set forth to cover all this ground, and not strange to say, he did it too. They sucked as much blood then as their appetites could devour for several years. But hungry hounds must be fed, so they sought again to glut their appetites. Still holding spite and antipathy they caught at the first faint opportunity to give vent to their malicious feelings. This opportunity was in the form of a protracted meeting, and, undoubtedly, recommended on their part for this purpose. Now, I have not a word to say against the meeting or the minister who led it for I certainly look upon him as a fine type of humanity, but I do think that he is led estray to some extent when he adheres to their doctrines. It is plain to reason that it was for this purpose that they wished the meeting, for they told before, what they intended to do thus showing that it was a premeditated plan. Again the offence was very trivial, nothing but a little whispering and it seems that the most of that took place at the stove before taking their seats. I do detest whispering in church, but this could easily have been looked over for it showed on the part of no one a disposition to disturb the meeting. But they were brought before the tribunals at Ft. Wayne (as the church is in Allen county) and how did the authorities there look upon it? It is well known that such offenders, when a plain case is made, are not fined less than from twenty-five to fifty dollars, nor should they be, but after a great amount of testimony, that of three or four ministers among the rest, they were only fined only the small amount of twenty-five cent's, thus showing how insignificant the offence was regarded by our civil authorities. The effect of this mode of conduct was to reduce the congregation to about twenty person on an average, and it finally broke up with but sixteen, and may well be termed an entire failure. Again I can truthfully say so eager they were to get some hold, that they would not all kneel in prayer at a time, and as an excuse to sit, would get a baby in their arms and watch. When it was not convenient to hold a baby (which was seldom the case for babies are plenty in that community) they would kneel and look back over their shoulder and keep a bright look out, thus filling the old command 'watch and pray.'

People of that community one thing you may rest assured of and that is your own conduct brought about your own ruin.

And another thing you may pray till you drop into your graves and as long as your actions do not correspond with your prayers you will never accomplish a reformation.

Mercellis Thompson, of Richland township, Whitley county, aged about 19 years committed suicide on last Saturday eve., by deliberately blowing out his brains with a shot gun. The young man had been mentally afflicted for a couple of years.

John Huff, a well know citizen of Warren county, was found dead near his farm, three miles north of Pine Village, one day last week. He had left home early the day previous to attend to some business at Oxford, and while returning, in the evening, it is supposed he was trown from his horse and killed.

A good looking young woman, apparently about eighteen years of age, and giving her name as Lily Smith, was found in a box car at the depot, in Brazil, last Sunday, where she laid all night in a state of great suffering, having attempted an abortion upon herself by means of drug. She was taken to the house of a citizen and properly cared for. She stated that she was from Henry county, Ill.

A fellow, having a spite at a sausage-maker, rushed into his shop, when crowded with customers, threw a large dead cat upon the counter, and said: 'That makes nineteen, we'll settle when you're not so busy,' and made his exit.

A negro boy of eight years has a picture primer to teach him his lessons. One of the pictures is that of a bull chasing a boy, which the little fellow watches from day to day, gleefully exclaiming, 'He hasn't cotched him yet!'

The great storm of Friday night and Saturday extended throughout the Northwest, and did serious damage, especially in towns and cities where buildings were either blown down, unroofed, or otherwise injured.

A Crow worth Having.

John Snyder, of Virginia, owns a crow which serves as a substitute for dogs, cats and all other domestic sentinels. He destroys every frog about the well; allows a mouse no chance for his life; drives away hawks from the poultry, and bids fair to act as the best squirrel dog in the country. He readily spies the squirrel either upon the fence or tree, and with a natural antipathy to the whole squirrel tribe, his shrill, keen note is readily detected by his owner, accompanied by rapid darts up and down, and the owner is thus led to the game. The most remarkable feature about the crow is, that he invariably keeps five or six days' rations ahead of time, well concealed.—New Haven Register.

Baptism by Detail.

A very pious and zealous Chaplain of a Confederate regiment called on a Colonel, not particularly noted for moral observance, in order to talk about the religious interests of his men. The Chaplain was politely received and requested to be seated on a camp stool.

'I believe, Colonel,' said he, 'that you have one of the finest regiments in the service?'

'Yes,' said the Colonel, 'I think I have myself.'

'Well, do you pay much attention to the religious instruction of your men?'

'Not much; very little said about scripture in the drill books.'

'Well, I just called to mention the fact that in the fifth Regiment the Lord has blessed our labors wonderfully, and ten men have already been baptized.' (This was a rival regiment.)

'Yes, sir, I am pleased to say that it is so.'

'Sergeant,' said the Colonel, calling to his orderly, have fifteen men detailed immediately to be baptized. I'll be hanged if that Fifth Regiment shall outdo us in any respect.'

The Chaplain took occasion to bid the Col. good day.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

J. Walker, Proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists and Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 32 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Billous, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

The Auburn Courier

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE pork trade is still active.

THE ice crop has not yet been harvested.

THE days are growing perceptibly longer.

THIS week is being recognized by a subject for prayer each day.

WATERLOO has had several fatal cases of Diphtheria.

WE don't want any more boys to come to this office to do their loafing.

THE winter thus far has been an open one. We hope it will soon close.

THERE has been only six deaths in Auburn within the past year.

COURT.—The Common Pleas Court, Judge Clapp presiding, convenes on next Monday.

THERE are one hundred and twenty-eight cases on the Common Pleas Docket for the coming term.

FIVE unhappily married people will apply for divorce at the coming term of the common Pleas Court.

THE attendance at the evening services of our churches is very large, especially among the young folks.

THE late cold snap causes the old croakers to be heard from. They claim that it has injured the coming fruit crop.

THERE were issued by the Clerk of De Kalb county one hundred and seventy two marriage licenses during the year 1871.

MR. E. H. MERGAN, of Fort Wayne, gave us a call last week. He is now agent for the Eel River road, at Roan.

We notice a handsome new delivery wagon, running for the sewing machine establishment of T. C. Elson. Business is good.

THE wife of the postmaster at Michigan City, made him a nice present on Christmas—an eight pound boy. Go thou and do likewise.

THE turn table for the Eel River road, west of the Saginaw track, a few rods above the depot is finished and is now in working order.

STILL THEY COME.—J. D. Breese of Muncie, will furnish a new store in this place with a large millinery and fancy goods stock during the coming season.

CAPT. ROBT. DICKINSON is the gentlemanly telegraph operator at this place. Under his manipulations everything is running in apple pie order.

TAKE NOTICE.—I desire all those indebted to me to make it suit to call on me without delay. I trust that every one will respond promptly.

J. W. CASS.

HOGS.—Our popular miller, Nathan Tarney, takes the premium for having the largest hog, yet heard from. It was slaughtered a few days ago, and when dressed, weighed five hundred and thirty-two pounds!

WE are obliged to Messrs. Williams & Hossler of the Northern Indianian, for a neatly printed pamphlet containg a very interesting account of the struggle of the fraternity in the printing art in that county, from it's incipiency to the present day.

'Isn't the world older than it used to be?' said a young hopeful to his senior. 'Yes, my son.' 'Then what do old folks mean by old times?'—'Go to bed, sonny that's a good boy, and we will talk of these things on the morrow.'

FINE.—That fat turkey sent down to us the other day from Waterloo. Mr. M. O. Harris is charged with the deed, though we were requested to keep mum as to names. We return the donor our grateful acknowledgments.

DRS. Caseleer & Littlefield, have formed a partnership for the practice of Medicine as will be seen by their card in another column. Though we cannot wish them lots of business, we trust that they will meet with great success in all cases entrusted to their care.

A DAM CASE.—On a writ of Ad quod Damnum, Sheriff Maxwell has empaneled a jury to try the case of Lung vs. Reynolds, the former, claiming damages because of back water caused by dam in Butler township. The case is now progressing at the Court House.

STILL ANOTHER.—J. L. Bonham, a gun smith of large experience, has established a shop in this place, and is now ready to attend to all calls in his line. As there is quite a number of sportsmen in our county they will be glad to learn that they can have their arms put in order at this place. See advertisement.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.—The question of a building loan association is being agitated and one should be organized immediately. They have been found of great benefit wherever organized, especially to those who desire to build, and have not the the necessary capital. They are popular everywhere and why should not Auburn have one?

SMALL POX.—Small Pox is fast becoming epidemic all over the country. Almost every paper contains accounts of its fearful ravages. We understand that it is already in this county, and if so we may soon look for its presence among us.—Every measure should be adopted to prevent its spreading. Vaccination at least should be resorted to by every one, as it is the surest safe guard against its approach.

NEW STEAM SAW MILL.—A wealthy firm from Van Wert County, Ohio, have purchased a lot of ground from Mr. Ensley, at the south end of town, for the erection of a large saw mill, to be completed by the first of June. Thus gradually are we adding material wealth to our place, and advancing our best interests, by the encouragement of such enterprises.

INSURANCE.—Those desiring insurance from loss by fire, can now be accommodated. We have been appointed agent for the Phoenix of New York, a company representing a capital of $1,800,000. Call at the COURIER office. tf.

WE are pleased to notice the success of the auction house at Toledo, Ohio, under the management of H. S. Cowell, Jr., & Co. They are now offering a fine assortment of handsome Chromos, and oil paintings, and from their daily sale the public must be taking advantage of the low prices at which they are offering. They have made a large addition to their store room and are fitting it up in superb style.

WE are getting quite a number of new subscribers. Several have paid us three and four dollars in advance, while a number of old subscribers have not paid us at all. We give them a little more time for them to respond, and then we cut them off nevermore forever. You that don't want to be called ugly names, had better save your credit, and call and pay for your paper.

HON. R. D. DUMM, the accomplished and versatile editor of the Fort Wayne Daily Sentinel is mentioned in connection with the congressional honors of that district. Incorruptable and unimpeachable in character, firm and unyielding in principles, it would be a sorry day for Radical corruption and profligacy at the capital, were he to make his advent in their midst. A few such men would save our country from its final destruction and overthrow.

ELECTION.—At the stated meeting Dec 20, 1871, of DeKalb Lodge No 214, F. A. M. the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. A. Lowery, W. M.	Alex. Hall, S. W.
Richard Elson, J. W.	James Potter, Treas.
G. McFarland Sec'y.	Guy Plum, S. D.
Albert Wells, J. D.	Wm Shaffer, M. Long, Steward
Frank Straby, Tyler,	Rev. Sandoe, Chaplin
W. E. Rush, Guy Plum, S. Laferty, Trustees.

OYSTER SUPPER.—An oyster supper is to be given at the hall of the Good Templars a week from next Friday evening, the proceeds to be donated to the Methodist Minister, Rev. A. W. Lamport. Mr. L. has worked faithfully and it behooves every one to throw in their mite and make the donation a handsome one. Let there be a large turn out. Our country friends are requested to respond with anything in their line, that can be made use of in a family. Everybody should go to the oyster supper not only to help the cause along but for the enjoyment of its features, good oysters, and cakes, and pies, and confectionaries and a social chat all around.—Let's have a rousing time and show that Auburn is mooving ahead in this direction as well as in others.

GRAIN SHIPMENT.—Since the first of July last there has been shipped from this place two hundred and fifty-one car loads of the following grain:

Wheat	58,000 bushels
Oats	40,000 "
Corn	18,000 "

If we were to add the number of bushels of barley, flaxseed, clover, etc., it would raise the amount to 125,000 bushel in six months. This is the extent of the grain market at Auburn, during the first year of the railroad, and the result is gratifying to the farmer as well as to the citizens of this place. Slowly but surely we are approximating that importance that should attach itself to every county seat. At this rate Auburn is now a market for 250,000 bushels of grain every year.

From Butler.

MR. EDITOR.—It is my pleasure to communicate to your numerous readers the intelligence that the pastor of the E. V. Lutheran church, of this place was on the evening of the 4th inst., visited by many parishoners and friends. For want of room at the residence of the pastor the entertainment was held at the Butler Hotel. At about three o'clock in the after noon the good people began to arrive at the hotel, with baskets full of good things of this pleantiful country, and began the work of arranging for a general good time. At about half past six o'clock a bountiful table was spread with good things provided for the occasion, sufficient to have satisfied more than were present. After the feast was over several hours were spent in social conversation, when the kind people returned to their homes, leaving for the benefit of the pastor the nice sum of one hundred and fifteen dollars in money and provisions. May the good Lord bless the kind friends who come thus to gladen the heart of their pastor by their smiling faces, and replenish his purse with their liberal donation, and may his labors be abundantly blessed to their everlasting good.

J. S.

REPORT.—Following is a report of the first month of the Winter term of the Butler Schools: Whole number enrolled, 272; general average, 239 3-10; per cent. of attendance in High School dept, 96 6-10; teachers, 5. At the opening of the present term, the school was reorganized throughout, and such improvements as were suggested by experience and close attention were added, and effort and sacrifice, thought necessary, on the part of the Trustees and Teachers, cheerfully made to contribute to the interest and facilities of the school. The especial success of the present is due to the untiring zeal and energy of the trustees, the cheerful obedience upon the part of the students, and willingness with which patrons acquiesced in and responded to every demand made upon them.

J. G. BOWERSOX.

WE take the following items from the Waterloo Press of last week:

OBITUARY.—On Tuesday of this week, John Zimmerman, senior, a veteran of the war of 1812, died at the residence of his son, Michael Zimmerman, in Smithfield.—The deceased seen considerable service against the British and Indians in the then North-western territory.

NEW BUSINESS HOUSE.—Messrs. Matson & Waterman will open in their new brick business room, in a few days, a large assortment of Groceries and fine queensware and glassware. This firm will also devote considerable attention to the agricultural implement trade during the coming year.

ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday last Mr. James McCosh and wife of Smithfield were coming to town in their buggy, and when opposite the residence of Mr. Cyrus Bowman their horse took fright at the carcass of a beef which had been hung up by the road side, throwing them both out on the frozen ground. Mr. McCosh received pretty severe bruises; and his wife was severely if not dangerously injured. They were taken into Mr. Bowman's house, and medical aid summoned at once.

ON Christmas, a man at Bourbon in a drunken fit fell, striking the end of a sharp stick, killing him instantly.

FORT WAYNE SENSATIONS!

THE CHIEF OF POLICE KILLED.

THE FRUIT HOUSE IN ASHES.

Last Thursday Patrick McGee, Chief of Police, of the city of Fort Wayne, attacked Dr. I. N. Thacker, of that place, in a livery stable on Court street. McGee claimed that the Doctor had been treating him for a disease not consistent with a life of virtue, and that sufficient progress had not been made towards its final eradication—that the Doctor had abused the confidence generally reposed in members of his profession by making known his condition to other persons. McGee was every angry, and had stated in the morning that he was going to kill a man that day. Doctor T. went into the livery stable for his horse, and Pat seeing him followed with cane in hand, and attacked the Doctor from behind. The Doctor retreated and Pat followed up, when the Doctor seeing no chance of escape, drew his revolver and shot at him three times, one ball piercing his heart. McGee died instantly, and the Doctor gave himself up, and was locked in jail. The Grand Jury investigated the matter on Saturday but failed to find a bill against the Doctor, and he was released. Thus ended this short but exciting tragedy.

DESTRUCTION OF THE FRUIT HOUSE.

Everybody knows Capt. J. B. White, of the famous Fruit House of Fort Wayne.—His name has become a household word all over the country, and he is justly regarded as the most popular business man of that city. His Fruit House is what made him popular, and is, or was, one of the great features of Fort Wayne.

We are sorry to announce that this magnificient emporium is now a mass of blackened ruins, a smouldering heap, rising monumental-like to its former grandeur. It has been Chicagoed, or in other words, the fire fiend took possession, for a little while only, and then left a sad memento of his terrible fury. It took fire last Saturday about eight o'clock in the back room where a barrel of coil oil was being tapped, and Captain White had only time to secure his books, and the cash for that day's sales, leaving the safe unlocked, and rush out to escape danger. The firemen were on hand promptly, but the Captain told them to protect the other buildings and leave his to its fate. It made a brilliant fire, the light of which, was seen at this place, a distance of twenty-two miles.—The adjourning buildings were damaged considerably, and had it not been for the fire department and the favorableness of wind, Fort Wayne would have followed in the footsteps of her illustrious neighbor Chicago. The loss is essimated at $125,000. Capt. White's loss amounts to about $80,000, on which there is an insurance of $25,500. B. Trentman & Son lose $2,000, H. G. Wagoner $1,000, Fred Eckert $1,000, Daniel Markley $500 and many others to similar amounts. But even this great calamity does not paralize the energy and enterprise of the Captain. He takes his loss with great sang froid, even with cheerfullness, and is already clearing away the ruins for a fine and more extensive building. He has opened out across the street in Nelson's stand, and is ready to supply his customers with a new supply of fresh groceries. He says he will have another building there in sixty days, and is now delivering the material on the ground for its construction. By this method he will turn disaster to advantage, and he will rise higher than ever to the gratification of his numerous friends and patrons. Success, Capt.

FORT WAYNE, IND., January 6th, 1871.

MR. EDITOR.—We the undersigned would be pleased to have you publish the following:

'As you sometime since published an article which could very easily be construed so as to convey the idea that we have very little if any confidence in Mr. William H. McQuiston, our former, Book keeper. Now we will take this opportunity to state that we always have held Mr. McQuiston in the highest esteem and know him to be entirely worthy of the fullest confidence of any community. He is just the kind of a man we would be pleased to have conduct a business for us. By publishing the above you can in a measure correct the wrong impression that has gone forth by the publication of your article.

C. ORFF & Co.

We publish the above with pleasure as we have no desire to place any one in a wrong light before the public, even if they have not done the fair thing with us.—Messrs. C. Orff & Co., however, would hardly go to Fort Wayne to get their printing done, if they were located here, when it could be done as cheap at home. We stopped Mr. McQuiston on the street one day, soon after, to have an understanding of the matter, but he refused to listen.—People asked us why he went to Fort Wayne for his printing? and we could do nothing else than make a statement to disabuse ourselves of an impression that we could not do work as cheap as at Fort Wayne. The item alluded to in the above communication, was drawn rather strong we admit, but it was prompted by the course pursued by this gentleman, which, if applied to every department of business would ruin any town. We brought it before the public as a public matter, in its application, and cannot see yet that we done wrong.

THE Dec. number of Brainard's Musical World is at hand and closes the eight yearly volume. The success which the "Musical World" has met with is fully deserved, as it certainly is the best as well as the cheapest, of all the musical monthlies. It is issued from the "Great Central Music Publishing House," of S. Brainard's & Sons, Cleveland, O., at the low price of $1.00 per annum. Messrs. Brainard have just purchased of Root & Cady Chicago, their entire catalogue of musical publications at a cost of $95,000. This gives them the largest and best list of music in the United States and facilities for supplying dealers, teachers and the Musical public unequaled by any Music House in the country. Catalogues of Music and specimen copies of the Musical World will be sent to any address, on receipt of ten cents, Address,

S. BRAINARD'S & SONS, Cleveland, O.

THE January number of the "Folio" comes to us with many new attractions, and still maintains its position as the leading musical journal in America. This number contains the first installment of a musical serial, by the editor, entitled "The Sweet Bye and Bye;" the Story of an Artists' Courtship, besides a large number of interesting articles, embracing sketches, criticisms and spirited items. Sample copies sent free by the publishers, White, Smith & Perry, Boston. Subscription price $1.00. Single copies ten cents.

Whitney's Musical Guest enters upon its fifth year with the January number. Although comparatively a new publication, its career has been one of the most successful in the history of American Musical Journalism. Each number since its first introduction to the public, has been a marked improvement over its predecessor, until it has attained the enviable reputation of being the first among musical monthlies. Liberal premiums are offered to canvassers. Terms, $1.00 per year. Specimen copies 10 cents. Address

CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

"HOW TO GO WEST"

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go and journeys were made in the legendary 'Prairie Schooner,' but in these days of progress and improvement, the word West has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago Burlington & Quincy R. R., from Indianapolis over the Indianaplis, Bloomington & Western Short Line, and from Logansport, over the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw R. R., and running through Burlington, reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other rail roads running from those cities.

Always go 'By way of Burlington,' and you will be sure to be right.

The Burlington route has admirablo answered the question, 'How to go West?' by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to Time, Connections, Fare, &c., and illustrated by a large map, truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing, General Passenger Agent, B. M. & R. R. Burlington, Iowa.

In case the Grand Duke cannot visit the oil regions, the Titusville Herald proposes to send on a tank of crude oil and sprinkle the contents around him, so that he can get an idea of how those regions do smell.

WIND THE CLOCK.

Wind, oh! grandsire, wind the clock
Though thy years are running down:
Count the hours till death shall knock,
Win faith's smile to meet his frown—
Wind the clock, wind the clock,
Wear the cross and win the crown.
Wind, oh! mother, wind the clock,
Though thy years run brightly still,
Timely feed thy little flock,
Ere thy steps go down the hill!
Wind the clock, wind the clock,
Autumn's near, and Winter's chill!
Wind, fair young, oh! wind the clock,
Though thy years run sweet and strong.
Soon will come life's battle shock,
Drowning pleasure's syren song—
Wind the clock, wind the clock,
Joy is short! remorse is long.
Wind sweet child, oh! wind the clock,
Though thy years are scarce begun—
Tender lambkin of the flock,
Morning's gold is easy won!
Wind the clock wind the clock,
For the shadow tracks the sun.
Wind, Oh! prophet, wind the clock,
Ere the running year be gone—
Wisdom's secret stores unlock,
Meanings of the years unborn—
Wind the clock, wind the clock,
Night and morning, wind and warn.
Wind, oh! Saviour, wind the clock,
For our lives are running down!
One more year, delay thy frown!
Wind the clock, wind the clock
Fruit may yet the fig tree crown.

A Happy Home.

'Six things,' says Hamilton, 'are requisite to create a 'home' Integrity must be the architetc, and tidiness the upholsterer. It must be warmed by affection, and lighted up with cheerfulness, and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day; while over all, as a protecting glory and canopy, nothing will suffice except the blessing of God.

Insect Life.

Professor Agassiz says, more than a life time would be necessary to enumerate the various species of insects, and describe their appearance. Melger a German, collected and described 6000 species of flies, which he collected in a district ten miles in circumference. There have been collected in Europe 27,000 species of insects preying on wheat. In Berlin, two professors are engaged in collecting, observing, and describing insects and their habits, and already they have published five large volumes upon insects that attack forest trees.

Two Kinds.

There are two kinds of girls: one is the kind that appears best abroad, the girls that are good for parties, balls, etc., and whose chief delight is in such things. The other is the kind that appears best at home, the girls that are useful and cheerful in the dinning-room, the sick room, and all the precincts of home. They differ widely in character. One is frequently from home, the other is a blessing. One is a moth, consuming everything about her; the other is a sun-beam, inspiring life and gladness all along the pathway.— Now it does not necessarily follow that there shall be two classes of girls. The right education would modify them both a little, and unite their characters in but one.

David Crocket.

David once visited a menagerie at Washington, and pausing a moment before a particularly hideous monkey, exclaimed, 'What a resemblance to the Hon. Mr. ——!' The words were scarcely spoken, when he turned, and to his utter astonishment, saw standing at his side the very man whom he complimented. 'I beg your pardon,' said the gallant Colonel, 'I would not have made the remark had I known you were near me; and I am ready to make the most humble apology for my unpardonable rudeness, but'—looking first at the insulted member of Congress, whose face was anything but lovely, and then at the animal he had compared to him—'hang if I can tell whether I ought to apologize to you or the monkey.

Who is Old.

A wise man will never rust out. As long as he can move and breathe he will be doing something for himself, for his neighbor, or for posterity. Almost to the last hour of his life Washington was at work; so were Young, Howard and Newton. The vigor of their lives never decayed. No rust marred their spirits. It is a foolish idea to suppose that we must lie down and die because we are old. Who is old? Not the man of energy, not the day laborer in science, art or benevolence; but he only who suffers his energies to waste away and the springs of life to become motionless; on whose hands the hours drag heavily, and to whom all things wear the garb of gloom. Is he old? should not be asked; but is he active?— can he breathe freely and move with agility? There are scores of gray headed men we should prefer, in any important enterprise, to young men who fear and tremble at approaching shadows, and turn pale at a lion in their path, at a harsh word or a frown.

A very wicked Connecticut man, being recently taken ill, and believing he was about to die, told a neighbor that he felt the need of preparation for the next world and would like to see some proper person in regard to it, whereupon the feeling friend sent for an insurance agent.

Napoleon the First used to carry with him, when he went hunting, fifty bottles of wine, but never touched it. On one occasion he was thirsty, ordered a glass 'All gone,' said the valet. 'Hereafter, said Napoleon, 'take fifty-one bottles, and keep one for me.'

A shrewish wife, quite sick, called to her husband to come and sit by her bedside. 'This is a sad world, my dear,' said the wife, plaintively 'Very,' coincided the man, 'Were it not for leaving you, I would love to quit it.' 'Oh, my dear,' eagerly responded the fellow, 'how can you think I would interfere with your happiness? Go, by all means. The lady got well

A Few Words About Horses,

Hay and oats make the best feed for horses that are obliged to work hard and regularly. If the hay is cut fine and the oats bruised or ground, the whole mixed and moistened, the horse will eat his rations quicker, digest them sooner, and thus have more time for resting and renewing his power for labor. Farmers' horses that work little during the winter time may be kept cheaper by cutting and mixing bright straw and hay in equal quantities, and adding a ration of steamed potatoes or raw carrots. Colts should be fed liberally on good hay—bright clover is best—and bruised oats; give them a roomy bed-stall in stormy weather and during nights. Litter freely, and do not let the manure accumulate under them. Sawdust or spent tan makes good bedding; in cities and villages they are often cheaper than straw. Groom horses well and let them have exercise every day; a run in the yard is excellent. See that stable floors over basements are sound and strong. Arrage the feeding-racks so that dust and hayseed will not fall into horses' mains or eyes; some horsemen build their mangers too high, thus forcing the animal to take an unnatural and painful position when eating. Farm-horses that are not worked should, have their shoes taken off, and those that are driven on the road should be kept well shod.

School Teachers of Indiana.

The minds of some people in Henry county have been much disturbed by their friends being refused licence to teach school. To satisfy the disturbed minds, the School Examiner of Henry county, Clarkson Davis, furnishes them, through the columns of the Newcastle Courier, the following answers that their dissappointed applicants gave to the questions asked them.

Query—'What is affectation in reading?'

Answer—'It is affecting to hear a scholar when he gets up to read speak his words distinct and mind his punctuation marks. Affection is sympathy for the piece.'

'I have my class sitting, but when one reads they rise to their feet.'

Define sugar, sincere, calf

A—'1st. I can't define. 2d, sincere, more sincere, most sincere. 3d, calf, calves and calves.' 'Generous' was defined as a person with a free will; 'salary,' a sum paid for work; 'sugar,' a mineral; scissors, spelled sizars; gnaw, knaw.

Location was defined as a situation for a term. 'Presently,' anything that is to take place after a while. Iowa was spelled Ioway.

What is the difference between the local and the simple value of figures?

'I don't understand the question.'

What is a cubic yard?

'It is a cubic yard containing a certain number of solid inches.'

One requisition was to write 894 in Roman characters, and out of a number of marvelous combinations of the alphabet I select the following: CCC, CCC, CCC, LXXIV.

'Pitch is a rising or lowering the voice. Emphasis is placing more distress on some words.'

'The food is first masticated, and then passed through the phalanx.'

'Respiration is the sweating of the body. 'The chest is formed of two bones, the sternum and spinal cord. 'The animal part can be showed by pooting a bone in ascid.'

'The Ohio river flows northeast, any forms the northern boundary of Ohio.'

'The red sea and Yellow sea are in Europe.' 'Brazil is in Asia.'

'The beautiful scenery and fertile soil led to the discovery of America.'

'At the time of the discovery the Indians were killed and in good circumstances.' They were in a critical condition at the time of the discovery.'

'Virginia obtained its name from the Virgin Mary.' Virginia, so named by Queen Victoria calling it a virgin state.'

'The Puritans were of poor character.

'General Washington was borned in Virginia.' Washington was commander in-chief in the war of 1812, and afterward President.'

In one instance the article 'the,' was parsed as a verb in the nominative case.

Effect of Fear on a Tiger.

During the dreadful storm and inundation in Bengal, in May 1833, the estates of a Mr. Campbell, situated on the island of Savger, at the entrance of the river Hoogly, suffered so greatly, that out of three thousand people living on his grounds only six or seven hundred escaped, and these principally by clinging to the roof and ceilling of his house.

When the house was in this close, cramped state, with scarcely room in it for another individual, what should come squeezing and pushing its way into the interior of the house but an immense tiger, with his tail hanging down, and exhibiting every other symptom of excessive fear. Having reached the room in which M. Campbell was sitting, he nestled himself into one of the corners, and lay down like a large New foundland dog. Mr. Campbell loaded his gun in a very quiet manner, and shot him dead on the spot,

A gentleman, who was arrested for cruelty to a miserable looking horse, was asked if he ever fed him, 'Ever fed him? that's a good un,' was the reply, 'He's got a bushel and a half of oats at home now, but he aint got time to eat 'em.

A rural poet indited a sonnet to his sweetheart, entitled 'I Kissed her sub rosa.' The compositor knew better than that, and set it up in printer's Latin: 'I kissed her sub nosa.'

THE MISER'S NEW YEAR.

Peter Riggs was a miser. Any one might have read it in his face, with its pinched outlines, and eager expression, in his slouching gait, and his whole appearance.

They would have read it still more clearly in the room which he occupied, bare of everything but the most absolute nessararies. A couple of wooden chairs, a table standing on three legs, and a rude bedstead, constituted nearly all the furniture he possessed. His housekeeping was on the most inexpensive scale. He boarded himself, and the man worth thirty thousand dollars fared worse than his poorest tenants.

Peter's wealth consisted almost entirely of tenement houses, of which he owned a large number, and which in proportion to their value, brought in a large income. It was questionable how much good all this did Peter, since his personal expenses did not exceed one-twentieth his income. What remained he either invested in additional houses or horded up in an old chest which he kept securely locked under his bed.

It was the last day of December; tomorrow would be quarter day. Peter sat in his miserable room shivering in spite of his cloak, which he had worn time out of mind. He had no fire. As it was six o'clock, in the afternoon, and he usually went to bed at eight, he prefered to shiver two hours rather than incur the expenses of a fire.

Peter was jubilant with the thoughts of the money he would collect on the morrow from his tenants. He drew out his strong bag from its accustomed receptacle, and counted for the hundredth time the glittering gold with which it was filled.

'Two thousand three hundred and seventy-five,' he exclaimed with satisfaction, as he finished the count; 'and to-morrow will make it nigh upon three thousand. Ah! what a fine thing it is to have money; and it pays me for all my privations—and I suffer many. Money is a fine thing. Ah! little do they think that see the old man in his threadbare clothes, how much he has to make him happy.'

Peter was really happy after his fashion, yet he was never quite content.

'If it were only five thousand,' he continued, 'how fine it would be! but it will in a year or two. I must be more economical.'

It would be hard to tell how Peter could be more economical than he was now; and he tortured his fancy to devise some means of retrenchment without thinking of any.

'It cost a sight to live,' he sighed. 'a sight. If I could only live as cheap as they say one can in China, for a cent a day, it would help me greatly.'

Peter locked up his chest carefully, and pushed it back under the bed.—He then sat down, folded his cloak closely around him, waiting until he could hear the city bells strike the hour of eight, his usual bed time.

It seemed to him that he was sitting in his room as usual, the door was suddenly opened and a dark figure of threatening appearance entered. Peter was terrified as he well might be, since the door he knew to be locked, yet the visitor entered as if there was no obstruction.

'Who are you?' he faltered, eying the unknown. 'Have you come to rob me?'

'Of what?'

'Or my—my money—that is, what little I have.'

'And if I should, it would be of no use to me.'

'Oh,' said Peter re-assured, then I am ready to hear your business.'

'I have come for you,' was the reply.

'For me?' repeated Peter, again terrified.

'Yes.'

'What for?'

'Who are you?' asked Peter more and more uneasy.

'I am the Angel of Death,' said the intruder solemnly.

Peter nearly jumped from his chair in affright.

'The Angel of Death?' he responded, horror struck.

'You have said it.'

'But,' said Peter nervously, 'you have made a mistake, good angel.— Perhaps you think I am older than I am. I want yet eight years of being the appointed age of man. I am only sixty-two.'

'I know it,' said the visitor composedly.

'Then why—why do you come for me now?' stammered the miser, shivering with fear

'Would you like to read your sentence of condemnation?' asked the visitor.

'The other struck the wall with a wand, and instantly there gleamed upon it in fiery letters:

'Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into fire.'

'What has that to do with me?' asked Peter with his teeth chattering.

'Tell me of your good works. Have you any to show?'

Peter was silent.

'When have you ever given the value of a farthing to relieve the suffereings of others? Can you name a single one?'

Peter hung his head.

'Do you remember the shivering child that passed on the side walk this afternoon, and held out its hand for a gift? What did you, who had in your pocket what would have been a fortune to her—what did you give her?'

The miser's face was tingled with shame.

'Tell me, then, what good you have done in the world? What becomes of all the gold that pours into your coffers? Do you ever encourage industry by spending it on yourself? Look at this miserable room, where you lead a miserable life, confining yourself to the barest necessaries when you might afford all comforts. Tell me, Peter, have you anything to gain by living? A few years of living would bring you no happiness.'

'But I am not fit to die,' said the miser, appalled.

'Are you fit to live?' was the stern rejoinder. 'Do you think any one would be the worse off for your death?'

'I will reform; only try me!' implored the miser.

'What good would it do?'

'Just a year!' entreated Peter. 'If I am not then a different man, come and take me.'

There was a pause. At length the reply came.

'It shall be as you wish. If, after the end of the year, I find no change in you, I will come again.

Peter awoke to find himself in the dark, and the cold perspiration was oozing from his brow.

The dream had made a profound impression upon him. Suddenly the great delusion of his life was rent away, and he saw his life in all its barrenness and folly.

He pictured to himself what he might easily have been, if he had not bowed all his life-time to the shrine of Mammon; and with this ideal structure he compared what he was, and he shuddered at the wide contrast.

'My life has been a terrible mistake,' he confessed to himself, 'but thank heaven, I have little time left; I will devote it to making reparation. Heaven helping me, I will so act that when I die some one will miss me.'

As the first fruits of his good resolution he built a brisk fire and replenish it bountifully from his scanty sticks of fuel. The old room fairly danced in the cheerful blaze, and the miser spread his chilled hands before it with an air of satisfaction.

The morning dawned. At the usual hour Peter set out on his collecting tour.

Hitherto he had been a most inexorable landlord. Wo betide the unlucky tenant who failed to have the rent ready for him at the day and hour he called; he was likely to receive little mercy at Peters hand.— Such was the condition of Mrs. Mercer, a widow with one son, on whom he first called. Her son had been in the habit of selling newspapers, and upon the small amount which his mother made by sewing, they had managed to live.

But a fortnight before Charles Mercer had been taken sick, the sickness no doubt being induced by exposure in stormy weather. In consequence of misfortunes she was now two dollars of the amount required to meet her quarter's rent. Knowing as she did Peter's reputation, she prepared to meet him with trepidation.

'He is a hard man, I fear the worst,' she said.

'But God can change even his heart, mother,' said her son.

'Heaven grant it,' she replied fervently.

At this moment there was a knock at the door. It was the dreaded visitor.

'I suppose you have come for the rent,' said Mrs. Mercer.

'I believe this is quarter day,' said Peter.

'I am sorry that I have not got the whole of the money ready for you, but my boy has been sick for a week past, and that has diminished our earnings,' said the widow earnestly.

'How much have you ready?' asked Peter.

'I have it within two dollars,' said Mrs. Mercer.'

'Can't take it,' said Peter firmly.

'But,' said Mrs. Mercer, misunderstanding him, 'I will pay you the other two dollars just as soon as I can get it.'

'What does your boy do?'

Mrs Mercer understood this question to be asked with an idea of enabling the landlord to judge whether there was a likelihood of her son being able to earn the money required to make up the deficiency.

'He sells papers.'

'Does he like the business?'

Mrs. Mercer began to be surprised. She did not understand Peter's motives in asking the question.

'Not very well, but poor people have to do as they can.'

'Mrs. Mercer, said Peter, abruptly, 'you perhaps think me a miser—and so I have been; but I see the folly of it; I am going to charge my mode of life entirely. I shall funrish a comfortable house, and shall need some one to take care of it: will you be my housekeeper at a salary of three hundred dollars per year?'

'And Charley'—said the astonished woman.

'He shall live with us, and I will take charge of his education.'

'Heaven bless you!' exclaimed Mrs Mercer, seizing his hand and bedewing it with tears of joy. 'You have made me very happy.'

'Have I?' asked Peter, in joyful surprise.

'Very happy'

'Then I may be of some use in the world. Keep your money Mrs. Mercer; I don't want it. Tell your boy to get well, and by next week I shall have a home for you to come to.'

Peter passed on to the next room. This was occupied by a young girl and her mother. They had both sat up all night to get the rent, which they knew would be demanded in the morning. They looked very pale and careworn.

'You do not look very well,' said Peter. 'Do you work very hard?'

'We have to,' said the mother, surprised at Peter's changed manner, 'for we are paid very little for our work. Here is the rent'

'It is New Year's Day,' said Peter. 'and I shan't take it. You may consider it a New Year's present.'

'You are very kind,' said both, with grateful surprise.

'And I have concluded to reduce the rent one-third from henceforth.'

'Do you make shirts?' he inquired, cutting short their grateful protestations.

'Yes.'

'Then you shall make me a dozen. Here is the money to buy some materials. How much do you have for making them?'

'We are paid thirty cents for them at the shop.'

'Then I will pay you double, and in advance.'

Peter left two happy hearts behind him.

'I never knew how happy it made me to do good,' thought he joyously. 'What a fool I have been not to find it out till I was sixty-two.'

The next tenant had her money ready, and Peter noticed that her boy was without shoes.

'What is the name of your son,?' he asked.

'Edward,' replied the mother surprised

'Then I give this money back to you, for him, as a New Year's present. The little fellow needs it more than I do.'

So Peter went his rounds. He had never passed a happier day. He remitted the quarter's rent in every instance, as he had determined in the begining, and his opportune gifts shed rays of sunshine over many a humble heart.

This was the beginning of a new life to Peter. Henceforth he lived for others as himself. As he had promised, and Mrs. Mercer and Charley came to live with him.

In their cheerful society he enjoyed himsely ten-fold as much as he had ever done before. The old expression of greed had faded out, and in the benevolent looking old man who now walks the streets warmly clad, you would hardly recognize old Peter Riggs, the miser.

A Perfect Cure,

A Contributor tells an exchange how he was permanently cured of fits. He was riding in the mining district of Nevada—one of those mushroom growths common in the territories— when night came upon him. Tired and hungry, he drew up a greasy, dirty shanty which was called a tavern, and sought accommodation. He thus detailed his night's experience.

The landlord could not give me a room with a bed-fellow.

'Very well, I don't object,' said I, as he led the way by the light of a miserable tallow dip, which he left with me to light me to bed.

I surveyed the room, and particularly my bed-fellow. He was a mild looking man. I thought—perhaps a class leader in some primitive log church near by. His repose was so quiet and child-like that I thought we would sleep peacefully together for the night; but before I had blown out the light he opened a snore that seemed like a cross between filing a saw and sawing a board, and my feeling at once became malicious towards him.

I blew out the light and turned in, and still the snore continued. The moon had now risen, making every object in the room visible.

I hunched my friend, and as he opened his eyes with a snap, he said:

'By jingo! how you scared me, Mister! You going to sleep here to-night?'

'Yes.'

'Well, I'm mighty glad of it. I always like company. It's kinder lonesome to sleep alone.'

'Yes, it is so. Pardon me for waking you, but I thought it my duty to tell you that I sometimes take fits.'

'What, fits? You don't say so Mister!'

'Yes I do. I am not particularly dangerous, but, I bite sometimes; so be careful that I don't get my teeth into you.'

'Well I'll be doggoned! I hope you won't have any fits.'

'So do I.'

'I hope, Mister, you won't bite me if you do have any fits?'

'Oh, I hope not.'

He drew a long breath and then said:

'Well I'm afraid I won't sleep any to-night.'

'O, don't lose any sleep.'

'But how am I to know when you are going to have fits?'

'O, I groan, and breathe hard, and foam at the mouth! and, when you hear me snap my teeth like a dog, then you'd better look out.'

'Well, I'm blamed if I ain't sorry, Mister, you come in here. I'm afraid you'll be more company than I want.'

'O, don't be uneasy; I sometimes do not have any for months. Let's go to sleep;' and I pretended to drop off into peaceful slumber.

My companion rolled and tumbled uneasily for some time, then dropped off into a restless sleep, and soon commenced that old snore just where he left off when I woke him up. That decided me upon having a fit, and, with a fearful snore, and a horrible groaning, I set my nails into his arms, and my teeth into his shoulder, just hard enough to nip nicely, but it was enough for the purpose. With a terrible yell he sprang from the bed, and went flying down stairs exclaiming:

'O dear, he's got fits, he's got fits! He's bit a piece out of my shoulder!'

The landlord, with a crowd from the bar-room, came hurrying up, and found me just recovering from the effects of the fit; and giving me a hot toddy from his own private bottle, he left me. He carried with him the clothing of my bed-fellow, who resolved to be bitten no more by men having fits.

It was delicious to have the whole bed to myself, and I luxuriated in it by streaching myself entirely across it. I had soon dropped into a slumber, peaceful and innocent as my childhood, when I was aroused by some one roughly shaking my shoulder and saying:

'Wake up, stranger, and move over. Half this bed's mine.'

I opened my eyes on a six-foot teamster, who was pulling off his rough boots. A rough looking specimen he was; but he annoyed me most by taking up two-thirds of the bed and crowding me to the wall. I concluded to try another fit, and said:

'My friend!'

'O! shut up your trap, I'm sleepy.'

'But I thought I'd tell you that I have fits.'

Well, fit away, so you don't wake me.'

'But I bite when I have them.'

Well, bite the bed-post, then.

Now, this ought to have convinced me that he was the wrong customer, but it didn't; and, waiting until he was sound asleep, like a fool I buckled in, and set my teeth and nails into him in splendid style, while I groaned fearfully. It was the best fit I had ever had; a perfect success on my part; but the way that chap jumped out of bed and mauled me around that room was the most perfect success in pugilistic treatment I ever experienced. He brought me out of that fit. He cured me of it. I don't think I'll ever have another, but I didn't like his medicine. My eyes all blacked up, my nose bloodied, lip split open, one ear flattened to my head, my shirt-front all torn off, and to make the matter worse the fellow was asleep in five minutes after, as though nothing had happened.

The next morning I went down late to breakfast, and all crowded around to see the man who had fits, and to tell me that my horse had been stolen. The mild looking man, my first bed-fellow, had gone off with him.

Anecdote of Webster.

An anecdote of Daniel Webster comes from a correspondent at Galveston, Texas, who writes as follow:

'In looking over an old note book of my father's written many years ago, I came across an anecdote, which, if it has never appeared in print before, is too good to be lost. While John Branch, of North Carolina, was General Jackson's Secretary of the navy, he, Tazwell and Daniel Webster were walking on the north bank of the Potomac, at Washington. Tazewell, willing to amuse himself with Branch's simplicity, said:

'Branch, I'll bet you a ten dollar hat that you are on the other side of the river.'

'Done,' said Branch.

'Well,' said Tazewell, pointing to the opposite side, 'isn't that one side of the river?'

'Yes.'

'Well, isn't this the other side?

'Yes.'

'Then as you are here, are you not on the other side?

'Why, I declare,' said poor Branch, 'so it is! But here comes Webster, I'll win back the hat from him.'

Webster had lagged back behind, but had now come up, and Branch accosted him:

'Webster, I'll bet you a ten dollar hat that I can prove to you that you are on the other side of the river.'

'Done!'

'Well, isn't this one side?'

'Yes.'

'Well, isn't that the other side?

'Yes, but I'm not on the other side!'

Branch hung his head, and submitted to the loss of his two hats as quietly as he could.

Rather Crowded.

One of the exhibitors at the recent Texas State Fair, at Houston, gives an amusing account of his experience at the hotel, which illustrates the crowded condition of the taverns at that time:

When I got there, I just said, 'Captain, I wrote you about six weeks ago to save me a room; I hope you have done so.'

'Certainly I have! Waiter, show the gentleman to No. 91.'

I'm blessed if there wasn't forty others besides myself in that same apartment, and when they went to undress at night, the room looked like an arsenal, for every man had a knife and a six-shooter or two. My partner had an immense pistol, which he cooly took off and placed between us.

'Say, stranger,' says I, 'if I had to carry a thing like that, blamed if I wouldn't put it on wheels.'

'Guess if I choose to wear it it's nobody's business,' he replied.

'Well,' says I, 'is all of this artillery company in this room?'

About half the occupants were changed every day, and I could tell every new arrival the number of his room as soon as I set eyes on him.

'Hallo, Colonel! just got in?' I would say.

'Yes, just in; and lucky enough to get a room.'

What's your number?' I would ask.

And 'Ninety-one,' was sure to be the reply.

The State vs. M'Carty.

In this case brought in behalf of the State to recover interest or profits on public money used by M'Carty while Auditor of State in violation of law, Judge Blair has sustained a demurrer to the State's complaint, thus holding the state to be without remedy, and justifying M'Carty in appropriating public money to his own use. Such a decision was to be expected, from the previous one made by the same Judge in the cases against Kimball, ex-State Treasurer, and in regard to which we expressed our issue of the 4th instant.

It would be interesting to know how much of the people's money, wrung from the hard hands of honest labor will remain in the hands of perjured public officers, if these decisions of Judge Blair are sustained by the Supreme Court,—possibly enough to buy a number of judges, and yet leave a very handsome residuum of profit in hands of the embezzling officers and their confederates and co-partners.

Whether the Supreme Court will follow the pathway of Judge Blair remains to be seenthat so far as Indiana is concerned, the people's demand for justice against dishonest public servants will be stifled or disregarded in the very sanctuaries of public justice [illegible] indications are not hopeful.—Fort Waye, Sentinel.

LOST.

The public curiosity would be gratified to learn the whearabouts of one Isaiah B. McDonald, more commonly know as the "Wild man of Whitley." Last fall a cabal of his indiscreet friends (?) concocted a broad farce and made him the central figure in the play. The performance was a failure, because the principal actor was totally unfit for the role assigned to him. The people hissed each successive act with increased disfavor, and the managers were obliged to ring down the curtain.

The above extract is taken from the Laporte edition of the Ligonier Banner and is from the pusilanimous pen of Honorable John B. Stoll, editor of two papers, both weekly. The "public curiosity," refered to above, consists of Johnny and a small ring of disappointed office seekers, who have asked for a position of emolument at the hands of the party to the exclusion of Democrats who have grown grey in the service. We reply to the contemptible and characteristic slur made against Mr. McDonald, because we are directly alluded to as an "indiscreet friend." The Fort Wayne Sentinel was the first paper to announce Mr. McDonald as a suitable candidate for Lieutenant Govenor, doing so at some length, recounting his brilliant millitary record, together with his great judgement and foresight in the legislative affairs of the State. The Sentinel, of course, is an indiscreet friend. We agree in this particular, but its indiscretion was shown afterwards in a laudatory notice of Honorable John B. Stoll. He says above, the principal actor was totally unfit for the role assigned him. How does Mr. Mc Donald stand in point of ability with Washington DePaw the fulsome notices of whom weakly appeared in the Banner? Take the Legislative record of the former, and the financial speculaions of the latter and which counts most for the respective positions named? We have nothing to say against Mr. DePaw, he may be and is doubtless a good man, but we think he lacks judgment when he will allow a presumptious individual like Johnny to bring his name so frequently and disgustingly before the public. We know that Johnny regards these numerous notices as adding to his man's popularity, and judges from this standpoint that because Mr. McDonald's name is not mentioned often, by his friends, that he is unpopular and unfit. This is a breadth of reasoning only known to the crazy Dutchman of Noble. People in glass houses, you know, Johnny. There isn't one in this miserable clique that could obtain a certificate to teach a common school in their county, yet they declaim against the real merits of others. This is easily traceable to the great disappointment, and proper rebuke administered in the Northern prison affair, and one can observe on the face of it a mean, snaky attempt at revenge. It is not a fair, open, frank and manly opposition, but directly the reverse, led on by the bell-wether that hesitates at nothing. He talks about unfitness, but still aspires to a State office, equally as responsible as that of Leiutenant Governor, thus evincing a want of modesty and superabundance of egotism that seem to be the predominant traits of his character.—In this cowardly attack upon Mr. McDonald, Johnny says "the managers received little pay and no credit."—The principle upon which he conducts his press, in these affairs, is one that makes it subservient to dollars and cents, as disclosed in the above remark. He told the truth, however, when he stated that the managers received but little pay. No pay was asked nor expected. Being one of those who endorsed the selection, we done it cheerfully, and without fear or favor, and without solicitation upon the part of any one. We do not go on the principle that office seekers and office holders must "shell out," as was clearly intimated in an article in the Banner some months ago. As to the credit of the action, we feel that we have done justice to a gentleman whose popularity at home and abroad is in striking contrast with the consuming vanity of those who have maligned and misrepresented him. We do know whether Mr. McDonald is a candidate for that office or not. We do know that he has the ability and courage to defy, and confound the whole pack of demagogues and sycophants who would assail his fair name.

By order of the President a demand will at once made in a manner which will admit of no evasion for an explanation, apology and a full satisfaction. The attitude of this Government will be unyielding in the defense of its assailed honor and our flag. Minister Roberts is perfectly aware of the feeling which prevails, and has undoubtedly notified his Government that there is no evasion from either ample apology or war.

RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—A special from Washington says the Gortshakoff letter is regarded by high officials as a direct and open insult to the President and Secretary of State, and will likely tend to serious results. The country need not be surprised if Curtin, our Minister to Russia, is immediately ordered to demand his passports and the Russian charge of affairs here supplied with his in order that he may take his departure from the United States.

The several cases which have been brought by Attorney General Hanna against the parties who have held State offices since 1864, for the recovery of interest on public money, stand a pretty fair chance of being demurred out of existence of leaving the people without a remedy to recover the money fraudulently taken from them by dishonest republican State officers. We are credibly informed that the interest on the public money has amounted to upwards of $100,000 a year for many successive years, under the administrations of Kimball, McCarty, and Evans, all radical officials, and that not a dollar of all this interest has even been paid into State Treasury, but applied to their own uses by the dishonest officials. And now, when the State by its Attorney General, institutes for the recovery of this money, the courts connive with the corrupt officials, sustain them in their corrupt practices, and undertake to shield them from punishment.

Shall We Beat The Dead March.

Is this a time for Democrats to despond? Is this time to fly the field and hang out the white flag of cowardice? Is this a time to abandon the principles which Jefferson gave to the Democratic party? True it is, lamentably true, that Avarice holds the purse and that Ambition has drawn the sword of the nation. Thieves may steal, despotism may imprison and ambition may usurp power until the cap of liberty shall be transformed to an imperial crown, until he of the White House lights his cigar with the Constitution of this once free land, and write the pedigree of his horses on the parchments of the Declaration of Independance. All this may come to pass, but there is no reason why the Democracy why should retire in diorder before a gun is fired, should beat the dead march of its own funeral procession.

But if these evils are to come to pass let us at least have the honor of struggling against them. Let us at least make a fight for our liberties. She is more honorable who loses her treasure, than she who yields herself an unholy sacrifice to the base practices of wickedness. We do not believe that the time has come when the Democracy should cry peccavi, and say we will make no effort to redeem the nation.—Galveston News.

After Grant.

And now swings into line the Atlantic Monthly, as an opponent of Gen. Grant's renomination. It must be confessed the press opposition to the soldier President is growing formidable. With such journals to lead off as the New York Tribune, Chicago Tribune, Springfield Republican, Cincinnati Commercial, and the one first quoted, the ranks must speedily fill with adherents. It is useless to refer to the seperate reasons cited for these descrtions of the Presidential banner, since all may be summed up in a general sentiment of disgust with his Administration. A man of small, contracted ideas, selfish impulses, and dull intellect, cannot fill a post of greatness acceptably, any more than a piece of soap can make abung for a beer barrel. That he has been guilty of small actions is only a natural result, and ought to have been expected from the first. Unfortantely however, the shame and mortification attaching thereto, comes home to everybody in the land, and the sentiment of repugnance to a four years re-enactment of the same role is spreading with lightning rapidity.—The Atlantic Monthly is the most bigoted publication in the country, but even it could not resist the all pervading sentiment.

"Deep, Damning and Festering."

Mr. Tipton a minister of the gospel, and United States Republican Senator from Nebraska, in his place in the Senate, on the 16th of December, said:

I believe the republican party is yet worthy to be redeemed from the curse that rests upon it to-day on account of the mistakes of the administration and the corruption and downright plundering of dishonest office holders. I stand here for the purification of the republican party; but I do plead guilty to that other charge, that I believe there is corruption deep, damning and festering all through this administration of ours. I believe that, and I have uttered it.

John Sherman Re-Elected.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—The General Assembly in Joint Convention at twelve thirty to-day elected John Sherman to the United States Senate, he receiving 73 votes, 59 votes were cast for Geo. W. Morgan, 5 for Jacob D. Cox, one for Robt. C. Schenck, and one for Aaron F. Perry. An immense crowd was in attendance and a portion of the convention was boisterous.

The Government still owns an immense amount of land West of the Mississippi. It is put down at 973,472,563 acres, distubuted as follows: Iowa, Missouri and and Arkansas, 16,000,000; Dakota and Wyoming, 145,295,184; Montana, 85,904,605; Kansas, 13,148,076; Newbraska, 52,523,636; Colorado and Idaho, 117,800,000; New Mexico and Utah, 224,140,000; Nevada and Arizona, 137,000,000; Minnesota, 36,766,170 Indian Territory, 154,000.

One of the best political mottoes of the times: 'Office-holders to the rear; taxpayers to the front.'

Early Adjournment of Congress.

It is understood that Mr. Grant's Indiana henchman will press his resolution for the adjourment of Congress on the third Monday in May with more persistency than ever, on account of the developments made in the investigation of the New York Custom House management. The Grant faction can't stand such ventilations, hence the anxiety of the Administration wing of the party for an early adjournment. The testimony reveals many damaging facts to Mr. Grant personally, in both the political and finanncial conduct of that nest of Radical corruption. The corrupt 'General Order' system is tracked up to the interference and patronage of the President. Mr. A. T. Steward testifies that he directed the attention of the President to the abuse of the Custom House, but he gave them no heed, notwithstanding the friendly relations between Mr. Grant and the millionaire merchant. It has been proven that valuable employes of the Custom House were discharged, because they would not surrender their consciences and judgments in party matters to the dictation of Mr. Murphy, and that clerks were discharged by direction of Mr. Boutwell, without any reason being given, unless the necessity for maintaining party discipline with an iron rule, was a sufficient justification.

The exposures of the Senate investigating Committee in New York, demonstrates that no matter how strongly radical such a committee may be constituted, it can not set upon any case in which corruption and mismanagement are charged, without something transpiring that will hurt the Radical conduct of public affairs. For this cause Mr. Grant and his henchmen proclaim, 'we'll have no more New York Custom House records to face them with their hideous fronts in the Presidential canvass, hence the prosposition of Mr. Morton for an early adjournment will pass the Senate by a strict administration vote, just as soon as he can get it to that issue. In the House the resolution will meet with more decided opposition, but it be forced through that body by the administration party, because the less opportunity for investigation of public abuses and criticism of administration measures and the administration management of public affairs, the safer it will be for the faction in power, whose dark ways will not stand the light of day.—State Sentinel.

A man named Daniels was hung on Monday, near Nebo, in Pike county, Ill., for burning the barn of Mr. Peter Windmiller, and stealing a horse and bridle from said fire.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

J. Walker, Proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists & Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

The Auburn Courier

OFFICIAL PAPER of the COUNTY

Local and Miscellaneous.

BLUE PENCIL MARK.

Our subscribers will please notice whether their paper contains a mark with a blue pencil. If so, they will understand that they owe us two dollars, which amount must be paid without delay. Will you act fair and honestly, by paying us promptly, or will you try to defraud us? We shall see.

A nice snow fell last Monday.

Paper out one day ahead this week.

Look out for a call from the Assessor.

Remember the Oyster supper to-morrow evening.

We are almost out of wood. Remember your promises.

Ice Packers have about finished their labors.

Several car loads of hogs were shipped from this place last week.

The New Testament revisers have finish the first two gospels.

White Mountain tourists complain that the prices are higher now than the mountains.

See notice of annual election of officers of the Fort Wayne Jackson & Saginaw Railroad.

Whitley County talks of building a thirty thousand dollar jail So says the Commercial.

Our subscribers in foreign States must pay in advance. Those that are in arrears will be stricken from our books.

The quantity of ice secured this season is splendid, about a foot and a half thick, clear as a crystal, and pretty cold.—

Excursion.—An excursion arrived here last Monday morning on the Eel River Road from Roan, and return in the evening.

Take Notice.—I desire all those indebted to me to make it suit to call on me without delay. I trust that every one will respond promptly. J. W. Cass.

The price of liberty is eternal vigilence. The price of the Courier is two dollars. Take the latter—it don't last so long, and will help you secure the former.

Mr. M. Houston, the contractor for the construction of a barn on the Poor House farm, is already to work preparing timber, and will have it completed in the specified time.

The Vincennes Sun suggests to young men who are about to go out hunting, to leave their descriptive roll with the editor as it will save him much trouble in hunting up the facts in case of accident.

Religious.—A protracted meeting was commenced at the Reformed Church, in this place, last Monday evening, under the Management of Rev. W. B. Sandoe, the regular minister.

Our shrewed and genial friend, Freeman Kelly, Esq., has challenged Rev. Mr. Martin, of Waterloo, to a discussion on the subject of Universalism. Speakers give Mr. K., a pretty wide berth on religious and political matters generally.

The Result.—Mr. Smith, of Butler Tp., lost a pocket book containing $140. He came to the Courier office and got bills printed for its recovery, and we are pleased to state that he succeeded. Another evidence of the value of printer's ink.

Our farmer friends do not speak very flatteringly of the prospects of the coming wheat crop. It fact, their accounts are to the reverse representing it as very unpromising. We trust that a favorable spring will make the prospects more encouraging.

A friend sends us several mormon papers from Salt Lake City. We notice on account of the application of Brigham Young to be released on bail. Chief Justice McKean could'nt see it, and the old man is still in the keeping of the Marshal at one of his residences.

Mr. & Mrs. Mallory held a reception at the Dwight House on Christmas night, where many friends clasped their hands with them for the last time, wishing them a warm God speed on their journey to their new home in Cortland, New York.—South Bend Union.

Runaway.—A team of horses became frightened, on Fourth street, last Tuesday and by abruptly turning around threw the driver and another man out, distributed the bed and hind axels along the street and fetched up at a post in front of Shaffer's furniture rooms. The horses were somewhat hurt, and the men escaped with a few scratches.

Personal.—We found a note on our table last week indicating that the sprightly and good looking editor of the Fort Wayne Gazette, R. G. McNeice, Esq., had made us a call in our absence. Mac you must call during business hours, we were at home busy at work at the time, and are sorry we were not at the office to recieve you with all due courtesy.

Railroads.—A new railroad project is being worked up at Fort Wayne, called the Detroit, Fort Wayne & St. Louis railroad, to be built immediately, of course. This will not deter the work on the Eel River road if the subscriptions are made in due time. This new line is to run from Adrian to Bryan, Hicksville, Maysville to Fort Wayne and will not enter this county.

Judge Tousley, of Albion, Collector Moom of Warsaw, and Pension Iddings of Kendallville, were at Waterloo last week to have a pow-wow with Lou. Blair, of course. Blair must be consulted in these cut and dried matters or there might be a row in the camp. The Press does not say what was the object of their visit, and the yeomanry are left in the dark.

Ladies visiting Fort Wayne and desiring Patterns, for Ladies', Misses, and Children, will economize and be better satisfied by calling on Miss. J. A. Bates, No 14, West Berry-st. Oct. 26, 3m.

Enlarged.—The South Bend Union comes to us this week enlarged to thirty-six columns, and bearing evidences under the new management, that are destined to place it away along on the high road to success. Messrs. Osborn & Fassett deserve a liberal support and we trust that the yeomaury of that flourishing county will not be slow to appreciate the great improvement.

The low toned editor of the Ligonier Banner, says he dont want our assistance to get him an office. We know that. We propose to assist him to stay at home.—How will that do, Johnny? There is no person we have spoken of publicly that we do not privately support. We said nothing privately to Mr. Johnny that we did not want known publicly, because we know any confidential matters when once submitted to him would soon become public.

An exchange says, 'show us an intelligent family of boys and girls, and we will show you where newspapers are plenty.—Nobody who has been without these silent private tutors, can know their educative power. How important, then, to secure those which tend only to good! Anything which makes home pleasant, cheerful and chatty, thus the haunts of vice, and the thousand and one avenues of temtation should be regarded, when we consider its influence on the minds of young, as a great moral and social blessing.'

The LaGrange Standard feels authorized to announce that Judge Tousley, Hon. J. H. Baker, and Hon. Adams Y. Hooper will be candidates before the next republican district convention for the office of Congress. Down this way it is believed that the Hon. H. B. Sayler will not only be a candidate before the next republican convention, but that he will carry off the prize of a nomination. The Major is a gentleman of ability and prowess, and would stand just as fair a chance of carrying the district as any other republican.—Hun. Democrat.

A young gentleman in a neighboring village, on a recent Sabbath, attended divine service, and after the delivery of the sermon the officiating minister passed through the congregation to receive what contributions his hearers might see proper to bestow. The young man in question very seriouly drew from his pocket, in presence of the minister, what he supposed was his pocket book, but it proved to be a pack of cards.' We would advise church going young men with card playing proclivities, in order to avoid unpleasant mistakes, to carry their money and cards in in separate pockets.—Goshen Times.

An exchange makes the following very sensible and timely suggestions, which, we hope, our citizens will adopt; 'The season for socials is at hand, and we feel inclined to offer a suggestion or two in regard to them. Let's all go if we possibly can. Let us all go early and go home early. It's just the same number of hours from seven to ten as it is from nine to twelve. Let's go neatly clad, but don't let us think it necessary to wear the best we have and so make it unpleasant for other people who can't dress quite as well as we can. Let's have plain food for refreshments, and not talk scandel while we remain.'

Dogs.—We live in the west end, and consequently are furnished free, gratis, with plenty of dog music, at dog-goned cheap rates. Last night it was beautiful The moon shone brilliant, behind a cloud, and the darkness was superb. But the music, oh, could we but picture it. And then how gratifying to know that our own dorg had a hand in it. There clarion notes rang out upon the still air and were borne away so quietly to our ears that we lay a long time listening to them, as to the lacivious pleasing of a lute. We desired a change in the time, and had these sweet little creatures been close enough, we have no doubt but there would have been a change, an eternal change as far as they were concerned. A club about five feet long is a nasty instrment among a lot of miserable curs. There is one little fellow that has a voice two notes higher than we ever heard of, that can keep up the music longer than all the rest. How we would like to pat him. Our dog came in this morning, and laid down behind the warm stove to sleep, after barking all night. How long do you suppose he stayed there after we first saw him. Not over an hour less 59 minutes and 59 seconds. 'Twas not fair, you know, to abuse him after his furnishing music all night.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne

Our town is just now disgraced by a gang of rowdy boys, ranging in ages from ten to fifteen years, whose outrageous conduct needs attending to, if we have an officer with 'sand enough in his craw' to do it. Some of these chaps have had the benefit of a good raising, but being naturally mean, they fall into ways of vice, with aptitude surprising. Others have not been taught the first rudiments of good manners or respect for their seniors; these are not so much to blame as their parents It would give us pleasure to blazen their names before the public in large capitals, but forgo the pleasure now out of respect to their parents.—Col. City Post,

The same spirit is often manifested in this place, yet there is no one to check it. Many of our citizens have noticed this, and we have heard the subject discussed quite often, of late, but no remedy has yet been applied, Profanity is a common thing on our streets, and it would seem sometimes as though parents tolerated the practice. We like to see boys have their fun, but when they must resort to such habits for their enjoyment, it shows a want of moral training not very complimentary to their parents.

What we Want.—While many other towns are taking active measures in encouraging manufactories, our citizens seem to manifest but little interest in this direction. Capitalists are often induced to establish their manufactories in the midst of those who are willing to extend a helping hand. We see by the Columbia City papers that an immense public meeting was held there last week, the object and result of which was that the work of giving aid and encouragement to all parties desiring to locate there in business should be done immediately. Logansport is also concerned on this subject, and the citizens are using their efforts to build up their place. Why is not an effort made here similar to this? The apathy and indifference manifested even when a meeting is called for this purpose is deplorable Meetings were held last spring in this interest, but very few attended, especially of our business men. Now, we suggest that something be done immediately, intead of siting around like wooden men, letting these excellent opportunities pass by. When a meeting is called, everybody seems to hunt their gopher holes, instead of turning out and assisting, by their presence in the good work. Let us get our eyes open, and go to work, and do some thing that will add to the prosperity of our place. All classes should join in this work—the business man, he man of brains, the laborer and all those who claim a respectable standing in our midst. We can all talk well enough, but there is a number of enterprises that can be added to our place if a proper effort is made.

Communication.

Concord Township, January 14th, 1872.

Mr. Editor:—As nothing has been mentioned in your worthy paper, in regard to our part of the county. I beg leave of you that a small space may be granted, for a few minutes of indulgence. In this part of the county crops look as if they had stood a very severe winter, which we know they have, and nothing could be said that would encourage the farmers about the abundance of the coming harvest. That was almost universally surmised among the farmers. Although not wishing to bear the idea that we are a selfish people, if we are left minus of a crop the coming season, we will have the consolation of knowing "that our misfortunes will likely be shared equally by others, who fall a victim to the same fate.' A word in regard to our school. I can say without hesitancy, that School District No 4, is well worthy of being represented before the public, more than the unworthy teacher is capable of giving them justice. I have 40 pupils enrolled, and an average of about thirty. Not wishing to discourage the excellence which has been so worthily represented by the ex-examiner of DeKalb county, in regard to the punctuality, on the part of his pupils, but simply state that I have no less than ten that have been present every day of school, and those ten have been no less behind in regard to deportment, than in punctuality My little band of pupils are steering their way across the rough waves of ambition, that tosses its white caps on their sturdy and firm grasps, but its progress all in vain. With a gazing eye that never grows weary, and a throbing heart that seems to count out to us time, they look ahead, and behold that which is dear to their meditation, and essential to their future happiness. On the other hand, let them turn their views back upon the rippling sea, that was caused by the hours of industry, and behind in the distance, ship traveling the same road, loaded with ambitions hearts, standing the storm, essensial to be overcome before success can be called a triumph. I feel proud to say "while I am presenting an exact representation of my school before the public, one item of misconduct, could I mention, that my pupils are guilty of. The citizens of Concord townsip should feel proud of their little band of veterans, who are willing to stand up to the dark side of their duty, as well as the bright side, and with the aid of "Where there's a will there's a way" we prosper, and the little active thinking faculties, they will reap rich rewards, not only in this world but the world to come.

The Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them. Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying every thing before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

Sleighing is poor.

Lots of strangers in town this week attending court.

Go to Beard's grocery for good cigars, He keeps the best in town.

A number of wagons can be seen on our streets, loaded with dressed pork.

Geo. Picker returned yesterday from a prolonged visit through North-western Ohio.

The round house, of the Southern Mich. road, at Toledo, was burned last Tuesday together with seven engines.

We are under obligations to many of our subscribers for their efforts in assisting us to procure new subscribers to our paper.

The dressed pork trade is improving.—We notice a number of wagons loaded with pork in town yesterday. Price 4.70 per hundred.

Oyster Supper.—Don't forget that there is to be an oyster supper at the Good Templars' Hall to-morrow, Friday eve.—Everybody should patronize it, and thus contribute to a good cause. Go, go!

John L. Davis, has been appointed agent for Wood's Reaper and Mower, and D. D. Snyder represents the Excelsior. They propose to erect a warehouse the coming spring and supply our farmers with these machines.

We heard an echo, in the far west, the other night say, "Give me a revolver (hic) 'till I shoot myself." We can accommodate the demoralized fellow now, but at the time, he desired it, we couldn't. Town lots for sale, etc.

Court.—The Common Pleas Court has been in session since Tuesday, with a large attendance. The work is pushed through vigorously and it will doubtless be a short session. In the Criminal cases the case of Geo. Free, for distrubing spelling school was left off the docket. In complaint No. 2, the defendant was required to enter into a recognizance. In the case of Wm. Krahl for assault and battery, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.—Chas. Brandt, for selling liquor without license, three inditments, plead guilty and was fined $5 and cost in each case.

Eel River Road.—We learn from the Committee that about half the old subscriptions have been renewed, and some new ones added. About two thousand dollars is yet to be renewed to make up the amount of the old subscriptions of $45,000. It ought not to require much exertion to get the balance, and yet the Committee find it up hill business. The present is the only chance of ever getting this road through, and we should take advantage of it. We understand that the Committee at Butler will go to work in full force next week so that we expect to hear of good results from that locality soon. The word along the line is get up your subscriptions and the road will be put through the coming season. Let it be done without delay.

A very wicked Connecticut man, being recently taken ill, and believing he was about to die, told a neighbor that he felt the need of preparation for the next world, and would like to see some proper person in regard to it, whereupon the feeling friend sent for an insurance agent.

Housholders Call In—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

The following interesting anecdote came to us as true:

A man having a large family found it hard to keep up the table, and has adopted the following plan:

At evening, just before supper, he calls his children round him and addresses them thus:

'Who'll take a cent, and do without his supper?'

'I, I, I,' exclaimed the children, eager to get the prize.

The old man pulls out a pocket book full of red cents which he keeps for the occasion, and after giving one a piece, sends them off to bed.

Next morning they look like starved Arabs. The old man calls them round him and with an air of gravity asks:

'Who'll give a cent a have a nice warm biscuit for breakfast?'

It is needless to say that the cents were forthcoming. Good plan.

Horse and Cattle Powders.
This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.
It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.
To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.
In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Perkins Has the Toothache.

When I went to bed that night I apprehended trouble. Along one jaw, the left one, occasionally capered a grumbling sensation. It kept me awake an hour or so trying to determine whether that was all there was of it or whether there was something to come after that would need my wakeful presence to contend against. Thus pondering, I fell asleep, and I forgot all about the trouble. I don't know how long I slept, but I fell to dreaming I had made a match for $58 a side to fight a cross-cut saw in a steam mill and was well to work on the job, when the saw got my head between its teeth. I thought this was a favorable time to wake up, and I did so. It immediately transpired that I might better have stayed where I was, and take the chances with the saw.

I found myself sitting straight up in bed, with one hand spasmodically grasping my jaw, and the other swaying to and fro without any apparent cause.

It was an awful pain. It bored like lightning through the basement of my jaw, darted across the roof of my mouth and ran lengthwise of my teeth. If every pang had been a drunken plow chased by a demon across a stump lot, I think the observer would understand my condition. I could no more get hold of the fearful agony that was cavorting around in me than I could pick up a piece of wet soap in a hurry.

Suddenly it stopped. It went, giving me a parting kick that fairly me howl.

I thought I was rid of the toothache, but a grumbling set in next morning. It was just like the feeling of the night before; and a still voice said to me. 'Look out, Perkins.'

I did. I went right away to the dentist who has pulled the teeth of all our family and knew our peculiarities. There was an uneasy smell about his office; it was very suggestive of trouble, and as I snuffed it in I experienced a sinking feeling in the pit of my stomach. I looked at him and sickly smiled. He was never, even on a holiday, the handsomest of men; but now his appearance was very depressing. He looked like a corpse with a lighted candle inside of it.

I told him what the matter was with me and how I had been up all night with a four-story pain; how my wife had been thrown out of bed by the violence of my suffering; how—

He ask me if I would'nt sit down. I sat down on what was once a hogshead but now cut down and newly carpeted. He held back my head opened my mouth, and went to fishing around inside with a piece of watch spring.

And while he angled he conversed. He said:

'You have caught a terrible hard cold, sir.'

'I have.'

'Yes, you have.'

'It seems the trouble is with one of the biscuspids.'

Of course I did'nt know what a biscuspid was, but I thought it would'nt look well in the head of the family being stuck with so short a word as that; so I asked, with vigor:

'Which one?'

'The tumerous one,' said he.

'I am glad it ain't worse,' I replied, with a sigh.

'The frontal bone is not seriously affected; the submaxillary gland is somewhat enlarged, but it does not necessarily follow that parotitis will ensue.'

'I am proud to hear that,' said I—which I certainly was, although if the parotitis had ensued it is not at all likely that I should have minded it much, unless it was something that would spill, as I was dress in my best.

He kept on talking and angling.

'The œsophagus ain't loose,' he next remarked.

'Ah,' said I, winking at him.

'Oh, no, the ligaments are quite firm, I might say—'

'Did it hurt you?' he asked, as cool and calm as the lid of an ice-cream freezer.

'Hurt me! Great Heavens! Did you expect to split me open with a watch-spring and not hurt me? What was the matter—did you slip?'

'Certainly not,' he said; 'I was just getting hold of the tooth. Just hold your head back an instant, and I will have it out at once.'

'I guess I won't try it again,' said I, with a shiver. 'The toothache is bad enough, but it is heaven alongside of that watch-spring. You may come up some time and pull it out when I ain't at home. I think I could endure the operation if I was off about eight blocks. Come up when you can.'

A Grim Joke.

The New Orleans Picayune tells the following concerning a local practical jokist called 'Joe:' One of Joe's latest jokes was played off upon a stranger who came into the city by the Jackson train during the recent yellow fever scare. The cars had emptied out their cargo of passengers, and one greenish, country-looking chap stood apart from the crowd with carpet bag in hand, evidently at a loss as to what he should do with himself. He had not stood long before Joe 'went for him.'

'Five feet nine high, two feet eleven across the breast; eighteen inches through said Joe, looking the new arrival straight in the face, not crackin a smile, and drawing from his pocket a tape-line, with which he was about to verify his estimated measurement.

'What do you mean, sir?' eagerly inquired the stranger.

'Why, it's all right,' said Joe, putting the tape-line back into his pocket; 'you measure five feet nine by two feet eleven by eighteen. I'll be ready for you by nine o'clock in the morning.'

'What have you to do with my measurment, sir? What are you driving at, sir?' inquired the countryman, excited and angry.

At this an unusual pallor came over the features of the countryman, his whole body was in a quiver, and turning to the baggage-master, he said:

'Look here, mister! check my baggage back up the road. I goes home by next train.

A Legend of Malmaison.

On a dark night of the year 1631, two men met at the hospitable hearth of the smoky little tavern on the Seine, near Malmaison. One of them was a handsome young cavalier, fond of life: the other a man of mature age, with sinister features, whose dark colored clothes suited exactly with his bushy eyebrows, which he was continually kitting. But, as a general thing, youth and bouyant life do not heed appearances much; and so it chanced that the young cavalier soon formed the acquaintance of the morose man. The wine loosening his tongue and opening his heart, he of the grim looks learned quickly enough that his young messmate was a nobleman from La Rochelle, called to Paris by a summons from the court of honor, to answer the charge of writing a sharp pamphlet against Cardinal Richelieu The young cavalier was regarded as the author, though he stoutly denied having written it.

The youth and beauty of the nobleman had visibly made an impression upon his dark featured listener. He became restless and could scarcely await the end of the repast. Motioning to the cavalier, he stepped out with him, and halted upon a small eminence.

'Do you see yonder chateau?' he asked.

'Certainly,' returned the cavalier. 'It is a house inhabited by the bad man.

By that appellation Cardinal Richelieu was meant: the old house was Malmaison.

'Very good,' continued the morose man 'Do you know who I am?'

'No.'

'I am the executioner of Chartres!'

The cavalier started.

'I will prove to you,' said the man of blood, 'that I too can be human. I warn you. At a special command, I have come hither to perform an execution. I fear you are the victim. Listen to me, for I wish to save you. Do you perceive yonder window of the chateau, just above the wall?'

'I see it.'

'Very well; if I have not been summoned hither for you, a light will appear in that window within an hour; if my presence here is for you, the window will continue dark.—then do you fly.'

He quickly left the young man, who hastily saddled his horse, and looked in expectation at the window designated.—waited longer than a full hour; the window continued dark. The cavalier was menaced with death; the summons had merely been sent to decoy him to Paris.—Richelieu never showed any mercy to his enemies. The nobleman leaped upon his horse, dashed forth into the darkness, and and so escaped destruction.

The ruin of most men dates from some vacant hour. Occupation is the armor of the soul. There is a satirical poem in which the devil is represented as fishing for men, and fitting his bait to the taste and business of his prey; but the idler, he said gave him no trouble, as he bit the naked hook.

He whose religion is ever on his lips, has seldom any of that valuable treasure in his heart; it keeps watch like a liveried porter at his door, but there is nobody at home, and there is nothing to steal; if it were well lodged in his soul, he would not be so afraid of its escape. Mr. Shanley, of Kit Carson, lost his cow recently, and, after a long search found her in the midst of a herd of 20,000 buffaloes. The bison community had received her on terms of absolute equality, and it took three men and three swift horses to induce her to return to her pen.

A Nevada paper says: A preacher not a thousand miles from Pueblo, and who engages in frequent wild land speculations, has the following good story told of him. Preaching, not long since, on the line of the Denver & Rio Grade Railway, along the Fountain, he opened services with a rather abstracted air, as follows: 'My text brethern, will be found in the first epistle to Timothy, section 15, township 21 south range 65 west.'

A fortunate conclusion with a stump relieved the horses of their dangerous load, and nothing but the wagon and benzine was lost.

KA-TY-DID.

Katy did—what did Kate do?
She kissed me a kiss that thrilled me through—
Out in the light
Of the stars at night—
The stars, that winked and blinked at the sight,
Among the flowers
Of the summer hours,
And the perfume air of the leafy bowers,
Katy did—
And she hid.
Her eyes 'neath the veil of its fringed lid.
She did, she did,
Katy did.

Katy did—and what did she do?
She vowed me a vow and she kept it, too;
She said for life
She would be my wife,
That never between us should come any strife;
That for weal and woe
To the priest she would go,
And on me her love and faith would bestow—
Katy did
And then she hid
Her eyes 'neath the veil of its fringed lid,
She did, she did,
Katy did.

Katy did—what more did she do?
She brought a bird to my wandering view—
[illegible]
With golden curls
And a heart as purest as the purest pearl,
And the little minx,
With her winks and kinks,
Is the merriest maid in the world methinks,
Katy did,
Her eyes half hid,
Peeped forth from the veil of its fringed lid,
She did, she did
Katy did.

Katy did—what more could she do!
She gave—(you'll laugh, but I tell you true),
A bouncing boy
To be my joy,
To bother my pate and my heart employ;
And the little rogue
Is much in vogue
About our house with his lisping brougue,
I couldn't forbid
What Katy did
And her eye peeped forth thro' the fringe of its lid—
What Katy did.
I couldn't forbid.

Katy did—well, what more did she do?
Why whenever my spirits became very blue
She laughed in glee
My sorrow to see,
And she kissed away my misery.
Ah, the merry dame,
It would be a great shame
If in word or thought I could Katy blame.
Katy did, Katy did,
Her eye, half hid
Is peeping now thro' the fringe of its lid,
Katy did, Katy did,
Sweet Katy did.

GEORGE CLEMENT'S WIFE.

Of all things, this is the worst! If I ever in all my life expected to hear such news. Why, our George has gone and got married! d'ye hear?

Good Mrs. Clements pushed her steel bowed spectacles off her bright eyes and dropped the letter in her lap, as she turned round to her husband, the stout, clever old famer who was contentedly stroking the old white cat.

'Deacon, d'ye hear?'

This time, when she asked the question, there was a touch of sharpness in her voice.

'Yes; what if he is married? I'm sure it's natural enough. It kind o' runs in the family 'pears to me.'

But Mr. Clements would'nt take no notice of the little pleasantry.

'Well, if you like it, I can tell you I don't. He needn't think he's coming here with his citified lady, all airs and graces, and flounces and fluted ruffles. There's plenty of good girls around here that wanted him. Right in the middle of work, too! to talk o' bringing a lady here in hog killing time! I do declare, I think George is a fool!'

A graceful, dainty, little lady, in a garnet poplin and ruffled apron, with a small, proudly-poised head, covered with short, dusky curls, a pair of darkish blue eyes, so wistful and tender, a tiny rosebud of a mouth, a dimple in one pink cheek. Such was Mrs. Marion Clements. Was it any wonder that George had fallen in love with her?

She sat in the bright little parlor close beside the lace curtained window watching for the loved husband's return, and then when she heard the click of the latch key in the hall, flew for the welcome kiss.

'Have not you the letter this time, George? I've felt so sure of it all day. Indeed, I've quite decided what dresses to take with me.'

He smiled as he shook his head.

A cloud suddenly came over her pretty face.

'O, George, isn't too bad? And I do believe—O, I do believe they won't write, because they are sorry you married me.'

He put his arm around her neck.

'And supposing such should be the case, do you think it would make any difference to me?'

'Oh, no, no; only it would greive me so if I knew I had alienated your own parents from you.'

'And a one-sided alienation it would be, too! They never have seen you? And when they know you, they can't help loving you.'

'Oh, George!'

And the exclamation was caused by the kiss accompanying his loving flattery.

'That's true as preaching. By the by, my dear, what would you say if the firm sent me off on a traveling tour six weeks?'

A little dismayed cry answered him.

'You wouldn't stay here alone, eh? But, Marion, it would be $500, clear gain to us.'

'What need we care for money? I'd rather have you?

A mischievous smile played on the young man's lips; he was more, matter-of-fact than this romantic tender little wife of his.

'I think the accession of our balance at the banker's would be very consoling for the absence. But never mind, little pet. Let's go down to dinner. I do hope we'll get a letter from home soon.'

And soon it was; for Marion snatched it from his coat pocket the very next night. But her husband's face looked very grave and stearn, and his eyes looked angry when she laughed gleefully over the envelope.

'My dear, you must remember I care little for what the letter contains. Remember, I did not write it, that you are dearer to me than ever before. Kiss me first, while I watch you.'

A little pang of misdoubt troubled her, when she glanced over the short, crumpled note; then tears stole down under her lashes, and George saw her tender mouth quiver and tremble; then, when she had finished it, she laid her head down on his shoulder and cried.

'I was cruel to let you see it, my wounded birdie. Let me burn it. And don't forget, darling what our Bible says, that a man shall leave father and mother and cleave to his wife. You are my precious wife, Marion, and to you I turn for all the happiness my life will ever hold.'

He dried her tears, and then they talked it over.

'Just because I am city bred, she thinks I an lazy, and haughty and dirty, and—'

'Never mind, Marion. She will find out some day. My father—'

'Yes, bless the dear old man! He added. 'My love to my daughter, Marion!' Oh, I know I should love him, and your mother, too, if she would let me.'

'We will invite them down when I come home. By the way, Marion, I will stop at the farm on my way home and bring them back; will she, will she,'—

'George, dear, I have been thinking about that trip west. I think you had better go, and leave home. It won't be so long.'

Marion was eating her egg while she spoke across the cozy little tete-a-tete breakfast table.

'Spoken like my true little Marion and when I come back I'll bring you a present. What shall it be?'

'Your mother and father from the farm. It shall be that hope that will bear me company while you are gone.'

A fortnight after that Marion Clements ate her breakfast alone, the traces of a tear or so on her pink cheeks; then she dashed them away, with a merry joyous laugh.

'This will never do, and now that George has gone for six weeks, to prepare for his return. And I pray Heaven it may be such a coming home as shall delight his very soul.'

* * *

'I'm sure I don't know what to say The land knows I need help bad enough; but 'pears to me such a slender little midget as you couldn't airn yourself. What d'ye say your name was?'

'Mary Smith. And indeed, if you will try me for only a week, I'm sure you will keep me till the season is over.'

Mrs. Clements looked out of the window at the gray clouds that were piling gloomily up; and then the wind gave a great wailing shriek around the corners of the house.

'You can't cook ken you? or shake up feather beds—good big ones, forty pounders?'

A gleeful little laugh came from Mary's lips.

'Indeed I can. I may not cook to suit you but I can learn.'

Mrs. Clements walked to the huge open fireplace in the kitchen, where the Deacon was shelling corn.

'What d'ye say, Deacon? Keep her or not? I kind o' like her looks, and the dear knows it 'ud be a good lift while we're killin', if she couldn't do more'n set the table or make the mush for the bread.'

'Take her, of course, Hanner. You are hard driven, I know. Let her stop a week or so, anyhow.'

So Mrs. Clements came slowly back and st down again.

'You can't get a way to night, anyhow. There's a snow storm been brewin' these three days, and it's onto us now, sure enough. See them 'ere flakes, fine and thick. That's a sure sign it'll last a good while. You may as well take your things up stairs in the west garret, and then come down and help me get supper.'

Then followed directions to the '[illegible] garret,' and when she was gone Mrs. Clements turned to the Deacon:

'I never [illegible] a girl afore I'd trust up my stairs alone. But such as her don't steal; I ken tell you that if nothing else.'

Directly she came down in her neat purple print dress and big white apron; her hair brushed off her face into a net; a narrow linen callar, fastened with a sailor's loop of narrow black ribbon. It seemed as if she had lived there all her life, so handily she flitted in and out the big pantry, into the buttery, and then down the cellar.

Then, after the meal, she gathered the dishes in a neat, silent way, that was perfect bliss to Mrs. Clement's eyes.

'She's determened to earn her bread any how: and I like her turn, too.'

And the Deacon knew his wife had 'taken a shine' to Mary Smith;

One by one the days wore on; the 'hog-killin' was over and done; long strings of sausaged hung in fantastic rings, arranged by Mary's deft fingers sweet hams and shoulders were piled away in true housewifely order; and now Mary and Mrs. Clements, were sitting in the great sunny dining room darning, patching and mending.

'I don't know whatever I'm goin' to do without you, Marry. I dread to see you pack up your clothes.'

A blush of pleasure spread over the girl's face.

'I am so glad you have been suited with my word. Indeed, I have tried.'

'It ain't the work altogether, though goodness knows you're the smartest gal I've seen this many a day, As I said, it ain't the work—it's you, Mary. I've got to thinking a sight of you—me and the Deacon.'

Mary's lips trembled at the kindness in the old lady's voice, but sewed rapidly on.

'It's been uncommon lonesome-like since the boy left the farm; but it's worse since the he got married. It seems like deserting us altogether.

'Have you a son? You never mentioned him.'

'No; George has gone his way, and we must go ours. Yes; he married one o' these, cracked-headed boarding-school people who can't tell the difference betwen a rooling pin and a milk pan.

But despite her scorn Mrs. Clements dashed off some tears with her brown fist.

'Is his wife pretty? I suppose you love here dearly.'

'I don't know nothin' about her, and don't want to know. He's left us for her, and us old folks'll leave him for her too. Mary, just turn them cakes around, seems they're burning.'

When Mary returned Mrs. Clements was leaning on the back of her chair.

'Mary, supposin' you stop with us another month yet, anyhow! The Deacon'll make it right.'

'It isn't the money I care for, Mrs. Clement. I only wish I might stay always. You don't know how much I love you.'

'Love us, do you?' Bless your heart! If poor George hand only picked you out, what a comfort it would be to us all! but it can't be helped now.'

She sighed wearily, then glanced out of the window, looked a moment, then threw down her work.

'Bless my soul, if there ain't our George comin' up the lane! Deacon, Deacon, George is a coming!'

And all her mother love rushing to her heart, she hurried out to meet him. Oh, the welcoming, the reproaches, the caresses, the determination to love him still, and still, despite dear, innocent litt'e Marion.

Then, when the table in the next room had be set by Mary's deft fingers, and she had retired to her 'west garet,' Mrs. Clements opened her heart.

'There's no use talkin', George, This fine, fancy lady o' yours never'll suit me. Give me a smart girl like my Mary Smith, and I'll ask no more. Come into supper now. Mary, Mary!'

She raised her voice to call the girl, when a low answer near her surprised her.

'O, you dressed up in honor o' my boy. Well, I must confess, I never knew you had such a handsome dress, and you look like a picture with your net off and them short bobbin' curls! George this is Mary Smith, My—'

George came through the door, glanced carelessly at the corner where the woman stood, and then with a cry, sprang with outstretched arms to meet the little figure that flew into them.

'Marion! my darling little wife, what does this mean?'

The Deacon and Mrs. Clements stood in speechles amazement. Then Marion, all blushes and tearful smiles, went over to the old pair and took their hands.

'I am George's wife: I was so afraid you never would love me, so I came determined to win you, If I could. Mother, father, may I be your daughter?'

And a happier family, when they had exhausted their powers of surprise, amozement and pride in beautiful Marion, never gave thanks over a supper table.

Rosecrans and the Sentinel.

Once upon Sewell Mountain a short time before our army fell back to Gauley in great haste upon the very night the enemy retreated in the the opposite direction, Gen. Rosecrans, who went about in a common soldiers' overcoat, and under a slouched hat, attempted to pass the guard on the mountain side. The guard came promptly to a charge and ordered the unknown to stand back.

'But my good fellow,' cried Rosey 'I must pass.'

'Can't do it without a countersign.'

'I haven't the countersign, but I am General Rosecrans.'

'Oh, the devil! That's played.'

'What do you mean—who do you take me for?'

'Take you for?' Why for what you are—one of them d—d old wagoners trying to get out to steal chickens.'

This made Rosey perfectly furious and although a pious man, he broke into a tirade of words. The guard responded, and a little theological discussion followed more emphatic than polite. In the midst of it the corporal of the guard hearing the row, came to the rescue. He recognized the General, and the poor soldier began apologising.

'Never mind,' said Rosey; 'you're a good fellow and did your duty; but my man you mustn't swear so. You jeopardize your precious soul by such profanity.'

That man was promoted; he rose in rank; and after having been desperately wounded in his coat-tail he came out of the war a brevet wagon-master, and went to Congress.

AUBURN, IND., JAN. 25, 1871

Mr. Schuyler Colfax has addressed a letter to a lot of Philadelphia politicians in which he signifies his willingness to again become a candidate for Vice President, on the ticket with Mr. Grant. Two years ago, without solicitation upon the part of any one this same gentle and amiable Mr. Colfax wrote another and different letter, in which he declared that at the expiration of his present term of office he should most certainly retire to private life, and has since frequently and persistently repeated this declaration.

Death of Judge Hanna.

The telegraph announces the death of Hon. James M. Hanna, at his home in Sullivan Co. Sunday evening, Jan. 4th. Mr. Hanna was a leading Democrat of this State, was at one time a Judge of the Supreme Court, served two terms in the State Senate, and for a short time occupied the editorial chair of the Sentinel. He was a man of decined ability, and his death is mourned by a large circle of personal and political friends throughout the State.

Jim Fisk.—This name is in every paper, and he seems to have been an idol of New York, in more ways than one. The World says:

The late Mr. Fisk, it is well known, was no respecter of persons, many more than of principles, and spake evil of dignities on occation. But the Tribune mates him when it says with irreverent veracity that his four-in-hand usually convoyed more spotted reputations that his own, and 'that his box at the Opera House was shunned as if infected by all who had any character to lose.' Has the Tribune forgotten, then, that President Grant was once conveyed in that most immaculate, 'four-in-hand;' that President Grant sate, evidently fearing no infection and no loss in that lazor box at the 'Opera House?' The Tribune has commonly shown its self up to the point of memory where politics and political characters are concerned. Is this a lapse? Or what?

That Old Score.

Grant has recently sent a check to Treasurer Spinner for $4,000, that being the amount due on his unsettled accounts while Quartermaster in the Mexican war. The interest on the deficiency is yet due and will probably never be paid.

So says the Washington correspondent of the Louisville Ledger. When the report of the defalcation was first started, it was most vehemently denied by the Administration papers, but now it appears that the President has paid up the principal of his defalcation, but fails to respond to the interest account. If a Democrat was in the Presidential chair instead of a Republican, wouldn't the Radical press have howled over a defalcation like that of General Grant? It makes a good deal of difference whose ox is gored.

Mr. Conkling has made a speech in the Senate against the one-term principle. Nominally that was his subject, but the whole tenor of his remarks was simply a defence and eulogium of President Grant. His first objection to the proposition was, that the pending amendment was not to take effect until after Grant's second term, while he thought if it would be a good thing then it was a good thing now. That was the strong point in his speech, and it will meet with cordial approval from the public. His next point was that Gen. Grant was less abused than Gen. Jackson. Even Grant's enemies do not want to abuse him; they will be more than satisfied if he gets justice. He next argued that it was as improper for Senators to aspire to reelection as for the President; and then changed his tactics and asked this conundrum: Does anybody think the second terms of Presidents are worse than their first terms? If Grant's Administration is meant, the answer must be in the negative. His first term is just as bad as he can make it, and he improves in nothing. Mr. Conkling then said, 'A President tried to clutch Cuba by force and fraud.' The word Cuba was of course a mere slip of the tongue; he meant St. Domingo. The final statement was that nothing but death could prevent Grant's reelection. That is so; but death is of various sorts, and before three months are gone Grant will be politically the deadest man in the world.—N. Y. S.

The Democrats of Connecticut can not obtain the consent of Governor English to run for Governor again this year. Yet they seem confident of being able to elect a good candidate.—The New Haven Register says: 'The Democrats of Connecticut can elect any ticket they put in the field this year, if they will try to do so.'

Rumors of Frauds in the Treasury Department.

There are various sensational statements current here as to developments of frauds in the Treasury Department which has been made by the congressional committee now investigating them. It is estimated on what seems to be good authority that numerous arrests will be made in a few days, and that some high officials are implicated.

We copy the above from the Washington specials to the Cincinnati Gazette, and coming through such a channel it is fair to infer that there is something in the fraud developements which it gives currency. And it is strange that high officials should be implicated in frauds? General Grant set an example in gift taking that has been, and continues to be demoralizing in its influence upon officials of all grades. If the country sustains a President in exchanging official favors for gifts, if he openly and unblushingly confers high positions upon those who have made valuable presents, what else can be expected than his demoralizing example will be followed by all that occupy public positions, who, while they may not rob the public treasury directly, steal nevertheless. The Custom House investigation in New York shows it was done there by bleeding the merchants under a 'general order' system of robbery. The salary of the Collector of Customs in New York, is small, but the stealings, or 'prequisites' as they are politely termed, roll up the compression of that high official to about one hundred thousand dollars annually. And the employers under him have their 'perquisites,' as the evidence demonstrates, and these stealings are almost sanctioned, justified, by long custom. In Washington, there is kept an immense corruption fund, represented by the published balacies in the treasury amounting to one hundred and thirty and forty millions of dollars in gold and paper currency. Why is that large balance kept there the year round and year after year? If that large sum was invested in bonds there would be a saving of six to eight millions gold interest annually, but this large balance is reported to be in the Treasury month after month and year after year. Can any plausible reason be given for the policy that retains that large sum idle in the Treasury? And is it probable that it is left there? A hundred millions or more of the amount could be loaned to banks and bankers upon called loans, and even at four per cent. interest, the 'perquisites' would be enormous. The steal could be divided among a large number, and a few years would make all rich who share in the spoils. Congressmen and 'high officials' commence public life poor, live extravagantly and accumulate riches rapidly. This can not be done on the perdiem and mileage they receive, for but few find the regular pay sufficient to meet the expenses of Congressional life. These officials are not engaged in any legitimate business which produces the results we have stated, and how is it done? Many Senators and Representatives are lavishing in their personal expenses, live in fine houses, fare sumptuously every day, and all nominally upon three thousand a year and mileage, not enough in some instances to pay for a single entertainment. We repeat the question, by what legerdemain is it that the per diem and mileage of a Congressman, or the pay of high officials, can be mada to produce such remarkable results? To sustain this extravagance, there must be corruption somewhere—there must be enormous leaks in the management of public affairs that flows into the pockets of public officials. And under the rule of the party in power there is no prospect of reform, for the evil instead of diminishing is constantly increasing in magnitude. It is not time that the people should apply the only remedy—a change in the administration of the Government, from the highest to the lowest?—State Sentinel.

For several days past, quite an interesting revival of religion has been going on in the village of Point Commerce, under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal denomination. Some forty or fifty have united themselves to that branch of the church, and the meeting is being conducted on the 'old style' plan, and in 'the good old way.'

The friends and brethern of Rev. W. J. Erdman, Ft. Wayne, (Second Presbyterian church) made him a handsome donation the other evening. The Pastor got $200 in greenbacks, while Mrs. E. received a costly dress, a silver castor, a snug little roll of pin money, &c.

The meeting conducted by Rev. J. G. Burroughs, in the interest of the church of Christ, in this city is still progressing with unabated interest.—Twenty have been added by baptism and otherwise, since the meeting began.

The Methodist of Columbia City are contemplating the erection of a new church building in this place shortly. They need a new house of worship badly the old one being much dilapidated ordinary sized congregation.

The Methodist Episcopal church dedicated a very neat church edifice in Montery, in Pulaski county, on the 24th ult. Since the dedication there have been thirty-eight accessions to the membership.

Rev. J. S. McElwee recently held a protracted meeting at West Bethel, Whitley county, during which time much good was accomplish. Several united with the church, and several 'backsliders were reclaimed.'

At Indianapolis, a few days since, Rev. J. R. Stone and A. S. Evans, Esq., of Ft. Wayne, were chosen delegates to the next National Sabbath School Convention.

Not "Lost."

The Argus and Banner men, Stoll and Wadsworth, who have so signally failed in their efforts to control the Northern Prison, are yet mad because that institution is run by honest men, with profit to the State. Their chagrin at their repeated failures has so envenomed their soul, that it found vent again last week in a miserable dirty article in the two papers, both weekly, in which they endeavor to vent their spleen upon our honored and respected fellow townsman, Col. I. B. McDonald. We will say to these gentlemen that that Colonel is not "lost," but liveth, and will not stoop or neglect his more important duties to notice them.

Further we will say to the Democracy that neither Col. McDonald or his many friends will do anything to distract the harmony of the Democratic cause. His friends saw fit to announce his name in connection with an important position on the State ticket, without his knowledge or consent. This they had a right to do, and the studied efforts of Stoll and Wadsworth, while they earn and deserve severe castigation, will not drive him or his friends to do injury to the cause. The Col. and his friends form no "cabal." Can his defamers say as much? How about the "cabal" formed on the Lincoln trip, to kill somebody off in their way, because forsooth, that somebody looked after the interests of the people to this same "cabals" discomfiture. We might enumerate further, but desist at present. Do the "Arabs in their tent" understand?—Col. City Post.

There are altogether some twelve hundred bills pending in Congress.—No wonder the public business wears a billious look.

A resolution in favor of the one-term principle, was recently passed in the Lower House of the Missouri Legislature by a vote of 86 to 21, and the Lower House of Kentucky has just adopted a similar declaration. The people are for this principle everywhere, and will manifest it in a way that can not be proper time.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas of DeKalb County, State of Indiana, Administrator of the estate of George Dunfree late of said County, deceased. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MANHOOD.
How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure of certain weakness, the effects of errors and abuses in early life. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of such errors and abuses may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife, pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent, under seal, in plain envelope, to any address, post paid on receipt of six cents, or two post stamps.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

J. Walker, Proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists & Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

SLEIGHING good.

PORK trade playing out slowly.

Sleighing parties are all the go.

THE measles are epidemic at Ledan.

SLEIGH-RIDING seems to be the order of the day.

QUAILS are coming in and are worth $1 per dozen.

THE poultry business has not been very lively this season.

BUSINESS is lively just now, more so than during the holidays.

Sedan is making preparations for a grand ball on the 22d of February.

LEAP year parties are not very numerous in this locality, we had but one.

APPLE JELLY, at V. A. Beard's just received. One dollar per gallon.

MR. MCCONELL, a promising young attorney of Angola, gave us a call last week

THERE is some talk of getting Prof. Straub to hold a musical convention at this place.

THE mail from this place to Newville, was not opened last Saturday, from the fact that the P. M. had lost his key.

WE notice our famer friends are taking advantage of the sleighing, in the way of hauling saw-logs, wood, etc.

WE have a fine stock of fancy envelops, with paper to match, suitable for wedding and party invitations. Call and see.

As spring approaches, do not fail to advestise your business, and secure your share of the 'spring trade.'

THE citizens of Fort Wayne are to vote whether they will have water works or not on the 30th inst.

A HUGE saw-log has just passed our door, over five feet in diameter. It is regarded as an ordinary oak tree.

We are in receipt of the Public Ledger Almanac, published by Ge. W. Childs, of Philadelphia.

Whitney's Musical Guest, for February is a very nice number. Subscription one dollar per year. Get up a club.

HAVE you got the oysters is now a common remark, since the sleighride. Ask Harvey, if you want to hear a gentle echo.

A sleighing party from Sedan was entertained at the residence of Wm. McIntyre Esq., last Tuesday evening.

THE revival at the Reformed Church, is not by that congregation but by the German Methodist, and is still progressing.

Common Pleas Cout adjourned last Saturday. There were no very important cases tried during the term.

There is some little sickness prevailing in this locality, more from cold than anything else.

THE good sleighing is being enjoyed except, possibly, by the poor horses. But under good management they even should not object.

HOPES are entertained that our snow will remaim sometime, but a day may soon come that will wipe it from the face of the earth.

The Fort Wayne Gazette Company are distributing a very nice Almanac, gratis, to the public. Get one at the Post Office

THE schools is this city, are unusally well attended, since their opening, excee ing the expectations in this respect, of the officials connected therewith.

OUR thanks are due the L. S. & M. S. Railroad Company for an annual pass delivered through their gentlemanly agent at Sedan, J. M. Urie, Esq.

A startled deer ran through our county a few days ago, and took refuge in a cornfield for some time, but was up and away again at the sight of a human being.

THE Oyster Supper, given by the ladies of the M. E. Church was a very pleasant affair, and the sum of about forty dollars was realized.

THE discovery of coal, in Stafford township, this county, is exciting some interest in the St. Joe Valley, and other mines equally as important may follow:

HON. GODLOVE S ORTH seems to be the most popular Republican candidate for Govenor, yet proposed. No matter who love, G. S. you can't win this year.

JIM FISK was the author of that once popular phrase, 'Gone where the woodbine twigeth.' He doubtless knows by this time how it is himself.

RELIGIOUS.—We learn that quite a prosperous revival is going on at Frirfield Center in the Lutheran Church, under the management of Rev. A. Leathers, of Sedan.

If you don't believe there is no timber in this county, come here and see the numerous logs being "jerked" in during the snow. Walnut timber four and five feet through.

MRS. MACREADY, the eminent actress appears at Fort Wayne, next Friday evening in the character of Shylock. She is the only actress that ever appears in that character and does so with great success.

LARGE quantities of wood are coming in over the good roads. We look for our "wooden" subscribers to bring in that already engaged, as it is very likely we may run short this cold weather.

A JOVIAL sleighing party, of about twenty, from this place paid our clever friend, Danl Lintz, Esq., a visit last Tuesday evening, and enjoyed his hospitalities to their entire satisfaction. Many thanks are due the host and his amiable lady, for the hearty welcome extended. With a good crowd, splendid going and pleasant, who could not enjoy themselves?

HON. JOHN DAWSON, of Fort Wayne, was in town last Tuesday the guest of W. H. Dills Esq. Mr. D. still retains much of the vigor of former days and that strong iron will and perseverance are still his attendants as of old.

A HORSE having more oats than sense, cleared the streets Tuesday by his frantic exertions at a runaway. He finally landed in front of Humes' shoe store, as flat as a pan cake. You ought to have heard Stahl laugh

WE were pleased to meet in our office yesterday, Rev. W. Waltman, of Noble County. Mr. W., has quite an important charge in that county, and judging from his bearing and genial manners, we doubt not but that every success attends him.

If our present Town Board should be permitted to retire, after the brilliant exhibition of their legislature abilities during the past year, we don't think such an event would bankrupt the town or stop the wheels of improvement. Do you?

OUR clever and genial friend, Don White, of Bass' foundry, Fort Wayne, was in our place last week and gave us a call. It always does us good to meet gentlemen of his stamp. This kind together with the other stamps, make things go nicely, you know.

IT is reported that eight-buttoned gloves are the thing for "full dress" in New York This might do in a tropical climate, but in the latitude of New York it would be as uncomfortable as the costume of the Georgia Major—a shirt collar and a pair of spurs.

GODEY'S Lady's Book, for Februay, is on our table and it is a superb number.—The illustrations consists of two Valentine plates, a handsome Fashion plate, an alphabet of interlaced letters, a large presentation sheet of braiding patterns, and the second of the series of Miss Lolipop's Party.

A person wanting to buy, naturally consults the columns of a newspaper. He wants to learn the names and places of business of those most anxious to sell.—Such persons always give the best bargains. They sell cheapest. Their advertisements are evidences of their desire to sell cheap.

WE are pleased to notice the marriage of our talented young legal friend, Henry Colerick, Esq., and Miss Helin J. Edsall, daughter of W. S. Edsall the popular Clerk of Allen County. The ceremony took place at the residence of Willis Mayer, Esq and was a recherche affair.

THE hens are getting the best of us.—They are shirking their 'jewties.' It is awful! Just think of eggs 25 cents a dozen! We call upon all who own hens to see that they are made to tend to business Strikes and laziness must not be countenaced. Keep evry hen on her nest, if you have to tie her down. Give us plenty of eggs and low prices.

The Sabbath School Concert last Sunday evening at the M. E. Church, proved quite interesting to the large assemblage present. The music, speeches and other exercises were good, and all were pleased Now let us have one every month as at other places and there will be a large increase in their results.

REUB WILLIAMS, of the Indianian, endorses our nomination of Hon. R D. Dumm for Congress in that district. As Tom Taylor, of the Journal, has been fixing the slate for this district, we don't see why we cannot return the compliment by doing the same for the ninth. It is probable, however, that Mr. Dumm will decline, thus sacrificing the prosperity of the county on the altar of his extreme modesty.

WE are sorry to state that Hon. John Colerick, of Fort Wayne, who was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs a few days ago, is still suffering severely. His many friends, both Republicans and Democrats have looked confidentialy foward to his making a strong cavass in that district the coming year for Congress. It is hoped that he will soon regain his former health and vigor, and cary off the honors which he so eminently deserves.

Mrs. Henry Peterson met with an accident, last Monday evening, in going down the stairs at the Good Templars Hall. She missed her step, and fell headlong down the flight, receiving severe bruises. We are able to state that the chignon in this case proved useful as well as ornamental for Mrs. P. might have received serious injuries had it not been for its presence.

A DESIGN for the new Odd Fellows' building to be erected the coming season, has been drawn. If completed after this fashion it will present a handsome appearance. It will be 27 feet wide, 44 feet high, three stories, and eighty feet long. In conjunction Mr. Ensley designs putting up several store rooms of the same size on the west. The whole will make a valuable improvement for Auburn.

DELINQUENTS.—Those who have been advertised as delinquent in paying their taxes, should make it a point to call at the Treasurer's office and settle up, as the property will be offered for sale after the first Monday of next month. We think some of offering a few of our delinquent subscribers at the same time, but are afraid that other people know them as well as we do and in that case they would not bring much.

SAD ACCIDENT.—We are informed by 'Squire Bittinger that a sad accident occurred a short distance this side of Spencerville, on Monday evening. A man by the name of Wm. Brabook was driving a splendid team of horses, when they became frightened and ran into a stump of a tree, instantly killing the best horse, a beautiful grey, valued at $200. Mr. B., fortunately escaped uninjured.—Ft. Wayne Gazette.

A FEW days ago, as the train on the new road was coming north, a flange on one of the wheels of the cars gave way which resulted in tipping over three cars belonging to the train including the one occupied by the passengers. The conductor had his ankle sprained and an old gentleman had his head cut and bruised, and others were more or less slightly injured. The cars were considerably damaged.—Indianian.

We trust our patrons noticed the blue pencil mark on their papers last week, intimating that they owe for their paper. We still hope they will come in and liquidate. We intend publishing a roll of honor at the end of the month, and want to see all your names there. We shall publish a roll of scalawags, if there is any, that have beat us out of our just dues, but we want to give all a chance to get in on the first roll.

IT seems like a dispensation of providence that our farmers have to come to town and bring hay along for their horses What would our poor town cows do if they did'nt? Of course the horses can do without until they get back home, where an ample supply is prepared. Gentlemen come in often, and bring a good supply, we like to see fat cattle.

SAVE SOMETHING.—If your income is $5 a day, spend but four; if it is one dollar, spend eighty cents; and if it is but ten cents, spend nine; if it is three potatoes, save half a potato for seed. Thus you will gradually acquire something; while if you spend and consume as you go you will never get ahead one inch in life, but every sunset will look on you poorer than at sunrise, because you will have used unprofitably one day more of your own strength and your alloted term of life.

FIRE AT GOSHEN.—A destructive fire at Goshen, on Tuesday of last week, burnt out two dry goods stores, a sewing machine store, a wholesale boot & shoe manufactory, Baker & Mitchell's law office and the Democrat office owned by W. A. Beane, Esq. We are sorry to learn of Mr. Beane's loss, yet know that he has the energy and enterprise that will soon place him on his feet again. The total loss is estimated $20,000, on which there is some insurance.

The sadest feature of the affair, was the death of a young man named John Martin whose legs were crushed while removing the safe at Thomas' store. He died at one o'clock p. m. the next day.

AN exchange puts the following pertinent questions to a certain class of people who take city journals in preference to their county papers. It says;

Of course the large city papers contain a larger amount of reading matter than the county papers, but which is the most useful and interesting? Do the city papers say anything in regard to your own county? Nothing. Do they contain notices of your schools, court proceedings, improvements, and hundreds of other local interests which the county papers publish? Not an item. Do they ever say a word calculated to call attention to your county or its numerous thriving towns and aid in their progress and enterprise. Not a line. And yet there are men who think that unless they are getting as many square inches of reading matter in their county paper as they get in their city paper, that they are not getting the worth of their money. It reminds us of the person who took the largest pair of boots in the box simply because they cost the same as a pair much smaller that would exactly fit.

To Our Fellow Teachers.

We give the following suggestions on teaching the important branch of reading:

Define and limit the portion to be read by the class.

Let it be brief enough to allow of its being read three or four times, at each lesson.

Read all or part of the lesson by way of example.

Demand attention from all to the reader.

Vary the order in calling on pupils.

Attend to the position of the reader.

Break monotony by reading sentences written on the board.

Allow occasionally each of the class to read a piece of his own choice.

Encourage questions, as to meaning of words.

Require a detection of errors.

Occasionally read in concert.

In advanced class, let its members write the substance of the lesson in their own language and read it as their recitation

Other plans may be in practice among. us, let all hear them, we cannot visit one another's schools without neglect of our own, let us use the columns of the COURIER and Press, which their generous editors have never refused u to report our progress, our methods and our views.

W. H. M.

HARD TIMES.—We are fast becoming a nation of schemers to live without genuine work. Our boys are not learning trades; our farmer's sons are crowding into cities, looking for clerkships and post-offices; hardly one American girl in each hundred will do house work, however urgent her need: so we are sending to Europe for workmen and buying of her artisans millions worth of products that we ought to make for ourselves. Although our crop of rascals is heavy we do not grow our own hemp. Though we are over run with lads who deserve flaggellation, we import our own willows. Our women (unless deceived) shine in European fabrics; our men dress in foreign clothes, our toys, which amuse our younger children have generally reached us over the sea.—We are like the farmer who hires his neighbor's son to chop his wood, feed his stock while his son is lounging in town, and then wonder why, in spite of his best efforts, he sinks annually deeper into debt till the Sheriff cleans him out, and then he starts west to begin again.

We must turn over a new leaf. Our boys and girls must be taught to love labor by qualifying themselves for it efficiently. We must turn to our fewer professionals, and more skilled artisans, as well as food growers. We must grow and fabricate two hundred millions worth per annum, that we now import, and so reduce the foreign debt that we have so long and so successfully augmented year by year.—We must qualify our clever boys to erect and run factories, furnaces, machine shops, etc; to open and work mines, improve and fashion implements, and double the present product of their father's farm.

So shall we stem the tide of debt that sets steadily against our shores, and cease to be visited and annoyed by very hard times.

County Taxes.

Some of our tax-payers inferred that because the assessments on personal property have been increased for the present year there will necessarily be an increase of taxes. This is a mistake, as any one can easily perceive on a little reflection. Say, for an instance, that $24,000 are required as taxes to meet the expenses of the county for the year. With a tax valuation in the county of $3,000,000, it will require a levy of 80 cents on the hundred dollars to secure this amount. Well now we suppose this valuation be increased another million, making our total tax valuation $4,000,000. To raise $24,000 we only need to levy 60 cents on each $100, or if the assessments are increased $3,000,000 it will make the levy on 40 cents on the $100 and so on, the more increase the less per cent on each $100 and the lower the valuation the higher the levy.

The value of personal property in this county is about $1,000,000 in round numbers. Say the assessment for the present year will increase it one fourth, making it $1,250,000. In order to raise $7000 taxes on this amount it would require a levy of only about 56 cents instead of 70 as levied last year. Some may ask why is the assessment increased? One good reason for this is that it approaches nearer the cash value of the property of our county and reduces the levy required to be made for the necessary amount of taxes. DeKalb County will compare favorably, in reality, with the majority of the counties in the State, but if we are to judge from the total value of taxables, and the tax levy, she is somewhat below the standard. The law requires that personal property be assessed at its cash value. Take two counties, one of which assesses at its real cash value and the other at half its cash value, and though the counties were equally good, in fact, yet the casual observer would infer from the valuation that the latter was only half as good a county as the former.

If all our property both real and personal, was put down at its actual cash value our county would be rated where she justly belongs without any increase in county tax. The per cent. of the levy would be much less, and people from abroad would learn then that we were a prosperous and thriving county, with tax burdens as light, if not lighter, than our neighbors. There is no difficulty in reaching this conclusion after proper reflection.

MARRIAGES.

SHUTT—SECHLER—On Tuesday, Jan. 23d, 1872, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. Mr. Waltman, S. S. SHUTT, Esq., and Miss JENNIE SECHLER, all of this county.

It has been truly said that wedlock bringeth forth bliss, and is a pattern of celestial peace. We sincerely hope that our accomplished and genial friend and his beautiful bride may enjoy a realization of this trite saying, and that long years hence they can look back over a life of many joys and few sorrows, the latter so completely entwined in the former as to be entirely lost to view. Many thanks, friend S. for your remembrance of the printer, for which you have our best wishes, trusting that your life may be as smooth and peaceful, and your journey as happy and joyous as your heart is true and generous.

THE Red Front Clothing Men, at No. 5, Keystone Block, Fort Wayne, Ind., are selling any quantity of those eight dollar suits, better ones for $10, beautiful Cassimere, all wool suits, for $15. The only way to sell goods now is to sell them close and low, and people will buy them Every article is warranted to give entire satisfaction, by the Red Front Clothing Men, who are carrying everything before them, as their prices are satisfactory to everyone. Remember the place No. 5, Keystone Block.

HOUSHOLDERS CALL IN.—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

VOLLMER'S Elixir of PYROPHOSPHATE OF IRON AND PERUVIAN BARK.

In this preparation are combined the valuable properties and virtues of Peruvian Bark, with Phosphorus and Iron, in the shape of Pyrophosphate of Iron. This Elixir will be found of great advantage in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, weak and delicate Stomachs, and generally in weak and delicate states of the system. The ingredients in this Elixir are skillfully blended into a delightful Cordial, making it the most agreeable and palatable combination to the taste, in use.
Mar. 30, '70.

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines. It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent, and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Don.t Stay too Late To-night.

The hearth of home is beaming
 With rays of rosy light;
And lovely eyes are gleaming,
 As falls the shades of night;
And while their steps are leaving
 The circle pure and bright,
A tender voice, half-grieving,
 Says "don't stay late to-night."

The world in which thou movest,
 Is busy, brave and wide;
The world of her thou lovest
 Is at the ingle side;
She waits for thy warm greeting,
 Thy smiles is her delight;
Her gentle voice entreating
 Says, "don't stay late to-night."

The world cold, inhuman,
 Will spurn thee, if thou fall,
The love of one poor woman
 Out lasts and shames them all;
Thy children will cling around thee,
 Let fate be dark or bright;
At home no shaft will wound thee,
 Then, "don't stay late to-night."

The Ottawa Free Trader is responsible for the following:

Some evenings ago a prominent citizen of our 'neck of the woods' was a festival, and was called upon for a small donation for a religious object. Being out of cash, he borrowed from a friend $—, and in a few days returned the amount with this handsome acknowledgement:

OTTAWA, Dec 1871.

You caught me in tight place and loaned me $—. 'He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord.'

The other party responded thiswisely:

'Received of the Lord, by the hands of his servant, this 18th day of Dec., A. D. 1871, one dollar, in full for amount given said servant, for the purpose of purchasing a sufficient interest for said servant in ——church.'

'The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, and lucky be he who hath the Lord for secuity.'

The King's Mistake.

A number of politicians, all of whom were seeking office under the government were seated under a tavern porch, when an old toper named Joel D., a person who was very loquacious when corned, but exactly the opposite when sober, said that he would tell them a story. They told him to 'fire away,' whereupon he spoke as follows:

'A certain King—I don't recollect his name—had a philosopher upon whose judgment he always depended. Now it happened that one day that the King took it into his head to go hunting, and summoned his nobles, and making the necessary preparations, he summoned the philosopher and asked him if it would rain.—The Philosopher told him it would not, and they started. While journeying along, they met a countryman mounted on a jackass.

'He advised them to return, 'for,' said he 'it will certainly rain.' They smiled contemptuously upon him, and then passed on. Before they had gone many miles, however, they had reason to regret not having taken the rustic's advice, as a shower coming up drenched them to the skin. When they had returned to the palace, the King reprimanded the philosopher severely.

'I met a countryman,' said he, 'and he knows a great deal more than you. He told me it would rain, whereas you told me it would not.'

'Then the King gave him his walking papers and sent for the countryman who soon made his appearance.

'Tell me,' said the King, 'how you knew it would rain.'

'I didn't know,' said the rustic, 'my jackass told me so.'

'And how did he tell you?' asked the King.

'By pricking up his ears, your Majesty,' said the rustic.

'The King sent the rustic away, and procuring the jackass of him, he placed him—the jackass—in the office the philosopher filled.

'And here,' observed Joel, looking very wise, 'is where the King made a great mistake.'

'How so?' inquired the auditors.

'Why ever since that time,' said Joel with a grin on his phiz, 'Every jackass wants an office.'

Go to Sleep.

Many children, instead of being as plump and fresh as a peach, are as wrinkled as last years apples, because they do not get sleep enough. Some physicians think that the bones grow only during sleep. This we cannot say, but we do know that those little folks who sit up so late at nights are usually nervous, weak, and sickly. The reason you need more sleep than your parents is because you have to grow and they do not. They can use up the food they eat in druking, walking, and talking, while you should save some of yours for growing. You ought to sleep a great deal; if you do not, you in activity consume all you eat, and have none, or not enough, to grow with. Very few clever children exist, or even equal other people when they grow up. Why is this? Because their heads, if not their bodies, are kept too busy; so that that they cannot sleep, rest, and grow strong in body and brain.

HOW JENKS JOINED THE ODD FELLOWS.

'Very well, Mr. Jenks, you know my opinion of secret societies.'

'Perfectly my dear, perfectly,' said our friend, thrusting his hands into his pockets with the energy he could sustain.

'And you will join?'

'Don't you think it best?'

'No, sir, once for all, do not.'

'Consider my dear, if you should be left a widow, with nothing to support.'

'Now what a ridiculous argument. Do you suppose, Mr. Jenks—,

'My dear?'

'Mr. Jenks?'

'Will you listen for a moment?'

'Certainly.'

'Well then, must I respect your wishes, and you know I love you dearly it will be impossible for me to oblige you in this instance. I have sent in my document and to-night am to be intiated.'

Mrs. Jenks opened her handsome eyes in amasement, and for a moment was lost in wonder.

'And so you are actually going to be initiated?'

'Yes my dear.'

'Well, you will tell me all about it when you come home?'

'Perhaps so.'

Comforted with this assurance, the lady offered no further opposition, and our hero took his departure. About the hour of eleven he returned, a wiser, if not a better man.

'Well, my dear, exclaimed Mrs. Jenks, what did they do to you? What is it like? Were you much frightened? Come tell me all about it.'

'Don't ask me,' gravely replied our friend. 'I beg you won't ask me.'

'Why not? I'm your wife, you know, and wife and husband are one. Why not?'

'Hark!' said Jenks; 'did you hear nothing?'

'No, nothing.'

'Silence, my dear. Remember what Shakespeare says about sermons in stones, books in running brooks. If I should divulge he might hear it.'

'Who, my dear?'

'The patriarch of the loss tribes.—Even now he may be at our window.'

'Mercy on us,' ejaculated Mrs. Jenks 'How you terrify me.—I shiver all over.'

'If you dont want to be killed out right, ask no more questions.'

'Surely you can tell me something about it—an idea or two, that would not be divulging you know.'

'What if you should in an unguarded moment, let the secret out?'

'Oh trust me, it will be safe with me.'

'You will never tell?'

'Never.'

'Not even to your mother? You know how gossipy some old ladies are.'

'I'll never open my lips on the subject.'

'Hark! exclaimed Jenks, with a theatrical start, 'hear you nothing?'

'Nothing,' repeated his wife, with alarm.'

'Tis only the wind, mused our friend.

'I thought it might be the patriarch or his grand bashaw, armed with his circumventer, covered with his curious device of the order. Now listen, and if you love—me for the sacrifice I am am about to make is great—you must seal your lips forever on this subject.'

'Well, my dear,' said the lady, with a long down sigh.

You have often heard of the cat being let out of the bag?'

'Yes.'

'Well, I saw that cat to night.'

'A real, live cat?'

'Yes, and an immense cat at that—a monstrous cat. But you shall hear. You shall know all. Let me begin at the beginning.'

'That's right,' exclaimed Mrs. Jenks breathless with interest.

'On my arrival at the hall, I was immediately seized by about four dozen smart fellows, and was taken upon the roof of the building. Here I was tongue-tied, and compelled to answer about hundred a questions, all having a direct bearing on the science of astronomy.

'What a queer proceeding,' exclaimed Mrs. Jenks.

'How I answered the questions, must ever remain, I suppose, a mystery to myself; certain it is, however, I did not answer every one. Although I did not know till to-night, there's a great dipper, and a chair, and a four horse team, and I don't know what else, in the sky. Is it not a pity that this beautiful science is so badly neglected?'

'Well, what then?'

'Why, the next question is too absurd to be repeated.'

'They wanted to know whether I took a newspaper, and if so, how much I owed the printer. Fortunately, I had just then paid my subscription; otherwise I must have been rejected, as no man can become an Odd Fellow who owes a cent to the printer.'

'Well I never!' exclaimed Mrs. Jenks. 'What an influence those newspapers do exert, to be sure.'

'Exactly. But scarcely had I answered these queries satisfactorily, when an immense flame shot down.'

'What! through the roof?'

'Oh, no, I suppose we took the stairs; but I was securely bound and tongue-tied that I hardly know how we got down. The appartment into which I was ushered was pitch dark, and a strong odor of brimstone pervaded the room.'

'Brimstone, my dear?'

'Yes it must have been brimstone, for nothing else could have produced such a stifling sensation.'

'Well, of all things!'

'Then began the roar of artillery, with an occasional volley of arms.—In the midst of the tumult, I heard a low, sweet voice chanting a hymn of peace. 'Man shall love his fellow,' sang this angel, 'Cruel war shall not reign—slavery shall perish—industry meet its reward—charity fill the hearts of men.' When this happy singer had ceased, a loud cry for cheap postage rent the air.'

'How very odd.'

'Yes, but just like those Odd Fellows: they are real reformers,' replied our friend.

'Well, my dear?'

'Why, then lights were procured, and I signed the constitution.'

'Well, what of the cat of which you were speaking?'

'Oh' nothing my dear, only they let her out, and for a minute or two she appeared quite bewildered. It was the first time I had ever seen the cat let out of the bag. But what struck me with the greatest awe was the appearance of the lost tribes and this double-jointed bashaw, who in a loud voice continually, said, 'Life is short—prepare for that which is to come.—Let all men have charity, and love their neighbors as themselves,' whereupon the grand patriarch, armed with the tail end of his grandfather's authority, impressively adjourning the Odd Fellows?'

'Yes, but remember to keep all I have told you a profound secret,' said Jenks, with a half smothered chuckle, as he buried his head in the bed clothes to keep from laughing outright.

Blood About Horses.

The following story from Pleasant Grove, Ind., may prove a warning: 'A man named McGee had butchered a hog and got some of the blood on his coat sleeves, and when he went into the stable to hitch up his mules smelled the blood and became furious, raving and snorting, and attacked Mr. M. with great violence, like wild animals, striking and kicking and biting with all their might. They inflicted and severe wound on his head, and doubtless would have killed him had he not crawled under the manger, where they could not reach him. He was finally rescued from the dangerous situation, but the mules continued so mad, up to that Sunday evening, no person had yet ventured to unharness them. The mules had always been perfectly gentle and docile before.'

Mr. Gray discovered a non-explosive illuminating fluid. To show how safe the new compound was he invited a number of his friends to meet him in his rooms, whither he he had brought a barrel of the fluid, which he at once proceeded to stir with a red hot poker. As he went through the roof, accompanied by his friends, he endeavored to explain to his nearest companion de voyage, that the particular fluid in the barrel had too much benzine in it; but the gentleman said he had an engagement higher up, and could not wait for an explanation. Mr. Gray continued his account till he met Mr. Jones, who informed him that there was necessity for him to go up higher, as everybody was coming down; so Mr. Gray started back to be with the party. Mr. Grey's widow offers for sale the secret for the manufacture of the non-explosive fluid at a reduced rate, as she wishes to raise money enough to buy a silver handled coffin, with a gilt plate, for the late Mr. Gray. Rye.

It is evident to all observers who have had cattle or horses under their care, that the end of winter or the early spring are the most trying seasons for cattle in general. The often sudden transition of cold to warm, the total change of diet from green to dry food, exercise a vast influence upon all organizations endowed with vital faculties. That transition should be made gradual as much as in our power, at least as far as diet is concerned. In our opinion nothing is better calculated to bring on the desired effect than mixing green food with hay in small proportion, and gradually, but sufficient to produce a slight relaxation of the system, a more fluent condition of the blood and prepare the animals for the abundant supply of grasses, herbs or clover in the course of the Spring. Rye is the most appropriate, the most reliable and most efficient succulent, to use in the Spring, without the least danger, and almost a certain result if used in a gradual way.—Ex.

Johnson.

"Johnson once made a bet with Boswell that he could into the fish market and put a Billingsgate woman in a passion without saying a word that she could understand. The doctor commenced by silently indicating with his nose that her fish had passed the state in which a mans' olfactories could endure their flavor. The Billingsgate lady made a verbal attack common in vulgar parlance. The doctor answered, 'you are an article, madam.' 'No more an article than yourself, you misbegotten villain.' 'You are a noun, woman.' 'You—you,' stammered the woman, choking with rage at a list of titles she could not understand. 'You are a pronoun.' The beldam shook her fist in speechless rage. 'You are a verb, an adverb, an adjective, a conjunction, a preposition, an interjection!' suddenly continued the doctor applying the harmless epithets at proper intervals. The nine parts of speech completely conquerred the old woman, and she flung herself down in the mud, crying with rage at being thus blackgarded" in a set of unknown terms, which, not understanding, she could not answer.

Gallantry Rewarded.

'I say, Maddox, what are you going to do now?'

'I am going to help the old lady on the cars.'

'Well, if you don't beat all for a spooney, then I'm mistaken. Do you take charge of all the old women, unprotected females and stray babies that you meet in traveling?'

'Yes, if they need help; so if you have no reasonable objection to offer I will leave you a few moments and assist that lady, as I proposed.'

So saying, young Maddox sprang from the train, which was just starting and went to render assistance to the person in question. She was loaded down with baggage—carpet-bag, band-box and parcels innumerable. He took the first and some of the last, and then putting her safely on the cars, came near being left behind, so very awkward did he find it to manage so many incumberances.

After he got the old lady seated, with her numerous packages about her she counted them several times to be sure there were none missing.

'My rubbers are in this one,' said she, 'because I thought it might rain, and I always have the rheumatism when I get my feet wet. My bet cap is in that, for I expected to stay a day or two, perhaps, and our folks see lots of company. My knitting is in that one there, for I thought I might get tired sitting with my hands folded. This one is full of doughnuts for the children, and that one near you holds two pair of socks for my son, because he thinks he cannot buy as good ones as his mother makes. They are all hear, I see, safe, and I am much obliged to you, young man, for attending me. You will make a good husband one of these day.'

So, blushing and laughing, the gentleman went back to his disgusted friend, who had watched the proceedings with a smile of withering contempt.

'Now,' he commenced, 'will you tell me what you wanted to make such a fool of yourself in that way, for?'

'I do not ackowledge that I have done so, yet Another thing—my mother sometimes travels; doesn't yours?'

'She never goes alone,' was the short reply. 'If she does she will have too much sense ever to trouble other people with her bags and bundles!'

'Yes, if she forms he opinion of other people from her son, In that case I think she might hesitate for some time. I am going to talk to that nice old lady.'

And Henry Maddox left his old friend to join his new one, for such she afterwards proved. She put aside her bundles, and made room for him to sit down by her.

'So you have come to talk to the old lady, have you?' she asked, smiling a cordial welcome.

'Yes, ma'ma,' he replied, 'if it will not be intrusive.'

'Oh, no, we old folks like attention as well if not better than pretty young girls; and you are a very good looking young fellow.'

'Thank you,' answered Henry. 'but I do not know that you would care to a giddy pate like me.'

Henry began to be very much amused, and so kept up a merry talk until the train stopped at the station where the lady intended to get out.—But just before this, she said to the young man:

'Now, Mr. Maddox, I think you will be rewarded for your kindness to an old woman. I will introduce you when we stop, to just as pretty a girl as there is in New York State, if she is my Gran-daughter. They say she looks just like me,' and she laughed mischievously.

When it was time to leave the cars, Henry took the carpet-bag, band-box, big bundle, little budle, and as soon as he had lifted the lady on the platform, she was saluted by the prettiest little specimen of female humanity that he had ever seen, the young gentleman thought. Eyes as black as night, but soft and melting, red cheeks and lips, black curling hair, a neet little, figure, set off with an elegant traveling suit all presented a picture that he never forgot.

'Say,' said her gradmother, this is Mr. Maddox; he has been very kind to me, and now I want you to be kind to him, and not treat him as some young men I know.'

She made a saucy bow, and said:

'But, grndma, you don't know as Mr. Maddox will care to receive any kindness from me. I should not give him quite so many bundles to carry, anyhow. Why, grandama, what have you got in them all?'

'No matter, you saucy girl. Mr Maddox, are you willing to take charge of such a vile thing?'

'I consider myself most misfortune to have the chance. But the cars are about to start, and we had bettor go on at once.'

So the young lady bade her friends good-bye, and triped along side of her gracious hero, who handed her in, and swept past his ungracious chum, to take the same seat the old lady occupied, enjoying the little episode exceedingly.

The young lady was intelligent as well as pretty, and chatted with Henry as if she had known him for years After a while he thought he would go and see how his friend was feeling, so excusing himself he left the pretty May and returned to the former.

'Who is that handsome gal?' was the first inquiry.

'That is the old lady's grand-daughter,' replied Henry.

'Introduce me, won't you?'

'Indeed, I shall do nothing of the kind.'

'Why not?'

'Because I don't feel privileged to take any such liberty. I have just been introduced myself.'

'She is the handsomest girl I have seen this long time, and if you don't introduce me, I will manage someway to make her acquaintance, you see if I don't.'

'I hope, for your own sake, you will do nothing rude.'

Don't be concerned about that, I assure you. But I do think, Maddox, you might be good natured enough to introduce an old chum like me. She s duced pretty, too. Why, her eyes flash like stars.'

'Yes, and she is fully as agreeable as she is pretty. I never met a brighter, more intelligent girl. Sorry that I don't feel well enough acquainted to introduce a friend. Good by, Sam, there is really something magnetic about the girl. I feel drawn to her in a way that is quite incomprehensible, so I will bid you good-by, and go back and enjoy her society once more; and with a provoking smile, Henry left his companion who could only enjoy the privilege of looking at the attractive young lady.

He watched the two in a disconsolate manner, for to tell the truth, he had fallen depratoly in love with May, and envied Henry every beaming glance and smile she bestowed upon him. She was going to visit in the very town where the young men lived and so our hero had the pleasure of her company home, during which time their acquaintance ripened very rapidly, and when they parted, May gave him a cordial invitation to visit her, which he accepted with evident delight, and very soon took advantage of.

The young lady was visiting her aunt, a Mrs. Cook, who knew Henry by reputation, and so welcomed him graciously to her house. Soon he became a frequent visitor, and then offered to give his friend, Samuel Burleigh, the introduction he had for some time desired, and which he now eagerly acquired, becoming thereupon a more consiant visitor than Henry himself.

One evening a number of young people were collected in Mrs. Cook's elegant parlors, when the conversation happened to die out for a while: May proposed that each should tell a story.

The propsition met with general approval, and was carried out with great jest and enjoyment by all concerned; laughter and applause proving the success of each narrator.

When it came May's turn she gave a full and lively account of the incidents just related, repeating the conversation of the young men almost word for word Harry's face grew reddec and redder, and would certainly have betrayed him if May had once glanced in his direction, but she carefully avoided meeting his eye.

Sam, in the meantime, instead of being red grew very pale, for in this sudden disclosure of his rudeness, he read the downfall of his dearest hopes, and excusing himself very soon after he took his departure, angry and mortified enough.

The next morning he called bright and early at the office of Maddox, and saluted him at once with the exclamation:

'I say, Henry, that was a pretty mean trick you served me!'

'What do you mean?'

Why, telling May Stanton that ridiculous story.'

'I never told her one word of it, and am just as much in the dark as you are.'

'You never told her! Who in the world was it, then?'

'I have not the slightest idea, but I may say that my curiosity is a good deal excited about it, and I am going around this morning and ask her.'

Well, I have received my conge, that is evident enough, and I suppose I shall soon have the opprtunity to offer you my congratulations.'

A short time afterward Maddox was seated on a snug little sofa, by the side of his fair lady-love looking very well pleased with the situation, which, perhaps, might have been said of his companion also.

'Will you tell me,' he asked, 'how you found out all that story you told last night?'

'Do you want to know very much?' she inquired mischievously.

'Yes I do, indeed,' he replied.

She laughed a little, and said:

'I was introduced to a young lady, who immediately exclaimed, 'I have seen you before, Miss Stanton.' 'When?' I enquired; and then she went on to say that she saw me in the cars on that day, and noticed everything that occurred, as she occupied the seat right behind you and Mr. Burleigh, and heard everything you said. Funny how things sometimes happen, is'nt it?'

Not so funny for poor Sam, though; he is feeling very much mortified about it.'

'Did you come here to plead his cause then?' inquired May, quite petulantly.

He looked at her a minute and then said:

'No; I would much rather plead my own,' which he must have done most successfully, for Mrs. Cook happening to enter in a quiet way, about half an hour afterward, withdrew rather more quickly than she had gone in, and meeting her husband, said:

'I just interrpted a very interesting interview between May and Maddox.'

'Indeed what's the matter?'

'Well, the matter is that they are engaged, if I can judge from the affectionate tableau they presented.'

'I am glad of it, for Maddox is a very fine young man.'

Sam Burleigh felt his disappointment most keenly for a while, but he finally acknowledged that he was justly punished for his churlishness.

MORAL.—Young men should always be polite to old ladies, for old ladies are very much inclined to have pretty grand-daughters.

Discovery of Coffee.

Toward the middle of the fifteenth century, a poor Arab was traveling in Abyssinia, and finding himself weak and weary from fatigue, he stopped near a grove.—Being in want of fuel to cook his rice, he cut down a tree which happened to be covered with dried berries. His meal being cooked and eaten, the traveler discovered that the half burned berries were fragrant. He collected a number of these and on crushing them with a stone, he found that their aroma increased to a great extent. While wondering at this, he accidentally let fall the substance into a can which contained his scanty supply water. It, what a miracle. The almost putrid liquid was instantly purified. he brought it to his lips; it was fresh and agreeable, and in a moment after the traveler had so far recovered his strength and energy as to be able to resume his journey The Arab gathered as many berries as he could, and arriving arriving at Aden, in Arabia, he informed the Mufti of his discovery. The worthy divine was an inveterate opium smoker, and had been suffering from the influence of the poisonous drug for years. He tried an infusion of the roasted berries, and was so delighted at the recovery of his former vigor, that in gratitude to the tree he called it Cahuah, which in Arabic signifies force. And this is the manner in which coffee was first discovered.

Beautiful Sentiment.

Bulwer eloquently says: 'It cannot be that earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is but a bubble cast upon the great ocean of eternity to float for a moment upon it waves and then sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts are forever wandering about unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and the cloud come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass away, leaving us to muse upon their mysterious loveliness?—Why is it that the stars which hold their festival around the midnight throne, are set so far above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? Why is it that brighter forms of human beauty are presented to our view and then taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affection to flow back on Alpine torrents upon the heart? We are born for a higher destiny than that of earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades where the stars will be spread before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beings who pass before us like shadows will stay forever in our presence.'

AUBURN, IND., FEB. 1, 1871.

Death of [illegible] of State.

Col. Norman Eddy, Secretary of State died suddenly at his residence at Indianopolis last Sunday morning, of decease of the heart. From the Sentinel we learn that he arose from bed, telling his wife to remain and take some rest. He went into the parlor, where he was joined by his youngest daughter, to whom he made some remarks about the cold weather. As he arose from his seat to reach a bottle of medicine on the mantle, his daughter left the room. A moment after Mrs. Eddy heard a heavy fall in the parlor, and at once hast ned thither to find the lifeless body of her husband prostrate upon the floor between the stove and mantel. Every effort was made to restore the deceased to consciousness, but all proved unavailing; his spirit had taken its everlasting flight.

Only a few days ago in a consultation with Dr. Athon he was informed he was liable to be taken away at any moment; and during the past several years he had a presentment that his death would be sudden. And it came as a thief in the night.

We cannot pay a higher tribute to the memory of Norman Eddy than to say he was emphatically 'an honest man, the noblest work of God.' He was conscientiously so, even in little things that generally escape the attention or thought of those in the public service. With opportunites to make money through the public positions he chose to remain poor rather than have his integrity questioned, even if the public interests would not have suffered by private speculations. And in varied positions he had held, during his long public career, not a doubt can be raised as to his fidelity.

The patriotic and useful citizen, the faithful public officer, and the good and true man has passed away. May he rest in peace!

The remains were taken to South Bend for interment.

Mrs Wharton, charged with the murder of Gen. Ketchum and others, has been t ied and acquitted.

Senator Morton calls Senator Schurz 'a Dutch whangdoodle,' probably because he has been whanging Grant's rascalities with force.

Jesse R. Grant has recovered his voice and can speak satisfactorily. That's more than his son can do, says the Boston Post.

Both the Indiana Senators had their pockets picked since leaving home to attend the meeting of Congress. It don't take thieves long to detect a 'greeny.'

The Sparta, Louisiana, Times of the 6th hoists at its mast-head the name of M. C. Kerr, of Indiania, for President, and Henry Gray, of Louisiana, for Vice President.

New York, January 25.—A Washington telegram to the Herald says that Senator Shurz asserts that he will bolt if Grant is renominated. He expresses himself as confident that Grant will not be renoved.

The New York Tribune has found out that 'There has been toq much military interference in municipal affairs already, and the people regard these encroachments upon their liberties with jealously and suspicous.'

Both Houses of the West Virginia Legislature, and the Costitutional Convention of the State, are now in session. The Speakers of all the bodies are Democrats. This shows well for the intelligience of the people of the West Virgiana.

How to make all serene and smooth for the Republican party—Let Grant announce that he will not under any circumstances come nor before the Republican National Convention as a candidate for nomination.—New York Sun.

Arkansas, under the rule of carpet baggers and scallawags, must be a lovely State to live in. This year the lands are being sold for the non-payment of taxes in 1868, and from the report of the State Auditors, it would appear that the whole State was under the hammer.

The announcement that the Democratic Committee have postponed the the call for a National Convention till after the plans and purposes of the the Philadelphia convention are developed meets with favor among all the members of the party in Washington, and is approved by those Republicans who supported the Missouri policy and its programme for uniting all the elements opposed to the present administration.

Letters from New Hampshire to officials in Washington from that State, declare that the New York Custom House developments are injuring the administration there, that it will be almost impossible to wrest the State from the hands of the Democrats at the March election. The New York Tribune defection it is added had well nigh ruined the party already.

What Our Exchanges Say.

We regret to see the course our friend John B. Stoll is taking towards some Democrats in this part of the State. Perhaps he will find out, but too late, that he does not hold the Democracy of the Tenth Congressional District of Indiana, in the palm of his hands.—Warsaw Union.

It is a matter of general regret, Mr. Union, that he has been led to write himself an ass. Johny has some good qualities, but they are so obscured by his excessive modesty, (?), that they are as a light hid under a bushel.—

The fight inaugurated between the Ligionier Banner on our side, and, the Columbia City Post and Auburn Courier on the other—all democratic prints—in reference to the fitness of Hon. Isaiah B. McDonald, as a democratic candidate for the office of lieu' Governor, continues, and the Couriere 'goes for' the Banner in no enviable mood. 'The combat deepens,' and the 'happy family,' are threatened with a jar, that bids fair to make a discord in the 'sweet songs' of the democratic choir of the 'bloody tenth.'—Indianian.

Mays, of the Auburn Courier, is determined to make it 'hot' for his neighbor Stoll, of the Ligonier Banner. Why is it thusly? Why this quarrel between Democrats? Gentlemen, it's all wrong, it's cruel, it's mean, when you know you must both fall down and worship the same idol—'nude Departure.' Now quit dry-up, wilt-down and be good friends for the sake of the memory you still have for the old party you once loved so well.—Mishawaka Enterprise,

Very good advice, and we would like to follow it, but we have been selected as an instrument in the hands of the old party, with which to chastise an member who would sacrifice the party to accomplish his own selfish ends. We expect to discharge the duties of our office faithfully, as it is intended for the good of that old party.

Several papers in the northern part of the State have renewed their assaults upon Col. I. B. McDonald, of Columbia City, who has been mentioned by his friends in connection with the nomination for Lieutenant Governor. If we understand the article in last week's Columbia City, Post rightly, the renewal of the fire upon Col. McDonald is in accordance with a programme connected by a junta of conspirators while on and editorial excursion to Omaha. The spirit of the quarrel is a fit subject for deprecation, and if those who are engaging in it (and by the way several of the assailants are themselves aspirants for office on the democratic ticket next fall, and on account of geographical position, mainly, opposed to McD.), have the success of the democratic party, in the next contest, sincerely at heart they will say nothing that is not duly and calmly weighed and considered in all its parts. When Leartes was starting upon his travels from Denmark, his father Polonius with other good advice, gave him the followings:

> Beware
> Of entrance to a quarrel: but, being in,
> Bear it that the opposer may beware of thee.

This is the course the prudent friends of Col. McDonald will pursue. And the democracy of the State will not make common cause with a faw disaffected persons whose enmity he incurred because he did not support their relatives and associates for certain positions in the gifts of the legislature.—Huntington Democrat.

We have calmly weighed and considered what we have already said, and now feel that we had the success of the Democratic party at heart when we said it. The Democrat has hit the nail on the head exactly, when it give the reason of the opposition of the Banner and Argus to Col. McDonald. The low cunning and trickery together with the presumptuousness of Stoll are becoming disgusting to the tenth district and we should think that even a man of his mental capacity, would soon discover this fact. Stoll you are in the wrong boat, get out, take a back tack, act like a man of honor; remember the Democratic rule that the position should seek man and not the man the position; work for the party and not for position; never try to elevate yourself by underrating others, give yourself the credit of knowing only about twice as much as you realy do, and if within the next century, you acheive the reputation of being an honorable and worthy Democrat, we will vote for you, providing Col. McDonald is not your opponent for the same office. Now Johny, do try and mend your ways and be respectable, and you will be happy.

Dis tribution of the Sinking Fun d.

The Supreme Court of Indiana, on the 23rd instant, rendered its decision upon the distribution of the Sinking Fund for the distribution of the fund for educational purposes, that had accumulated in the hands of the Auditor of State. The amount to be distributed among the different counties in the State is about $565,000. We are glad that this troublesome question has been finally determined, and that the money that has fattened and enriched State Auditors is to be withdrawn from them. From the time that the Republicans carried Indiana (1860) until the time they were beaten (1870) their State officers loaned the Sinking Fund money on their own account and pocketed the interest. As a consequence, they were not only enabled to contribute heavily to the Republican electioneering fund, but they were also enabled to retire at the end of their terms of office with their pockets full of greenbacks. When the Democrats came into power swore "by the eternal" that this fountain of corruption should be 'dried up" The Legislature accordingly passed a law providing for the distribution of the Sinking Fund among the counties of the State. So much for the Democracy.—Valparaiso Messenger.

Views of Mr. Pendleton.

The Hon. George H. Pendleton sent the following letter in reply to a committee of Democrats of Wooster, O, who invited him to attend their celebration of the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. His points against the corruption of the administration and its centralized military character, as also his opinion of the passive policy and of the duty of the dissatisfied Republicans to organize an opposition against Grant in co-operation with the Democrats, will be received with the attention they deserve.

CINCINNATI, December 30, 1871.

Messrs. Eshelman, Firestone, Baughman, Committee of Invitation.

GENTLEMEN: I regret that I cannot accept your invitation to be present at the next annual celebration, to the 8th of January. It would have given me great pleasure to meet and take counsel of those who are so well grounded in the faith and the practice of Democracy as the men of Wayne County, and with them to recall the principles and examples of the founders of of our party.

Two great dangers imperil free nistitutions under the policy of the party now in power. The spirits of centralized military government attacks everywhere the constitution, and corruption in office destroys the civil administration. I do not speak merely or chiefly of special defalcations however startling, but of the general degradation of the standard of official integrity until the officers in both the civil and military service seem to be considered the property of the party, to be dispensed and administered primarily for party aggrandizement or personal profit.

These dangers grow out and are inseparable from the present organization of the Republican party. Its foundation, its philosophy, its history, and its leaders recognize military power and the corrupting use of money by official patronage as legitimate forces in ordinary civil administration, and now more than ever use they brought into active exercise. The Democratic party confronts this theory and denounces these practices.

Founded upon the idea of local government, jealous of powers granted to authority, taught that simplicity and economy are essential to the honesty necessary in Republican institutions, it maintains with more determined purpose that the military must be subordinate to the civil authority, and that offices are a trust for the people, not spoils for the victors.

Its poweful organization enters every village in the land, and numbers among its adherents nearly one-half the people —as intellectual, as pure, as patriotic, as unselfish as any of their fellow citizens. They are too numerous to be cowardly. They are too patriotic to be lukewarm. They are too sincere in their purposes and convictions to be driven to despondency by ten years of reverses. They have shown constancy in defeat as well as wisdom in victory. If I understand their feelings they will neither disband their organization nor flee the field before the contest commences. Either course, they believe, would give undisputed sway to the present administration, which could then give undivided attention to the deserters from its ranks.

Advancing army, with the enemy either dispersed or in flight, never loses division or regiments, or never companies, and is generally able to pick off or to pick up treacherous or thoughtless stragglers.

If there be, as is claimed, many members of the Republican party who disapprove the ideas which dominate the administration of President Grant, and are prepared to oppose his re-election, they should declare their purposes, organize their party, develop and manifest their strength, and if I may predict the future, they will have no just cause, even the most sensitive and timid among them, for refusing to cooperate with the Democratic party.—When its authorized convention shall speak it will remind its adherents that the ultimate and highest purpose of its existence is to secure the greatest prosperity, in its best sense, of every human being in the land; that principles of government are true to nature as they contribute to this result; that parties and politics and officers are but means to this end; that princeples are of different application, and questions lose their importance in the ever-shifting changes of human affairs, and discarding all narrow ideas, abandoning the consideration of all questions which have been decided or buried by the events which have been passed; recognizing the accomplished facts of the present, and appreciating the dangers of the future, it will invite, both by words and by deeds, both by resolutions and by nominations, the zealous, hearty co-operation of all men who believe that the Constitution is a better system of government than martial law, and that reform in the service is a higher duty than rewarding prospective partisan effort by distributing spoils.

By this course the party, I should hope, would attain success. If it should once more fail, as an honest, faithful, patriotic minority, it will hold an important position and exert an immense moral power over the majority; and it may well wait with faith the inevitable hour which will crown its fidelity and patience with the success which it will have deserved. I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEO. H. PENDLETON.

DEFIANCE, Ohio, Jan. 29.—At 10 o'clock this morning the spoke and hub factory of the Defiance Manufacturing Company was discovered to be on fire. The alarm was promptly given, but owing to the excessive cold it was some time befor the engines could be got to work. The factory was entirely consumed, but they saved their store room. The stock was damaged by sparks from the smoke-stack.

The loss is at least $50,000, on which there is an insurance of $10,000. Over one hundred men are thrown out of employment. As soon as the fire cools down they will commence to rebuild in a more substantial manner. The stockholders are the Kahlo Bros, John Crowe, Wm. Lauster, W. C. Colgat and E.P. Hooper.

The cause of the fire was sparks from the smoke.

ANOTHER PRESIDENTIAL TICKET

The Indianapolis Sentinel says that the well informed Washington correspondent of the Louisville Ledger says the latest Presidential ticket mooted among the opponents of Grant's administration, is HENDRICKS and CURTIN. The head of the ticket will be very satisfactory to the opponents of Grant in Indiana. Not one of our public men in a greater degree commands the confideuce of the country, not only for integrity, but for the ability to administer the Government wisely and successfully. And Governor Curtin may do for the second place on the ticket. He is now minister to Russia, and it has been frequently reported that his relations with the Administration are not of the most cordial character, on account of differences in sentiment upon questions of public policy. Mr. Curtin has been identified with the Republican party, and undoubtedly from the high positions he has occupied in the State government, has the confidence of the people of Pennsylvania, but how far he has become liberalized in his political sentiments we are not advised, but he must be somewhat advanced, or else he would not be numbered among the opponents of Grant, and if men of his standing in the party regard it to be a duty to oppose the present administration and the faction in power, it is satisfactory evidence that a revolution is going on in the public mind that will overturn the present conduct of public affairs.

Now is the time to organize lyceums, debating societies and literary associations, for general discussion and mutual improvement during the winter.—Such societies, entered into with proper spirit by the young men of a neighborhood, (and it won't hurt some of the older folks to help it along,) cannot fail to be of great advantage, and afford rational amusement and recreation for all concerned.

The Washington Chronicle says that 'the people are not disposed to attach much important to the Custom House frauds in New York.' Just so the Democratic papers in this region said about five months ago that the people were not disposed attach much importance to the Tammany frauds in this city; but the next election proved the folly of their confidence.—New York Sun.

'Our affairs are only just beginning to be settled,' says the New York Times, General Grant's organ. If after some eleven years of war and peace, 'our affairs are only being settled,' when may we hope for the conclusion? Never, while the ruling party can retain powe by keeping alive discontent.

BARNUM.—Barnum, the veritable P. T., who as a humbiggist has become a success, has sent us several tickets of admission to his great museum, menagerie, caravan and hippodrome, now being exhibited every day, on 3d Avenue and 63d street, New York. If Pete could bring his show down this way we would like to see it.—It is a magnificent institution, and when you go to New York, you should by all means go and see it.

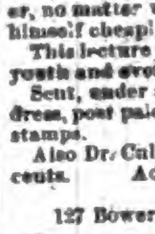
MANHOOD.
How Lost, How Restored.


Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure of certain weakness, the effects of errors and abuses in early life. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of such errors and abuses may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal machine or the application of the knife pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.
This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.
Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

The juveniles had a leap year party last Tuesday night, and our devil says it was "no success."

Syrup 60c, 80c, and $1,00 at Smith & Hare's.

Mr. Keerns has presented us with a bottle of Golden oil, said to be a great panacea for almost every ill. Get a bottle.

During court next week we trust that the few who still owe us yet for the paper will call and settle. We will be glad to see you.

Circuit Court.—The February term of the Circuit Court will convene next Monday, Judge Lousley presiding. There are ninety four cases on the docket.

There has been a lull in sleighing business since the cold snap set in. But its coming off warm and lively times may be looked for.

"Talking of the war," says Harvey "how horrible it is to hear the stifled groans of the dying, together with the shrieks of the dead."

The change in time card of Fort Wayne Muncie & Cincinnati Railroad. We are under obligations to Mr. Worthington for a pass over his excellent line.

Shorts tobacco 3lb for one dollar, Smith & Hare's.

People should not undertake to encourage their fires to burn by pouring kerosene oil on them, because that is just what encourages the undertakers.

A young man got intoxicated at Atchison, Kansas, the other day, and in attempting [illegible] the contents of his stomach he was strangled to death.

An exchange remarks that this is the season of the year when the domestic sideboard glows with hoarhound slings, boneset cock-tails, pink root and senna smash and castor-oil juleps.

All kinds of Groceries reduced at Smith & Hare's.

The sleighing continues with every prospect of the snow remaining, unless it gets warm, and melts which it sometimes does.

For Sale.

A second hand melodeon, piano case, five octaves, price $50. Enquire at

J. H. Bruner's Drug Store.

"We are opposed to all class legislation that favors the few by granting exclusive privileges to capitalists and non-producer.—Tom Tayler.

Vote the Democratic ticket then, you——fool.

Whitney's Musical Guest for February is at hand, containing many articles of unusual interest. The music it contains is worth ten times its price. Try a specimen copy. W. Whitney, Toledo O.

A sleigh load of young folks, from this place, went to residence of Mr. Chids near Corunna, and had a good time, on last Friday evening. When is the Corunna folks coming down.

Our excellent friend Joseph Stophlet, Esq., and Miss Aggie Fowles, of Ft. Wayne have formed a partnership for life, barring divorces. We trust that they will find the journey pleasant and that they may live long to enjoy it.

Gobbled.—A large, fat, plump turkey, already dressed and ready for the roast, came to us the other day, but the donor is so modest that we dare not mention his name for fear he'll get mad and walk off on his ear. Much obliged, friend.

Tom Mays boasts that his paper last week was out one day ahead; but why did'nt he tell his readers that he was two weeks in getting it out?—Mishawaka Enterprise.

Mistake, Mont. We were out on time the week before.

Many of our exchanges are boasting about the great speed of their "champion skater." We have seen nothing yet that can compare with George Patrick, the the champion of Logansport. He went from here to Lafayette—40 miles—a few days ago. in one hour and five minutes.—Logansport Pharos.

Billy Frank, of the Goshen Democrat, will soon be all right again. He has purchased a brick building and will have the material required for the publication of his paper in a few days. We receive a miniature copy which plainly says that Billy keeps a stiff upper lip, and ain't to be put down.

From Troy Township.—Our clever friend Benj. Gaskall, Esq., has sent us a few items from this enterprising locality. The good sleighing is being taken advantage of by everybody. Mr. G's mill yard is being heaped with logs. He gives a spicy account of a scandal affair in that neighborhood, but it is of such a character that we forbear publishing it. Write again.

Folio.—We are in receipt of the Folio, as fine a musical publication as can be found. It contains a large amount of original matter pertaining to the art, besides several fine vocal and instrumental pieces. Those desiring a No. 1 musical work would be delighted with this. Only one dollar a year. White, Smith & Perry, Publishers, 298 and 300 Washington St., Boston. Specimen copies free.

To be truly happy, a man should be out of debt—have a kind heart—an honest [illegible] obliging disposition—a good [illegible] friends—a well-filled house—plenty of books—money to lend—good horses—reside in Auburn—and take the Courier.

At last accounts the post office at South Whitley was still in charge of a Democrat; but if the citizens of that place do their duty it will not remain so long. There are plenty of good Republicans in the village who are competent and worthy, and we suggest that the present incumbent be superseded by some one of them.—Col. City Commercial.

That's right. Put him out. No matter how honest, or attentive he may be, put him out, because he's a Democrat.

Beautiful.—Our thanks are due Saml. Ralston, Esq., our popular Dry Goods Merchant, for the beautiful fur cap which we now wear. Like all of his goods it is a first-class article, no shoddy, or second rate, but fresh from the manufacturers. If you want a good article at a fair price, no cheap stuff at half price, that ain't the kind he keeps, you'll have to go further north for that, if you want something you can rely on, go to Ralston and you will get it.

Coffee.—Totten has furnished us with a box of ground coffee, which we pronounce the best we ever saw, as we have not tasted it. The fact is we don't drink the vile stuff, and can't pass on its real merits, like we could a [illegible] good [illegible] but, [illegible] our [illegible] is first-rate, bully. Try a box anyhow, it don't cost much, and if it don't suit, why, you are only that much out, you know. Totten's got it, in any quantity, and, you can easily procure it of him for cash.

The editors of the Auburn Courier, T. C. Mays, and John B. Stoll, editor of the Banner at Ligonier, are "by the ears," and both being Democrats, these auracular illustrations are a great source of amusement to their political opponents undoubtedly. But then Mays is almost out of wood, and Stoll is dyspeptic.—Elkhart Union.

We have wooded up again, Bro. Swees, and are now ready for another run. Wonder whether Stoll has got a new supply of dyspepsia.

The Boston Times has had 1,300 answers to its $1,000 problem, requiring to know how long it will take a locomotive to run one hundred miles, provided it goes fifty miles the first hour, twenty-five the next, twelve and a half the next, and so on. Of course the offer was eminently safe, as the problem involves an infinite progression forever leaving a remainder to be divided; or, as one of the mathematicians put it, we have the startling proposition that a body may move towards a stationary point, always keep in motion, and never reach it.

We regret to learn that S. W. Dickinson, the popular landlord of the Waterloo House, has retired from the business for the present, but intends resuming again as soon as a favorable location can be secured. The prestige which was gained for the Waterloo House, the excellent system introduced in its management and the [illegible] which seemed to prevail everywhere, throughout the house, convinces us that Mr. D., has [illegible] found the calling [illegible] destined to [illegible] cordially commend him to the favorable consideration of any community in whose midst he may decide to cast his lot.

The sleighing has been excellent in this region throughout the past week, and those who have been fortunate enough to possess horse-flesh and cutters have made the most of it. The moonlight nights have brought out the girls in force, and the cool, crispy atmosphere has made it necessary for the young folks to sit very close together, to keep warm, you know. But this kind of business has been followed up pretty closely for a great many years, and there to be about the same amount of enjoyment as in early days. And this is just as it should be. It is only the sour old curmudgeons among bachelors who cannot bear to see others enjoy anything which they are incapable of appreciating themselves.

Result of a Race.—Last Friday an accident occurred near Newville from too frequent practice of racing. A sled load of people, had crossed the east bridge, when two other sleds appeared at the bend of the road only a short distance off, and came toward them at a fearful rate, almost abreast. The driver of the one team, Mr. Schamp, had but a moment to pull his team slightly to one side, when the tongue of one of the advancing sleds struck the off horse square in the breast, penetrating it to the distance of a foot, tearing the horse loose from the sled and carrying him around some distance on the end of the pole. Had the tongue missed the horse the team would certainly have passed over the sled, and no one can tell how many might have been killed. The horse died in twenty minutes. He was valued at $150. It was a team of mules that was attached to the sled that did the damage and was driven by a young man named Moody.

In speaking of the visit of M. Keyser, Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, to Defiance last week the Democrat of that place says that, as yet, nothing seems settled but that Tiffin is to be a point. His visit west at this time was to learn facts as to the disposition of the people along the rival lines, the lay of the country, its resources, and such other information as might be necessary in determining the location of the remainder of the line. The matter, he thought, would be settled in two weeks, and three corps of engineers immediately put upon the line to prepare it for an early letting.

He expected from Defiance, if the road was located on this line, a reasonable subscription to the capital stock and every facility and assistance in securing the right of way through the county, assuring the people that what was subscribed would prove a good business investment.

Mr. Keyser and the Chief Engineer went to Napoleon in sleighs on Saturday, and after an interview with the committee at that place, left on the afternoon train for Toledo. We understand they have returned to Baltimore—abandoning exploration of the lines through Indiana, probably taking Mr. Steele's report and survey as sufficient warrant for the balance. For the present we are anxiously awaiting the action of the Baltimore Board of Directors in the choice of lines to be adopted.

Annual Report of the DeKalb County Bible Society.

Mr. Editor.—We have great reason to be thankful to God, and to congratulate the members and friends of this blessed institution, for the good that is being accomplished by, and the success attending the zealous efforts of, the State Agent of the American Bible Society and of the officers and agents of this 'auxilliary,' during the past few years.

For the past eight years this society has been in debt to the Parent Society, ranging in amount of indebtedness from one hundred to seven hundred dollars, this indebtedness being due to the small contributions and also to the large number of Bibles and Testaments drawn out of our Depository to supply those that were destitute of the blessed gospel.

During the past few years the people of this county have exercised a more liberal spirit in their donations, "more in proportion as God has prospered them," have been more kind and generous in their entertainments of agents, so that now the good people of every name and order act with an honorable and intelligent liberality (with a very few dishonorable exceptions) toward this society and its agents.

The result is that this society is now out of debt, they have one hundred and nine dollars worth of books on hand and paid for, and one hundred dollars in cash, with which to replenish our present stock of books, from which the branch depositories of this county can draw. Thus has DeKalb County at last taken her appropriate position, 'No. 1,' side by side with the wealthier counties, of our State, in this noble cause, and it is sincerely hoped that her citizens will ever display that generosity in entertaining, encouraging and donating to the agents as they pass around on their good mission; that in the future the status of this society may not only be maintained but greatly elevated, and that it may be the instrument in the hands of the "Great Master" of doing a good work for the human family.

This society held its anniversary, for the past year, in the M. E. Church at Auburn, on Sabbath evening, Jan., 14, and was largely attended and a laudable interest manifested.

After a short address by the Rev. Mr. Banks, of Fort Wayne, the State agent Rev. J. Thompson, delivered the "anniversary address" which was listened to with intense interest. He gave a brief synopsis of the great work being accomplished by the Bible Socities, of some of the glorious conquests that the gospel is achieving and some of the many places they are pleading for its blessed light. After the address a handsome collection was received from the audience after which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. Griswold, Pres., J. W. Case, Vice Pres., J. B. Casebeer, Sec'y., John H Ehlers, Treas. Executive Committee, F. W. Wyllis, W. Martin, Jotham Woolsey, W. B. Sandoe and F. Raut.

The audience was then dismissed with the benediction and a meeting of the officers was held next morning, and a settlement made with the former Treasurer, J. W. Case, which resulted as above indicated.

W. GRISWOLD, Pres.

J. B. Casebeer, Sec'y.

To-morrow is ground hog day—the day on which that justly celebrated animal comes forth from his winter quarters, in all the glory of his hogship, to make a reconnoisance of the weather. If Old Sol's fiery orb should be one of the things to meet his august gaze he must incontinently back to his hole and pulls the hole in after him. Sich is life.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

We are permitted to [illegible] from the following letter [illegible] progress of the above road.

Defiance, Ohio, January 29th, 1872.

Mr. W. H. Dills,

Dear Sir:—I propose to post you on the [illegible] of the B. & O. extension:

Messrs Keyser second Vice President and Randolph, Chief Engineer of the B. & O. Company, arrived here on last Friday, P. M. and stayed until Saturday A. M., about 10½ o'clock, when we went [illegible] Toledo and spend the Sabbath and thence home.

We tried to have them consent to let us take them out on the line to your place, but it snowed so, they decided not to go on. They had come from Tiffin, about 44 miles, on the line to Baltimore, on the Dayton & Michigan Road, and then took the [illegible] to this place. They had intended to come through [illegible] line but on account of the rough weather and snow, went round

They had promised Napoleon a hearing and went down to them, saying that as between these lines, they would decide the question immediately after their return to Baltimore—that when they decided, it would be if in favor of the Defiance line, that it was substantially adopted, giving them the margin of adopting a line a mile or two north or south of Steele's, as they might find to their interest.

They expressed a willingness to take Mr. Steele's report for the line, and country west without personal examinations further in giving their decision.

They said if the decision should be in our favor, it would be that we should have the line on certain conditions, which they would name by letter, and that very shortly they would organize a company for Ohio, at Columbus, and the corps of engineers, now at Tiffin, under Mr. Bates would start the survey immediately for the State line of Indiana—that by early spring two additional corps would be put upon the line in Indiana, and by April Mr Keyser stated he expected to put the whole line from their Sandusky & Newark line to Chicago under contact. He first wishes to get matters in shape and moving in Ohio, which is to be done at once, and then in Indiana. I think all is well, and that road is to be built, and that immediately on the Defiance line. Mr. Keyser stated it would probably take 18 months to build the road.

Yours truly

Wm. C. Holgate.

VERACITY.

The Honorable (?) John B. Stoll says we spoke contemptuously of Col. McDonald in private conversation. Now, Johny, we don't want to call you a liar, for that would be harsh, you know, and we don't like to say harsh things of anybody, but we are willing to compromise on a charge of lunacy as we intimated in a former article by pronouncing you the "crazy Dutchman of Noble." Your last effort gives us no occasion to change our opinion, as to your demented condition. We simply say in reply that you grossly misrepresent, and we are willing to submit our fair [illegible] with the excellent reputation you have established, to [illegible] gentleman concerned who has his own individual assertions upon which to pass judgement. As to the proof, we demand it, because we believe there is not such another villifyer upon the face of the earth as you, Johny, and therefore defy you to present any proof sustaining your assertion. We have our opinion of a man, and especially, of an honorable (?) gentleman that will approach anyone in a confidential way and then misrepresent them in public. We will not use the word liar, as applicable to you in this case; not because we are afraid to, but because we are charitable even to our enemies and persecutors.—But Mr. McDonald will not ask this refutation at our hands, because he will consider the highly honorable source from which the charge emenated. He will remember, as, doubtless, many others do, the grand entre made by this talented and eloquent German speaker, in Noble County, of his being an applicant for position, not at the hands of one party, for he was more cosmopolitan in his style, then, but ready to work for either, the decision depending entirely upon the party that had the most money. A prominent citizen of Albion remarked to us the other day that the Democrats 'bul'ed' the market and to this alone are we as a party indebted for the presence and co-operation of that aspiring gentleman. Conscience and principle were placed in the hopper, and brass seems to have won them, for that is evidently the one great quality around which all others rally with a consciousness of their own inferority. For instance the impudent demands made upon the party after a brief, and in no wise remarkable service, of a few years in the ranks. This is the record of the man that says we falsify. Why shou'd we attempt a denial? It is not necessary.

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.
This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.
It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.
To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.
In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventative and cure for the Hog Cholera.

LINES TO KATE.

There's something in the name of Kate
Which many will condemn,
But listen now while I relate
The traits of some of them.

There's advo-Kate, a charming miss,
Could you her hand obtain,
She'll lead you in the path of bliss,
Nor plead your cause in vain.

There's deli-Kate, a modest dame,
And worthy of your love;
She's nice and beautiful in frame,
And gentle as a dove.

Communi-Kat's intelligent,
As we may well suppose;
Her fruitful mind is ever bent
On telling what she knows.

There's intri-Kate, she's so obscure,
'Tis hard to find her out,
For she is [illegible] very sure
To [illegible] your wits [illegible].

Prevari-Kate's a stubborn maid,
She's sure to have her way,
The cavilling, contrary jade
Objects to all you say.

There's alter-Kate, a perfect pest,
Much given to dispute;
Her rattling tongue can never rest,
You cannot her refute.

There's dislo-Kate, quite in a fret,
Who fails to gain her point;
Her case is quite unfortunate,
And sorely out of joint.

Equivo-Kate no one will woo,
The thing would be absurd;
She is so faithless and untrue,
You cannot take her word.

There's vindi-Kate she's good and true,
And strives with all her might,
Her duty faithfully to do,
And battles for the right.

Of all the maidens you can find,
There's none like edu-Kate,
Because she elevates the mind,
And aims for something great.

Cheap but Honest.

Many years ago when Judge Robert M. Charlton, of Savannah, Ga., was quite a young man, he, in company with his father, Hon. T. U. H. Charlton, spent every summer in the delightful village of Clarksville Northeast Georgia.

One day Robert was passing along the street in Clarksville, and it happened to be election day (members of Congress were then elected by what was called the general ticket system, and not by districts as they now are.) when he was near a verdant but honest voter of the mountains, who accosted him thus:

'Mr Charlton, are you the man that is running for Congress?'

'No, sir, I am no candidate. My father is, however. But may I ask you why this inquiry?'

'Nothing, only I haven't voted yet'

'If it is not inconsistent with your feelings, then, I would like it if you would vote for my father.'

'I would just as soon vote for him as anybody.'

Mr. C. thanked him, and thinking perhaps his friend was seeking a treat, invited him into a neighboring tavern.

'What will you take?'

'I never drink anything, but I see they have some ginger cakes. I'd as leif take one of them as not.'

'Very well. Give us a cake.'

'My brother is in town with me.'

'All right. Take him a cake with my respects.'

Another cake was purchased and paid for, and the two friends parted; 'Greeny' to find his brother, and Mr. Charlton to join his young friends in a parlor hard by.

'The golden hours on angels' wings' passed rapidly away with Mr. Charlton. His friend was soon forgotten. Late in the evening our verdant friend, very much to the surprise of every one, stalked into the parlor and inquired for Mr. Charlton. Drawing from his bosom a four by six inch cake, he said:

'Mr. C., here's your cake. My brother had voted afore I had seed him.'

The Death Watch.

Though natural history long ago declared that these sounds proceed from a harmless insect, hundreds of believers still exist who refuse to be persuaded that the noise is not prophetic of the charnel house Even those who have been brought to credit the fact of the ticking being made by an insect, are reluctant all at once to abandon a gloomy notion, and therefore affirm that the sound is still significant of death; for, say they, it comes from a spider in the act of dying, and when the ticks cease the creature is dead. Many intelligent persons are aware that this latter opinion is equally erroneous with the former; but as others may lack such correct information, it might not be altogether superfluous to state that the insects in question is not a spider, but 'the pediculus of old wood, a species of vermes belonging to the order aptera in the Linnean system.' It is very diminutive. There are two kinds of death watches. One is very different in appearance from the other.—The former only beats seven or eight quick strokes at a time; the latter will beat some hours together more deliberately, and without ceasing. This ticking, instead of having anything to do with death is a joyous sound, and as harmless as the cooing dove. It is to be regretted that science, to which we owe so many blessings—so much of health, both bodily and mental—should have made an inconsiderate compromis with superstition, by naming this lively and harmless little creature mortgage—that is, the 'death presage.'

Two good natured Irishmen on a certain occasion, occupied the same bed. In the morning one of them inquired of the other if:

'Dennis, did you hear the thunder last night?'

'No, Pat.

'Yes, it did, and as if heaven and airth would come together.'

'Why the divil didn't you wake me: I can't slape when it thundres.'

The executive mansion at Raleigh, N. C., has been rented for the present year for $300.

A [illegible] IN RIDDLES.

Nine persons sailed from the Bales down the Rhine. A Jew who wished to go to Schalampt was allowed to come on board and journey with them, upon condition that he would conduct himself with propriety, and give the Captain eighteen kreuzers for his passage.

Now, it is true something jingled in the Jew's [illegible] when he had struck his hand against it, but the only money there, was a twelve kreuzer piece, for the other was a brass button.

Notwithstanding this, he accepted the offer with gratitude; for he thought to himself: 'Something may be earned even upon the water. There has many a man grown rich upon the Rhine.'

During the first part of the voyage the passengers were very talkative and merry, and the Jew, with his wallet under his arm, for he did not lay it aside, was an object of much mirth and mockery, as, alas! is often the case with those of his nation.

But as the vessel sailed onward, and passed Thuringen and St. Velt, the passengers, one after another, grew silent, and grasped and gazed listlessly down the river, until one cried—

'Come Jew, do you know any pastime that will amuse us? Your fathers must have contrived many a one during their journey in the wilderness.'

'Now is the time,' thought the Jew, 'to shear my sheep.'

He then proposed that they should sit round in a circle, and he, with their permission, would sit with them. Those who could not answer the questions any one proposed should pay the one who propounded them a twelve kreuzer piece; and those who answered them pertinently should receive a twelve-kreuzer piece

This proposal pleased the company, and, hoping to divert themselves with the Jew's wit or stupidity, each one asked—

'How many soft boilt eggs could the Giant Goliah eat on an empty stomach?'

'All said it was impossible to answer the question; but the Jew said.

'One: for he who has eaten one egg cannot put the second on an empty stomach,' and the other paid him twelve kreuzers.

'Wait, Jew,' thought the second, 'I will try you out of the New Testament, and I think I shall win my piece.'—Then said he, 'Why did the Apostle Paul write the Second Epistle to the Corinthians?'

'Because he was not in Corinth,' said the Jew, 'otherwise he would have spoken to them.'

So he won another twelve-kreuzer piece. When the third saw that the Jew was so well versed in the Bible he tried him in a different way.

'Who,' said he, 'prolongs his work to as great a length as possible, and completes in time?'

'The ropemaker, if he is industrious,' said the Jew.

In the meantime they drew near to a village, and one said to the other.'

'That is Bamlach.'

Then the forth asked.

'In what month do the people of Bamlach eat the least?'

'In February,' said the Jew; 'for it has only twenty-eight days.'

'There are two natural brothers,' said the fifth, and still only one of them is my uncle.'

'The uncle is your father's brother,' said the Jew, 'and your father is not your uncle.'

A fish now leaped out of water, and the sixth asked,

'What fish have their eyes nearest together?'

'The smallest,' said the Jew.

The seventh asked,

'How can a man ride from Bales to Berne in the shade, in the summer time, when the sun shines?'

'When he comes to a place where there is no shade he must dismount and go on foot,' was the answer.

The eight asked,—

'When a man rides in the Winter time from Berne to Balse, and has forgotten his gloves, how must he manage so that his hands shall not freeze?'

'He must make fists out of them,' said the Jew.

The ninth was the last, and he asked,—

'How can five persons divide five eggs so that each man shall receive one, and still one remain in the dish?'

'The last man must take the dish with the egg,' said the Jew, 'and he can let it lie there as long as he pleases.'

But now it came to his turn, and he determined to make a good sweep. After many preliminary compliments, he asked with an air of mischievous friendliness,—

'How can a man fry two trout in three pans, so that the trout may lie in each pan?'

No one could answer this and one after the other gave him a twelve-kreuzer piece; but when the ninth desired that he should solve the riddle, he rocked to and fro, shrugged his shoulders, and rolled his eyes.

'I am a poor Jew,' he said at last.

'What has that to do with it?' cried the rest. 'Give us the answer.'

'You must not take it amiss,' said the Jew, 'for I am a poor Jew.'

At last, after much persuasion and many promises that they would do him no harm, he thrust his hand into his pocket, took out one of the twelve-kreuzer pieces that had won, laid it upon the table, and said:

'I do not know the answer anymore than you. Here are my twelve kreuzers.'

When the others heard this they opened their eyes and said that this was scarcely according to the agreement. But as they could not control their laughter, and were wealthy and good-natured men, and as the Jew had helped them to while away the time from St. Velt Schalampt they let it pass; and the Jew, took with him from the vessel—let a good arithmetician reckon up for us how much the Jew carried with him. He had nine twelve-kreuzer pieces by his answers, nine with his own riddle, one in his pocket to start with, one he gave back, and eighteen kreuzers he gave to the Captain.

Iron.

The principal color, in nearly all the gems and precious stones, the jasper, onyx, bloodstone, etc., as well as in most minerals, is iron.

Astronomers have about concluded that the brightest prominences in the sun reveal themselves in burning iron.

All iron in a state of nature is an oxyde—that is a combination of oxygen and iron.

Pure iron is a white powdery substance, quite like ashes of a good cigar.

The yellow substance that covers the bottom and edge of springs, so popularly indicative of sulpher, is oxyde of iron.

In some stars no iron exist, so the spectroscope reveals; consequently the vicissitudes of the iron is not known to the natives of those systems.

In 1518 Lord Dudley introduced stone coal for smelting iron ores, but the process was so opposed by the iron masters that the idea died with himself.

About the only place where pure iron is found, outside the chemist's library, is in meteoric stones.

A strip of iron when put into a bottle of oxygen, will burn up like a bunch of straw.

Copperas is a compound of iron and sulphuric acid—no copper about it, as is generally supposed.

There is said to be enough iron in the blood of a healthy man to make a horse-shoe.

An Amusing Episode at a Hotel Breakfast Table.

Two young men, telegraph operators, board at a one of our leading third class hotels, and being of a somewhat hilarious disposition, find great amusement in carrying on conversation with each other at the table by ticking on their plates. For the information of those that are not acquainted with telegraphy, it may be well to state that a combination of sounds or tricks constitute the telegraphic alphabet, and persons familiar with those sounds can converse as intelligently as with spoken words. The young lightning strikers, were in the habit of indulging in table talk by this means whenever they desired to say anything private to each other.—For instance No. 1 would pick up his knife and tick off some such remark as this to No. 2: 'Why is this butter like the offense of Hamlet's uncle?' No. 2. Because it's rank and smells to Heaven.' Of course the joke is not appreciated by the land lord, but the jokers enjoy it immensely and laughed immoderately.

A few days ago while these fun loving youths were seated at breakfast, a stout built young man entered the dining room with a handsome girl on his arm, whose blushing countenance showed her to be a bride. The couple had been married but a day or two previous, and had come to San Francisco from their home in Oakland, or some other rural village, for the purpose of spending the honeymoon. The telegraphic tickers commenced as soon as the husband and wife had quietly seated them selves.

No 1 opened the conversation as follow: 'What a lovely little pigeon this is along side of me—ain't she?'

No. 2. 'Perfectly charming—looks as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. Just married, I guess, don't you think so?'

No. 1 'Yes, I should judge she was.—What lovely lips she's got. If that country bumpkin beside her was out of the road I'd give her one hug and a kiss just for luck.'

No. 2. 'Suppose you try it, anyhow, give her a little nudge under the table with your knee.'

There is no telling to what extent the imprudent rascals might have gone but for an amazing and entirely unforseen event. The bridegroom's face had flushed and a dark scowl was on his brow during the progress of the ticking conversation; but the operators were too much occupied with each other to pay attention to him. The reader may form some idea of the young men's consternation when the partner of the lady picked up his knife and ticked off the following terse but vigorous message:

'This lady is my wife, and as soon as she gets done her breakfast I will wring both of your necks—you mean, insolent whelps.'

The countenance of the opertors fell very suddenly when this message commenced. By the time it ended they had lost all appetite and appreciation of jokes and slipped out of the dining room in a very rapid and unceremonious manner. It seems the bridegroom was a telegraph operator, and knew just how it was himself.

A ranting politician at a dinner party in Berkshire County the other day talking of the intermarriage of whites and negroes, said: 'I don't believe in it. I think it is a sin. It is my opinion that every person ought to marry some one of his own sex.

THE GREAT CROWN-JEWELS OF RUSSIA.

As three brothers named Schafras were one day walking through the principal streets of Bagdad, the eldest of them stopped suddenly, and pointing to a stranger on the other side of the way, cried:

'See there is the Afghan we have looked for long!'

'Don't let us lose sight of him again,' said the others, and all three went toward the stranger, who seemed astonished.

'God is Good! fear not,' began the eldest of the brothers. 'I am Schafras, of Bassora, to whom you once came to sell a large diamond, called the 'Moon of the Mountains,' and other precious stones. These are my brothers, who, like myself, are pleased that we hope now to be able to make a bargain.'

'Oh! woe is me, good sires, I am no longer the possessor of those treasures,' replied the Afghan.

'What have you done with them?'

'Allah be praised! I have just sold them to the Jew Mardocha, of this city.'

'For what price?'

'For 65,000 piasters and two handsome horses.'

'You were a fool and Mardoch a thief!' cried Schafras, angrily. 'I would have given you twice that sum for the stones.'

'God is great! They were offered to you for half the sum; why were you such fool as not to take them?'

'Because I thought you a thief, and my conscience would not allow me to buy stolen goods. But what can not be cured must be endured. Where dose Mardoch, the Jew live?'

'I will show you, good sires, that there may be no ill feeling between us.'

The Afghan led the way to the house of the Jew, which was on the bank of the river Tigris. The brothers then thanked him kindly, and the eldest went to see if he could make a bargain with Mardoche.

'Son of Israel,' said he, 'you have a diamond called the Moon of the Mountains,' a sapphire called the 'Eye of Allah,' and other precious stones, which you have lately bought of a wandering Afghan, who did not come in possession of the them honestly. I will give you a handsome sum for your bargain.'

'How much?' asked the Israelite, with the air of a man who knows his business and the value of his goods.

'You gave 65,000 piasters and a pair of horses for them. I will give you 75,000, piasters and take the risk.'

'I should be sorry to see you a looser, replied the Jew, with an ironical smile.

'I will double the sum you gave for them,' said Schafras.

'Not for a million would I give them to you. Go your way; you know not the value of what you would purchase.'

The Amenian took his leave, inwardly cursing the Jew.

'He knows too much for us—I could make no bargain with the Jewish dog!' said Schafras to his brothers.

'Then we must take them without a bargain,' said the youngest, in a significant tone. His companions assented.

They now withdrew in order to decide upon the plan they should pursue. That night the three villians murdered Mardocha, and threw his body out of the window into the Tigris. Then they took all his money and jewels and hurried away. This danger they ran of being detected was far less than it would have been in most other countries. Who in Bagdad troubles himself about a lonely Jew?

The next morning the three brothers accidentally meet Afghan.

'Well, sirs; what success?' he asked.

'God is Good, and Mahomet is his Prophet,' answered the eldest.—'The jewels are ours, and to celebrate our good fortune, you must sup with us this evening in our tent beyond the city.'

The unsuspecting Afghan went with them to their tent, which was pitched in an out-of-the-way place on the bank of the Tigris, and there he supped for the last time. Schafras was always supplied with a fatal poison, some of which they mixed in the Afgan's food. When he was dead they threw his body into the Tigris, saying:

'Go hence, fool, and be company for the Jew. Thus we destroy all knowledge of the precious stones.'

Then they struck their tent, mounted their camels, and hastened to a solitary spot in order to examine and divide their treasures. They had no trouble with the money. Not so, however with the jewels, for the large diamond alone was of greater value than all the rest. Each one wanted it for his share. Their dispute seemed likely to lead to a serious alternation, when the eldest brother made the folowing proposal:

'By rights, the large diamond should be mine,' said he, 'for it was I who recognized the Afghan. But for me you would not have found him in Bagdad. In order however, that there may be harmony among the sons of my mother, we will contend no longer, but leave the matter to the decision of the Prophet. To morrow morning each one shall narrate the dream he has to-night, and he who can adduce the clearest proof of the Prophet shall have the the 'Moon of the Mountains.' This we swear by the beards of our fathers.'

The younger brothers were content with this proposition, for each one thought he could surpass the others in imagining a dream that would appear to come from the Prophet. But the eldest brother mixed some of the poison he always carried about his person in the evening meal of the two, and saw them die with fiendish delight.

He now gathered together all his treasures, mounted his camel, and rode away. The other camels he left to their fate, and the bodies of his murdered brothers to the vultures. His plan was to leave the country as speedily as possible, and to make his way to some European court, where he could dispose of the 'Moon of the Mountains' for a high price. On the road he sold his camel, dressed himself as a beggar, and so after many adventures and great fatigue, he reached Constantinople, where he took passage in a Dutch ship for Amsterdam. Here, feeling himself safe, he no longer made any secret of his possessions, but giving himself out to be a jeweler, he offered his most valuble stones for sale to the Ambassadors of the principal European courts.

The 'Moon of the Mountains' and the 'Eye of Allah' were not wholly unknown in Europe. They had for many years been in the possession of the royal family of Persia, and it was said that after the assassination of Nadir Schah, they together with other precious stones, were stolen by common soldiers, who were ignorant of their value. It was, therefore, only necessary for Schafras to state what he had to excite the interest of the amateurs.

But for a long time there was none who seemed inclined to to enter into negotiations with him for the purchase of the large diamond and the wonderful saphire. As, however the Moslem was well supplied with money, and had, besides, a number of small stones that were easily available, he waited patiently, feeling certain that sooner or later a customer would present himself.

The first serious inquiry after the price of the 'Moon of the Mountains' came from Catharine II of Russia. In St. Petersburg, were they were always well informed with regard to what transpired at the Persian court, they were most competent to judge of the real value of the stone.

The robber and murderer demanded 500,000 rubles, a life annuity of 10,000 rubles, and a patent of nobility.

Cathrine II, ordered one of her ministers to invite the pretended diamond merchant to St. Petersburg, that the court jeweler might examine the diamond, and estimate its value.

The minister ordered the court jeweler to hold out the Amenian the hope that the Empress would accept his proposal, and in the mean time to lead him into all sorts of excesses and expenditures.

Schafras went to St. Petersburg, and soon fell into a trap that had been set for him. Soon all his ready money was gone, and, as he had credit every where—it being known that he had business with the court—it was not long before he was 'over head and ears in debt.' This was what the Minister wanted. By the Russian law any foreigner may be prevented from leaving the country so long as he is in debt. The supposition was that the Armenian would at last be compelled to dispose of his diamond for whatever price he could get for it.

'Tell him that Her Majesty has decided not to accede to his exorbitant demands; and then, if he must sell, pretend that you will buy it on your own account, and offer him one quarter of what the stone is worth.' Such were the instructions of the Minister to the court jeweler.

This message and the offer of the jeweler opened Schafras' eyes. 'God is good and Mahomt is his propet!' he murmured, 'These Christian dogs want to cheat me out of that for which I have periled my soul. The fools have got me into debt, and think now I shall be compelled to take my price they choose to offer me, but they shall see that a follower of the Prophet is a match for this whole nation of rascals.'

Schafras now very adroitly encouraged the belief that he would soon be compelled to part with the diamond for the price offered him, while he secretly disposed of a portion of his smaller jewels, paid his debts, and left the country on board an English vessel.

When they came to look for the Moslem he was nowhere to be found, which was very embarrassing for the Minister, as Catharine was greatly incensed at the loss of the stone, and demanded it should be obtained, cost what it might.

For several years every effort of the Russian court to find Schafras proved futile, but finally they succeeded in tracking him to Smyrna.

They againe invited him to induce him to accept the invatation. 'Ask Her Majesty if she expects to catch an old fox a second time in the same trap?' was the reply. 'To save time and words listen to my ultimatum. I demand a patent of nobility and 800,000 rubles, which must be paid immediately. I will wait here a month for your reply. If my conditions are not accepted, I swear by the beard of the Prophet that Catharine II. shall never be the possessor of the 'Moon of the Mountains.'

The result was that the Empress finally acceeded to these exorbitant demands, and Schafras, the robber and murderer, who was now a Russian nobleman, returned to his native city Astrachan, where he married and had seven daughters.

The end of the villian was such as his life fully merited. One of his sons-in-law, for whose convenience he lived too long, poisoned him. Before his death he made a full confession of his crimes. The major portion his great wealth, amounting to several millions, was confiscated by the Russian Government. The remainder, was soon squandered by his heirs, and several of his descendants are now living in extreme poverty.

And this is said to be the history of the 'Moon of the Mountains', one of the Russian crown diamonds.

It has been ascertained by actual experiment that the Bible can be read through in fifty-nine hours an something over thirty minutes. A Connecticut clergyman kept and exact account of the time occupied in reading it, sometimes one hour and sometimes two hours a day, aloud to his wife, with the above result.

A correspondent in Brooklyn is reminded of a comical reminder he received in his youth. Here is the story:

'I was helping my father [illegible] a stack, on a hot day, and [illegible] that we had forgotten the ladder belonging to the front part of the rack on which the grain was loaded, and when my father attempted to get on the load, the ladder not being in its place, he found it hard work. He finally succeeded in gaining the top, and grunting with fatigue and vexation, he cautioned me, characteristically, not to forget to get that ladder, and put it in its place for the next load, which of course, I forgot to do, and so he did. By some singular fatality, the same thing happened three times, the caution being given with increased emphasis each time.—When he had mounted the third time, he turned towards me his sharp gray eye and puffing and blowing, and entirely out of patience, he exclaimed: 'Benjamin, if you can't think of that ladder, do put me in mind of it.'—Ex.

The Courier.

AUBURN, IND., FEB. 8, 1872.

Those Republicans who oppose civil service reform thereby admit that the appointment of competent and honest men to office will be fatal to their party organization.

The New York Herald is of the opinion that we want statesmanship in the Treasury Department. Is not that want prominent in every department of the Government?

The Republicans speak of 'Democratic ignorance,' ignoring the fact that the negroes—who constitute the majority of the illiterate citizens of our country,—are the unswerving supporters of the party in power.

An Illinois lawyer writes to a friend in New Haven that he is one of 50,000 Republicans in that State who are all resolved to forget past differences and unite upon any good man that will deliver our country from the hands of the political cormorants and pluderers that are sucking its life away.

A negro, writing to the Philadelphia Press on Senator Sumner's Supplementary Civil Rights bill, says: 'If Republican Senators, elected by colored votes, give their influence and votes against this measure, it might be well for them to remember that negroes, alone with instinct, have 'terrible memories.'

'Arrest of another defaulting revenue Collector. Another Postmaster caught at robbing the mails. A Treasury Clerk makes confession of having stolen thousands of dollars'—these, and similar headings, glare from the columns of the metropolitan press nearly every day. The details they furnish are pleasant reading for the tax payers.

The New York Sun thus appeals to the magnanimity of the President:

'If General Grant had ten grains of sense and good feeling, one of the first things he would do would be to send his check for one thousand dollars as a subscription to the Greeley statute fund. But he has neither head nor heart enough to appreciate the beauty of a magnanimous action.

Schurz will certainly not support the re-election of Grant. Sumner will not support him. Tipton will not support him, nor will ex-Senator Fowler, of Tennessee, support him. Govenors Brown and Palmer will not support him. Add to this force such journals as the New York Tribune and Springfield Republican, and the 'bolters' may be regarded as pretty well officered.

The Washington Patriot groups together the following array of figures: Pension frauds, $8,000,000 per annum (Mr. Garfield); pension frauds during Grant's incumbency, $24,000,000; revenue loss by smuggling and fraud—one-forth of the who (report of Civil-service Comission); average annual revenue, $500,000,000; average annual stealage, 125,000,000; stealage during Grant's incumbency, $375,000,000; total, $399,000,000.

The Sinking Fund.

The Supreme Court having decided that the law authorizing the distribution of the Sinking Fund is valid, it will now be distributed to the several counties for educational purposes. It amounts to $565,000 and has not been so distributed for ten years past. Since the Republicans came into power. The Radical officials have had use of this money during this time pocketing the interest and making no return of the same to the State. So much for the Democracy, since they came into power.

The Laport Herald, a Radical, says of the Morton that he was not the first to define, declare and defend the issues which now underlie the Republicn platform. In September, 1866, in his unfortunate Richmond speech, he denounced negro suffrage, and was unmistakably tainted with Johnsonism; and still later, he argued that the national debt might be legally 'paid' in paper promises, and for a time certainly wished so (if he did not favor) the Pendletonian greenback heresy. In fact he coquetted with the Repudiationists, till the logic of events stiffened up his back and lifted him into a stouter, better Radicalism.

Hon. Thomas C. Jenks, a Radical representative in Congress from the tate of Rhode Island, declared in a peech in the House, that one hundred aillions of dollars are annually lost to the people by the rascality and incompetency of Radical officials. And further, he says that out of every dollar appropriated to the Indians, only about twenty per cent. is received by them, and 'that if the thieving officials could be stopped the money they annually, corruptly and feloniously deprive the government of would pay the national debt before it is due.' This is certain [illegible] startling announcement, but not overdrawn, as Mr. Jenks undoubtedly would not want assail his party in such a manner where he not able to substantiate the charges he has made. The people [illegible] ponder over these things, and [illegible] there are scarcely [illegible]

A WAR WITH ENGLAND.

Despatches have been received at Washington urging the Administration to withdraw the claims for consequential damages for the present, but it is firm in the conviction, that the case as presented by our government shall not be amended or withdrawn.—It regards the Geneva Commission as a court and feel that America has a right to go before that court like any other party to action, and leave the question to its decision. If our case shows any surprising features the fault will be with the English, who permitted themselves, for their own gain, to become parties, to acts of war upon the United States.

A dispatch has been received from Minister Schenck to the effect that the excitement in London is intense, but no recomendations are made. English Minister Thornton combats the view of the Administration as to the Geneva Commission being a court, and urges that it shall be treated as an amicable conference. Mr. Evarts is about to return to this country for further instructions.

New York, Feb. 5.—The Herald's Washington special says that the excitement is getting very high among the officials in that city in consequence of our relations with England, and there has been constant interferences between Representatives of the American Government and the English Embassy. The situation on England as reprecented by the English Legation to Washington is of the gravest character. The Tory party, although represented by Stafford Northcote, one of the Joint High Commissioners, is desirous of forcing the Alabama question upon Parliament and compel such a vote as would declare its want of confidence in the Gladstone Ministry, in consequence is seeking the Alabama case to parry the results of the Tories.

A Mean and Cowardly Attack.

We have deferred saying anything relative to the personal attack made by the Laporte Argus, in order to get at some facts to prove the falsity of the assertions made. That paper asserts that Col. McDonald wrote the article in the Fort Wayne Sentinel. We saw Mr. Dumm of that paper last week, and learned that he himself wrote the article in question, the facts being furnished by a friend at Columbia City, without the Colonel's solicitation or knowledge even of their ultimate design when his private papers were asked for. Mr. D. says that as far as he knows Col. McDonald was not consulted, and that he wrote the article from notes in the hand-writing of this friend. Thus is exposed the malicious designs of those who have met with a merited rebuff in their unnatural desire for office.

Again, it is asserted by these two disaffected individuals that Mr. McDonald was an independent candidate in 1859. This falsehood is admirably shown up by the Columbia City Post of last week. It says that "in 1859, for certain reasons, Col. McDonald was urged to be an independent candidate for an office, but he positively refused; and that he was ever an independent for any office, is a base falsehood, and the record will prove the charge false in fact, and malicious in spirit."

But it is unnecessary to proceed further, as the entire article has for its base and superstructure nothing but falsehood and misrepresentation.

Stoll is the head and front of all this shystering, prompted evidently from the inflated opinions he entertains of his power and influence in the tenth district. "I am the great Mogul, and this must be done, I demand it." It wasn't done, however, and the great Mogul is mad. Well, who cares?

That the private and public record of Col. McDonald, who has resided in Whitley county and the Democratic party for thirty years, should be gathered up and made public by some friend, annoys Johnny terribly. Why Johnny, you don't like Mac. because he would not urge his county to vote for you over Maj. Sprott for delegate to the National Convention. Just as soon as you find you can't control a man, you get mad, become vindictive, and throw mud at him. We hope, for the sake of the Democratic party, that this vindictiveness has spent its force, and that a more honorable opposition, if any, will have taken the place of these unjust recriminations and misrepresentations.

It is probably known to most of our readers that a sufficient number of men are disfranchised in Rhode Island to change the result of the elections if they were allowed to vote. The disfranchised parties are nearly all of foreign descent, and for this reason, together with the fact that they are poor and do not own a certain amount of real estate, they are debarred from the privileges of the franchise. The men [illegible] are now engaged in preparing a petition asking congress to enforce the la[illegible] amendments to the constitution, and thus give to them the rights which by the amendments they are clearly entitled to. It is well known that nearly all these men will vote the Democratic ticket, and when they accomplish their ends it is not unfair to predict that Rhode Island will be a Democratic state. Thus [illegible]

It can't be possible that the Ligonier Banner and Laport Argus have in view to silence the friends of Col. I. B. McDonald in urging the name of that gentleman before the Democratic State Convention for Lieut. Governor? If they have such an intention they are watsing their time and spending their ammunition in a wrong direction. We do not believe the State Convention will entirely ignore the rights and demands of Northern Indiana. Mr. McDonald perhaps is not a favorite among a certain class of wire pullers, but his round majority of seven hundred in his own county, in 1870, fully proved to us his popularity among the voting population. As evidence of his ability and industry we point to his record in the Senate Journal.—Warsaw Union.

The Liberal Republicans of Missouri.

The Liberal Republicans of Missouri held a mass Convention at Jefferson City a few days ago and adopted the following resolutions.

Resolved, That we, the liberal republicans of Missouri, faithful as we were in the dark days of the civil war to the vital principles of true republicanism, by no act or word will endanger the rightful sovereignty of the union, emancipation, equality of civil rights, or enfranchisement. To those established facts, now imbedded in the constitution, we claim the loyalty of all good citizens.

Resolved, That a true and lasting peace can come only from such proposed conciliation as enfranchisement has wrought in this State; nor can those governments be pure or great in which taxpayers have no active part. We therefore demand with equal suffrage for all complete amnesty for all, that the intellect and experience of every State may be welcomed to active service for the common welfare.

Resolved, That no form of taxation is just or wise which puts needles burdens upon the people. We demand a genuine reform of the tariff, so that those duties shall be removed which, in addition to the revenue yield to the price of domestic products and a consequent tax for the benefit of favored interests.

Resolved, That shameless abuse of government patronage for the control of conventions and elections, whether in the interests of an individual, a faction or a party, with the consequent corruption and demoralization of political life, demands a thorough and genuine reform of the public service. Those who would suppress investigation forget that they owe a higher duty to the country than any party—We honor those Senators whose courageous course has compelled a disclos er of grave misdeeds, and they deserve thanks and hearty support of all good citizens.

Resolved, That local self-government with impartial suffrage, will guard the rights of all citizens more securely than any centralized authority. It is time to stop the growing encroachments of the executive power; the use of coercion or briefry to ratify a treaty; the packing of a supreme court to relieve rich corporations; the seating of members of congress not elected by the people: the resort to unconstitutional laws to cure the KuKlux disorder, irreligion or intemperance, and those who ask that the practice or creed of some shall be the law of all. We demand for the individual the largest liberty consistent with public order, for the state self-government, and for the nation a return to the methods of peace and constitutional limitations of power.

Resolved, That true republicanism makes it not the less our duty to expose corruption, denounce usurpation of power and work for the reforms necessary for the public welfare. The times demand an uprising of honest citizens to sweep from power the men who prostitute the name of an honored party to selfish interests. We therefore invite all republicans who desire the reform herein set forth, to meet in national mass convention, at the city of Cincinnati, on the first Wednesday of May next, at 12 M., there to take such action as our convictions of duty and the public exigency may require.

Senator Schurz writes from Washington, Jan. 20, that the same principles the liberal republicans of Missouri inscribed on their banner in 1870 are now inscribed on the larger field of national politics. The removal of political disabilities is still the subject of controversy, and the liberal republicans may point with pride to their wise and conciliatory action. While nowhere the civil war was carried on with more ferocity, there is no state to-day in which more unbroken peace and order prevails, or in which the new rights of the emancipated slaves are more compeltely respected and in which the revival of fraternal feeling is more general. When the same spirit is in congress, we hope to see similar results accomplished, even in those unfortunate communites where the reminiscences of the civil war are are still kept alive by violent disorders, caused in great measure, by an exclusion of a numerous class of influential men from the management of public affairs. Mr. Schurz next speaks of civil service reform and says it is improbable in the political contests now before us that the trick will be resorted to of opening a prospect of reform through one influence, and of the defeat of that reform through another, for the purpose of catching reformers and sportsmen in one net. The writer expresses misgivings as to the dangerous efforts which will be made to render genuine re[illegible] impossible, and urges those whom he calls its true friends to come to an intelligent understanding as to steps to be ta[illegible] for the promotion of [illegible] great an object.

Senator Schurz next refers to the revenue reform, and usurpations, congressional assumption of power, and alluding to the recent overthrow of the New York Tammany ring, says that nothing could be more desirable than that this revolution should not be confined to the limits of a state, or one political organization. The letter concludes with the hope that those sincerely devoted to the great ends of public good will not let more party dictation or artfully uncalled for renewal of old war cries, deter them from following the course pointed out by their sense of duty.

We are in favor of the nomination of Col. McDonald. We expect to support him in convention as long as there is a reasonable chance of his own success, and we believe that his chances are good; but if defeated we will support his fortune ate rival with the same zeal and alacrity that we would have bestowed upon our favorite candidate. We will not come home with a scab under our hat, snarling and snapping at those who defeated us, and we advise Bro. Wadsworth to change his course and do likewise; and this advise is wholly gratuitous, it might be used by several others to advantage.—Miami County Sentinel.

Eclipse, for 1872.

In 1872 there will be four eclipses, two of the moon.

1. May 22, a partial eclipse of the moon invisible in the United States, and therefore not especially interesting to the majority of our readers.

II. June 5, an annular eclipse of the sun, subject to same disadvantage as above An "annular" eclipse is when a part of the sun's disc, projects as a brilliant circle around the dark shadow of the moon.

III. November 14 and 15, a partial eclipse of the moon, invisible in the United States. At Boston, it begins at 12:15 midnight, and ends at 12:55.

IV. November 30, an annualar eclipse of the sun, not visible in the United States. Should we be 'doubling' Cape Horn, at the time, the darkness will be visible to us.

Sewing Machine

IS THE BEST!

WHY?

1st. Because it runs easy and still, and does not tire a lady of delicate health.

2d. Because it has the largest and latest improved shuttle of any Family Sewing Machine made.

3d. Because it has the capacity of sewing heavier thread and heavier goods than any other machine in use.

4th. Becaus it has a larger space under the needle arm, affording the operator greater facilities for quilting, working bulky goods, or applying patent attachments.

5th. Because it is the simplest and most perfect machine in the market, giving a lady no trouble to learn to operate it successfully, and not liable to get out of order.

6th. Because we are responsible to every person that purchases a machine of us, and guarantee every one we put out to be of No. 1 materia, and that it will do its work as well as any other sewing machine made.

Plymouthites now wear little bags of assafoetida, gum-camphor, salt and sulphur, around the neck, to keep away the small-pox. The ladies have their bags beautifully embroidered.

Somebody has sent us a paper full of notices of G. S. Orth for Govenor. Can't see it, we ain't on that line, and all the newspaper puffs imaginable will never get him that office.

The editors of the Fort Wayne Journal are outspoken on the temperance question.—Henry County Rep.

Yes, if you could hear them name their poison you would think so. We do.

We are in receipt of a very pretty announcement that the Germania society, of Fort Wayne, will give one of their excellent hops at Ewing's Hall, on February 13th.

A young gent invited his girl out to sleigh ride last Saturday evening. She asked him where his sleigh was, and he told her it was round at the liberty stable. Fact!

Donation—The citizens of Butler made the Pastor of the M. E. Church a donation, at M. E. & T. C. Sergeants Hotel on Friday evening Feb. 2d 1872, to the amount of $121,60. Principally in cash.

Rev. J. Cooper. Pastor.

Fox Hunt—All those who claim an interest in the grand fox hunt can get their certificates of stock, by calling on the getters up. Stock in this company is supposed to be above par, and advancing rapidly.

Prayer Meetings have been held at the M. E. Church, in this place during the past week. On last Tuesday night services begun, and we are now on the eve of of what, we trust, will prove a great revival.

It is proposed that another fox hunt be arranged, to center on Waterloo or Auburn. The object of this is to give the foxes a chance for their lives, by taking refuge under side-walks, which seem to be especially adapted for that purpose.

Valentines.—Davenport & Co., have opened out a fine assortment of these missives, also a coarse supply, for the boys, consisting of big heads on small bodies. Girls, this is leap year, you can send them around with impunity.

Geo. Francis Train, lectures in Fort Wayne on the 20th of this month. If you want to enjoy yourself go and hear him.—He is better than a minstrel show for fun.

Ole Bull, the famous violinist, gives an entertainment at the Opera House on Mar. 1st.

Some of our subscribers that are in arrears are very good men we have no doubt and we want to give them a chance to prove themselves such. But there are some, doubtless, who will swindle us if they can, and they are the ones we mean when we say scalawags.

From what we can learn of the prospects of the extension of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, is to the effect that it will pass through this county at or near Syracuse, that route being the shortest and most feasible of any yet surveyed.—Warsaw Union.

The January thaw was a complete failure this year, and February starts in with a seeming determination that there shall not be any simmering down this month. The only people who enjoy this style of weather are Alexis and the Laplanders who happened to be in this country.

The Waterloo Press man, is all right, though, like the Gazette fellow, he is a lit tle pedantic as an editor and hump backed as a politician.

Baxter, that will never do. We don't want a DeKalb County man abused by Tom Taylor. Go for him Mr. Press, and annihilate him at one fell stroke.

Brainard's Musical World, for February is on our table. We notice some new features in this issue. There are a Dramatic column, a very complete record of Music at home and abroad, and an unusual amount of spicy original matter.

The music this month is, 'Remember the Poor,' an appropriate song for this season of the year, and 'Indian Summer,' a reverie for the Piano; both good and pleasing. $1.00 a year. S. Brainard's Sons, Publishers, Cleveland, Ohio.

After the fox hunt last Saturday, and when all had departed from the rallying spot, except a hound, the faithful animal came out in full chase after a large fox which had been secreted in the ring during the whole time. We think the crowd had ought to have stayed a day or two to make it sure.

Prof. Straub.—This excellent teacher of music has been engaged to hold a convention in this place the latter part of this month. We hope that every one will do their best to make it a success. He is spoken of very highly where ever he has been and those of this county who have been attending his conventions pronounce him first-class.

Stave Factory.—We dropped in at the stave factory yesterday and found a large force at work, rushing out the staves by the thousand. So successful has the manu factory become that a large addition will be erected immediately, the timber being already on the ground. The supply of bolts is very good, and now is the time to haul them.

Dangerous.—One of the bridges, east of the Eagle Mills is positively in a dangerous condition and we call the attention of the authorities to the same, before the occurrece of serious accidents. We think there are the poorest bridges in this county we have ever seen in any county before. This one is in a wretched condition and ought to be attended to at once.

Mr. Keeran has presented us with a bottle of Golden oil, said to be a great panacea for almost every ill.—Auburn Courier

It is said the oil will cure the itch and kill parasites. Tom. Mays can tell "how it is himself," after giving it a trial.—Fort Wayne Journal.

If we thought it would cure drunkenness we would send you a bottle, and if you could'nt use yourself, Tom, there's plenty around you that could.

The fox hunt did not yield as much as was expected. When the grand charge was made somebody shot a quail and that was all to be found. There were foxes in front of the line, but escaped through the gap made by poor management. Get up another, conduct it right and your efforts will be rewarded with success. Keep back the crowd that always rushes to the centre to see the fun, and the best way to do this is to not let them know anything about it. Invite your men quietly and start at the time proposed and you will have game as well as fun.

Subscribers are coming in and paying up very promptly this week, and we hope the good work will continue until all have paid. There are a large number in the county that do not take the Courier, but are subscribing for city papers, and doing nothing towards sustaining a county paper. This is all wrong, and we trust our friends will use their influence to have them assist home institutions. The present year is an important one in a political way, and every voter should take his party paper by all means, and bote if he can afford it. We trust our friends will do us the favor of getting their neighbors to subscribe

Change.—The Fort Wayne Sentinel contained the announcement last week that hereafter that excellent paper would be conducted by Messrs. R. D. Dumm and Wm. Fleming The Sentinel has had many vicisitudes but none that seemed to be fraught at the time with so much promise, for its future, as this last Mr. Fleming is well known in this part of the State, having filled important and responsible positions, and being recognized as the leading spirit in the great business enterprise of this section. With the energy and experience of Mr. Dumm, as a journalist, and Mr Fleming's excellent business tact, will surely make the Sentinel what it deserves to be, the first paper in the State.

Baltimore & Ohio.—The LaGrage Standard in speaking of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad says "there can be no imprudence in saying that we have always entertained serious misgivings as to our success in securing the location of the road on this line." We have always entertained every hope that this line must be built through Auburn, and we have no doubt as to the result. It further says "that the building of such a magnificent line of road through our county would be worth to us four thousand per mile, or even twice four thousand, is uncontrovertable, but a great many of our people will not look at these things as our local interests demand they should, and there is no method of compelling people to act in such matters contrary to their chosen line of policy. The course our people should pursue in reference to the construction of at least one good line of east and west railway, is not by any means doubtful, and we hope the time may never come when they will feel, as a community, that they have to their serious injury neglected their opportunities.

They Say.—Who is "they say?" He is a most cowardly liar. He is without form without flesh and blood, without mercy. He is in Auburn; he is in everywhere; he is omnipresent; he is the universal scapegoat for personal gossip, envy and malice. No character, position or sex escapes the poisoned arrows of slander, that fly from the exhaustless quiver of "They say." When one wishes to assail some person's character or motives, 'they say' is always invoked. Men and women do not always think it polite or expedient to reveal their real feelings, so with smiles and pretended friendship they represent the lie that is to injure some one beyond reparation as coming from 'They say.' Be sure of this, that when some slanderous tale is told you and the relator can give no more tangible author than 'They say,' that the slander is the creation of the speaker at your side, and that it is his or her earnest wish to have the falsehood of 'They say' bud into reality and become current coin in the community.

Among the shining lights attending court, at this place, from abroad are Baker and Blake, of Goshen; Morris and Taylor, of Fort Wayne; and Frank Sawyer, of Norwalk, Ohio.

President Loomis, of the Saginaw Road was in town yesterday.

The snow, the beautiful snow, came down in great quantities on Sunday night and the result is we have splendid sleighing. The weather is clear and beautiful, and if it remains so to-day it will pack the snow pretty solid, but we have no fears of its leaving us yet.

The Grand Fox Hunt.

"Did you participate in the fox hunt?" is a question that seems to have an equal importance and pertinence with the one, "Have you been vaccinated." The first query originated from a magnificently planned, and vigorously prosecuted fox hunt, last Saturday, in this township, by the great Nimrods of our county. It was a grand exhibition in which all participated with an enjoyment similar to that evinced by the Kings and Nobles in the ancient days when a bull was to be killed—This was somewhat more grand, because there was an equality here—all were nobles, at least you would have thought so to have seen them nobly ploughing through the snow pressing on to the goal. We thought we saw in the horsemen a Don Quixotte, going forth to do battle for the chivalrous, their tin horns answering for the mighty weapon with which this renowned plug ugly made his reputation.—It also reminded us of the dark days of the rebellion, when the tocsin of alarm was sounded upon every threshhold. Early in the morning, just as the first golden tints of the early morn were darting their yellow rays over the dappled sky, while yet that faithful sentinel, the rooster, was heralding fourth the approach of day, there could have been seen men and dogs arming for the strife. All morning there was hurrying to and fro, and forming of lines to rally upon the centre. In due time the loud peal of the cannon was heard, when a shout went up—a shout of liberty—for the foxes, we presume, for they got it—that sounded like a battle cry, and in a moment the beautiful lines advanced, and keeping time to the music of the—dogs (some fellow was pounding one because it did'nt want to be led,) their bright colors flying—a handcherchief on a pole—and the Marshals dashing along the lines—on foot—made up one of those magnificient pageants rivaling even the splendor of the great Napoleon. Onward come the line, en masse—about two to a mile—like a zouave charge, only not so much so, until it rested in the suburbs of the town, the inhabitants of which had been out for hours previous to that, counting the foxes as they scampered along before this invincible line. We noticed one particular Fox ourself just west of the Bakery, it was a whopper, we called the marshal's attention to it, and he saw it in a moment, it was a fine point to reduce so quick, but be was equal to the emergency. Soon the distance music was heard approaching, and the excitement was at its height.—Horn after horn resounded and several disappeared, and the whole populace rushed forth to the culminating point to see the show. Gradually the lines were contracting until solid aphalanx of hunters described a circle, within which hundreds of foxes, perhaps, were to meet their fate. As if the horns and dogs did not make the necessary music, the men now became wild with enthusiasm, and chimed in, making a noise altogether lovely for the foxes Thousands had arrived when the grand rally was to be made—counting the dogs and children,—and a halt was made to give the foxes a chance, as we supposed to get inside the line, but we were soon corrected as to our impression, as one fellow come along and wanted to bet that there were not 160 already in the ring. There were no takers, because everybody was busy watching the fun. The east line had not yet arrived and there was every prospect of increasing the number, through the gaps left by the prompt action of this line In a few moments, however, we heard a number of cow bells, and they said the line was coming, and pretty soon we saw three fellows climbing a fence some distance off, Indian fashion, and we knew from this that it was the east line. Every body was confident—that there wasn't a fox within some miles, but the excitement increased, and finally a grand rush was made upon the spot supposed to contain any amount of foxes. Everybody yelled but the foxes. Those poor creatures had slipped out while the crowd was so intent upon cheering, and the whole thing resulted as did mother Hubbard's visit to the cupboard. And thus ended one of the grandest fox hunts we have ever attended, this being the first one. We hope another will be arranged soon, as it is rare sport to waddle several miles through deep snow just for fun, you know.

Explosion.—Several young men called at the restaurant of Mr. Gettel, at New Era, one evening last week, to enjoy a few bivalves, more commonly called oysters. Not having the fresh article on hand, cove oysters were substituted, and being frozen in the can, they were placed near the stove to thaw. The progress made in this respect not being satisfactory, they were placed upon the live coals inside the stove The boys kept up a round of small talk and nonsense until they quite forgot about the cans in the stove. They were suddenly reminded of the fact, however, by an explosion of one which blew the door of the stove some distance. This brought all close to where the fire works were going on, when two, three went the rest, literally breaking the stove to pieces, and scattering them in every direction. Nobody was hurt seriously but a more frightened looking set you never saw. One fellow got outside and ran less than three quarters of a mile before he stopped. Gentlemen you should postpone your fire works until the summer.

Sleighing Parties.—Last Wednesday evening two sled loads come down from Waterloo, and were entertained at the residence of Wm. McIntyre, Esq. It was a very agreeable affair, and we were glad to see our friends enjoy themselves. A little accident by the way in this connection. It was discovered, after the party left Waterloo, that it was composed of Republicans with one exception. It was an accident altogether, and was only equaled by the fact that when they arrived they found all Democrats but one. It was a co-incidence all round, and was the source of much sport. This is taking extremes, bringing them together on an equilibrium, and precipitating the whole into a conglomeration of social intercourse, unparallelled in the annals of the ante-deluvians. You understand.

On last Friday evening this visit was returned by a large party going from this place, who were handsomely entertained at the residence of G. A. O. McClellan, Esq It may be a long time before we shall again enjoy a series of parties, so full of real pleasure, courtesy and amusement as these were.

A man who tells us that he is a minister of the gospel has been lecturing at the U. B. Church for several evenings. His subject was the evils of Masonry. He, of course, attempted to expose all the secrets of the fraternity, but succeeded in exposing nothing but his own ignorance, besides his language and comparisons were very indecent and unbecoming a gentleman. Some, of course, laughed at his gestures but the more intelligent looked as though they smelled someting nasty.

Waterloo, Jan. 30, 1872.

Messrs. Editors :—With your permission I desire to say that, on Monday evening, the 29th, though the weather was intensely cold, a respectable and thoughtful audience assembled in the Wesleyan Church in Wilmington township, to listen to a speech on the subject of temperance, by Rev. A. Worth of Jay county. Excellent attention was given, and then the pledge of abstinence from all intoxicating drinks was circulated, and forty signatures received. They then proceeded to organize an open temperance society, auxiliary to the County Society, with P. B. Nimmons, as Pres., and Worth Coates as Secretary. All the officers necessary for a thorough and efficient organization were elected, and money raised to buy some good temperance music to be used in the meetings of the society. The meeting in every sense of the word was a success. We mean to create a public sentiment that shall sweep every obstacle before it, and compel political parties to give us good temperance men for our state, and national officers. We mean to have a law, at least, as stringent as the 'Illinois law,' which shall give those who have been injured by the traffic in ardent spirits, or any one who may choose to vindicate their cause, the right to bring suit for damages in the name of the state. The society adjourned to meet on the evening of February 17th, and let this be a general notification to the friends of Temperance to meet at that time at the Wesleyan church and lend a helping hand to this much needed reform.

MANHOOD.
How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure of certain weakness, the effects of errors and abuses in early life. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of such errors and abuses may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal machine or the application of the knife pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent, under seal, in plain envelope, to any address, post paid on receipt of six cents, or two post stamps.

Baptized in Fire.
THE CHICAGO PHENIX.
A UNIVERSAL NEWSPAPER.

READ THE FOLLOWING.

popular weekly paper for the times, embracing the leading features of those journals destroyed by the terrible conflagration, and combining just such a corps of writers as will give the public all the news of the week, in a condensed compilation of the leading journals of the nation and the world.

A TRUTHFUL RECORD.

The Phenix will be the most truthful and reliable recorder of incidents and facts concerning the great fire, ever published.

ACCOUNTS OF THE FIRE.

It will contain only such accounts as are vouched for by reliable witnesses, and will correct the erroneous and fabricated statements of sensational writers.

CHICAGO AND THE NEWS.

It will, for a time, be devoted especially to the past, present and future of Chicago, besides being he most complete weekly newspaper in the world.

FIRESIDE COMPANION AND NEWSPAPER.

Its columns are devoted to News, Commerce Science, Literature, Art, Drama, Music, Humor, Pastimes, Poetry, Fashion, Society news, and enough of Romance to make it a most desirable fireside companion, as well as the most reliable and complete newspaper for the business man in the counting room.

BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS.

It will be illustrated with engravings taken from photographs of the Chicago Ruins, instead of sketches, by our special artist who was not on the spot; and thus gives a series of perfect views, not obtainable elsewhere, and the first number will contain the only correct map of the burnt city.

HAPPY HOURS.

That beautiful literary journal, "Happy Hours" whose publisher was the first to issue a paper to meet the public demand, after the awful fire, has been merged into the literary department of the "Phenix," which will embrace the contributions of more than sixty of the most popular writers of the day.

A SPECIAL FEATURE.

The "Phenix will contain, as an especial feature a more complete record of incidents and results of the late terrible fire, than can be found in any book paper, or publication in the country. So numerous and inaccurate have been the accounts sent forth, that something reliable and readable is eagerly sought at this time, and The "Phenix" will fill the bill.

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

The "Phenix is the cheapest paper in America, being an eight page, forty column weekly, at only two dollars a year. In fact it shall be the paper for the people and the times.

THE FIRST NUMBER.

The first number will be issued on Saturday Nov 11th, and will be the paper wanted by everybody, as a record worth preserving or to send away and for its accurate illustrations.

ITS BASIS.

It is a consolidation of other journals, and these form a solid foundation, containing their former circulation.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

To any person who gets us three new subscribers we will send the "Phenix" for one year free, or one of our beautiful prize, steel plate engravings worth $2.50.

PREMIUMS.

For the purpose of rapidly increasing our subscription list before the close of the present year we will give to every person who subscribes for the "Phenix" during the month of November, a beautiful steel engraving, worth $2.00, half a dollar more than the price of subscription. No such opportunity was ever before given, and probably never will be again. Avail yourself of it. Engravings will be promptly and safely sent by mail or delivered at this office, as subscribers may direct.

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

Send in your names and subscriptions at once, and sustain this great newspaper enterprise. Price of subscriptions only two dollars per year. Single copies 5 cents. Agents wanted everywhere.

It is the highest duty, privilege, and pleasure for great men to earn what they possess, to work their own way through life, to be architects of all their own fortunes.

'Now, then, children,' said a parish school-mistress, showing her pupils off on examination day, 'who loves all men.' 'You missus,' was the very unexpected answer.

Look always at the bright side of every thing, as the cheering and invigorating run does; and remember that content is the mother of good discretion.

Southern colored revivalists have adopted the touching hymn, 'Shoo Fly,' to a psalm, the first line of which reads, 'Satan don't bodder me.'

Horace Greeley wrote: 'Women manage most of the public libraries in Massachusetts,' and the compositor read it 'Women worry most of the public babies by mastication.'

Women have never forgiven Lady Mary Wortley Montague for saying: 'The only satisfaction I have in being a woman is that I shall not be compelled to marry one of my own sex.' Her sin is unpardonable.

A clumsy negro, while playing with a little girl belonging to the Gilbert Troupe in Chattanooga, Tennessee, last week, threw her over his shoulder. She fell head downward on the floor, and received a serious injury.

'You can't do too much for your employer, man,' said somebody to a big-fisted strong backed man-of-all-work, on the wharf, the other day. 'Arrah,' replied Pat, with emphasis, 'neither will I.'

An old minister, the other day, asked a woman what could be done to induce her husband to attend church. 'I don't know,' she replied, 'unless you were to put a pipe and a jug of good whisky in the pew.'

'Emigrating, my dear, is a young lady going to Nebraska.'

The Song of Birds.

The purpose which the song of birds answers in the economy of nature is one of those mysteries which like the differences of tint in their plumage, human ingenuity has not yet been unable to explain. It is not, however, a mere parting cry, because it is continued until the bird breaks the shell, to and in some instances until they are able to fly. We may be sure, however, that it has its use; and we can observe that the females of all birds which have that cry, whether it be what we call song or not are excited when it is uttered by the male, it may be that it produces in the female that heat which is necessary for hatching the eggs. In ourselves there are many sounds which make the heart beat, the blood dance, and and the whole body glow, we know not why; and thus we have no ground for denying without proof that other animals may be affected in a similar manner. Perhaps the more philosophical way of considering it is to suppose that it produces general excitement, and a power of more energetic performance in all the labor which the birds can undertake. The connection between the song and the plumage, and the silence and the moult, is also a curious matter, and shows that the whole bird is subject to some general law which, though it lies deep beyond the power of our divination, governs even the mindest circumstance, the production of a new spot or gloss in a feather, the reddening of a comb or a wattle, or the inspiration of courage into birds naturally timid.

The tableau was an affecting one, but the young lady refused them, one and all.

On a farm near Ogdensburg, New York, owned by one Axtell, a two year old Ayrshire bull and a yearling ram recently fought a desperate battle, which continued two days at short intervals. In the last round the bull was knocked completely out of time, and fell dead, having succumbed to the fearful butting of his lighter but more active assailant.

It is Greeley, of course, who says that the best way raise early pop corn is to start it now. Put the corn—any kind will do—in a corn popper, and suspend it in the sun over a pan of water till the shoots grow out between the wires; then in the spring set it out in pots or beds, and before June the popped corn will be hanging in little paper bags all over the branches.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, at her New Year's reception wore a $2,000 dress $25,000 finger rings and a $15,000 necklace. The dress was a handsome brown brocade, trimmed with rows of pheasant breasts, and looped with scarlet fuschias. Her husband is the gentleman who is reported to have exclaimed, in tragic accents the next day after the fire, 'I'm a beggar! I'm a beggar!' We'd like to be a beggar.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co., Druggists Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agents, San Francisco, California, and 32 and 34 Commerce Street, New York.

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.
This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.
It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.
To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.
In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

MY AIR CASTLE.

BY E. P. H.

I was so long in building it—
It went up still and slow—
None knew I was an architect;
They saw me come and go,
They knew not whence nor whither;
They looked on me and smiled,
And said, in tones so pitiful,
"You dream, you dream, my child!"

I only laughed and shook my head,
For then within my home
I was building up the turrets—
I was building up the dome
Of my beautiful air castle—
And to myself I said,
"They will sometime look upon it,
And repent the words they said.

They will sometime see it gleaming
Bright as silver, in the air,
And repent their prophesying,
When the dreamer dwelt there!
I shall look from out the windows,
With a joyous, happy face,
Where no haunting shadows gather—
Where no tears have left a trace.'

Day after day my work went on—
No hammer's click was heard—
No workmen singing merrily—
No cheerful sounding word!
All alone I built my castle,
So strangely dim and fair,
Quite forgetting its foundation
Rested on the empty air.

I had no need to count the cost—
By alchemy, my own,
I changed the very deepest things
To gold and precious stones—
In sooth, it was a pleasant task,
No queen upon her throne,
Was half as glad and proud as I,
To see my work go on.

Well, at last it was completed!
And folding up my hands,
As one who resteth from his toil,
My pleasant work I scanned!
I stood upon the threshold
With a joyous, happy glance,
Looking toward the misty future,
And defied the dull perchance,

* * * * * *

But they knew some star had fallen,
For I could not quite disguise;
And sometimes a ghost unbidden,
Would look sadly from my eyes!
But they cannot guess my secret;
I shall never tell them where
I have hid the shining fragments
Of my castle in the air.

Death of Gen. Leonidas Polk.

An ex-confederate writer of the Westminister Review, gives the following account of the death of the bishop-general:

"The death of the distinguished man was a melancholy one. It occurred while our army lay in front of Kenesaw, Johnson, with a group of officers, among whom was Polk, were making a reconnoisance of the enemy's lines from the summit of Pine Mountain, a lofty, solitary mount which jutted out from that range, and formed the apex of the angle on which our line was arranged. The situation was a very hazardous one, being commanded, or rather reached by guns from any portion of the enemy's lines. The unusual assemblage in such a conspicuous place soon attracted the attention of the vigilant enemy. A battery in front immediately fired one shot, which we afterwards found out was but the prelude to one of the most fearful shellings I ever witnessed. The group were standing between young Beauregard's battery and the Washington artillery, Johnson being on the works looking through a field glass. That first shot could not have missed him two feet, but the only attention he paid to it was to turn his glass to the battery that fired it. Polk had at the same time separated from the group, and was walking thoughtfully away with his left side to the enemy—his head down and his hands clasped behind him. The second shell that was fired struck him in the arm and passed through his body, tearing out his heart, and crushing his right arm above the elbow. He dropped on one knee, wavered, then fell on one side—dead. I had hardly turned my back when I heard the murmur of horror run through the line, 'General Polk is killed.' Johnson said not a word, but ran to him and lifted him in his arms. Hardee uttered a cry and also rushed forward. He was past all human help. The members of his staff tenderly lifted and bore him from the bloody field.

The World to Stop in 1873.

The Second Adventists are at it again. At a convention held in Rochester they have definitely settled the time for the total destruction of the world. It is to take place in 1873.

Dr. Barbour, who has prepared several charts from which he has lectured extensively of late, from Boston to Rochester, on the coming of Christ in 1873, made a speech on the signs of the times, and cited articles in the London Quarterly, the Edinburg Review, Blackwoods, and several American Magazines, quarterlies and newspapers, to show the enormous proportions of the Commune, its rapid growth the past year and its present threatening aspect. There were, he said, 500,000 members in this country and millions in Europe. Wendell Phillips was a member, and said in his recent lecture in Music Hall, Boston, that 'Europe was resting on a volcano that threatened the destruction of her thrones. And if the Church would not discern the signs of the times the world did, and 'men's hearts were failing them for fear and for looking after the things that are coming on the earth.'

Explosions in the Sun.

According to the astronomers, there has been a tremendous outbreak in the sun. An enormous protuberance, which the wonderful appliances of modern science soon ascertained to be composed of hydrogen gas, was suddenly projected from its body, and floated at the height of some 15,000 miles above the cromosphere, although still connected with it by three or four bright vertical columns. About half an hour afterwards the whole of this was blown into shreds by some inconceivable rush from beneath, and in ten minutes the space above the solar surface was filled with the flying debris to the height of more than 200,000 miles.

A lady was lately hugged to death in Minnesota—another illustration of the 'power of the press.'

The Discoverer of Vaccination.

Those who have recently been vaccinated may be interested to know by whom the system was discovered. The author was Edward Jenner, an English physician and he discovered the idea about 1796.—Previous to this there was no protection against small-pox. In the half century previous to the discovery, for every thousand deaths ninety-six were from loathsome disease. In the German states during the same time, out of every thousand deaths, sixty-six were from small pox.—After vaccination, the deaths from this cause reduced to eight in a thousand. In Ireland at this time, where great negligence exists, fifty out of every thousand die of small pox. In countries where vaccination is compulsory, the death rate from small pox is lowered. The deaths by this disease in every thousand in Saxony are eight and one half; the Rheinish provinces, four; Lower Austria, six; Bohemia, two; Sweden, three. The death rate of those who have the disease and have been vaccinated is estimated at from one to two per cent, of the unvaccinated, from fifteen to fifty per cent. This is suffcent to prove that in order to get the full benefit of the great discovery, vaccination should be compulsory. The best time to vaccinate is in infancy, and a law compelling it would be of infinite advantage. All honor to Jenner, the discoverer of this wonderful preventative of disease. Like most of the benefactors of man, he was opposed and persecuted, but finally honors and rewards were heaped upon him. A parliamentary grant of twenty thousand pounds was voted him, learned societies at home and abroad enrolled him as a member, and when the allied potentates visited England in 1814, the czar of Russia sought an interview with him, and offered to bestow upon him a Russian order of nobility He died in 1823.

For Whoever it Fits.

There are nearly as many bad wives as bad husbands. Many men who work hard and try to do well in life are neglected and abused by improvident women.

They are condemned to eat the poorest dinners, when they provide the best the market affords.

On heavy bread, soggy vegetables, muddy coffee and tough pie crust, how can a woman expect her husband to be pleasant and loving?

Such men often drink whisky because their food distresses them—as it would any one who had not a cast iron stomach—and the habits of intemperance are sometimes in this way begun, through the fault of the wife.

It costs more to cook food poorly than to make food good.

If a woman runs home from a neighbor's just in time to throw a pid together, bake it, and bring it to the dinner table hot, she commits a great offence against the health of her family.

If a man has only an hour to go home, get his dinner and return to business, it should be ready for him promptly on time else he will eat every hot food in the greatest haste, and start off for a rapid walk, all of which is very bad, and will soon show its effects upon the strongest men

When her husband gets peevish, low spirited and forgetful of the little acts of love and kindness he taught her to expect in days agone, a woman who is such a housekeeper need not sit in the twilight and wonder at sad changes.

Dyspepsia is not conducive to tender thoughts or happiness.

Had she acted her part with half the zeal and industry of her husband, all would have been well, and she could still sit in the sunshine of earlier days.

It is very hard for a man to caress the hand which for years has been feeding him slow poison.

Riding Horseback.

I was riding horseback just at night through the woods in Saginaw County, Mich. I came into a clearing in the middle of which stood a log house, its owner sitting in the open door smoking his pipe. Stopping my horse before him, the following conversation ensued:

'Good evening,' said I.

'Good evening.'

'Can I get a glass of milk of you, to drink.'

'Well, I don't know. Ask the old woman.

By this time the wife was standing at his side.

'Oh, yes,' said she 'of course you can have some.'

'While drinking it I asked.'

'Think we are going to have a storm, sir.'

Well, I realy don't know. Ask the old woman—she can tell.'

Again I asked:

'How much land have you got cleared here?'

'Well, I don't really know. Ask the old woman—she knows.'

'About nineteen acres,' said she, again answering.

'Just then a troop of children came running and shouting around the corner of the shanty.

'Are these your children?' said I.

'Don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows best.'

I did'nt wait to hear her reply, but drew up my reins and started off immediately.

An Iowa merchant sent a dunning letter to a man, who replied by return mail: 'You say that you hold my note yet. That is right. Just keep holding, and if your hands slip, spit on them, and try again.—Yours truly.'

Cross Questioning.

Lawyers make a point of cross question ing witnesses in a merciless manner.—Sometimes, however, the former get the worst of it.

'William Look, who made you?' demanded a learned counselor.

Wm., who was considered a fool, screwed his face, and, looking thoughtful and somewhat bewildered, replied:

'Moses, I s'pose.'

'That will do,' said the counselor, addressing the court. 'The witness says he supposes Moses made him; that is an intelligent answer, more than I thought him capable of giving, for it shows that he has some faint idea of Scripture. I submit that that is not sufficient to entitle him to be sworn as a witness capable of giving evidence.'

'Mister judge,' said the boy, 'may I ax the lawyer a question?'

'Certainly,' said the judge.

'Well, Mister lawyer, who d'ye s'pose made you?'

'Aaron, I s'pose,' said the lawyer, imitating the witness.

'After the mirth had somewhat subsided the withness drawled out:

'Wa'al neow, we do read in the Book that Aaron once made a calf, but who'd a thought the critter'd got in here?'

Cancer Cure.

Mr. Charles Yardley, of Pittsburg, Pa., writes as follows relative to the healing qualities of a simple weed, which, he says grows on high land in almost every State in the Union, although it is not familiar to us by the name he gives it:

'I want to tell how I cured my cancer last summer without pain or money. Eight years ago a cancer came on my nose. It grew slow at first, for several years, but the last two years it grew very fast, and it finally began to eat my left eye. I had spent hundreds of dollars, and tried doctors far and near without any relief. Last summer I drank Wild Tea, putting the tea grounds on my cancer every night, as a poultice, and in six weeks my cancer was cured. I am 62 years old. I have given this remedy to several persons having cancers, and know two that have cured since Wild Tea grows over the States generally always on high land.—Ex.

The Sheep and the Wolves.

An old weather-beaten trapper was sauntering along the main street of one of our western villages, on a recent Sunday.—Passing in front of a meeting house, for a moment he went in and took his seat among the congregation. The minister was discoursing on the text of 'The sheep and the wolves,' and had evidently been drawing a contrast between the two subjects:

'We who assemble here from week to week, and do our duty and perform our part, are the sheep: now, then, who are the wolves?'

A pause, and our friend, the trapper rose to his feet.

'Waal, stranger, rather than see the play stopped, I'll be the wolves.'

The preacher pronounced the benediction at once.

For Bachelors.

A gentleman of Newcastle, Me., desiring the services of a laboring man, started one morning recently to go to a rural district in the interior. On his way he met a highly respectable lady, not as young as she once was, and making inquiry of her, finally ask the question direct:

'Can you tell me where I can find a man?'

'No I can not,' she replied, 'for I have been looking these last twenty years for one myself.'

The gentleman appraised her that such frankness elevated her in his estimation, and that he would aid her in the search to the best of his ability.

The oldest rose bush in the world is trained upon the Cathedral of Hildesheim in, Germany. The stem is a foot thick, and a half dozen branches nearly cover the east side of the church, bearing countless flowers in sommer. Its age is unknow. Bishop Hezilo protected it by a stone roof which is still extant.

An eccentric clergyman lately said, in one of the sermons, 'that about the commonest proof we have that a man is made of clay is the brick so often found in his hat.'

THE CHEMIST'S STORY.

I am a chemist. Many, doubtless, would find it difficult to define what the duties of a chemist are, if asked. To such, I say a chemist is a collector of facts. It is the business of his life to aid in unmasking, for the world's benefit, the good and evil hovering even in the air we breath, burrowing in the earth we tread, mingling with the food we eat, and swimming in what we drink.

Then, again, the law waits on the chemist. A human being has passed suddenly away. Somebody thinks there has been foul play. The chemist examines the body of the supposed victim. The law listens, hat in hand, to science. The suspected party trembles in anticipation. The oracular lips of the chemist move; he names one out of the fearful lists of poisons. It is either strychnine, prussic acid, or that deadly oil of bitter almonds. The law then puts on its hat, takes the decision into court, and hangs the prisoner.

In short, the chemist must know the whys and wherefores of everything in the phenomena of life, as far as feeble man can know. The composition of the ocean he must be familiar with; he must be able to name the gases of the air, and capable of resolving the human body itself into invisible vapors. I am the occupant of this responsible and important position in the medical colege of P——.

It was about 11 o'clock on a stormy evening that I bade good night to my student, Tom Richards, at the door of my laboratory, at the south end of the college buildings.

'Good-night, professor,' said Tom; 'we are going to have a fall of hydrogen, oxygen, and a trace of saline.'

Hydrogen and oxygen—in our nomenclature H. O.—is water.

'I hope,' I said, in answer to Tom's playful words, 'that it will not rain before I get home.'

'Oh, no; it won't for an hour yet,' said Tom.

Tom was very anxious to know what would keep me up after 12 o'clock, so I told him I was about to commence analyzing the stomach of a Mrs. Johnson, whose husband now lay in P—— jail, just across the road from the college on suspicion that he was the murderer. Tom said I had worked hard enough that day deserved the night to myself. He spoke the truth; still, I had delayed examining the woman's stomach so long, and the trial was so near at hand, that I could not in conscience put off the examination farther, although I had heard several classes recite at the different public schools in the morning; had delivered a lecture in the college proper that afternoon, another in the laboratory that evening, besides attending to my several duties and police surgeon during the day.

As Tom was passing out of the college yard through the gate, his head turned, bidding me good night, he brushed against a man standing with his back to the college and his face to the prison. The street-lamp showed me that the man was in the police uniform.

Re-entering my laboratory, I took down a glass jar from the shelf and sat down before my sink to examine it. The jar, which contained Mrs. Johnson's stomach, was covered by a cloth, duly tied with a string, and properly sealed with my official seal in red wax. Breaking through the cloth, I lifted the stomach out with a dissecting hook and laid it on a white platter before me; then beame busily employed in applying those tests to its contents by which we detect the presence of injurious substance.

An hour had passed since the departure of young Richards. I had carefully emptied the contents of the stomach into a number of bowls and basins. I had labored hard to discover traces of poison in all this, but had been unsuccessful. Joe Johnson, the suspected man, had been a student of mine a few years before. I thought him a good hearted, intelligent fellow, only a little wild, and realy began to hope that he might prove innocent; when, among the macerated food, I upon a small, infinitesimal white grain. By careful manipulation and the use of my magnifying glass I managed to get this upon a piece of smoked glass, and examined it.

I was then certain I had discoverd arsenic, but to make assurance doubtly sure I determined to apply a well-known test for that poison. Accordingly I placed in the woman's stomach the usual acids, and then turned on the blowpipe flame, and presently there appeared the brilliant metalic mark, worthy of Cain's brow, which is the sign and signet, of the poison fiend.

'Yes,' I exclaimed, as I saw the fatal blazon, Joe Johnson is the murderer of his wife! With the evidence of that mark to back me no power can save him from the rope.'

'Do you really think so?' so said a calm voice behind me.

I turned quickly, and dicovered a tall, lank policeman, having red, weak and watery eyes, standing at my office door and staring in. His body looked as if it had been rolled out long between his hands, like a molasses candy stick. His nose was merely an elongated fleshy pug, and his forehead was decorated with two red streaks instead of yebrows. He had no expression at all in his face, and his policeman's hat was so large that it threatened to settle down no his shoulders.

His uniform reassured me, and I addressed him with some impatience?

'My friend, I suppose I am wanted to attend an inquest, or what is your purpose?'

'No, doctor, the man ain't dead yet.'

'Anything in the surgical way?'

I was police surgeon as well as coroner.

'No.'

'Well, then, why am I sent for at this time of night?'

'Don't bother, perfessor; the man ain't dead yet, but they say he will be before morning.'

'Are doctors attending him?'

'Oh, he's in good hands perfessor.'

'What's the mater with him?'

'Well,' said the official, 'some folks says he's got so much knowledge into him that he can't live under it.'

'Cerebral disorder, eh?'

'What?' asked the man

'Brain disorder, I mean; something wrong here.

I touched my forehead, and so did he, as he said;

'Aye; and I thought I'd drop in and tell you if you was going to the station to-morrow, to take a look and see if its post mortem or not. Besides, I wanted to see where I could always find you in case of need.'

I bowed, and attributed his visit to a feeling of curiosity. He sat on the sink, one rubbered foot thrown over the other, and wiped his nose with a dirty handkerchief several times, while his eye wandered about like Christopher Columbus after discoveries. Finally, he spoke like one who felt himself called upon to say something.

'Perfesser, there has been an accident this afternoon; terrible, too.'

'Ah,' said I.

'Awful!' said he.

'What was it?'

'Nitro-glycerine explosion up the iron mills—a hundred fellow mortals busted!'

'Sad!'

'Affecting, very.' Here he rubbed his mouth with the back of his hand 'Perfesser, what is that nitro-glycerine?'

'It is a very dangerous article,' I answered, happy to display my knowledge. 'It has nearly twice the destructiveness of gunpowder, but, unlike it, does not explode on the application of heat. A red-hot coal dropped into it will not explode it. It will freeze. It is yellow and greasy, Its symbols in our nomenclature are, C3, 115 (No. 3) 3, O6.'

'You don't mean to say so!' said the officer, interrupting me in disagreeable tones, in the very middle of a choice extract from one of my lectures. 'Why, but haven't told me how it does go off. If fire won't burst it, what in—(hem)—will?'

I told him if it were pressed or anything fell on it, it would explode.

'Place it under the crusher of a cider mill, strike it with a hammer, let a weight fall on it from a height——'

'Yes,' said my man, 'and that rouses its volcaner, does it? How dose it come, perfesser?'

'In little cans—why, like these!' said I, discovering that there was a little can of it on the marble sink, which I had carelessly neglected to replace in in the cellar. I then took a little of the glycerine, spread it on an anvil, and struck it with a hammer.

A slight explosion and a flame burst from the paper.

'No really,' said the policeman, starting back. 'I suppose, prefesser, that ere can would make a mighty big noise if allowed to explode in here all at once?

'It would blow the entire building to atoms,' said I resuming the analysis of Mrs. Johnsoson's stomach.

'No!' I heard the policeman remark in deliberate Yankee tones; 'you don't say so!'

The next moment I lay on my back a gag in my mouth, terribly frightened and sick at heart. Over me stood the the policeman, and the first thing that functionary did was—looking me straight in the face—to take off his nose. He then rid himself off his red eye-brows, hair, and cap, and became a determined-looking fellow, with the eyes of a fiend and the nose of a Roman.

'So you think,' said the metamorphosed, in the tones of a gentleman, 'that nothing can save Johnson from the rope? Poor fellow! it does look like it. But, my dear professor, Joe. Johnson is fortunate enough to have in me a devoted friend, as well as brother. I have undertaken to save him, and he shall be saved. In order to accomplish this end it will be necessary to remove from the face of the earth, not only the stomach of his miserable wife yonder, but also, my dear professor,—I'm sorry to be obliged to say it, for I believe you were my brother's teacher and friend,—yourself as well.'

I saw he was in a deadly earnest.

'Your death must apparently result from accident—at least, so it must seem to the authorities. My brother is in jail and they will not suspect him, and they certainly will not suspect me.'

What terrible deed was in his brain hatching—was he going to murder me? The hard-earned knowledge of a scoure years I would have given for power to utter one single cry.

He took me in his arms and placed me in a chair, and bound me to it, and then, from a sidepocket, he produced another rope.

Was it myself who was to hang instead of Johnson?

No; yes. He placed the line pully-like over an arm of a hanging chandelier. This was altogether too slight a support even for one of my slender frame. It was not to be hanging, then.

To one end of the rope he attached a weight, and raised it, by pulling the other, six or eight feet from the floor. The loose end he secured to the sink. Was he mad? Did he mean to draw me under this weight and send me out of the world in a novel way by letting it fall and dash my brains out?

To the sink end he attached a long, yellow string.

Under the weight, on the floor, he placed the can of nitro-glycerine. I recognized the yellow string; it was a fuse, and it would burn sixty minutes. It would burn across the marble slab—there was no hope of its igniting any substance that would warn my friends.

'Do you begin to see through it?' asked Joe Johnson's brother.

I believe I cursed him with my eyes I could only breathe through my nostrils, and great veins, were swelling and growing hot in my forehead.

Drawing a match from his pocket, he lighted and applied it to the fuse; that little tyrant that gave a man an hour to live, and kill him at the end of it—that little irresponsible terror that, less than merciful Providence, told a man the second he was to die, if fright and horror spared him to itself!

Slowly the flames crept, snake-like around the twine.

'In one hour,' said the prisoner's brother, 'you will be in heaven or hell I will watch with you for half an hour and the other half you will spend alone.'

He sat down some minutes in a chair watching the flames. Then he arose and took a peice of procelain, with the murderer's mark thereon, from the table and shook his head gloomily.

'I am chemist enough to know it is arsenic,' he said. 'Yes, those bright metalic eyes, a betrayal of the guilty! Science, thou wouldst kill my brother—thou shalt save him. Let us see in whose hands thou art most powerful. Here is a man who, by thy aid, bids the poison sprite uprise and write in brilliant characters a foul confession on this piece of procelain. But behold O science! It is no sooner written than by the word the whole confession and thy chosen servant are annihilated.

I heard this speech, indeed; but good heavens! it was my eyes and not my ears that were busiest then; for, beneath the table, covered by a crimson cloth, and which I faced, appeared the face of a child. The hair was rumpled, and the blue eyes were just opening from sleep. The inteligent forehead was wrinkled strangely. It was my boy Billy. I was afraid he would cry 'papa.' If he did, the implacable man would add the murder of the child to the murder of the father.

But my boy did none of this. He had, I suppose, crept under the table unknown to me, and had fallen asleep there. I tried to tell the little fellow to hide again and wait for the final half hour when my termentor would begone. Whether he understood me or not, aided by what he heard, I did not know, but he quickly withdrew his little head, first kissing his hand lightly at me, and then shaking his fist at the schemer watching so belligently his dumb fire agents.

The half hour wore slowly away. Oh, heavens! what agony did I suffer! Not for myself, but for my child. A slight noise might dicover his presence then match might run its tether sooner than was expected: he might be murdered or blown to atoms.

'Commit your soul to God's keeping,' he said. 'You hold the evidence of my brother's guilt nothing can save you now!'

With that he turned to take his hat from off the table covered with the crimson cloth, beneath which hid my priceless boy. Something attracted his attention! He held out his hands and leaned forward. I thought he had discovered my boy! No; he was lifting something in either hand—the wires of the electric battery. In another instant my boy had leaped from under the table, and was turning the crank fast and furiously.

The murderer's brother was in the power of my boy. He could not drop the wires; he was helpless. How my boy cried for help. The old college rung with his voice. The prisioner's brother added his voice to my boy's in his agony. He begged, he besseched—all his nerves were racked—great waves of galvanism leaped, surged, trembled and jarred over every sensitive nerve and fibre. Still my power was inflexible, and shouted and turned faster. Unperceived upon the marble, in track of the hurrying fuse, was a pool of inflammaule oil. In an instant a great length burned away. It would last just five minutes, and no more!

'Father!' shouted my boy, 'if no assistance comes, this villian must die with us. I dare not let him free. Help! help! help!

Alas! I could not answer him.

Thank God! But some one else did. The fuse is burnt up. The rope is on fire—the nitro-glycerine! The door opens; Tom Richards, on a midnight visit to the sick, has heard the cry; he comprehends all; seized the can in his hand: the weight descends indeed, but not on the death-deadling oil. No; down, down, like an evil spirt, to give back a dull metalic echo from the stones of the cellar beneath.

We are saved!

Joe Johnson, the prisoner, was hanged; but his brother remains unpunished by law, for he stabbed himself with a knife, and thus escaped, the hangman's rope.

The Coming Campaign.

From present indications the political campaign which is soon to open promises to be one of more than ordinary importance, and of a consequently will be a very exciting one. Already the ranks of the Radical party have been broken beyond all hopes of being re-united during the present campaign. From almost every direction comes a demand for a change in the political management of public affairs. The Liberal Republicans of Missouri, have sounded the deathknell of the Grant administration, and unless Grant flies the track, the Republican forces will place two candidates in the field, which portends defeat to that party, and the salvation of the country secured.—It is an old saying that 'in time of peace prepare for war' and we cannot but make use of the illustration at this time, as we expect to see the most bitter war made upon Radical dishonesty and corruption during the next year, and to do so with a certainly of victory it would be well in advance to make due and timely preparations, by thoroughly organizing our forces, placing our men in line and see that they are well informed as to the important part they are expected to take in the coming contests. The country demands that corrupt men should be displaced from official position, and good men, who have the well wishes and interests of the nation at heart be chosen to administer and make laws that will relieve the country from its present great burthens of taxation. This can never be accomplished so long as the Radical party are in power, as the history of the past ten years so clearly defines. Never in the history of any party or nation was so much roguery and corruption, deep dyed and villifying, as is to-day to be found in the party now controlling the affairs of this American nation. What is the duty of every honest man in view of the present condition of affairs? It seems both plain and important to every reflecting mind. Every man who has the prosperity of the county and people at heart, should not delay in making use of whatever strength and influence he may have, to displace these men from official position, who allow personal gain and speculation to be paramount to the interests of the people and as so great a sacrifice as that of our National existence, in which direction our nation is tending as rapidly as a set of renegade officials can precipiate it. Let every man make it his especial mission to enter the political field with a set determination to do his part towards cleansing the official stations of this nation from being filled by incompetent and recreant officials, and keep at the good work from now until next November and they will witness the grandest change in the political status of the country—from corruption and rascality, to honesty and integrity—that this or any other nation ever beheld.

Messrs. John C. Shoemaker, Auditor, James B. Ryan, Treasurer, and John H. Farquhar, (appointed by the Governor to succeed Hon. Norman Eddy, deceased,) Secretary of State, as the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, announce their belief that its distribution will be made about the 20th of March. They add in a card published, in the Indianapolis papers on Monday:

In the meantime such arrangements will be made as will enable us to transmit the funds to the counties without expense either to the fund or counties. Exchange upon New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, and this city, and all other prominent points in the State, will be provided, and be at the option of the country Treasurers.

The suits against ex-Treasurer of the State, Kimball, and ex-Auditor of State, McCarty, are now in hearing before a full bench of the Superior Court at Indianapolis. In the end these gentlemen must return to the State the thousands of dollars they have filched from the Treasury. The Superior Court of Indianapolis are all radicals elected by the same party that elected the defaulters, and the full bench may render a judgment exculpating the rascals, as one of thire number, Blair, has already done; if so it will be like the latter, a mere burlesque upon law and justice, and made solely with a view to the party advantage and in aid of personal corruption. We believe there is an appeal to the Supreme Court, and there at all events justice will be meted out to the delinquents.

There seems to be an almost unanimous feeling among the Democrats of Pennsylvania in favor of General G. W. Cass as the Democratic candidate for Governor.

The Springfield, Massachusetts, Republican indorses the platform adopted by the Liberal Republicans of Missouri We presume that nine-tenths of the people do the same thing, and thus indirectly condemn Grant.

The anti-Colfax men at Washington have revived the old cry that the West has had enough. They say it has had the Presidency since 1860; the Vice Presidency since 1864, and it now has the Chief Justice and the missions to England and France. A recent careful canvass has developed the fact that Senator Wilson is now decidedly the stronger candidate for the second

We have received a communication from Sedan, too late for this week.

A special to the Times from Springfield, gives the following account of the Democratic Caucus Saturday evening:

Gen. McClernand was the first speaker, and he favored the liberal Republicans with the view of defeating Grant, and bringing about a change in our affairs. This could not be accomplished by the Democrats alone, and it would be the part of wisdom to accept an honorable alliance with the liberal Republicans.

Col. Turner wanted all honest men to unite for the overthrow of Grant, whose sole aim was to build up a power dangerous to liberty. No fair election could be held in the South or North, because of the influence brought to bear by the administration.

One of the most remarkabe election cases, if not the most remarkable one ever presented in the House, was decided on Friday; namely, the case of Boles vs. Edwards, from the Third Congressional District of Arkansas.—Edwards has held his seat since the 4th of last March, and has drawn pay for same, including stationery and mileage. The Election Committee were unanmious against him, but were induced, by the interfence of Clayton, to postpone action, on the pretense of taking additional testimony and the case has been delayed, on one pretext or another, till Friday, when it came up in the House—Edwards making a speech in behalf of himself. Nobody listened to him but his opponent, who sat behind him. His speech, it is said, was written by Clayton's attorney, and was not remarkable for any thing. After he had finished, a call was taken and not a singe vote was cast in his favor, although the House was unusually full. This is probably one of the most barefaced cases of villainy on the part of the Arkasas traveler that was ever put upon a suffering people.

The Claims.

Following is the summary of the claims against Great Britain that are made in the American case before the Geneva conference.

I. For the destruction of the vessels and property belonging to the United States, $25,000.

II. For the destruction of merchant vessels, and property sailing under the flag of the United States, $17,900,633.

III. For other damages or injuries to persons, growing out of the destruction of each class of these vessels.

[In respect to this item the 'case' says that it is imposible for the United States to present a detailed statement, the amount of the claim cannot be less than hundreds of thousnds, and possibly millions, of dollars, on account of hardly, helpless seamen and their families]

IV. For national expenditures in the pursuit of the cruiser, $7,080,478.

V. For loss in the trasfer of the American commercial marine to the British flag.

[In respect to this item the United States asks the arbitrators to estimate the amount which ought to be paid to them, after we submit statistics in respect to tonnage before and after the rebellion.

VI. For exhanced payments of insurance by citizens of the United States, so far as is now know, $1,130,000.

VII. For prolongation of the war, the addition of a large sum to the cost thereof, and of the suppression of the rebellion.

[As to this item the United States claims that after the battle of Gettysburg offensive operations by the rebels conducted only at sea, through Anglo Confederate cruisers, in the hope of involving the country in a war with Great Britain, and that the latter ought in equity to re-imburse the United States for the expense thereby entailed upon them.]

VIII. Interest upon the claims up to the day when the award is payable by the terms of the treaty, which in twelve months from the day of the award, at the usual rate of interest in the city of New York, where most of the claims of individuals are held, which is seven per cent. per annum. The United States claims that the interest should be computed from an average day, say July 1st, 1873.

Republican Candidate.

We notice that several of our State exchanges on the Republican side are advocating Mr. Godlove S. Orth for the first place on the radical State ticket. All this is a waste of ammunition. To use a homely simile, Mr. Orth will have no more show in the Republican State Convention than a stump-tailed bull in fly time. He may get a few complimentary votes, but Mr. Morton has made other arrangements, and they do not include Captain Orth, of Tippecanoe, for Mr. Orth earned the sobriquet of Captain during the late war by eminent naval services on the Ohio river. We advise Mr. Captain Orth to 'hang up his fiddle and his bow,' as he can not come in this time, notwithstanding his numerous public services and his eminent qualifications for the position. Mr. Morton yet holds the Republican party of Indiana in the hollow of his hand, and he has made up his slate without the name of Mr. Orth being on it. We think it is a pretty heavy job for one man to run the Republican party of Indiana and Mr. Grant at one and the same time, But Mr. Morton thinks he is equal to the emergency, and is, it not our funeral we propose to let him run both machines, if they go where the woodbine twineth.—State Sentinel road.

Calfax for President.

It is great pleasure that we lay before our readers the extracts, elsewhere printed, favoring the nomination of Schuyler Calfax for the Presidency. It is not unfair, judging from the tone of the extract from that paper, to say that the Indianapolis Journal (the leading Republican paper of the State) is in favor of promoting the Vice President a grade higher, and we believe that nine-tenths of the party throughout the State have reached the same conclusion. The Wabash Republican, we notice, claims the honor of a Pioneer in the movement, and there is reason to believe that, when made aware of the length of the current now setting in that direction, the Republican press of the entire State will favor the scheme.

We know of no other subject so freighted with the weal or wo of the Republican party as this. Every thoughtful man must and will entertain the gravest doubts of success in the event of Grant's renomination, but with Colfax at the head of the ticket, there can be no doubts. His name is a synonym for the public virtue, honesty of administration, and wisdom in legislation. His amiable disposition would expel all rancor from the national councils, and invite an era of peace all over the land. His talents eminently fit him for the place, while a public career of more than twenty years, over which not a shadow of a shade of suspicion has ever fallen, marks him as the man above all others whom the people would delight to honor.—Rochester Spy.

A special London dispatch says that Minister Schenck has communicated the note of recent language of Gladstone, which is deemed an imputation on the good faith of the United States. The note is regarded as a proper assertion of the dignity of his Government, and will it is likely, be answered in the most friendly spirits, deprecating any diplomatic aplication to the words used. Bismarck has offered to the Governments of Washington and London his good office for effecting an agreement in relation to the old claims. The English Government is anxious to avoid a misunderstanding of the authorieties at Washington, and a compromise is hoped for an early day.

The London special to the World says the conflict of opinion in England on the Alabama claims increases. A meeting of the workmen will soon be held to oppose the course of the British Government and demanding the immediate settlement of the claims, and the sum paid to the United States to be subsequntly recovered of the builders of vessels which caused the damages. A party in Parliament are preparing a move for the resignation of the present Ministry on the ground of its blundering incapacity and the formation of a Cabinet and which shall propose a settlement of the American claims on new basis.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—A Washington dispatch says that the President has expressed his gratification at the temperateness of the American press on the excited comments of the English Ministry on our cause before the Geneva Conference. If the English government withdraws he thinks the United States cannot agree with her on any new negotiatons.

The zeal exhibited by the Radical members of the Custom House Investigating Committee, in preventing the examination of Porter and Babcock in New York, is sufficient evidence of the damage expected to result from a rigid cross-examination of those members of the President's household. The Tribune characterizes this action as 'such chicanery as a Western lawyer might employ to clear a horse thief,' adding that it will be much worse for the Administration in the end than if they were allowed to come. The World denounces the pretexts for rescinding the order summoning them to Washington as 'sham,' and speaks the popular mind when it draws the inference that Grant knows too well how damaging it would be to spread their evidence before the country. Both Porter and Babcock offered to come to New York and testify, and a summons was sent on requiring their presence. But Senator Howe, who went on to consult with the President, returns in hot haste to say that the private secretaries must by no means be brought to New York, where rebutting evidecne can so easily be produced in case they provo so strangely incorrect in memory as Let, but must be examined at Washington, if anywhere. It evidently is not safe to carry the investigation into the Executive household, after the developments elsewhere; but by refusing, for no good reason, to examine Porter and Babcock in the city where alone their testimony can be taken fairly, the Administration Senators in fact confess to all the charges againts those young men, and give cause for worse suspicious.—Boston Post.

How To Go West.

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go, and journeys were made in the legendary "Prairie Schooner," but in these days of progress and improvement, the word west has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route, which starts from Chicago over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad; from Indianapolis over the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Short Lile, and from Logansport over the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw Railroad, and running through Burlington reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, St. Joseph and Kansas city, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other railroads running from these cities.

The Burlington route has admirably answered the question, 'How to go West?' by the publication of a truthful and interesting document, filled with facts in regard to time, Connections, Fare &c, and illustrated by a large map, truthfully showing the whole West, which they distribute free of charge. Copies, and additional information, can be obtained by addressing, General Passenger Ag't,

MANHOOD,
How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure of certain weakness, the effects of errors and abuses in early life. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of such errors and abuses may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal machine or the application of the knife pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Lung fevers, pneumonias and colds are the prevailing diseases during the present season.

We see by the Columbia City Post that a Building Loan and Saving Association has been organized in that place.

Yesterday was Valentine day, but if you have been neglectful, you can still send one one of those beautiful or homely pictures with great propinety.

Gone.—The snow, beautiful snow, ain't quite beautiful just now. It is assuming a muddish cast, and the poetry of the whole thing has suddenly disappeared. This weather has spoiled our sleighing.

Good tea 60 cents per pound, at Smith & Hare's.

We have been promised a Valentine, but we warn him to remember "Whose mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker; and he that is glad at calamities shall not go unpunished.'

Our correspondent, from Franklin Tp., favors us with an interesting letter this week, which will be found in another column. We will be glad to hear from him often.

The Concert given by Prof. Strab, at Cedar Creek Chapel, was a grand affair.—The songs being of the best selections, and the order manifested, by the scholars, showed plainly that the Prof. understood his business.

The Illinois papers are making a great ado over a child with ears like a calf.—That's nothing. Children are born in Indiana whose entire heads are like a calf.—Many of them grow up and do business, but they never advertise.

We learn from the Ligonier Standard that a large manufacturing interest has been awakened at that place. A company has been formed with a capital of $40,000 at $25 shares. Auburn will soon organize one with $50,000.

The statement that John B. Stoll wrote the article in the Argus reflecting on Col. McDonald is denied by H. E. Wadsworth, responsible editor of that paper. We thought at the time it had too much brains in it for Stoll. Well, "Tink," will forgive you this time, if you don't do so again.

It is now about the right time to state that 'peaches have been nipped in the bud' and that the 'wheat crop will be a failure.' There is the maple sugar man, too. He has not yet informed us whether the sap promises to flow freely next month or not. Let him smell of the maple bark and inform us.

The schools of our county are in a flourishing condition, and we hear no complaints from any quarter. The course Mr Barnes, as a School Examiner, has pursued, has given complete satisfaction, and DeKalb County has just cause to feel proud of her common schools. Long may they prosper.

The sickness of Hon. John Colerick was caused by the lesion of a blood vessel in the bronchial tube. His lungs are not in the least affected, and his recovery will therefore be permanent. His many friends throughout the State will be rejoiced at this announcement.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

Pass it Round.—A petition to be signed by soldiers of the late war, is being circulated quite generally, asking Congress to hand out a land warrant to each. The soldier had better receive it than the railroad corporations who are fast gobbling up what little we have. Circulate it, boys and if Congress has any gentlemanly feeling, she will "gin" it to you. Call at T. B, Totten's where the petition can be signed.

Papers that are in the practice of mixing news and business notices promiscuously in their local columns, will not offend us by erasing the name of this paper from their exchange list. We have neither time nor disposition to search through a column of miscellaneous puffs for a news item; and we presume their readers feel much as we do about the matter. It is a very bad practice in local journalism—La Grange Standard.

READ THIS.

It is proposed by a number of our citizens to organize a Building Loan and Saving Association. We have been agitating this question and trust that it will meet with the prompt approval of our citizens. The first thing necessary is that fifty residents sign an application for a charter and after this is done, then the shares are valued at from $200 to $300 each, on which a monthly due of one dollar is paid. Let us obtain the first result and then we will try for the second. We notice a number of places have entered into this enterprise with great success. Fort Wayne has quite a number of these associations all doing well. We hope the question will be thoroughly canvassed and an organization effected at an early day.

Sinking Fund.

The Sinking Fund is to be distributed about the 20th of this month. The following is the apportment for the counties named:

Allen	$14,353,00
DeKalb	5,666,11
Steuben	4,241,82
LaGrange	4,668,84
Noble	6,728,37
Whitley	4,750,67

In speaking of us last week the unselfish editor of the Ligonier Banner says: "We never did see any thing about Tommy that is "enviable." Barring the grammar, we regard the above as personal. However, we are content, well knowing that to win the admiration of the writer, of the above, it would only be nesessary to carry a bottle of whisky. Call again Johny.

A survey is being taken through Troy and Franklin townships, for the Canada Southern Railroad. That's right. Let us get all the roads we can, no matter where they are in the county. They are a good investment and help pay taxes. We are not so selfish as to oppose a road because it does not come to Auburn. We believe in Railroads and want to see them built somewhere in the county.

Did'nt go Back.—We forgot to state that on last Ground Hog day, one little fellow came forth to the light, no doubt to take notes of matters and things, and the probability of his return soon, are not very flattering. Ask D. Z. Hoffman, Esq., our efficient County Recorder, he can tell you all about it. It is said that wood chucks come forth to see the sun, but this one has embodied the very spirit of his desires, and is a son in fact, weighing about eight pounds. Tally one for the Democracy in 1893.

Though our winter has been and is still close and severe in character, it appears to be passing away from us with remarkable rapidity. Think of it! It is almost Spring, and yet it seems but a little space when the falling leaves were being blown hither and thither by fitful gusts of autumn wind. In a little while the sober mantle of winter will be laid aside, and the warm south winds will quicken into active existence Nature's beautiful adornments. Then, in the luxury of indulgence we will forget the forbidding features of the past.

Hickory.—We have been presented with a very beautiful chair made by our popular furniture merchant, C. C. Shaffer, Esq. Knowing our politics, he wisely concluded that we would prefer a hickory one, and a hickory one it is, carved and shaped into one of those easy graceful chairs that give so much comfort and satisfaction. Our readers had better look out now for Democratic thunder, we got "old hickory" at the bottom of us. This chair-itable act, so delicately conceived has placed us under lasting obligations to the donor, who keeps one of the finest as well as one of the best assorted stocks of furniture to be found in Northern Indiana. If you want nice goods go to him.

Baptist Church—The brick work on the new Baptist Church to be erected in Auburn, during the coming season, has been awarded to Mr. Geo. Picker, who will begin operations as soon as possible. The edifice is to be 50 feet long, 36 feet wide, and 18 feet from floor to ceiling. The tower will be about 65 feet high, and the whole will make one of the finest churches in the county. We are glad to note such improvements as these, for churches and schools are an index of intelligence and refinement of the community in whose midst they exist. Now, the next great want is a new and commodious School House, worth, say, $25,000, and though we may have to wait a year or two we might as well agitate the question now, to get the old foggies wakened up, so that they will be just about ripe for the harvest in the right time.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a regular meeting of Butler Lodge, No. 282, I. O. of O. F., held Wednesday evening Feb. 7th, 1872. The following preamble, and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove by death from our midst, Sister Mary J. Rose, wife of James E. Rose, Esq., on Feb. 5th, 1872. Therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Sister Rose, society has lost one of its best members.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with her relatives, and especially with her heart stricken husband.

Resolved, That as a token of respect to the memory of Sister Rose, we drape our Lodge room for thirty days.

Resolved, That this preamble and these Resolution be published in the Auburn Courier and a copy be sent the bereaved husband, and one copy be placed on file in our Lodge room.

From New Era.

Mr. Editor:—Thinking, perhaps, a line from New Era would be in place I ask a small space in the columns of your valuable paper. The citizens of New Era have enjoyed their portion of the past run of sleighing. Since the former business directory was given, there has been some valuable additions made, that of the talked about wagon shop and one valuable shoe shop, by Mr. Zern, from Auburn. We will soon have a barber shop in operation, by one of the 'darkies' from St. John's station. He was here yesterday and left a specimen of his work at the store, the specimen is in the shape of a man. He cut Hen Gettel's hair and hung him out at the 'Josh for a sign.' If he gets a certain number of patrons he will commence business inside of a month, if not he will take down the "sign."

J. N. Millikan, our celebrated sewing machine agent, and former Representative of the W. & W., and H. H. Houser, our popular trustee, have formed a partnership and now represent the 'Weed Machine.' To their former patrons they say 'trade us your old machines at one 3d their price for the 'Weed,' and have the best while it is going.

S. C.

The editor of a western paper in his last issue says: 'We cannot exist any longer on firewood, maple sugar, and sheep-skins We bid our patrons good-bye, and offer for sale two-hundred bushels of seed potatoes, slightly frost bitted.'

We have received a communication from Sedan, too late for this week.

From Franklin Township.

Mr. Editor:—This is a staid old township and it is mighty seldom that an item of news can be picked up of sufficient importance to interest the general reader; but as I am fully aware that local news are what make a county paper, although it may not contain as much reading matter, preferable to city papers, I will, therefore, from time to time note down such events transpirable in this locality, as I may believe of sufficient importance to warrant their publication in your paper, interspersing the same occasionally with my own views of things.

Like the people of most all other localities we have occasional attacks of railroad fever, and lately quite a severe attack of Canada Southern and Chicago has prevailed in this township, that company having run a line just north of the north line of this township in the edge of Steuben Co., in fact, so near the line that a part of the section grounds, at Hamilton, will be in this township near the centre of the north line, that is provided the road is built on that survey. But the face of things is somewhat changed by the Kendallville interest procuring the running of a line in a north-easterly direction from that burg, to intersect their old survey near the east line of the State. Said Kendallville line strikes the west line of this township near the centre of that line, and passes out near the No. 3 corner, leaving Hamilton out in the cold. It is useless, however, to speculate as to the final location of the road, yet, as money tells; Kendallville and Ligonier route may have the best show.

Our schools now appear to be prospering finally after one or two slight quarrels and a few interruptions by the measles, they having carried a vacation, last week, in the N. W. (Thomas Baxter's) school The terms of the school will close in a week or two.

The leap year party fever has had a slight run in these parts, but most of those attacked are convalescing.

In conclusion I will say that we are all trying to raise funds to pay our direct and indirect taxes, but it keeps us 'bobing 'round' a little too lively for healthy recreation, and, by the way, let me say that the idea prevalent, that farmers are getting immensely rich is a grand mistake, but the truth is they are making the least money of any other class of our citizens when we take into consideration the amount of labor they and their families perform and the capital invested.

At some future time I propose to briefly consider the matter of our indirect taxes, in connection with our local taxes, the latter of which appears to give your friends of the Waterloo Press such a chronic night-mare.

Respectfully, A. F.

THE B. & O. RAILROAD EXTENSION.

Our Prospects Brighter Than Ever.

[From the Defiance Express.]

The route of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Extension is still undecided. It has been reported for the last two weeks that the route would be settled upon in a few days, and the suspense would then be over. But it has not been settled yet, and we will not be surprised if there is'nt an elapse of several weeks before the suspense is ended.

The Baltimor Company it seems wants to find out what the people along the two routes will do, and as the speediest method to accomplish that end have made over tures to both. The result is, each line has organized for a struggle to see which can make the best showing. Committees have been appointed; meetings held, and all is tumult and anxiety to know the result.

It is reported that Byran has raised a stock subscription of about $100,000, and if that is true we cannot help saying well done for Bryan. But that will not decide the question. Bryan will have to do better than that. True, that is a large amount of money and will have its weight, but not sufficient to give that line the preference. Napoleon, the invicible Napoleon, is a little out of sorts as regards money for stock but what it lacks in money it makes up in wind. The programme is for Bryan to furnish the money while Napoleon does the blowing.

The Indiana interest of the other line seems to attract a great deal of attention, and if they are 'immense' as reported, it is no wonder we hear so much of them.—But they are not. The towns along their route in Indiana are larger than ours, we will admit, and can probably raise more money, but the reason of their growth and seeming advantage over the towns on our route, is contributable to railroad facilities they already enjoy, and which are more or less in competition with the B. & O. Extension. This then takes the wind out of their sails and makes what seems an advantage to them, an outright disadvantage to their getting the road.

Another drawback to the other route, consists in the obstinate fact that it is eight miles longer than ours. It will therefore have to raise sufficient to build the road eight miles before it can offer any serious competition to us. It is no fool of a job to build a railroad eight miles long, and if it should do that, there is then a possibility that the company will decline to run eight miles out of their way when the shortest line is and must be the object.

But how is it with our line? Tiffin with an unprecedented generosity, offers about $100,000 in stock, donates the right of way to Defiance, and furnishes the ties a like distance. While the village of Defiance will raise $60,000 in stock, and the country, from New Bavaria to Hicksville, probably $40,000 more. Fostoria, for a small place, has as much wealth in it as any of the other places, excepting Tiffin, and there need be no fear of Fostoria not taking its share of the responsibility. Our Indiana friends are fully awake to their interests in the enterprize, and will come to the scratch without a particle of reluctance.

This is about as the matter stands.—Nothing has transpired to shake our confidence in the least in our final success, and we are not troubled about it, but as there is 'many a slip twixt the cup and the lip. let us not be too sanguine. Our amount of stock is comparatively light, and we should raise it and get out the drag as soon as possible. Every man benefited, who has a thousand dollars to invest, should, as we said before, invest it in this road.

Another Pioneer Gone.

One by one the frontiersmen of our county are taking their leave, and now but few are left to re-count the scenes of early days, of perils and depriations that are ever attendant upon the hardy pioneer of the great west.

The last sad rites were paid to the memory of Daniel Moody, Esq., on Friday last, he having departed this life at about six o'clock of the morning of the 7th inst., in the 8[illegible]th year of his age.

Mr. Moody was about the first white resident of the county, having imigrated hither some forty years ago, "when this was a howling wilderness." No cultivated fields or happy homes, greeting the eyes, nor civilized voices fell upon the ear to cheer the heart with joy, but all was desolation in the midst of nature's luxuriousness. It is a matter worty of remark that indomitable will and perseverance must have entered more largely into the composition of these early settlers than is now observable in the various classes that now populate our county. Be this as it may, this was their great stock in hand, and to this are we indebted to-day for the pleasant homes they now leave, for the more glorious and peaceful one, we trust, that shall last during the ceaseless roll of eternity.

Far removed from the influence and association of home and friends, with nothing but the deep silence of the mighty forest, as their companion, they struck the first blows for civilization and improvement, and by Herculean efforts carved out in the depth of the wilderness, the rude but comfortable homes, as the first fruits of their labor. And foremost among this little band was Father Moody, armed with an iron will and robust constitution, so requisite in the attainment of these great results. So inured had he become to these hardships, that at his advanced age, indoor employment had no attractions for him, and he even indulged in the hope a few days before his death that if he could gain sufficient strength to go out again he would recover from the malady that finally caused his death. A few years after his advent, when the improvements within the boundaries now forming this county were becoming more general, Mr. Moody was still foremost in the rank of solid worth took an active part in the organization of the county, and we learn was the second commissioner elected to discharge the duties of that office. And later still, advancing with the rapid strides of improvement, he was identified with the then great enterprises inaugurated for the good of the whole.

And thus we can trace him from the day he first assumed the handship of a pioneer life, down to the very day of his death, we might say, never once fagging in the duties of the hour, a man full of Christain zeal and benevolence, without the surroundings of christian associations—honorable and just with all, and pure and upright in every principle that beautifies and elevates the man.

Mr. M., was a life long Democrat, firm and unyielding in his political views, yet liberal in his expressions to his opponents He had an abiding faith in the great principles enunciated by Jefferson, and often referred to the good old days of Jackson and hard money, as the happiest of his life.

But now the old man has gone down into the great charnel house of time, never more to be seen again by mortal man, but his good deeds are with us, and his work shall follow him, while his spirit has taken its winged flight to the mansion on high, where the faithful enter into the joy of their master and the weary are at rest, Let us then, as it behooves us, imitate his many virtues, work for the same noble end that he attained, and receive the same approval from man for many good deeds, and from God for an unswerving obedience to his divine injuctions.

The funeral obsequies were held at the M. E Church in this place, and were conducted by Revs. Ward, Lamport and Baker, the first making a very fine discourse, being an old settler himself. The attendance was very large, filling the Church to its utmost capacity.

STILL ANOTHER.

Since writing the above we learn that Jacob Sugars, Esq., also an early pioneer, died last Teusday morinng in the 60th year of his age. Mr. Sugars came to this county about the year 1840, and gave material assistance in the building up and improvement of the country. Mr. S. leaves a wife and two sons, all, at present, residents of the county. Like Mr. Moody, he was a sound Democrat, and all that has been said of the former is just as applicable to Mr. Sugars. He was buried at this place, with unusual solemnities, a large concourse of citizens paying tribute to his memory by being present.

The game limits expired on the first of February. To save our sportsmen from the "ravages" of the lawyers, we publish the game law for them:

Section 2. That it shall be unlawful to kill or trap quails or pheasants from the first day of February to the first day of Octer in each year, and it shall be unlawful to net quails at any time. Any person or persons violating these provisions shall upon conviction thereof be fined the sum of two dollars for each quail or pheasant, so trapped shot or netted.

It is unlawful for any person or persons to have in his or their possession any of the game above mentioned within any of the respective times within which the killing, &c., of the same is prohibited and the persons so offending are subject to the same penalties as are provided for Killing, etc.

The sports are singing gaily, oh; all about the beautiful snow. The ride at night, by the pale moonlight, and then they goes, o'er the hard white snows, to the nearest place where the whisky flows. And with nose and toes that are almost froze, they go home tight, long after night, with breath that's never so sweet as a rose. Oh, oh, ain't it delightful, though their wives all think it so frightful. With punches at night, till each one gets tight, and goes through a regular corning; there's no harm done, in having a bum, save an aching head in the morning.

Householders Call In—I have the celebrated Rhodehamel Scrubber and Carpet Stretcher; a first rate article for cleaning and mopping up floors, and putting down carpets. Call and get one. I am also agent, to supply merchants by the dozen at factory prices.

Musical Review.

Tuesday evening the last review of the term took place at the Conservatory of Music, of Fort Wayne, the cosy little hall being crowded to repletion by friends and patrons of the institution which must have proved extremely gratifying to both teachers and pupils. The review was conducted on the same principles as the ones which heave preceded it, and comprised exercises in vocal and instrumental music music by the different clatses, ranging from the lowest to the highest. The scholars in attendance are evidently making rapid and gratifying progress, and acquiring a thorough mastery of the principles underlying all true musical excellence.—They are required to understand perfectly the elements before they leave the lower classes, and to this fact may be ascriben the excellence and finish of the culture they have acquired.

Another term began last Wednesday, the number of pupils in attendance having been largely increased by new accessions. The success of the conservatory, both financially and otherwise must be particularly gratifying to Prof. Virgil. He is determined to make it worthy of support, and among other additional inducements which he will soon offer to those desiring to become skillful on the piano forte, will be the privilege of taking lessons from a Professor from Boston, a graduate of the Berlin Conservatory of Music, and a very accomplished painist, who has been engaged and will soon enter upon his duties in this city.

Our Card.

We are now ready to offer our patrons and the public, greater inducements than ever before, as we have now received our second stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, and have now the largest and most complete stock of clothing in the State. We have purchased them for cash and at such prices that we can defy any merchant in the State to compete with us. All we ask to have you call and examine our stock and prices and we can soon convince you that we can't be undersold. Remember the place, The Original Red Front Clothing Hall No. 5, Keystone Block, Ft. Wayne

Trustees should see that Teachers do not commence their schools without a license.

JAMES A. BARNS, Examiner.

Sowing Clover Seed.

In answer to an inquiry made by a Tennesseean about sowing clover on an old sedge field, Mr. F. Curtiss advises the use of barnyard manure; if that is not obtainable apply some bone dust or phosphate and sow with the seed, and when the clover is up a little way, top dress with plaster. Apply the manure broadcast at the time of seeding. A bushel of clean red clover seed weighs about sixty pounds, and is enough for four or five acres. It should be sowed in February, about the time of the last snowfall, and allowed to settle in the ground as the snow melts, and the surface becomes muddy. If one is a beginner with clover he should get only a bushel at first and secure a good stand of four acres.

Paying Storage or Keeping Grain.

A great deal has been said relating to the exhaustion of the storage facilities in Chicago. It seems patent that there is likely to be a glut in all the important shipping points in the West. The railroads have also been taxed to their utmost capacity, but there is still room for storage, for besides the capacity of the elevators in Chicago, which now represent about 2,000,000 bushels yet unfilled, the vessels of various classes in port, represent a capacity of 2,500,000 bushels.

We advise farmers not to be in a hurry to ship, just at present. It will be but a short time now until navigation opens, and grain will move freely. Watch the markets and read the journals specially devoted to the interests of agriculture. All the departments of trade nowadays have organs especially devoted to the interests of agriculture.

It would be a natural sequence that grain will depreciate in price between now and the opening of navigation. It is only a question whether the farmer can hold his surplus himself, or send it forward to the markets, and pay storage in the public graneries.

Canary Birds.

Hang the cage always were drafts do not strike the bird. Give healthy birds canary and ripe seed, plenty of fresh water, cuttle fish bone, and clean gravel on the bottom of cage often.—Also, give the birds fresh water to bathe in every day. After they have bathed remove the dish, which should be rather shallow. Never have the room over heated. At night, when the fire has gone down, if it is very cold, throw a thin cloth over the cage. A little pepper occasionally regulates them. Do not give them cake or sugar. When moulting, feed them on ripe seed, slightly moistened. Hard boilt eggs and crackergrated are excellent. Bad seed will kill birds. Cabbage and sweet apples are good for them, and now and then a fig. With moderate care the litile songesters will repay your attension with sweet notes of joy.

The Chicago Post's plains correspondent writes. 'I never saw so many Indians in my life. I should think there were a million at least, I won't take off an Indians; though several of them will get taken off before spring if General Palmer moves westward. They are dressed mostly in blankets and bears grease. They are confiding people. Yesterday a squad of thirteen came into our tent, and the oldest availed himself of the right of seniority by sitting down on our hot box-stove, which he mistook for a valise. He was much surprised, and the quarter-master has been issuing laudanum poultices every since.'

"How Can I Coom."

'Ven I first come to Filadelfy to serve, I was very uncivil,' said Katrine, now a tidy servant girl in a respectable family, 'I laugh mooch, and I feel ashamed to remember how I have ven I know so little. Shon tat vas my beau—Shon, he took me to that teater one night, ven I be in Filadelfy but tree weeks. We sit in te gallery, and we not see goot, and Shon said he would get a better seat. So ha puts his leg round der post, und slides down mit der pillar, and looks up and calls out:—'Katrine! come down! tish a goot place here!' and I lean over and said I: 'How can I coom down Shon?' VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS
EUREKA

J. Walker, Proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists and Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce street, N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No System of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

FOUTZ'S

CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

TEACHING PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Forty little urchins,
Coming through the door,
Pushing, crowding, making
A tremendous roar.
Why don't they keep quiet?
Can't you mind the rule?
Bless me, this is pleasant,
Teaching public school.

Forty little pilgrims,
On the road to fame!
If they fail to reach it,
Who will be to blame?
High and lowly stations—
Birds of every feather—
On a common level
Here are brought together.

Dirty little faces,
Loving little hearts,
Eyes brim full of mischief,
Skilled in all its arts.
That's a precious darling,
What are you about?
'May I pass the water?'
'Please may I go out?'

Boots and shoes are scuffling
Slates and books are rattling,
And in the corner yonder
Two pugilists are batting;
Others cutting didoes—
What a botheration.
No wonder we grow crusty,
From such associations.

Anxious parent drops in,
Merely to inquire
Why his olive branches
Do not shoot up higher;
Says he wants his children
To mind th ir p's and q's,
And hopes their brilliant talents
Will not be abused.

Spelling, reading, writing,
Putting up the younger ones,
Fuming, scolding, fighting,
Spurring on the dumb ones.
Gymnastics, vocal music
How the heart rejoices
When the SINGER comes to Cultivate the voices.

The Hoosier's Snake Story.

BY JAS. SARISH SSELLP.

'Fish is queer things,' said my Hoosier friend

'Don't it kinder astonish you to think how they lay frozen stiff all winter, and then thaw out alive and kicking again in the sprin?'

I confess that it did, feeling at the same time, curious to know what had brought a subject so entirely isolated from preceding conversation, into his head.

'They say snakes stay frozen all winter the same way, and then thaw out in the spring all right on the goose.

'Are you afraid of snakes?'

Owned that I was, and began to expect a story.

'I ust to be mortal 'fraid of snakes,' continued he, hardly waiting for my reply, 'but I got kinder broke of that eight or a dozen years ago. Did I tell you about it.'

Of course he had'nt.

'Well, as I was sayin', in was eight or a dozen years ago—I was only a clever chunk of a shaver then. The fact is I was just begin' to think about the girls right smart. Father sent me to old Dale's hoss mill with some corn. You see, in those days we had no steam mills in this part of Indiana—done all our grinding by hoss power, carried all our grist to the mill on hooses; waited for our turns, and so on; but that's neither here nor over there.

As I was sayin', the old man sent me to mill with a grist of corn, 'cause you see there was no such thing as wheat thought of in them days—guess wheat bread had'nt much more that been invented then. But that's neither here nor there.

Well, my father sent me to the hoss mill and I had to wait for my turn 'cause several fellow was ahead of me. So I waited and while I was waiting, me and the boys went down to the creek to pull sweet root'—

Here I interrupted him, and ask him what sweet roots were.

'Did you ever!' Don't know what that is?' 'Well, that's a good one. Thought every one know'd what sweet roots was. Did'nt never see any young hickory bushes a growing about in the woods, did you?'

Yes, sir.

'Well, them are sweet roots. We pulled 'em up in the spring of the year, when we found the roots as sweet as sugar and tender as sweet taters. But that's neither here nor there.

We'd got up as many sweet roots as we wanted, and was settin' along on a log a talkin' 'bout one thing another, when one of the boys hollers out to me—sez he:

'Phil! Phil! thars a rattle snake under'n you!'

I lookt, and shure as shootin' there was the biggest snake you ever seed, a climbin' up the side of the log, and gettin' a good ready to nab the seat of my—(his unmentionables.)

'Thout waitin' to think I jest make one of my mortalest plunges in hopes to get away afore it got holt; but all too late.—It made a sure grab and hung on like a vise. And you may safely say there was some tall runnin' about them. On my soul, I believe I went like a streak o' lightning. All did no good, for at every leap the snake came a floppin' and a floppin' round my legs; and purty soon, sez I to myself, the blamed thing must be a tryin' to get wound round me to squeeze me to death. And when I thought that I let out to runnin' harder than ever. Over the fence I went into the turnip patch, all the boys after me a screaming and a yellin' and the snake a holdin' on, and a floppin' around my legs.

Jest afore reachin' the other fence I quit feeling the snake, so I lookt around to see what had come of it. What do you think? Why, sir, the snake was gone—only its skin was left a hangin' to my pantloons.—Thinks, sez I, beasts all nature! I've run so fast I've jerked it out'n its skin!—so I gets a little rail and I goes back to kill it and what do you recond I finds?'

Our first guess was that he had found the snake.

'No, sir,' continued he, 'I finds a streak o' meal clean across the turnip patch!—Them boys had stuffed an old snake skin with meal, and pinned it to my trowsers.

Dutchman.

'Das Oonion Hill coomes by these cars?' inquired a jolly Dutchman on Saturday night as he started into a Union Hill car at Hoboken.

'Yaw, Fritz,' answered a fellow country man.

'Veat cakes all the vile, Yacob,' said Fritz nearly crushing his friends toes in his attempt to steady himself.

'Fritz you pe tam heavy to-night'

'Yaas, I bees full of hot Dom and sherrys, Yacob; I was a fool to dry Yankee drinks; Dom and Sherry doo much for Fritz. I must dry und got some fresh air on de platform, Yake.

Fritz succeeded in getting the door open about six inches; a biting wind blew through the aperture, when an indignant passenger sprung to his feet and closed the door with a suddenness that turned Fritz half around.

'Bees dis car on de outside or inside?' inquired Fritz.

'You are all right, Fritz; sit down in this corner,' said Yacob.

'Dank you, Yacob; if I sleeps when mine house coomes along, dell me who I am.'

Beecher on Death.

Mr. Beecher said he did not think it an evidence of special Christian grace to be willing to die. He did'nt think it natural for the young, or for those full of activeness of life, to desire to die. It is better to be willing to live and do the duties of life. When Paul said it was better to depart he was an old man in person. If an October pippin says it is ready to drop, is that any reason a little green apple in June should be ready. It is the business of green apples to get ripe. All the representation of the New Testament about death are full of cheer and hope. For Paul to die was to go to Christ. Dying is not growing short of breath and feeble of pulse; it is flying up to the all loving soul of the universe. It is going to sweet companionship. We struggle on through the world, finding little of just man made perfect; we go to where all the conditions lift us up to a realm of nobility. There all is concord. There is no selfishness, no hardness or crudeness and rudeness or revenge; all are working up, with one sweet impulse, with the great genial creative force of Divine love. These thoughts ring in my soul like the bells of a far off city, drawing me thitherward. Dying is the easiest thing men do. The suffering is in life; but as a rule men die as easily as a door turns upon its hinges. Dying is going home, not to supineness, not to Oriential luxury, but to supreme activity, where every part is developed and cultured in the realm of love. Bless God for the privilege of dying. My brother Charles, who was always in a dying mood, once congratulated my father upon the fact that he could'nt live much longer. 'Umph' said the old man, 'I don't thank any of my boys to talk to me in that way. I don't want to die. If I had my choice and it was right to choose, I would fight the battle all over.' 'Father,' continued Beecher 'was a war horse, and after he was turned out to pasture, whenever he heard the sound of a trumphet, he wanted the saddle and bridle.'

Critical Periods of Human Life

From the age of forty to that of sixty a man who properly regulates himself may be considered in the prime of life. His matured strength of constitution renders him almost impervious to the attacks of disease, and all the functions are in the highest order. Having gone a year or two past sixty, however, he arrives at a critical period of existance; the river of death flows before him, and he remains at a stand still. But arthwart this river is a viaduct called 'The Turn of Life,' which if crossed in safety to the valley 'Old Age,' round which the river winds, and then flows beyond without a boat or causeway to affect its passage. The bridge is constructed of fragile materials, and it depends upon how it is trodden whether it bend or break. Gout, apoplexy, and other bad characters, are also in the vicinity to waylay the traveler and thrust him from the pass; but let gird up his loins, and provide himself with perfect composure. To quote a metaphor, 'the turn of life' has a turn either into a prolonged walk or into the grave. The system and power having reached their utmost expansion, now begin either to close, like flowers at sunset or break down at once. One injudicious stimulant, a single fatal excitement, may force it beyond its strength; whilst a careful supply of props, and the withdrawal of all that tends to force a plant, will sustain it in beauty and vigor until night has nearly set in.

Gen. Hazen, commanding at Fort Hays, Kansas, writes to Bergh stating that the buffaloes are being ruthlessly slaughtered for their skins alone, and asking him to use his influence with Congress to prevent such a wanton waste of this valuable food.

A Debt for which there is no attachment—the debt of nature,

The Robber's Roost,

OR

HAN'S LAST VICTIM

It was a sultry afternoon, that I crossed the Mississippi River, and negligently travelling on my way towards Greenville. The cool shade which covered the road, and the majestic woodland scenery, whiled away the time so pleasantly, that before I was aware of it, the sun was down, and darkness gently dropping its black vail.

I looked about me, and became alarmed at the density of the forest.—The sighing wind, the rustling of a bush, the hooting of an owl, startled me. In the thick shades of almost every tree, I imagined a wild beast ready to spring upon me, and behind the tree's monstrous trunks, I expected some hideous animal to dash furiously at me. I carried my revolver ready for any emergency, and loosened my heavy knife in its scabbard. But little did I imagine that, having passed the dangers of the woods, those of a more fearful and awful character awaited me.

The darkness had became intense, and it was with the greatest difficulty, I could pursue my course. At length, however, a light hove in view, and never in my life did I hail its gentle lustre with greater joy.

When I neared the spot, I found a dilapidated log house, two stories high, with a rickety old porch in front. A couple of gaunt ferocious hounds came rushing at me, and warned the inmates of my approach. I scrutinized the permises as closely as I could in the darkness, and was anything but satisfied with the result of my investigation But when I looked about me, and saw the heavy gloom which hung upon everything, and the prospect of being devouered by wolves, I concluded to first inquire the distance to the next stopping place, and if it was too far, to remain where I was.

The door opened, and a husky voice said, 'Who is there?'

'A stranger,' I replied, and followed up by asking, how far to the next stopping place?'

I could hear a low murmur of voices and then a reply came. 'ten miles or more.'

I dismounted, and fastened my horse to a post, and as I ascended the old rickety stairs of the porch, they creaked a dismal dirge, and the gaunt, lean hounds nipped savagely at my heels.

The room which I ented presented such a repulsive appearence, that I started back with mingled surprise and disgust. The eyes of several rough, uncouth looking individuals were turned upon me, and I felt in their glance something more of the ferociousness of the wild beast, than the gentleness of human beings.

'Take a seat, stranger?' said a burly thick-set man, as he handed me a chair which groaned piteously with its infirmities. As I cast a glance upon the group before me, I seem to hesitated, which was instantly noticed, and the officiating man who seemed to be the landlord, came toward me, and in a concilatory tone and style as a gentle as could be expected, said:

'Sorry we can't accommodate you better, stranger; but make yourself at home, we'll do the best by you we kin.'

A significant glance passed among the men, as the host concluded his hospitable invitations, which did not escape my notice.

At length, supper was served, consisting of corn bread and bacon; and for this meagre fare, abundant apologies were offered.

After listening a short time to their disgusting conversation, I informed my host I would like to retire.

'Will you leave your saddle bags?' said he, with a bland smile, as he extended his monstrous hand to take them.

'No, sir,' I replied, while a heavy frown gathered on my brow.

'I have a safe place to keep them,' he rejoined, while his blood-shot eyes stabbed me to the heart.

'No doubt,' said I, with a meaning nod, 'but I would prefer taking them with me.'

This conclusion was received rather coldly, and as I prepared to leave the room, one of the men espied the handle of my revolver protruding from beneath my coat.

'Hello, stranger!' he exclaimed, in a quick tone, 'let's see that 'ere pistol, will you?' So sudden had been the demand and in such seeming innocent curiosity, that I put my hand back to give it to him. But a second thought decided me, and I replied, that it was no great curiosity and I would show it to him in the morning.

By this time the men had gathered around me, and seeing things looked rather peculiar, I backed myself through a door, followed by the host. When the door was closed, I could hear loud murmurings, and an oath or two uttered in vehement tones.

The landlord hurried me up a feeble pair of stairs, and a few yards from the landing, pushed open the door, and bade me enter, I glanced around the appartment, and showed, by my action, that I was dissatisfied with its appearance.

'It is the best that I can do for you stranger,' said he; 'and you needn't be afraid of them fellows down stairs, they won't hurt anybody.'.

'I shall not be alarmed,' I replied, as he closed the door, and descended the steps. I was somewhat annoyed at the appearance of things, and determined to place myself in the best possible position of defence. I examined quarters closely, and found the door had no fastening whatever, nor was there anything convenient with which it could be secured.

Determined not to be baffled, I tore a strip of board from the wall, and with my knife, cut a piece sufficiently long to make a brace from the lower clete of the door to the floor. Then with my pocket knife, I bored holes in the casing at the upper end, and drawing several nails from the wall, I drove them with the handle of my large knife. Having examinined the walls, and apprehending no treachery form them, I secured the window, and then turned my attention to the floor. Beneath the bed I discovered a trap door and the discovery made my hair stand on end. I found it opened downward, and the probability of securing it strongly seemed hopeless.

Once I thought of removing the bed, and then watching, as a trapper does a hole in the ice for game. But that would not do, for should I successfully repulse the first intruder—for I had no longer a doubt of being a Robber's Roost—it would leave a hole open which would expose me to their fire. At length a plan came to my relief. I moved the bed from over the door, and taking the clothes off, I threw the chaff bed upon the floor, and directly over the suspected trap 'But, oh horror!' what a discovery I made. The bed was saturated with blood, and in many places, hard from the gore which had dried in it.

Having thus fortified myself, I took a seat on one end of the bed, with my saddle bags close to me, my knife in one hand, and my revolver in the other, and my ammunition convenient, in case I should need it. I blew out my light, and in the darkness awaited the the denoument of the plot. How long I waited, I could not tell; but in spite of my perilous situation, my eyes grew heavy, and I was almost overcome with sleep. But an easy moving of the bed-aroused all my preceptive faculties, and in an instant I was wide awake. It moved several times, quite easy, and then all became quiet. I listened a few moments, but could hear nothing. Presently, there came faint whispers from an adjoining room; my eyes folowed the direction, and I saw a small stream of light pouring through an opening in the partition. I stole softly to the spot, and listened a moment. I then put my eyes to the opening, and had a fair view of the operations inside.

So horrible was the sight I then beheld, that its recolection will never be from memory. Hanging from the bed, and with his head nearly severed from his body, was an old gray-headed man, which the purple current of life was steadily streaming from the gash. I reeled a moment with dizziness, and was about to withdraw from the scene, when when the door softly oppened, and a person entered. I looked again, and three of the men I had seen in the bar-room, were standing near the dead man.

'Why, Hans,' said one, 'I thought you had fixed him by this time.'

'We'll have troble with that customer,' replied Hans, shaking his head; 'he is up to something, he put his bed over the trap.'

'The devil!' they both exclaimed, and looked at each other in suprise.

'We must manage him somehow,' said Hans; 'for he has money, I am certain of that.'

'Hadn't we better attend to that 'ere gal, first!' suggested one.

'Yes, the old man is fixed, now, for the gal; and picking up the light, they left the room.

'What girl?' thoahgt I. 'Is it possible some person as unfortunate as to myself has beem compelled to stop here!'

I listened eagerly, and presently a crash came, followed by a shrill scream, I sprang toward my door, but recollected that I had it well secured. I hesitated a moment, when another scream more terrific than the first, followed by the sharp report of a pistol. It was but the work of a moment to unfasten the door and dash out. As I sprang into the passage, I met two men, who fired simultaneously, but without effect. I leveled my revolver, and sent the contents of one barrel through the head of one, who tumbled heavily down stairs, dragging his companion with him.

I rushed into the room, and found the girl sheltered behind the bed, keeping Hans at bay with a revolver. As I entered, Hans sprang at me with a fiendish expression, and in spite of my efforts, seized me in his Herculian clutches. My pistol now was of no use, so hurling it from me, I drew my knife, and soon put an end to the struggle. I gathered up my pistol, and hurried the girl into my own room, and soon had the door securely barricaded. I then explained to her our situation, and how I came to discover she was to be a victim. When I told her of the old man, she faintly gasped, 'It is my father!' and the next moment lay senseless on the floor. Now, I was in a trying position. I expected every moment the attack of the robbers would be renewed, and in all probability they would overpower us, and then our dooms would be sealed. I involuntarily cast my eyes toward the window, as if it would afford some hope of escape. But then the robbers would have a fair chance, could surround us, and murder us without a show of defence. I had all this time counted on my fair companion as an assistant, not reflecting that she was a woman, and I essayed to protect her. When this thought crossed my mind, all my combative powers were aroused, and I felt strong and competent to contend with a host.

I heard whisperings, and footsteps gently stealing up stairs. A dim light shone beneath the door, and revealed several large holes and cracks. I kept my eyes intently fixed in that direction while my heart palpitated so loud, that its vibration could be distinctly heard.

A slight shuffling of the feet, and crash, crash, went several reports while bullets whizzed sharply about my head. The girl gave a shrill schream; I groaned, and crept closer to the door, and which was riddled with bullets, and through the holes I could plainly discern their actions.

I still had five shots in my revolver, and determined to use them to the best advantage.

'He's done for now,' said one, as he stood eyeing the door.

'But the gal,' replied a little, short, thick-setman, 'she fights like thunder.'

'Ha! you coward, who would fear a woman?' returned the first speaker, with a sneer.

'Jim Bates, I'll make you smell powder for that afore mornin,' said the little man savagely.

'We must have this 'ere door open;' and suiting the action to the word assault was made upon it.

I leveled my pistol and fired, when with an oath, the man fell back upon the floor. I gave them two more shots, when they retreated precipitately down stairs. I reloaded my pistol, and then returned to my companion, who was trying to staunch the blood which was flowing from the wound in her neck.

'I fear, sir, my life is short, and I sincerely thank you for your kind protection,' she feebly murmured, and sunk exhausted on the bed.

I was about to offer some assistance, when I again heard steps on the stairs, and earnest talking, as of persons remonstrating. Thinking the attack at the door would be renewed, I drew the bedstead against, it, and threw the bedding over the head-board, and thus formed a kind of breast-work.

'Say, Mister, don't shoot, I wan't to speak a few words with you,' said a voice at the head of the stairs.

'I'll shoot the first man who comes near that door,' I replied, savagely.

'Oh! no, don't; I'm your friend,' he replied, in a tone which carried treachery with it. 'Come to the door, will yor?'

'Yes; but don't you come.'

'I won't; are you there?'

'Yes,'

'Close?'

'Yes.'

I felt a slight mooving of the bed over the trap, druing which time the men outside kept up an incessant jabber.

One end of the bed was raised softly, and taking hold of it with my left hand, I gently raised it up, until I could discover a head above the opening.

'Are you at the door?'

'Yes'—and simultaneously with my answer went a leaden messenger through the head in the trap, and bang came a bullet through the door.

The sound of a heavy fall announced that my shot had taken effect.

I searched for the revolver the girl had used, and fortunately found it, and was happy to discover that but one load had been shot out of it, which I replaced; and being thus re-inforced, I felt more confident of victory.

But to overcome this gang seemed almost hopeless, as their numbers might be very large, I was so far from assistance. But might not some providential circumstance transpire to deliver me from the hands of these desperadoes? I was determined to do my best, and to leave the result in the hands of Him who directs the affairs of men.

A noise at the window drew my attention, and I caught the glimpse of a man's head slowly rising above the sill. Taking a deliberate aim, I gave him the contents of one barrel, and he descended much quicker than he came up.

What would be the next feature of the programme, I could not imagine; but like a wild beast at bay, watched every move, and had my ears open to every sound But I felt that something decisive must be done, for day would soon make its apperance, and they would have the advantage of me.

Again there were ascending the stairs; I now determined to put an end to the contest and if possible, overcome them, and to make them come to term, or die in the attempt.

I drew the bedstead around so as to protect the girl from their fire, and then stationed myself near the door, but beyond their reach.

Crash went an axe against the door, and the spinters flew in every direction. It was but the work of a moment to break the door in, and when it fell from its fastenings, I sallied forth with a revolver in each hand. One man dropped before me, another reeled and fled precipitately down stairs. A few shots were returned, one of which took effect in my shoulder, and as I felt the blood trickle down my side, it only increased my desperation. I rushed after them, firing whenever I was sure my shot would be effectual. When I reached the bar-room, I gave him my last shot. He fell, and begged me to spare him, as he was the only remaining one of the party. Thinking he could not escape, I returned to the house, and taking a light, searched it thoroughly, and could not find another live man about it. I then ascended the stairs, and found the girl somewhat recovered. We then set about dressing our wounds, and was so absorbed in the matter, that I did not notice a glaring light which was breaking through the door.

'The house is on fire!' exclaimed the girl, springing to her feet.

Taking her by the hand, we rushed to the stairway, but it was one continuous sheet of fire. We then returned to the window, and finding the ladder still there by which the man had ascended, I took her in my arms and descended, thus effecting our escape from another emminent danger.

The man had set the house on fire, and either perished in the flames, or dragged himself to some place of concealment.

Finding two horses in a small stable close by, we took possession of them, and returned to a little town near the Mississippi River. The lovely girl and myself, who had met so strangely, never parted, but will remain one and the same until death, nor have we ever forgotten The Robber's Roost, or Han's Last Victim.

Maxims for Farmers.

The following good maxims should be carefully read and lived up to by all our farmers. They are well worth are preserving for constant reference:

1. Only good farming pays. He who sows without a reasonable assurance of good crops, annually, might better earn wages of some capable neighbor than work for so poor an paymaster as he is certain to prove himself.

2. The good farmer is proved such by the steady appreciation of his crops. Any one may reap an ample harvest from a fertile virgin soil; the good farmer alone, grows good crops at first, and better and better afterward.

3. It is far easier to maintain the productive capacity of a farm than to restore it. To exhaust its fecundity, and then attempt its restoration buy costly commercial fertilizers is wasteful and irrational.

4. The good farmer sells mainly such products as are least exhaustive. Necessity may constrain him, for the first year or two, to sell grain, or even hay; but he will soon send off his surplus, mainly in cotton, or wool, or meat, or butter and cheese, or something else that return to the soil nearly all that is taken from it. A bank account daily drawn upon, while nothing is deposited to its credit, must soon respond 'no funds.' So with a farm similarly treated.

5. Rotation is at least negative fertilization. It may not positively enrich a farmer, it will at least retard and postpone its impoverishment. He who grows wheat after wheat, corn after corn, for twenty years, will need to emigrate before the term is fulfilled. The same farm cannot support (or endure) him longer that. All our wheat-growing sections of fifty years ago are wheat-growing no longer; while England grows larger crops thereof on the very fields that fed the armies of Saxon Harold and William the Conqueror. Rotation has preserved these as the lack of it has ruined those.

6. Wisdom is never dear, provided the article be genuine. I have known farmers who toiled constantly from daybreak to dark yet died poor, because, through ignorance, they wrought to disadvantage. If every farmer would devote two hours of each day to reading and reflection there would be fewer failures in farming than there are at present.

7. The best investment a farm can make for his children is that which surrounds their youth with the rational delights of a beauteous, attractive home. The dwelling may be small and rude, yet a few flowers will enrich and gladden it; while grass and shade are within reach of the humblest.—Hardly any labor done on a farm is so profitable as that which makes the wife and children fond and proud of their home.

An Ignoble Ignoramus.

Who?

The fellow who styles himself Hon. John B. Stoll.

Why?

Because he has outraged every manly feeling, through his ignorance of a sense of honor, and laid bare the perfidy of his heart, by publishing private letters written to him in all confidence and received by him under the guise of friendship.

This is Hon. John B. Stoll!

A treacherous leach, by his own acknowledgment, that would use you for his own selfish ends, and then pay you off with ingratitude and low cunning only known to such as he.

A scab upon society, whose foul excretions occur "weekly" in two papers.

He ignores us because we have shown him up as a shyster and an ambitious office seeker of a grade th rd-rate to a ward bummer.

He ignores us because we have shown that the basis of his stultified political proclivities is money.

He ignores us because we have exposed his treachery, and shown him to be a falsifier.

He ignores us because we have taken the part of a gentleman his compeer in excellence and worth, whom he has attacked in style of a blackguard, and villified in the most contemptible manner.

He ignores us because we have told the truth and made him out a worthless demagogue.

And lastly, he ignores us because we know, and so do the people, that he is a rampant jackass, who measures his brains by the extent of his corporosity—a kind of political eunuch, about as fit for a political leader, to which he aspires, as a stage-horse.

We have done with the honorable part of this man. He has desecrated the temple of honor, and like a dastard, divulged that which is held sacred by all honorable men, without its having advanced his cause one step.

Hereafter we shall only recognize him as the redoubtable dutchman from Noble, asking pardon of our readers for bringing so odious a name so frequently before them.

The strength of the Democratic ticket for State officers, carries terror to the heart of the Radicals. It is one of the very best State nominations ever put before the people, and it will be elected.—New Haven Registe.

They evidently believe out in Iowa that 'the world is governed too much,' so they propose that their legislators shall meet hereafter but once in 6 years and that the session shall be limited to sixty days. In an extraordinary emergency the Governor has the power to call an extra session.

A Savannah negro describes Sumner's civil rights bill as a 'trap to kill fool niggers.' He delivers himself thus: 'You see, sah, some fool nigger will go the Pulaski House and jess set himself down by a white man, and de white man will jess fro dat ar nigger out de winder and broke his neck.'

Mr. Colfax, the truly great Vice President, presents a remarkable resemblance to Mr. James Mace, truly great prize fighter. Mr. Mace, retired from private life and Mr. Colfax did likewise. Mr. Mace changed his mind and seeks public life again; Mr. Colfax has changed his mind and also seeks to continue in public life.

The Seneca sandstone, which has been used in the foundation of the new State Department building, contray to the orders of the committee having the supervision of that work, has been very much injured by this winter's frost so that it will be manifestly unsafe to build upon it. This stone contract was a job in which certain high functionaries were concerned.

The Chicago Tribune (Republican) thus pleasantly illustrats some of the beauties of Mr. Summer's Civil Right Bill, which he is earnestly pressing in the Senate. It says of it:

'They have no more right to enact by statute that the negro may occupy the same pew in church with a white man, or the same church, for that matter, than they have to enact that A shall admire only the Apollo Belvidere, and no other statues, or that B shall delight in the perfume of a peony when he prefers a pink. If John Doe, being white prefers to sit at the table by the side of a white man, Congress has no right to declare that his preference can Richard not be recognized, and that Doe, being black, shall eat from the next plate.'

Schuyler Colfax again anticipates retiring from public life. In a letter which he had published some days since, he very boldly declines the nomination for the Presidency, for which exalted position his name has been mentioned by only a few of the most obscure sheets of the darkest recesses of Indiana. No one ever seriously entertained the idea of nominating him, but this was the only opportunity afforded him to be so ostentatiously independent. How sad it seems, yet he continues to smile in spite of all his troubles.

The South Bend Union, in speaking of the decision of the Supreme Court sustaining the Sinking Fund distribution act, says:

'This is all as it should be, but there is one further step, that Mr. Shoemaker, the Auditor of State, owes to himself and the people of the State to take. It has been nearly a year since the law was passed, during a large portion of this time the fund ought to have been in the hands of the county officers drawing interest, and should have yielded a revenue of thirty thousand dollars. Mr. Shoemaker should make a further statement showing just where the money has been during all this time, and if any interest has been paid for its use, he should promptly refund every cent of it to the State; this would be exact justice both to the Auditor and the public. It would completly exculpate Mr. Shoemaker from any blame in the matter, and would satisfy the people. They will be satisfied with nothing less at the hands of Auditor.'

This Democratic reform must be made a realty. There has been enough of Republican fraud in the management of the Sinking Fund, and Mr. Shoemaker must make a satisfactory statement of his stewardship. The interest derived from this fund, if any, must be paid into the Treasury. Nothing short of this will satisfy the Democracy of Indiana.

A Happy Hit.

Judge Thurman understands how to hit the nail directly on the head when he wishes to. For instance speaking in the Senate last week, he casually remarked:

Now I find great difficulty in understanding this administration. The President in his annual message recommends and amnesty, and here is the Senator from Indiana [Morton] one of his chief supporters, denouncing it. The President recommends civil service reform, and the senator from Wisconsin (Carpenter) pours out upon it the avils of his wrath and ridicule. I can hardly under stand it, but if I were a suspicious man I would say that this is the old trick of throwing a tub to the whale. I would suspect that when the President says 'Let us havs amnesty,' there is a mental reservation that the Radicals in the senate shall kill amnesty, and that when he says 'Let us have civil service reform' there is a mental reservation that it shall be killed in congress. I do not charge any such hypocrisy upon the President, but it does look wonderfully strange that very important recommendations by the President is ignored by his friends in this chamber.

Beecher on Amnesty.

In the columns of the Christian Union appears an article on amnesty by H. Ward Beecher, from which make the following extract.

'We commend to the attention of gentle man who are afraid of amnesty the present condition of Louisiana.—Are the solders of the political power in that community such a select and virtuous class that the admission of exceptionists would lower the average quality? In fact was there ever a set of more worthless adventurers than those who are wrangling over the offices in New Orleans? Have not we had evidence enough of the wretched misgovernment of half the South? Sice we cannot directly cure it, let us at least leave the people perfectly free to do the best they can for themselves. Let us not shut out all their old and trusted leaders. leaders from the offices which the verriest riff-raff are free to enter. We are excluding the class of the most intelligent and capable men in the South for supporting a cause which the whole white population supported. Surely it is time for this injustice and folly to end.

A Colfaxiana.

An unexpected opportunity was given Colfax the other day to exhibit his political cunning and demogoguery in an unusual and striking degree. The vote upon Sumner's bill enforcing negro equality upon the people, and which he sought to attach to amnesty bill, stood a tie in the Senate. This little event left the Artful Dodger in an unexpected dilemma, with wit hardly sufficient to enable him to escape from another of its horns. His demogoguery, however, stood him in hand, and after declaring he could not endorse the provisions of Sumner's bill, voted for it, and by which vote it passed the Senate and killed the amnesty bill, as it was intended at the start to do. It is pitiful to see such trickey and duplicity resorted to by a man holding the second highest position in the government, and who manifests no higher concern for the welfare of the country than that which advances the interest of his party. Under all his smiling and amiable exterior Colfax carries the most consumate and finished dissemulation. He lies in a very atmosphere of deceit and deception, and what is known as a 'Pollyfoxer' among all our politicians. No act of his life could better illustrate the inherent treachery of his character and Pecksniffian qualities, than his vote in the Senate on Friday. It is Colfax all over. He is the same oleaginous, slippery, double dealing politician, whose dark ways and vain tricks we learned so well how not to despise in the days of the Bloody

Rather Thin.

The name of Col. I. B. McDonald has been mentioned by many of the papers in the State for the second position on the next state ticket, and, as the press should at all times reflect the sentiments of the people, we may conclude that a majority are decidedly in favor of his nomination. Were we entirely unacquainted with the Colonel we would ask no better proof of his moral and political worth than the greatly increased majorities with which he has, more than once, carried his own county. He has fairly won and retained the confidence of his fellow-citizens by the very creditable and highly satisfactory manner in which he always discharged the important and responsible trusts placed in his hands. He certainly occupies a high social and political position at home, and a like position abroad. His only crime, or failing, or call it what you will, is this he lives in a county that lies too close to Noble. Did he reside in a county farther remote from a region which is illuminated by a very poor quality of Schneider county light and knowledge, he would not find fierce traducers in a couple of political bushwhackers, who would, if they could, build a very uncertain political fabric upon the solid ground now occupied by the gallant Colonel. The Laporte Argus, edited by John B. Stoll and H. E. Wadsworth, has been, for several weeks, thrusting at the public career of McDonald in a manner that has exhibited more spleen than wisdom.—The friends of Col. McDonald and particularly the Columbia City Post, have made it so uncomfortably warm for the Argus men that their true position could be no longer held. Accordingly, Wadsworth assumes the load and permits Stoll to step aside. Wadsworth has nothing to gain, and consequently, nothing to loose by the transaction.—Bluffton Banner.

The 'Liberal' Movement.

Judging from the following, which is running the gauntlet of the Missouri papers, the Liberal Republicans of that State will not long be left alone in their glory:

'CINCINNATI, Jan. 29, 1872.

'The undersigned have observe with pleasure the call by the recent convention of Liberal Republicans of Missouri for a mass convention, to be held in the city of Cincinnati, on the first Wednesday, being the first day of May next, to take take such action as their convictions of duty and the public exigency may require. Heartfuly sympathizing with the views and purposes which have dictated this call, the undersigned, in behalf of themselves and such Republicans of this city and vicinity as unite with them in sentiment, join in the invitation and urge upon all those favoring the political reforms proposed as the object of this movement, to attend this meeting.

The President's State Dinners.

The State dinners are eaten by about thirty guests. The names of those to be invited are given the invitation clerk, and he fills up the the engraved cards whereon spaces for names and dates have been left blank. An immediate answer, accepting or declining the invitation, is expected, and seats left vacant by regrets must be filled. The full number of guests having accepted the clerk proceeds to page them off and prepare the cards, which enclosed in a small envelope, are given each gentleman in the cloak-room. These cards have one end the name of the lady the gentleman is to escort to the table and on the other end a diagram of the table, with the name of the gentleman and the lady placed under his care opposite the numbers indicating their respective seats. Confusin in thus avoided. The State dining-room is in the west wing of the White House, and the table is set with due regard to the points of the compass. The President sits in central seat (not in the seat of the scornful) with his back to the north, Mrs. Grant sits exctly opposite. The place of honor for the ladies are on the right and left of the President, and on the right and left of Mr. Grant for gentlemen. Some eighteen or twenty courses have been known to be served at these dinners, and at every plate are eight glasses for different kinds of wine.

What a Rotten Bridge Cost.

The little town of Ashfield, Massachusetts, has an unfortunate experience in litigation. Some four years ago a coach containing a dozen persons fell through a defective bridge, and all the passengers were now were more or less injured. The town setted with them, but rejected the claims of others as unreasonable. Judgements amounting alto gether to nearly $25,000 have now been recovered against the town by these claimants, and the town has had to pay its own witnesses, counsel fees and other costs besides. The valuation of the town is a little less than $613,000 and the cost of the rotten bridge is at least about five per cent. upon it, a loss which a few dollars properly expended in inspection and repairs would have prevented.

The famous 'Buffalo Bill' was one of the party on the Buffalo hunt with the Grand Duke Alexis. The New York Herald correspondent thus describes the meeting of the Duke and Bill, at North Platte:

Gen. Sheridan arranged with the genial and daring 'Buffalo Bill' to be and act as guide, and this renowned scout was promptly on hand on hand in all his element. He was seated on a spanking charger, and with his long hat an spangled buckskin suit, he appeared in his true character of the feared and beloved of all for miles around. White men and the barbarous Indians are alike moved by his presence, and none of them dare do aught in word or deed contrary to the rules of law and civilization. After the Ducal party had alighted, Gen. Sheridan beckoned the notorious Bill to approach. He carelesly and yet respectfuly approached.

'Your Highnes,' said the General, 'this is Mr. Cady, otherwise and universally known as Buffalo Bill. Bill, this is the Grand Duke.'

'I am glad to see you,' said the hero of the plains, 'you have come out here. the General tells me, to shoot some buffalo.

'Yes,' answered Alexis, 'and I hope to have a good fine time. I have heard of you before, am glad to meet you here.'

'Thank you, thank you' said Bill with a smile as honest and sweet as that of a love-sick maiden: 'If the weather holds good we will have one of the finest hunts that ever was on this continent.

At this moment Dr. Candrin, of the Duke's suit, stepped up to Bill and mentioned a word or two about his rig-out.

'Do yo always dress this way?' asked the Doctor.

'No sir, not much. I have got this suit particularly for this occasion.—When Sheridan told me the the Duke was coming I thought I would throw myself on my this rig this morning, and half the people in the settlement have been accusing me of putting on airs; and then Bill laughed heartly, and so did the Doctor, the Duke, and the whole Imperial crowd.

The Two Misers.

Two neighboring gendeman of equal fortune, and remarkable for their avarice were distinguished, in their parish by the names of Cribb and Starvling. Mr. Cribb often visited his neighbor, and was as often visited by him, but as they both had the same end in view, they never asked each other to eat or drink, and they got along together very amicably till Cribb, one day, was present at his friend's when a man came to pay the interest of a thousand pounds, which raised Cribb's envy so much that he left the room and went home; but he returned in the evening to Mr. Starvling, in order to learn some of his saving maxims—when Cribb came in, he found him writing a letter by a farthing candle. He was no sooner sat down than Mr. Starvling put it out.

'How now!' says Cribb. 'what's that for.' To which Starvling replied;

'Cannot we talk as well in the dark?'

'Faith, neighbor,' says Cribb, 'you are an excellent economist. I wish you to teach me some of your rules.'

'Why friend.' said Starvling, 'one of my chief maxims is never to spend more than is necessary. Witness the candle!'

'Right,' quoth Cribb.

I remember, the saying of and old philosopher, which ought to be written in letters of gold—namely, that whatever is unnecessary, is too dear at a fathing.'

'Right,' thank you, neighbor. I'll set that down.

'Now, we are talking of saving,' says Starvling, 'let me ask you a question, pray, friend do you shave yourself.'

Quoth Cribb 'what do you take me for—a fool?'

'Well,' says Starvling 'do not be in a passion; I did but as. But what do you do with the lather?'

'Why, fling it away,' says Cribb, 'what do you think?'

'Why, there it is now,' says Starvling, that's enough to ruin a man; why, I always wash half a dozen handkerchiefs and a night-cap in mine, and then save it to wash my stockings.'

How To Go West.

Forty years ago, Illinois is as far west as most people wished to go, and journeys were made in the legendary "Prairie Schooner," but in these days of progress and improvement, the word west has come to mean Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado. California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid line of railroad.

This line of railroad is the Burlington Route which starts from Chicago over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad; from Indianapolis over the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Short Lile, and from Logansport over the Toledo Peoria and Warsaw Railroad, and running through Burlington reaches Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City St. Joseph and Kansas city, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and other railroads running from these cities.
